Our new website for the shows only is now taking shape, go check it out, thi-show.com. The donations website for the TPC and myself is still there on thinkdifferent.thepeoplesclub.org A special shout out for Angela Efken who has been unwell recently and undergoing treatment, I am sure you will join me in wishing her a speedy recovery. There are two types of people now, the people who think their government has their best interest and the people who think. There is a number of themes to tonight's show, connect all the dots and add in the penultimate piece of tonight, and a picture emerges, lets see how many of you can create the picture. Why is Fedex storing thousands of boxes of body bags at, at least one of their facilities? As Biden admits they will have 600M vaccines to vaccinate just 300 Americans, oh dear, perhaps he went to John Hopkins as well. As the UK police reaches more NKVD like after they arrested a woman, without a warrant, forced entry into her home in front of terrified children, for the disgraceful crime of singing in the garden. As Police officers in Rochester, New York, handcuffed and pepper-sprayed a 9-year-old girl while responding to what a police official called a report of "family trouble" in an incident sharply criticized by city officials. Pepper spraying a 9 year old because she wouldn't put her feet in the car - this is more evidence of child thinking in an adult body, are you telling me a number of cops cannot control a 9 year old girl without pepper spray? They should all be fired as incapable of performing basic duties. As Jeff Bezos slides sideways and is replaced by Andrew Jassy, who is born in and born to and the takeover goes on unabated it seems. I was pondering a bit and this came to mind regarding all the tech censorship going on. "Today's pro-pagan-da is tomorrows his-tory lesson". With the world becoming digital, the clowns need to remove anything that is counter-narrative because it will live forever in their cloud. If they do not re-write it today, then a copy that is counter-narrative might survive and cause cracks in the mind virus. If this sounds like 1984, it is because it IS exactly that, but in digital form. And whilst our show can be seen as fairly brutal in it's content, we must out and highlight as many issues as possible, in a real way, sugar coating is for the unawakened or the barrier ladened awake people. Who are the barrier ladened awake people? the ones who seek saviors, mired in religious dogma, don't want to hear anything unless it's about politics, which is another savior program. Politicians and Government are substitute parents for those people, unable to look after themselves and demand the Government fix or help them. There is 330M people in this country, why cant we help and look after each other?

I have been made aware of common law court company out of Scotland it appears, and having spoken to common law groups in the UK and they maybe tempted into this new monetary system as advertised by CLC company, The Common Law Court. The seducement is, it takes your money out of the system, you don't need banks or the state questioning or blocking your money. But a perusal into their website and was conveniently bypassed by the presenter was, it costs 50GBP or $68 per month to have this account. It doesn't give what the exchange rate is to your currency, and most of the current stores that use Beepextra are based in the Phillipines. Personally at this point I would give this a miss, 50 Quid a month to have an online cloud based account, that if the satellite or server goes down, suddenly you have lost all of your money. This is the equivalent to Bitcoin to me.

The city of light more modern day is placed in Paris France, why is that significant to now. Two things, first you know how they love their symbolism, dates and placements? secondly the opening question of our we heading for another of the city of lights episodes? In 2024, The Olympic games will be held in the City of Light Paris France, is that a plan or a coincidence? Maybe the superb owl event this Sunday will reveal more. Here is another common sense question, with the country on lockdown, how is the superb owl event going ahead with spectators?

Here is another warning or prediction to watch that is ahead of time. Very soon we are going to see a shift in the reported figures of Covid infections and or deaths, and the figures will start to go down rapidly. Why? because they cannot keep playing the fear game of where all going to die, whilst advocating the marvels of their vaccines. Next, will also come the shame and seducements of, we will re-open everything when enough have had the vaccine, forcing people to divide and conquer more on each other. It's funny how the ones who take the vaccine don't get abuse for doing so, yet the ones who decide for themselves do. It never happened over the flu vaccine, and with death figures globally not increasing as a pandemic would do, so why this one? Simple reason, it is a control and money harvesting exercise.

Following the latest round of predictions out of the LifeForce group that didn't come to fruition, which I personally find sad, so is not a case of petty rivalry some are trying to make out. How long does failed predictions from any group carry on, before people realize their plans are just not working? How long do you wait for wait clubs and not take action ourselves? There has been an increase in back chatter and also the usual antagonists from the Life Force group recently, but also there has been a number of emails and private messages of Lifeforce members coming over to THI, due to several and varying complaints of how things are not working too well over there. One of the common themes or misconceptions that I will attempt to lay to rest now is, that I am quote, heart broken, hurt, a jilted lover or angry over the split, between myself and Kim. None of those apply to me, there was no relationship to begin with, it was a business transaction that was undertaken. I moved on 4 days after the split as I gave the security phone I bought for Kim's protection to Ava Cowan for free, I knew May 8th it was all over. I honored Kim's wishes to not go public or slander her in public as stated by email May 11th, and then she went public with it herself, with a twist to the narrative. I carried on doing the work I was doing before I got hired by the Trust, and so for me, not much changed on a work basis. The reality is, Kim head hunted me for various skill sets and knowledge to work for her, under the banner of the Trust. Which not only put a bigger target on me, but also involved me leaving my job and girlfriend at the time, and uprooting from my home, and traveling over 2000 miles at a personal cost of several thousands of dollars. I then worked and supported Kim to the tune of several more thousands of dollars, whilst receiving no pay from the Trust for 4.25 years, only for one day with no warning or provocation to be fired from my position by Kim. I was fired by the Trustee, who then also for vindictive reasons decided to take my security clearance away, and put me in greater risk than I was previously, those are the actual facts of the matter. She decided that my replacement for that role would be Tank, and I will leave you all to judge yourself whether that was a good choice by the Trustee to make. To quote Tank, so basically I was fired from my job and deemed surplus to requirements, and that was the end of that.

A number of Reddit users on the popular r/WallStreetBets forum have said they are planning to launch a coordinated effort to target silver as their next short-squeeze target. Posts encouraged individuals to use the iShares Silver Trust, the largest silver exchange-traded fund, and carry out what one user called the “biggest short squeeze in the world”. “Silver Bullion Market is one of the most manipulated on earth. Any short squeeze in silver paper shorts would be epic,” a user on Reddit’s WallStreetBets wrote. “We know billion banks are manipulating gold and silver to cover real inflation. Both the industrial case and monetary case, debt printing has never been more favorable for the No. 1 inflation hedge Silver.” It came after purchases of hot stocks like GameStop, KOSS, and AMC were restricted by various platforms, sparking calls by members of Congress for an investigation into whether there was collusion by hedge funds and platforms like Robinhood. Robinhood CEO Vlad Tenev described that assertion in media interviews this week as a “conspiracy theory.” Tenev who was born in Bulgaria to parents who both worked for the rogue World Bank. Shares of video game retailer GameStop Corp have soared 1,625 percent since the start of January. Driving the rally are individual investors who said they have been stuck at home for the last ten months. Many have turned to online forums like WallStreetBets on Reddit and are buying the stock, some as a form of protest against hedge fund managers who wagered that it would fall. Good stuff it seems and if this is legitimate as one always has to wonder about this, as driving up prices of stock, only enriches those with them. There is lots of manipulated games going on with stock markets, and one hopes this move benefits the non rich people for a change. There is a danger though with silver, as JPM holds most of it, that they boost the asset base falsely for the benefit of JPM and also Goldman Sachs. This is what I was trying to achieve with the TPC committees, actionable activism, not citing Magna Carta’s, Birth Certificates, Strawman accounts etc, not saying the latter two are not valid, but they are not practical or actionable items. We need to come together for actionable items, and this is one example of how to attack their system without protests, which are designed for entrapment and violence.

