THI-show new website launch. We now have a fully rebuilt THI-show website which will also be an alternative to my Patreon, where subscribers and non-subscribers alike can listen and download shows, view and download transcripts and much more. Features include: Listen Live to Thursday shows without leaving the website, in a new embedded player feature. Comment on show posts with a free account. 3 Levels of Patron Memberships. This will be the equivalent to an 8% pay rise for me, to what it was before Patreon increased their fees last year. New Tiers: Tiny, Ponder and Common sense packages. Included in the Tiny Package for just $5 a month: Access to all podcasts, radio shows and early access to the THI show transcripts. Included in the Ponder Package for just $10 a month: All of the former tier plus access to all the THI Must Listen to Show transcripts. Included in the Common Sense Package just $25 a month: The Ultimate Trigger Package! All of the former tiers plus: A Monthly 2-3 hr. Zoom for up to 25 members with myself, where members are offered additional points for self-pondering and dot-connecting. Monthly Zooms will be the last Saturday of each month, starting in June, and subscribers will receive an email with the link upon subscribing. We will give a little time for everyone interested to move over from Patreon to the new site, but we will be closing the Patreon account soon. As before with the old Patreon, our new Membership Packages will include 90 days of the most recent show transcripts. After 90 days transcripts will become available to non-subscribers There may be some minor formatting issues that the web team are working on, so be patient. There will be more new features on the site: New Visuals, An about section, Website Analytics with links to both The Peoples Club and Communal Gatherings THInk Different sites. A Full archive of all shows, audio and transcripts. Improved searchability of the site and transcripts featuring highlighted searching. New secure dedicated server. Show transcripts from now through October 2021 are on the site, with the remainder going back to August 2018 being continuously added and should all be available within the next month or so.

As before, a one-time or Monthly donation button option which goes directly to myself, that are not part of the monthly membership packages, can still be done via Paypal on the website, now equipped with a recurring payment option. And so much more! I am grateful to all the team who made this happen, Kelly, Michael, Karl, David, Mike and Nick, it looks fantastic. I am grateful for all the donations I received from you all, including some higher ones recently, a big thank you. So sign up to the new account and once in there, delete your Patreon subscriptions and hopefully you will all transfer over. Once the full transition is complete, we can then shut down the Patreon and their 11% fees.

I hope you all got much out of Tuesdays show, but let's not sit back and admire it, there is much work to get started on to begin the process of bringing that to fruition. It was an inspirational show of fairly epic proportions, it tasks everyone to be the change, that means you all have to work at it, not leave it to just a few of us to do it for you. There will be a zoom call to formulate the plans going forward on Saturday 28th May at 1pm MT and all are invited to attend. Please do come not with your muted vocals, little me and limitation programs, but with ideas, plans and solutions to take this project forward. Greater details of it all will be released on that call. Get ready it's adult pants time, no pacifiers or diapers allowed going forward. Here's to the crazy ones, the misfits, the rebels, the troublemakers, the round pegs in the square holes... the ones who see things differently -- they're not fond of rules... You can quote them, disagree with them, glorify or vilify them, but the only thing you can't do is ignore them because they change things... they push the human race forward, and while some may see them as the crazy ones, we see genius, because the ones who are crazy enough to think that they can change the world, are the ones who do.

NEWS: Deepest sympathies to the residents of Buffalo who suffered an horrendous attack last weekend, and this is why we have to work together to end those incidents, whether it was a convenient Manchurian candidate or not.

Sri Lankan security forces have been ordered to shoot law-breakers on sight, in a bid to quell anti-government protests on the island.

Demonstrators are calling for the resignation of President Gotabaya Rajapaksa over the island's worst economic crisis in history.

His brother, Mahinda Rajapaksa, stepped down as prime minister amid violent street clashes.

But the resignation failed to bring calm and violence continued overnight.

The government then ordered troops to open fire on anyone looting public property or causing harm to life.

It also deployed tens of thousands of army, navy and air force personnel to patrol the streets of the capital Colombo. Despite their presence, the city's top police officer was assaulted by a mob, accusing him of not doing enough to protect peaceful protesters.

At Colombo's Galle Face Green, the word green crops up again.

Police say eight people have died and the capital's main hospital says, more than 200 people have been wounded.

An island-wide curfew has been extended to Thursday morning as authorities seek to end the violence.

Evidence of last night's rioting is everywhere across Colombo, buses thrown into the lake, others with windows smashed out and tires still burning. The rise of the protest is unfolding right across the planet, but please do not resort to violence, looting or destroying property.

Just when you think you have heard it all, up pops this gem of self-entitlement. A couple in the north Indian state of Uttarakhand are suing their only son and his wife, for not giving them a grandchild after six years of marriage.