The Pelosi's buy stock approaching $1M of shares in Tesla Electric vehicles in the past month, and Biden signs the Executive order for all Government vehicles to be electric before 2025. Though Pelosi's husband's investment was legal, it has drawn scrutiny from critics who argue that members of Congress should not be allowed to trade individual stocks at all. The House Speaker is likely to play a key role in shaping U.S. clean energy policy, and the investment means Pelosi could stand to financially benefit from the success of one electric vehicle company, Tesla. The chances of the two not being related, which is insider trading, are about the same level as John Hopkins getting a maths equation correct.

Full text of HR 127 released this week in summary from a reddit post. Full registration and database, Database information is open to anyone including all members of the public. Age 21+ to posses firearms. General license requiring psychological evaluation and 24hrs training, good for 3 years, 8hr training to renew. Military style gun license requiring another psychological evaluation and another 24hrs training, good for 2 years. Required insurance at $800 a year. Can't loan or give guns or ammo without notifying the Attorney General. Bans 50 calibre and larger ammunition Bans mag capacity of 11 or more (except rimfire tubes) Which means the police are exempt from said bans. Large fines and prison time for violation ($30-50k and or 15 years federal imprisonment) I have no complaints about the regulating of firearms, but with the system and people in lockdown, this has all the hallmarks of gun removal to me, the last 4 countries to remove guns resulted in millions of deaths to the native peoples. No doubt the training and license comes with more fees on a recurring basis, which is another attempt to fleece the public of monies, they don't by and large have. Who can afford $800 Insurance each year? will the $800 Insurance each year be applied to every cop? Expensive increase for the privately owned and for profit police departments if it is, and will that mean more fines will be imposed on the people to cover those costs? I had one call this week to try and garner support for the Peoples Movement, and I was treated to sleight of hand racism, dismissed as a flawed model, who didn't know the Constitution of this country, because I wasn't born here. The point is there are 4 Constitutions, so I asked which one? but where are these Constitutionlists on this subject? because despite me not being born here, I am aware of the right to bear arms. This bill does not deny that right, but is another deceitful way to limit guns to the people, just the same as the, we will not make vaccines mandatory, but will deny people jobs, flights, entry to bars, restaurants and shops without it. A majority will not be able to afford the Insurance, and that then turns millions of people into an overnight criminal, what a nice government we have in this country, and unlike me, you voted for that.

The only FBI official charged in the improper use of FISA warrants to spy on President Donald Trump, via campaign aide Carter Page got a slap on the wrist. Kevin Clinesmith's sentence was a year of probation, and community service. Clinesmith worked at the FBI General Counsel's Office (GCO) and was assigned to Crossfire Hurricane, the probe of Trump's alleged ties with Russia during the 2016 election. In that capacity, he altered an email from the CIA that described Page as a source for the spy agency, to say he was "not" a source – enabling the FBI to request a Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) warrant against Page as a "Russian agent" – and, through him, spy on the Trump campaign, transition and presidency. Still think mass arrests will be administered? and if so, what use is a slap on the wrist?

Donald J. Trump has abruptly parted ways with five lawyers handling his impeachment defense, just over a week before the Senate trial is set to begin, people familiar with the situation said on Saturday. Those departures include his lead lawyer, Butch Bowers, whose hiring was announced last week, a person familiar with the situation said. Four other lawyers who were reported to be joining, including Deborah Barbier, are also leaving, according to multiple people familiar with the situation. Back to the Apprentice show again of, you're fired.

A family foundation linked to President Joe Biden's senior director for cyber policy on the White House National Security Council, donated more than half a million dollars in recent years to the main pro-Israel lobbying group in Washington, according to public records. The donations, first reported by David Corn of Mother Jones magazine, do not appear to pose a legal issue, but some current and former national security officials told NBC News, they risk creating the possible appearance of bias in favor of Israel by a top American official. While Israel is a close American ally, it operates in its own interest and aggressively spies on the U.S., including using cyber capabilities, current and former officials say. Other current and former officials disagreed, saying they do not think the donations pose a problem. The lobbying group, the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, or AIPAC, describes itself as a "bipartisan American organization that advocates for a strong U.S.-Israeli relationship." Most Republicans and many Democrats are closely allied with the group, while other Democrats are not. The official, Anne Neuberger, recently was named senior director for cyber policy on the National Security Council. She spent the last decade at the National Security Agency, the Pentagon's digital spying arm, where she worked her way up the ranks to become head of a newly created cyber security directorate. A spokeswoman for the National Security Council declined to answer detailed questions about the matter, saying, "As a senior NSC employee, Ms. Neuberger will abide by the Executive Order on Ethics Commitments By Executive Branch Personnel." Anne Neuberger, born in and born to. Israel has not and will never be an ally to any country, least of all America. They have used every country to rape, pillage and harvest the resources, funds, ideas and plans for their own ends, and the sooner people in all countries see that as a fact, and deal with it, the better this world will become.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu will send Israel's Mossad Chief Yossi Cohen to Washington next month, to meet with US President Joe Biden, in order to set Tel Aviv's demands for reforming Iran's nuclear deal. According to the Times of Israel broke the news, adding that Cohen, a trusted Netanyahu ally, would be the first senior Israeli official to meet with Biden and the chief of the CIA. General Yaakov Amidror, former head of the National Security Council, and very loyal to Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, said "In a situation where the United States returns to the old nuclear agreement with Iran, Israel will have no choice but to act militarily against Iran to prevent it from manufacturing a nuclear weapon ". In order to set Tel Aviv's demands? really, what about the demands of the global community to get off other peoples lands? What has the CIA got to do with American policy? why are they even attending? why are they sending Mossad agents and not government diplomats?

California Governor Gavin Newsom has two potential challengers for governor, as a petition to recall him has gained at least 1.3 million signatures, then this happened. In a stunning reversal of almost a full year of devastating lockdowns that decimated California businesses, California Governor Gavin Newsom has decided to reverse them all and finally allow businesses to get back to work. Following on from Lori Lightfoot of Chicago and Cuomo of New York, the three cities we had mentioned would be collapsed with this new normal system. All three couldn't wait to impose lockdowns and restrictions, all 3 now seeing the pure folly of that with their ouroboros programs running rampant. What did these idiots expect to happen? no jobs and businesses equals less taxes, even the clowns at John Hopkins can manage that calculation. We ran a story that 440k millionaires all left New York at the same time, did they know something in advance? if so, what? Americas cities, towns, roads and infrastructure was collapsing before this fake pandemic, it is heading towards a complete collapse now, and no one is appearing to see the total collapse of this country and act upon it. Our show warned they were going to collapse America, the country, the banks, the finances, the businesses and jobs 4 years ago, and no one has addressed the decline or come up with solutions, except this show and that is a major indictment of this country and those who call themselves leaders.

Here is another indictment of the collapse of this country. The majority of Americans aged 17 to 24 are no longer fit for military service. "Approximately 71% of the 34 million 17-to-24-year-olds in the U.S., would not qualify for military service because of reasons related to health, physical appearance and educational background, according to the Pentagon. According to a petition filed this week against any form of mandatory vaccinations. So, the Pentagon are now suffering due to their own ouroboros programs linked with DARPA and experiments via drugs on the American people, now sees 7 out of 10 American children too sick for military service. Again, no one is looking at this atrocity either.

The Homeland Security issued new directives on what they label Domestic Violent Extremists, and warned of their dangers. Their terminology predictably leaves much to be desired and in some cases somewhat reckless. Domestic Violent Extremists (DVEs) targeted individuals with opposing views engaged in First Amendment-protected, non-violent protest activity. DVEs motivated by a range of issues, including anger over COVID-19 restrictions, the 2020 election results, and police use of force have plotted, and on occasion carried out attacks against government facilities. Anger over Covid restrictions? that makes tens of millions now declared a Domestic Extremist, is that the way to treat or pay respect to the people who ultimately pay their wages? Everyone is entitled to be angry, but not use that anger for violence or property destruction, that is never the right way to go about anything. But these are people who haven't lost their jobs, homes and businesses and by and large don't wear masks either, what gives them the right to label people in such a demeaning manner? Threats of violence against critical infrastructure, including the electric, telecommunications and healthcare sectors, increased in 2020 with violent extremists citing misinformation and conspiracy theories about COVID-19 for their actions. No mention of the two groups who carried 90%+ of that out, which means they are not targeting the real extremists. DHS remains committed to preventing violence and threats meant to intimidate or coerce specific populations, on the basis of their religion, race, ethnicity, identity or political views. This line pleased me the most as it means now that the DHS will be going after all the MSM platforms as they have exhibited all of the above mentioned issues. No? wishful thinking and common sense on my part, never appears to apply to these fascist like scripts do they, and therein lies the problem. This line of threats to intimidate or coerce specific populations based on their race and political views, is particularly ignorant of the facts that anyone white who supported Donald Trump is automatically a conspiracy theorist, racist, white supremacist and now declared a Domestic Violent Extremist. Well done the DHS, you have just denigrated along with the MSM over half of this country's people. Shameful.

Jalina Porter, the newly named deputy spokesperson for the US State Department under the Biden administration. "The largest threat to US national security are US cops, not ISIS, not Russian hackers, not anyone or anything else. If ya'll don't wake up and rise up to this truth, the genocide against Blacks in America will continue until we are near extinct. That's not the world I seek to live in or create for myself and those around me." Factchecker statistics state none of those claims are correct, statistically each year far more whites are killed by cops, even allowing for the extra percentage of the whites population. The only difference is, the media and script writers don't highlight white deaths by cops, or Hispanic deaths by cops, like they do with black people killed by cops.

It is a mute argument based on no facts supporting it, and a lame excuse by the Hebrew Annunaki media to support racism between white, black and Hispanic peoples. This narrative is not about cops, it is all about the system promoting racism to divide and conquer the people. And people like Jalina Porter are paid agents to drive that division.

Anti-vaccine protesters briefly forced officials to close the Covid-19 vaccination site at Dodger Stadium on Saturday, as hundreds of people waited in their cars to receive doses, Los Angeles Fire Department officials said. The fire department closed the stadium entrance for about an hour in the afternoon, while protesters attempted to enter the parking lot, where vaccinations were being administered. No one was arrested, but the Los Angeles Police Department deployed "a sufficient amount of officers" to the stadium, a spokesperson said. L.A. police also said that all vaccines would be administered despite the delay. Interestingly the faction based blog Veterans Today and in particular Gordon Duff chose to denigrate this action, and trying to turn peaceful protestors against medical based tyranny into an army of Trump, Proud boys and QAnons, essentially labeling them as domestic terrorists, yet curiously the real domestic terrorists Antifa and BLM is all ok. They apparently are free to destroy our towns and cities, and not be labeled in any derogatory way. Clownarse logic that to me.

COVID BS: The Facebook Oversight Board announced it was overturning a previous case on the effectiveness of HCQ. Facebook's previously removed a post on the use of hydroxychloroquine in France which it claimed, "contributes to the risk of imminent physical harm." Today Facebook announced this was a mistake. How many hundreds of thousands of victims were killed due to Dr. Fauci, the CDC and the tech giants' false claims on hydroxychloroquine? all to get at Trump. So, suddenly they are back tracking on hydroxychloroquine, I wonder why? Think about it, they hardly ever do common sense or back tracking, so why now? Could it be they have had time to weaponize it? ponder long and hard on that, your greatest pill or potion is your own immune system, their own figures proves that. 99.7% survival rate, vaccines 66-90% based on figures with low levels of amounts of testing, which makes those figures not a reliable basis for decision making.

Israel says it is transferring 5,000 doses of Covid vaccine to immunise frontline Palestinian health workers. Israel has one of the most advanced vaccination programmes in the world, but Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza have yet to see one. UN experts say Israel has a responsibility for vaccinations there. Israel says that is not part of agreed protocols and it has not received any requests from the Palestinians. If I was a Palestinian I would not be requesting anything off them either. The only requests valid is, get off of our land and build peaceful relations. Israel has recorded some 640,000 Covid cases since the pandemic began, and just over 4,700 deaths, Johns Hopkins University research shows, well that's fake then for a start. There have been almost 160,000 cases in the West Bank and Gaza, with 1,833 deaths, the research shows. Does anyone ask the common sense question as to why Israel appears to have no one in their country to add up cases and deaths? Israel's special deal with vaccine supplier Pfizer - Israel is providing vital medical data in return for a quick rollout - has helped it to become the country that has inoculated more people per head of population than any other. No surprise there, wherever there is skullduggery and money to be made, the group that runs Israel and America are never short of being in the frontline of those actions.

"Under a freedom of information act filed in Scotland, the Forth Valley health board were asked the question of the detailed breakdown figures of deaths in the region. Deaths including related to Covid. Under 1 = 4, 1-14 = 2, 15-45 = 123, 46-64 = 536, 65-74 = 671, 75-84 = 1105, 85+ = 1295 Deaths solely down to Covid confirmed or suspected. 0-44 = 0, 45-64 = 5, 65-74 = 3, 75-84 = 4, 85+ = 8. So there we have it and the whole of Scotland lockdown due to 20 deaths, some of which were only suspected of having Covid.

My wife was in the States for work; she left 4 days ago. There were precautions she needed to take in order to travel safely. Canada introduced a rapid test program in December which made traveling safe and easier during the 'pandemic'. She was free to travel as long as she had a negative test before she left for the states, and another one before she came home. Canadian airlines will NOT let you board if you do not produce a negative result before boarding. She produced her negative result before boarding the flight home tonight on January 28th, 2021. She arrived in Calgary tonight and when she got there she was greeted by a Police Officer and an AHS official. They rejected her results and told her she needed to go immediately to an isolation facility. She was told if she resisted she would be arrested, she called me, and I immediately asked to talk with the officer. I talked with both a Police Officer and the AHS official, they reiterated what she had said to me. I asked for the address of where she would be, they said they could NOT give me the location address as it was confidential. I asked for their names, again they would not give me any information or their names. They would NOT give me any information on where they were taking my wife. She was not allowed to get her vehicle from the airport; she was immediately put in a white van surrounded by police escorts and taken to an unknown facility, that is under full surveillance and has security at every entrance and exit. You can imagine I am barely keeping myself together, wondering what in the world has happened in our country in what seems to be overnight. Our rights are slipping right before our eyes and our freedoms are being stripped, It's time to wake up. Harrowing story and what is unfolding before our eyes, yet too few are willing to combine and fight back it seems. I warned of all this a long time back, and find it sad it is now unfolding.

During the second week in January, 23 people tested positive for the flu in the United States. More than 14,657 tested positive for the flu during the same time last year, before the corona virus pandemic took hold. Lynnette Brammer, who leads the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Domestic Influenza Surveillance team. " It's crazy, this is my 30th flu season, I never would have expected to see flu activity this low." For the week ending January 16, the CDC reported low or minimal flu activity in almost every state and territory. Last year, flu activity was high in 44 states that week, plus Puerto Rico and New York City, only one state, New Hampshire, had minimal flu activity. Doctors and health experts say the large number of people who got flu vaccines leading into this year's flu season, combined with social distancing and other measures designed to help slow the spread of COVID-19, are likely contributors for the steep drop. What utter bullshit, and here is why, so they say social distancing and masks have prevented a flu increase, but is unable to prevent Covid increase? what jackass logic is that? A reduction of 14,624 people less getting flu, what a magic virus that is. I call for the Covid virus to be named as the Time person of the year and be awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for services to medical research, for it's ability to overcome a disease that all the global medical researchers despite billions in funding, were unable to come up with a cure for flu. But covid has, what a remarkable innovation that is, it also cured the money shortage problem, it also cured the shortfall in the pension scheme, it also cured lazy people from doing jobs, it also cured people from having to run their own businesses, it also cured useless eater going to bars, restaurants, sports games, the gym, the beach and walking their dog. One hopes with the second strain of it, it will be able to cure things that hasn't been fixed yet, it never cured lunatic experts, it never cured defunct governments, it never cured greed based medical people, it never cured organized racism and most importantly it never cured the lack of common sense either.

EXPOSE: Merck is shutting down development of its corona virus vaccines after clinical research produced disappointing results, the drug maker said Monday. Early-stage studies found that Merck's two experimental shots, produced immune responses that were "inferior" to those generated by other COVID-19 vaccines, the company said. The vaccine candidates also provoked immune responses weaker than those seen, after someone is naturally infected with the virus, even though the shots were "generally well tolerated," according to a Merck news release. After someone is naturally infected, does that mean in some cases they were artificially infected? oh my. Perhaps an up and coming blockbuster show will reveal more on that. Merck said it will now focus its anti-pandemic efforts on researching and producing two COVID-19 treatments that it has in the pipeline. The New Jersey-based pharma giant reached a $356 million deal to supply the US government with one of those drugs, known as MK-7110, which has been shown to reduce hospitalized corona virus patients' risk of death, or respiratory failure by more than 50 percent. An MK drug now, all very MK Ultra that to me, given Merck were involved in human experiments before and during WW1 and WW2, and their proximity to Montauk. Merck is also conducting clinical trials for an antiviral drug known as Molnupiravir, which is being developed in collaboration with Ridgeback Bio. Ridgeback Bio are under investigation for misleading evidence of their vaccines and drugs, and attempting to attain $100M funding from BARDA. The lead people of Ridgeback Bio are both former hedge funds managers, which shows again of advanced knowledge and money making opportunities to be made, by those on the inside of this scam. Those studies are expected to wrap up in May, and data on the drug's effectiveness should be available in the first quarter of this year. Merck was working on a one-dose corona virus vaccine like the one developed by Johnson & Johnson, which is expected to ask the feds to clear its shot for emergency use in the coming weeks. Johnson and Johnson produced one with only 66% safety rating. One of Merck's vaccines used a so-called virus to deliver the corona virus spike protein to the body and provoke an immune response. The one they used was, Vesicular stomatitis virus that can infect insects, cattle, horses and pigs. Common sense question again, what have those animals got to do with humans? and if they are using that virus to boost the immune system, the great question is, why didn't they use the corona virus to boost the immune system? The company used the same technology in its Ebola vaccine, which was the first of its kind approved for use in humans. Merck's other vaccine candidate used a measles virus as a Trojan horse to trigger an immune response to COVID-19.

The global vaccination project against the COVID-19 pandemic of the World Health Organization called COVAX, has ended up in the hands of Bill Gates, who is also a leading investor in 4 of the major multinational pharmaceutical manufacturers of vaccines (BioNTech, GlaxoSmithKline-GSK, which also controls 68% of Pfizer's commercial branches in Italy and other parts of the world, and finally ModeRNA). In practice, the self-styled maniac of vials and syringes is raising millions of dollars from nations and foundations around the planet, to allow them to buy antidotes sold by the Big Pharma cartel at a controlled price. For a project of global immunization that to all intents and purposes, details a very certain and profitable business for the shareholders (the same speculative investment funds of the Lobby of Weapons), all whilst it is not known what genetic or pathological effects it could have on the world population. The conflict of interest is so macroscopic and shameless, that the Sputnik International network, funded by the Moscow government, and obviously more interested in cheering on the Russian Sputnik V vaccine already purchased by 23 nations, called COVAX "syndicated" showing the sensational connections not only with Gates, but also with the bulk of the multinationals he controls. COVAX CEO is Aurélia Nguyen, a likely descendant of the Vietnamese noble lineage, who has also undertaken research for WHO on generic drug policies. She is a certified accountant and has a Masters in Health Policy, Planning and Funding from the London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine and the London School of Economics. From 2011 to 2020, before the establishment of COVAX under the auspices of the WHO, she worked as a manager for Gavi Alliance, an NGO founded in 1999 with 750 million dollars by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, which has so far invested about 4 billions of dollars for the global immunization projects carried out, thanks to the vaccines sold by the companies controlled by Gates in the usual whirlwind of conflicts of interest. But before joining Gavi in 2011, Aurélia Nguyen held a number of positions within GlaxoSmithKline, where she led the development of GSK's policies on access to drugs and vaccines in the developing world. GSK, which will increase its revenues thanks to the Comirnaty messenger mRNA vaccine produced by Pfizer (its subsidiary) with BioNTech, the German company financed by Gates with 55 million dollars. The company that has seen its earnings grow in Italy, thanks to the pilot project of 12 compulsory vaccines in schools, promoted by the Global Health Security Agenda created by former President Barack Obama, of which Gates was the main political donor, as Pfizer instead supported the candidacy of Joseph Biden. Despite these shady business intrigues, the World Health Organization, funded with nearly one billion Euros from the Gates foundation, which sponsored the appointment of Ethiopian Tedros Adhanom Gebreyesus as director general, has allowed the global vaccination project to be carried out. From the Gavi Alliance together with CEPI (Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations), another NGO founded by Gates and presented in Davos in 2017. As you can now see this is a total money exercise, and a chance to do public research on a mass scale, some people will make it, some will suffer mildly, some will suffer badly and some will die. But the bottom line is to these people is, they don't care as they are all on kick backs and will increase their bank balances. I think this is an example of one person on a call I had recently, where it stated we need free enterprise, free enterprise does not involve governments, and neither does this. Free enterprise allows people with bargaining power to gain unfair advantage, with governments now in the pockets of these big cartel ring of companies, it's new boss same as the old boss with even more stringent measure working against the people. This is on a par with 100 years ago with the energy companies drain and control of all markets, you know what happened at the end of that decade don't you? We need people to be considerate of others, need not greed for this type of harvesting practice to end, but according to that individual, need not greed, caring and sharing, cooperative not comparative or competitive is a flawed model. Nope, it is a new basic common sense model, it is the people who are flawed. Given Gates is at the center of all of it, at which point will the people turn en masse against Gates? The world is being taken over by vulture capitalists in a free enterprise system, and one group thinks that is the way forward. Says much about the lack of knowledge and research applied, and another example of the flawed model of liberalism.

Are state governments and private employers about to mandate COVID-19 vaccines? There are many opaque current and future legal issues around COVID-19 and the measures to contain it. Fortunately, because the Pfizer and Moderna vaccines are emergency use products, and as such, not fully licensed, the law is clear: States may not mandate the vaccines, and private entities do so at the peril of violating federal law. The law governing vaccines approved for emergency use. For the time being, there are only two COVID-19 vaccines available in the United States: the Pfizer-BioNTech vaccine and the Moderna vaccine. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has issued them both Emergency Use Authorizations (EUA) but not yet full vaccine licenses. New York State Assemblywoman Linda Rosenthal recently proposed a bill to mandate COVID-19 vaccines, but she apparently neglected to consult federal law on emergency use authorization. Linda Rosenthal born in and born to. “Emergency Use Authorization” means that any product with this designation must be voluntary. Under 21 U.S.C. § 360bbb-3, “Authorization for medical products for use in emergencies”: (ii) Appropriate conditions designed to ensure that individuals to whom the product is administered are informed. (I) that the Secretary [of Health and Human Services] has authorized the emergency use of the product; (II) of the significant known and potential benefits and risks of such use, and of the extent to which such benefits and risks are unknown; and (III) of the option to accept or refuse administration of the product, of the consequences, if any, of refusing administration of the product, and of the alternatives to the product that are available and of their benefits and risks. Under federal preemption doctrine, this federal EUA law trumps state law, meaning that states and municipalities may not mandate EUA products. As the FDA states: “FDA believes that the terms and conditions of an EUA issued under section 564 preempt state or local law, both legislative requirements and common-law duties, that impose different or additional requirements on the medical product for which the EUA was issued, in the context of the emergency declared under section 564 ... In an emergency, it is critical that the conditions that are part of the EUA or an order or waiver issued pursuant to section 564A — those that FDA has determined to be necessary or appropriate to protect the public health—be strictly followed, and that no additional conditions be imposed.” This was also confirmed in August 2020 at a Centers for Disease Control and Prevention published meeting of the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, where its Executive Secretary Dr. Amanda Cohn, stated (@1:14:40): “I just wanted to add that, just wanted to remind everybody, that under an Emergency Use Authorization, an EUA, vaccines are not allowed to be mandatory. Amanda Cohn is also Jewish, some people will say that is racist to keep pointing it out, but after the Rosenthal interview in FRWL Plus 4 and 5, we are right to have concerns of why they are in every top position deciding on public policy, that never seems to benefit public policy. They told you anti-semitism was a meme and guilt based theme deliberately brought in to stifle people questioning their motives. So, early in this vaccination phase, individuals will have to be consented and they won’t be able to be mandated.” Governors may not mandate EUA vaccines, or EUA tests for COVID infection. States cannot override federal law or set up their own mandatory scheme. See for example, Lorillard Tobacco Co. v. Reilly, 533 U.S. 525, 570-71 (2001), which overturned a state public health law because it was already the subject of a comprehensive federal scheme to manage public health, and Department of the Navy v. Egan, 484 U.S. 518, 530 (1988). For more information on state and local law, see the Emergency Use Authorization Toolkit from the Association of State and Territorial Health Officials. What about private employers? A private party, such as an employer, school or hospital, cannot circumvent the EUA law. For example, this Fact Sheet approved last month by the FDA for the Pfizer vaccine states: “It is your choice to receive or not receive the Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 Vaccine. Should you decide not to receive it, it will not change your standard medical care.” The previously referenced section of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act governing medical products approved for emergency states that the FDA-approved fact sheet must state “the consequences, if any, of refusing administration of the product.” Nowhere in the fact sheet does it specify that a person may be fired from their employment, denied education, disciplined or otherwise discriminated against for refusal. With that said, the law on private entities is likely to be litigated. Even the most ardent advocates for COVID vaccines acknowledge that, employer mandates would be “problematic” and would likely lead to litigation. One of the initial issues in litigation would be that EUA law applies to “a person who carries out any activity for which the authorization is issued.” While this phrase plainly refers to healthcare workers, i.e. those who vaccinate the public, it can also refer to anyone who participates in the EUA activity, such as employers requiring the product (see e.g., reference below to private employers as “program planners”). The FDA even applies the term to those that advertise the product. So courts are likely to find that EUA law covers employers carrying out their own vaccination requirements, as well as states and municipalities. But what if a private employer stubbornly refuses to heed the EUA law, and attempts to require its employees to get EUA vaccines anyway? Employers are likely to lose if challenged in court for the above-stated reasons, and also because the FDA did not issue an Emergency Dispensing Order to even attempt to circumvent EUA requirements. Indeed, the EUA law preventing mandates is so explicit that, we found only one precedent case regarding an attempt to mandate an EUA vaccine, and the court held that the vaccine could not be mandated, even to people in the military. In Doe #1 v. Rumsfeld, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 5573 (D.D.C. Apr. 6, 2005). In that case, six soldiers challenged the U.S. Department of Defense (DOD), which at the time mandated EUA anthrax vaccines, often leading to what has been called Gulf War Syndrome. Six soldiers sued DOD to refuse vaccination and won. A federal court held that because the anthrax vaccine was an EUA product, the soldiers had the right to accept or refuse vaccination. It’s a solid precedent showing that because a federal court upheld soldiers’ rights to decline EUA vaccines, it’s likely that courts would uphold employees’ rights to refuse EUA vaccines as well. The FDA Fact Sheet for the Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 vaccine states: “It is your choice to receive or not receive the Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 vaccine, should you decide not to receive it, it will not change your standard medical care.” In other words, people cannot lose healthcare coverage for refusal. But again, what if a private employer mandates EUA vaccines anyway? Official statements suggest that the employer might lose liability protection against damages from vaccine injury. According to the Congressional Research Service, private businesses are subject to civil liability unless they “acted consistent with applicable directions, guidelines, or recommendations by the Secretary, regarding the administration or use of a covered countermeasure” [and] “private businesses may qualify as ‘program planners’ (and thus covered persons) when performing certain functions.” EUAs for past medical emergencies are instructive. In 2009, when the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) declared the H1N1 virus emergency, the FDA authorized the emergency use of the drug Peramivir IV. The fact sheet stated that the healthcare provider should communicate to the patient: The Secretary of HHS has authorized the emergency use of Peramivir IV, which is not an FDA approved drug. The patient has the option to accept or refuse Peramivir IV. The Informed Consent Action Network’s legal team is offering to help individuals challenge employers or schools that are requiring COVID vaccinations. I don't believe at this point they will make it mandatory but, they do stealth mandatory practices like, you can't fly, go to a public place without the vaccination, Is still forcing people to have it. If we go to a cashless all crypto you will have no option but to receive their poisons. This is a very good piece by a common law group and despite my efforts to combine them all together as one force, sadly their egos, comparative and competitive mindsets often leaves them all pissing in the wind.

Why isn't it blackmail to refuse to allow people to fly unless they get vaccinated? that is where all common law groups need to get together and act and target those companies.

Last week we did a fairly long expose of gene therapy and the implications of modifying insects and various others, of what they class as invasive species, but potentially humans. The issue I have with so called invasive species is, these same research centers were mainly responsible for bringing in many of the said invasive species, particularly in this country. Various strains of mosquito, African killer bees, which were stated as being accidentally released, there has been several varying claims of that nature, and perhaps too many to be a coincidence. Having said that, other examples of introducing have worked in America and other regions. It may come as a great surprise to many Americans, but for example, soybeans, kiwi fruit, wheat and all livestock except the American Bison and the turkey are non-native species to North America. Collectively, non-native crops and livestock comprise 98% of US food. This report is on the Zika Virus, but first some background to it. I did highlight it as a potential global event some 6 years back on Cosmic Voice, as it was the original version of a global pandemic deliberately engineered by the clowns. Stated to be a global event in 2017, that was largely stopped by the hidden war those goes on behind the scenes of the public glare. This was the zombie virus, and why tv, movies and alt media had a heavy focus on that topic 6-7 years ago, it is called seeding the public, and also telling you what they are up to, sadly too few are able to decode those clues. That "event" was stopped 5 years ago, but they came back again and started a new one, based on a common cold, aligned with some frequency based technology, add in nanotechnology as well, to worsen conditions. Throw in the fear based media, add a sprinkling of John Hopkins maths, and a full blown pandemic, that is littered with opinion, but short on any facts, proving it's veracity, and here we are today replete with Milgram experiment people, bots and levels of stupidity that makes a mockery of what it means to be an intelligent advanced species. Zika virus (ZIKV) is a rare virus that received huge attention around 2015-2016, when the WHO declared it a "Public Health Emergency of International Concern" when some government advised women to "postpone getting pregnant until more is known about the risks". While the disease often causes no or only mild symptoms, similar to a very mild form of dengue fever, the most noticeable claim with the pandemic, is a mother-to-child transmission during pregnancy, leading to microcephaly (small brain) in babies. The vaccines in the process of being approved include an RNA vaccine from Moderna, and a DNA vaccine permanently altering the DNA of every recipient. There have been claims of general misdiagnoses, where environmental pollution and other diseases often were the real causes for the microcephaly. For example, the use of pesticides in Brazil grew by more than 162 percent from 2000 to 2012, and these were more powerful, stronger pesticides. The diagnosis relies on PCR-tests, a method that was misused during the Covid-19 situation a few years later to deceptively inflate number of cases. Zika is a member of the virus family Flaviviridae. It is spread by daytime-active Aedes mosquitoes, such as A. aegypti and A. albopictus. Given that history tends to repeat itself like a loop, the naming of those mosquitoes called aegypti should not be lost on bible people, I think they spoke of the plagues in aegypti did they not? That is not biblical prophecy, but a written and repeated plan. Its name comes from the Zika Forest of Uganda, where the virus was first isolated in 1947. ZIKV is related to the dengue, yellow fever, Japanese encephalitis, and West Nile viruses. Since the 1950s, it has been known to occur within a narrow equatorial belt from Africa to Asia. From 2007 to 2016, the virus spread eastward, across the Pacific Ocean to the Americas, leading to the 2015–2016 Zika virus epidemic. While there is no specific treatment, paracetamol (acetaminophen) and rest may help with the symptoms. As of 2016, the illness cannot be prevented by medications or vaccines, interesting and no particular reason given as to why. ZIKV can spread from a pregnant woman to her baby. This can result in microcephaly, severe brain malformations, and other birth defects. ZIKV infections in adults may result rarely in Guillain–Barré syndrome. In January 2016, the United States Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) issued travel guidance on affected countries, including the use of enhanced precautions, and guidelines for pregnant women including considering postponing travel. Other governments or health agencies also issued similar travel warnings, while Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Puerto Rico, Ecuador, El Salvador, and Jamaica advised women to postpone getting pregnant until more is known about the risks. In 2012, a few years before the 2016 epidemic, the UK company Oxitec released genetically modified mosquitoes into the wild. The GM 'sterile' mosquitoes, were intended to tackle the spread of dengue fever and malaria, were released in Brazil, Malaysia, India and the Cayman Islands, aiming to wipe out as much as 80 per cent of the Aedes aegypti species, which are the primary carrier of Zika. The company had developed a male mosquito named OX513A, programmed to die before adulthood unless it was grown in water that contained the antibiotic tetracycline. Batches of the sterile OX513A would be allowed to live and mate with females; however, their male and female offspring would inherit the "kill" programming and die, thus limiting population growth. A few years later, there were claims the genetically modified mosquitoes could have sparked Zika outbreak, the company denied the allegations. Oxitec will also release over 750 million genetically modified male mosquitoes into the Florida Keys in 2021 and 2022. The plan received final approval from local authorities in August 2020, against the objection of many local residents and a coalition of environmental advocacy groups. The mosquito also won federal approval to be released into Harris County, Texas, beginning in 2021. The US program is a second generation of technology. The new male mosquito, OX5034, is programmed to kill only female mosquitoes, with males surviving for multiple generations and passing along the modified genes to subsequent male offspring. GMO mosquitoes may have sparked the outbreak, oh my, and Florida and Texas to release more of them? There is a complete lack of oversight to what goes on in research centers, many of which are owned or control by military or agencies, neither which exist to live in peace, and if we are to progress as a species, that oversight needs to be added with common sense based people based only for the benefit of the people, and not some bio warfare centers funded large by Hebrew Annunaki bankers.

Dozens of ultra-Orthodox passengers refused to wear face masks throughout a United Airlines flight from New York to Israel that landed last week, ignoring repeated requests by fellow passengers and staff. Traveler Tali Tenenbaum described the flight that landed on Friday as traumatic, saying passengers tried to stay away from the "corona virus breeding ground" by going to the bathroom to drink, and couldn't eat or sleep. There have been multiple instances of violations of corona virus regulations among some sectors of the ultra-Orthodox community, in both Israel and the United States. Sunday saw fierce clashes in Israel between police and ultra-Orthodox rioters or protestors, in a number of cities as cops attempted to enforce health rules. Notice all protestors now are labeled as rioters, more examples of seeding the non thinkers brains with clichés to repeat. These people are called the Haredis, but who are the Haredis? Well, they are much maligned within Israel and also New York, fiercely independent, fiery in opposition and appears to be deemed a lower class peoples within the Jewish community. In a recent poll conducted by the Mossad led media in Israel, 52% of the public didn't want Haredi politicians in the government anymore. There has been much violence and angry protests in Israel, that rarely gets covered in the outside world, and the Haredi Judaism, Hasidic Judaism, and Orthodox Judaism are all names for different religious movements within the Jewish faith. The three can be looked at as a family, with Haredi

Judaism existing as a subset of Orthodox Judaism, and Hasidic Judaism existing as a further subset of the subset. The difference is really one of specific beliefs, and a matter of degree, rather than any sweeping large generalization. All three sects agree on the importance of God's word and laws, but they choose to adhere to those laws in slightly different ways. Orthodox Judaism is largely defined by a firm belief that the Torah, and the laws contained within it are of divine authority, and therefore should be subjected to a strict interpretation and observance. Members believe that the Torah comprises the laws that shall govern, the covenant made by God with the Children of Israel. Orthodox Judaism is a large branch of Judaism, and until fairly recently, most Jews could be said to be Orthodox. It wasn't until the Reform movement that large numbers of Jews departed from more traditional Orthodox teachings. Reform Jews, who focus on the concept of ethical monotheism, believe that only the ethical laws of the Torah are binding. Additionally, they believe that other laws, like those laws in the Talmud, were products of their time and place, and so it was not necessary to treat them as absolute. In the late-19th and early-20th century, the Orthodox movement itself underwent some changes. Newer Orthodox Jews tried to integrate the teachings of the Torah into modern life, making some concessions and adaptations to better mesh with contemporary technologies and practices. At the same time, other Orthodox Jews rejected most modern movements, and looked warily on any, reinterpretations of Jewish law to make it fit into a modern context. These "Ultra-Orthodox" Jews became known as Haredi Jews, although both of these terms are considered negative in some circles, the term is also sometimes spelled Charedi or Chareidi in English. It is important to note that members of this group do not reject the modern world or technologies entirely, but they treat adaptations of Jewish law to fit that world as very serious. Most of the differences between Haredi and Orthodox perspectives have to do with decisions of oral law as to how the Torah should be applied to a modern situation. In many broad senses, the two groups tend to agree, and it is more in the specifics that things begin to diverge. Hasidic Judaism is a movement within Haredi Judaism that focuses on, the study of the spiritual and joyful elements of the Talmud. If those people think the Talmud is joyful and spiritual, then those meanings to them have undergone a distortion of biblical proportions. It is ok to kill non Jews and deflower 3 year old girls and 9 year old boys, just two examples of dozens of heinous and racist statements contained within that book. It has its roots in the anti-Kabbalah movements of the 13th century. Hasidim focus on a loving and joyful observance of the laws laid out in the Torah, and a boundless love for everything God created. Members live in small, separate communities, and are often noted for their distinctive clothing, these are the people with the black hat and coats, with white shirts. This movement began in the 18th century by Rabbi Israel ben Eliezer, later known as Baal Shem Tov, the Master of the Good Name, Baal being the indicative word. Hasidic Judaism sets aside the earlier emphasis on studying the Torah from an academic perspective, and instead exalts the experience of it, at all moments. Within the movement there are a number of sects, including the Satmar, Belz, Ger, Sanz, Puppa, Spinka, and Lubavitch. Belz I suspect is related to Bel, which is Marduk, but what is interesting is Belz is not based in Israel, but another country whose name has popped up regularly in the past decade, and no it is not a covenance, Ukraine. Spinka and Pappa is Hungary, hello Mr. Soros, Sanz is a mixture of Austria, Hungary and Poland, Ger is Mongolian, Satmar is Hungarian and now Romania, none originated with the land we now call Israel. The ultra-Orthodox are often referred to in Hebrew as Haredim, or “those who tremble” in the presence of God (because they are God-fearing). Unlike the Orthodox, the ultra-Orthodox continue to reject Zionism—at least in principle—as blasphemous. In practice, the rejection of Zionism has led to the emergence of a wide variety of groups, ranging from the Neturei Karta (Aramaic: “Guardians of the City”), which does not recognize the legitimacy of the State of Israel, to the political parties of the Haredim, which occasionally determine which of Israel’s major parties is able to form a government. Neturei Karta originated in Palestine. The Ashkenazi Haredi political parties have concentrated primarily on obtaining funding for their communities, and on enforcing strict conformity to their interpretation of Jewish religious law, concerning issues such as observance of Shabbat, conversion, kosher dietary laws, and, in their view, the desecration of the dead by archaeologists. Since the Six-Day War, however, most Ashkenazi Haredim have tended to support the position of the militant religious Zionists against “land for peace,” despite their continued theoretical opposition to Zionism and the state it produced. The third major form of Jewish fundamentalism in Israel is, represented by the Sephardi ultra-Orthodox and their political party, Shas—Shas being a Hebrew acronym for Sephardi Torah Guardians. The Sephardim, in the broad sense of Jews of Middle Eastern origin, are, by and large, less well-educated and less prosperous than the Ashkenazim, and many of them feel that they are discriminated against. The Sephardi originated in Spain. Indeed, the Sephardim who vote for Shas tend to be motivated less by, belief in the party’s program of strict conformity to Jewish religious law, than by frustration and resentment caused by their perceived second-class status in Israeli society. Shas is thus an excellent illustration of the fact that fundamentalist movements, often owe their success to political and social grievances, rather than to strictly religious ones. In addition to its religious and cultural platform, Shas provides schools and other social services for poor Sephardim; in this respect it is similar to some Islamic fundamentalist movements. All of this is another example of the divides within every culture, religion or color, not one single country, color or creed are at peace with each other. Peoples all too content to play the systems divide and conquer game for them, whilst they plot, plunder, rape and pillage us all. Everywhere you look now there is a divide and conquer game playing, politics, color, gender, extended genders, religion, classes, caste systems, monetary based levels, Laws not religion, when will the people including the Jewish see through this mass illusion? The greatest question of all is, why are all the people on this planet divided by interpretation of old books, no one knows who actually wrote them, no one can prove their validity or have actual proof the contents are real to begin with? The greatest leap forward this planet and it's varying human populace can make is, scrapping every single religious book and church and start again, the people are the religion, the church and the spark of source creation, we need a new beginning.

Some further proof of a claim in our FRWL series that the Jewish traders ran the silk road. In 1270 a scholarly Jewish merchant called Jacob d'Ancona set out on a voyage from Italy. A year later, he arrived in China at the coastal metropolis of Zaitun, the "City of Light" (now known as Quanzhou), four years before Marco Polo arrived at Xanadu in 1275. Nothing was known of this journey until 1990, when David Selbourne was shown d'Ancona's account of his travels, a remarkable manuscript that had been hidden from public view for more than seven centuries. Eventually translated and edited by Selbourne and published in Great Britain in October 1997 as The City of Light, the account was praised as providing an unparalleled insight into life in the medieval world. Vivid and insightful, this account has great historical significance. It not only describes the adventures of a medieval trader, but also comments on Chinese society and manners through the eyes of a European man of learning. The City of Light brings spectacularly to life d'Ancona's encounter with one of the world's great civilizations.

I have spoken several times in various shows about the series The 100 echoing our past, with a startling and concerning hidden possible future event, contained within the series. Some people will say it is just a tv show and we shouldn't read too much into it, yet there is startling connections to our past, present and future within that series. When you add in another of our THI memes, fiction is fact and fact is fiction you begin to hear and see things in a different way, just hopefully not the City of Light way. Yes, we had to evacuate this planet a few times, once in the Ark, which was not a ship on an ocean, but a ship in the sky. Noah and his brethren were all sky beings and not from here, why would he build a boat? There are two events, one past, one not happened yet and also possibility of the past one repeating here and now. The question remains are we being primed for another sleeping pod episode or a City of Light venue? With an Orwellian technological blueprint laid out before us, is it far fetched another City of smart lights will evolve? Is this the great reset they speak of? The sleeping pods are covered in several sci-fi episodes, today we would call it cryogenics, cryogenics is not a new technology or future one either, it is the past, way in the past. Remember the beings in the Aztec 1947 crash were in suspended animation, better known as cryogenics. In the series Thelonus Jaha said, There is a place for all of us, when I first landed on the earth, I met a woman who spoke of a place beyond the Dead Zone, a place where everyone is accepted, a City of Light. The City of Light was a shared simulation of the world, created by A.L.I.E. to harbor humanity with the aim of saving it. Was that another example of a false savior program? where the AI was stated as saving us and ultimately changed course? The same applied with the Draco in the past, they came as saviors as well, those savior programs here, have all turned out real bad for the native populace, which is why the control system and their minions keep pushing them. You sit back and wait whilst we save you, in real terms means you do nothing whilst we rape your planet and destroy you. Alie is spelt with one L, and so comes across as a lie, which it was, AI is corruptible when you have the technology to alter it, and why I personally don't agree with it. On an up and coming planet like this one, it can be beneficial to run certain things whilst the natives develop themselves. But, with so many other species, who have available to them more advanced tech than we have, it becomes a dangerous technology for the native populace, particularly where there is no oversight. The Galactic or Universal councils it seems are unable to monitor all AI for potential interference. Jaha said: "We all have pain, some of it is physical from injuries or age, some is mental from living with the loss of our loved ones. If you think about it, whether we fight that pain or succumb to it the result is the same. It diminishes our lives, robs us of our passions and past times and damages relationships between friends and lovers. What if I told you there's a simple way to eliminate it?" Jaha was the prophet and also the seducement figure, and no different to the prophets within the bible, it was not prophecy, it was the plan, and don't forget to trust the plan, even though you don't know the plan, sound familiar? A.L.I.E. intended it to offer a better existence for mankind, one that is free of pain, hate, disease, and suffering. Whilst no one wants to go through those emotions for too long, they are all part of the experience of 3D living, on how you react to those determines further soul development. We at THI and with the TPC are trying to develop people to act in a better way across all walks of society, as we have lost our way, and far too much suffering on this planet is because, we don't look after each other enough. The City of Light is reached through the subconscious through A.L.I.E. or meditation after ingesting a chip. If you replace one letter from the line meditation after ingesting a chip to, medication after ingesting a chip, you will understand the concerns of myself of where we are headed with this technology. The chip was a quarter sized piece in the show, but also had a symbol we have warned about in our shows, the mobius loop on it. At the end of Season Three, it's shown that A.L.I.E created the City of Light as a way to save humanity from the upcoming Second Nuclear Apocalypse, detected by her drones months before the Sky People found out about it. That part in the series had me pondering very deeply, given so much of that show mirrors facts of the past, was this a prediction of the future? The AI to save us from the 2nd Nuclear Apocalypse, yes we had one here in the past, the evidence for that is all across the Middle East to India, funny that is the same zone the modern day Is ra elis want as a caliphate is it not? The war in the series that ultimately destroyed the planet again, and required another trip to the Ark, was between America and China. Now the series covers everything from the past, but that event has not taken place here, and so does that become a future prediction? of America and China firing mutually destructive weapons at each other, which is the most banal idea ever. But, here is the kicker, you know who started that war? the AI. The AI was a female with an inserted microchip system that interacted with everyone else who had taken the chip, to produce a hive mind program, all decided by the computer, or the AI. The chip maker was a device used to create the chips known as "Keys to the City of Light". Creating more chips allowed A.L.I.E. to increase her following.

Prior to the War Against A.L.I.E., the City of Light was thought to be a real place, a mythical "promised land", which many Grounder outcasts have attempted to reach by crossing the desert known as the Dead Zone. Its true nature was unknown to any but a select few who were chosen to join it. The seducement program again appealing to those with unbalanced ego, of being special or the chosen ones, with the added measure thrown in of the proverbial promised land. At the end of Season Three, the City of Light, along with A.L.I.E., has been destroyed by Clarke Griffin. In Many Happy Returns, the City of Light is first mentioned when Sienna tells Thelonious Jaha, that he is in the Dead Zone on the way to the City of Light. She and her family are searching for the City of Light, after they left their home so her deformed son, Zoran, could live. They trade Jaha to other Grounders for a horse to help them travel to the City of Light. In Long Into an Abyss, Jaha suggests taking the Sky People across the Dead Zone and to the City of Light, after the Grounder Commander tells them they need to leave their territory or die. In Survival of the Fittest, Murphy takes Jaha to the dropship to visit his son's grave. The next morning, eleven other Sky People have arrived and Jaha invites Murphy to join them in their journey to the City of Light, a place where everyone is accepted. In Rubicon, Abigail Griffin receives Jaha's note that he has taken twelve people in search of the City of Light and will come back for the rest of the Sky People once they find it. Do you think the numbers just mentioned was a coincidence? there was eleven and Murphy joined them for $12 + 1$, the one being Jaha. We have covered in several shows about the 12 plus 1. Even in the series Roswell, they reference several times the plus one on the zodiac level, Ophiucus, the realm of the serpent. Remember in the bible the tribes were $12 + 1$, when "god" and "moses" sent the fiery serpents after the lemmings were traipsing through a dead zone, known as the desert, perhaps they were searching for their own City of Light? The god and Moses in the bible were off world beings, when you grasp that fact, that book starts to make much more sense.

Meanwhile, in the Dead Zone, Jaha and Murphy and their group encounter a girl named Emori who was also allegedly headed to the City of Light. Emori is the name of, one of several ancient Semitic peoples primarily inhabiting Canaan, where they preceded the Israelites, and Babylonia. Another leading name in that series was Kane. She and her brother attack the group and steal their supplies, Emori tells Murphy that the City of Light is "due north" before she knocks him out, seven of the Sky People head back but Jaha, Murphy, and four others continue on. In Bodyguard of Lies, Jaha and Murphy and the remaining two people from their group arrive at the end of the Dead Zone, only to discover a massive solar panel field reflecting back what they thought was the City of Light. They continue on their journey across a sea, following after a drone. So, solar panels and drones had been developed, something we have reached in the past 3 decades, seeing the correlation now? In Blood Must Have Blood (Part 2), Jaha and Murphy finally reach an island across the sea. Murphy stays behind at a lighthouse while Jaha chases after another drone and arrives at a mansion. Within the mansion, he meets A.L.I.E., who tells him he has work to do on the nuclear warhead he came down to Earth in.

The Key to the City of Light, also known as the Chip or the Pill is a silicon-based device that bears an infinity sign (or what Grounders referred to as the sacred symbol). I believe the Grounders are actually the Greys, who run/ran much of the AI system here and elsewhere, certain greys are not biological, or fully biological anyway. The reapers are the Reptillians and Trikru are eerily similar to the Kali Ma tribal peoples, the Mountain men I believe represent the Abraxans. The Mountain Men are responsible for creating the Acid Fog that has killed numerous Outsiders, as well as the creation of the Reapers who helped them capture their fellow Grounders for the Mountain Men's blood harvesting program, all very Jupiter Ascending that. Once a person ingests it, the filaments reconstitute in the brain stem and interrupt pain receptors, inhibiting certain neural pathways from firing. It is a device that allows them to communicate with A.L.I.E. and to experience the City of Light. However, while the device eliminates the ability to feel physical pain, it would appear that it also eliminates all memories linked to painful ones, including the positive ones, when dealing with psychological damage. Oh dear now the pondering from the listeners has just shot up.

After becoming connected to the City of Light, Thelonious Jaha had to be reminded of Wells Jaha by A.L.I.E., suggesting that his use of the Key, has erased the memory of his son's existence to spare him the pain of his death. This idea is confirmed when Raven Reyes realizes while being questioned by Jasper Jordan, that she has lost even the good memories of Finn following his death. Jasper talked about Maya after taking the chip, but he showed no sign that he had any conscious memory of her beyond what A.L.I.E. might have told him. In "Nevermore", Jacapo Sinclair was able to fry the chip inside of Raven using an EMP. However, Raven was left unconscious until Clarke cut into the back of Raven's neck and released the remnants of the chip. However, the need for an EMP makes it impractical to use this method on a regular basis, the device only having enough power to perform one more chip extraction after being used on Raven. After Ontari is rendered brain dead on A.L.I.E.'s orders, Clarke uses the device to remove the chip from her mother. Those who had the chip removed via EMP still had some of A.L.I.E.'s code in their brain. This allowed Abby and Raven the ability to see hallucinations, as well as increasing Raven's intelligence significantly. In The Other Side, Raven compared removing the chip with an EMP to shutting down a computer, by pulling the plug which resulted in the residual code being left in their minds. Indeed. With the help of a hallucination of Jacapo Sinclair, Raven comes up with a plan to purge the remaining code, by "rebooting" her mind, through stopping her heart and all brain activity. By freezing herself to death, thus preserving her brain and being revived after 15 minutes, the residual code is purged and Raven loses all of the negative effects that come with it. In The Blood of Sanctum, Raven is confirmed to still retain the hacking skills she gained from being connected to the AI, even with all of A.L.I.E.'s code purged from her mind. In "Nevermind", Clarke discovers that the chip is still inside of her head and has given Clarke a neural mesh that protected Clarke from the drug the Lightbournes attempted to use to erase her mind. Interesting they should use the operators of the Alie program to be called the Lightbournes, born of the light, which is an Illuminati term, he also lived in the mansion, just like many of the psychopaths today. A manifestation of A.L.I.E. warns Clarke that if the same EMP technique she used to save Raven is used on Clarke to remove the chip, her mind will no longer be protected and can be erased. A.L.I.E. helps Clarke to protect the memory in the form of one of the chips, but she later gives it to Josephine Lightbourne. In "The Blood of Sanctum", Russell Lightbourne confirms that the EMP used on Abby to remove the chip also destroyed her neural mesh, allowing Russell to mind wipe Abby and make her the new host of his wife. When the Flame is destroyed by Raven, she realizes that it has to be removed like the chip after an EMP, to avoid detrimental effects on Madi's health, as Madi nearly dies after the Flame is terminated. Madi was the daughter of the blonde Commander who had the flame or chip in her head, she was called Wanheda, which means the Commander of death.

This was written by one of the members and is very apt. To your query on how groups unite and spark each others growth, by doing the one thing most people are too afraid to do, we own our weaknesses. We admit our fallibility to others and own them, in my experience what that does is open other people up to do the same. That is what I understand leading by example to be, when we show others, that by admitting our faults, it begins the conversation on integrity. Then we listen with an open heart and mind, in my experience what follows next is quite amazing. For me it was admitting I felt jealousy, not something I usually experience. While I was admitting that to her, I realized that I had done that very thing to those in the group, who'd been there a while when I first arrived. I apologized to the whole group.

The Greatest Freedom anyone can have, is not to be concerned to what others think!" If you're reacting to certain things that people say or do to you, then you haven't dealt with it. That's the internal aspect, you'll blame the external aspect of this person said this to me and who do they think they are? But deep down the issue lies in you. Because if you're comfortable in your own skin, and comfortable in knowing themselves (That's The Key) people can call you whatever they like. You know different, the person that knows themselves knows the truth, and what other people say or think becomes irrelevant.

The old failing in humanity runs real deep of falling for the magic seducement of pieces of paper and the savior programs. When the real gain is in soul development that doesn't require any money to do so, and the idea of a savior is abhorrent to a soul developed being. Remember at the end of your life, all the pieces of paper you collected count for nothing, you cannot take it with you, but you know what you do take with you into the next lifetime? soul development.