Sanjeev and Sadhana Prasad, say they used up their savings raising their son, paying for his pilot's training as well as a lavish wedding.

They are demanding compensation worth nearly $650,000 if no grandchild is born within a year.

The highly unusual lawsuit was filed on grounds of mental harassment.

Mr. Prasad said he had spent all his savings on his son, sending him to the US in 2006 for pilot training at a cost of $65,000. He returned to India in 2007, but lost his job and his family had to support him financially for more than two years. Shrey Sagar, 35, did eventually get a job as a pilot. His parents say they arranged his marriage to Shubhangi Sinha in 2016, in the hope that they would have a grandchild to play with during their retirement. We have all heard of some truly bizarre stories, but this is in the astounding range to me. Almost on the level of their Ministry of Health doing sterilizations in reverse. Supporting your children should not come with a payback policy, it's an act of kindness and should not be used as something to leverage your own child with. This is like a one family fascist regime policy, and parents have to understand and learn, your children are not items of ownership or commodities, you are their guardian only until aged 18. Arranging marriages, jobs and when or whether they choose to have children or not, is none of the parents business. How is suing them in court going to get them a grandchild? Likely the son will not want his child anywhere near grandparents like that, it is beyond stupid thinking. Maybe Shiva instead of having multiple arms like a Chernobyl victim, could deliver a few babies to them instead, so Vishnu the destroyer of world and babies can take it away?

A former Philadelphia police officer has been charged with murder for fatally shooting a 12-year-old boy in the back during a chaotic foot chase in early March.

Authorities say that Edsaul Mendoza, 26, engaged in a tactically unsound pursuit of Thomas Siderio and shot him despite knowing he was unarmed.

Police believed a friend of his was involved in the theft of a weapon.

According to a presentment of facts released by Philadelphia's District Attorney, Mr. Mendoza was part of a group of four plainclothes officers who confronted Thomas and a 17-year-old friend, identified in court documents as NK on 1 March. The officers believed that NK was tangentially connected to a stolen firearm investigation.

When they attempted to stop the boys, a shot went off and broke a rear passenger window. When the boys attempted to flee, Mr. Mendoza chased Thomas and fired at him three times. The third shot, the document alleges, took place even though Mr. Mendoza knew that Thomas' weapon had been discarded some 40ft away. Thomas had stopped running at the time the final shot was fired.

Thomas was essentially face down on the sidewalk and possibly surrendering.

Thus, when Mendoza fired the third and fatal shot, he knew the 12-year-old, no longer had a gun and no ability to harm him, Philadelphia District Attorney Larry Krasner told reporters on Monday.

But he fired a shot through his back nonetheless, killing him.

Mr. Mendoza was fired by the police force soon after the incident, with the police commissioner saying at the time that the department's use-of-force policies had been violated. And yet Mr. Wray last week wondered by police are getting ambushed and shot? Although quite how a 12 year old had a gun is beyond me, but ultimately that possession cost him his life. Hopefully that will be a lesson to other youths carrying guns.

The US House of Representatives has overwhelmingly approved a mammoth $39.8 billion package of military and other assistance to bolster Kiev against Moscow. All of which is more than Washington spent on foreign aid worldwide in 2019, or roughly 5 percent of the entire 2022 national security budget of the United States. Only 57 Republicans rejected the measure in a Tuesday vote that took place just hours after the text of the bill was released. To push the bill through, Democrats agreed to detach it from a $10bn Covid-19 assistance package, fiercely opposed by Republicans. Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer has already promised to move swiftly to pass the legislation, which would bring total US support for Ukraine this year to nearly $54 billion. The same clown that delayed the stimulus packages for the people remember, alongside the other clown Pelosi. Non Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi Democrat of Kalifornia claimed that the bill was a matter of US national security, thanks for revealing that Nancy as it means in real terms this is an agency program of skullduggery. Anything National Security is a cover up of rogue behaviors by largely the CIA. She said that Ukrainian people are fighting the fight for their democracy, and in doing so, for ours as well. What poppycock that is, democracy is Zionist Fascism and what has Ukraine got to do with Americans? Nothing, except the greed-based clowns and their dodgy deals that goes all the way up to the President himself. They are spending the public's money to cover up the crimes of the Biden's, The DOD bio-labs and Agency malpractices. Critics like Rep. Andy Biggs, however, argued we can't help Ukraine by spending money we don't have, oh my, a bit of common sense broke out. The lawmakers approved even more funding than the $33 billion President Biden initially asked for. Notice they always rush through bills connected to war? Yet take months or years to implement any sort of improvements for the people. This whole country has been allowed to define itself on war, death and destruction, and it is time the people took actions against that sleight. Whole swathes of our Government departments are operating for and by the clowns, an enormous expense to we the people.

According to a report by Vice, documents obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request show that, the CDC bought access to location data for tens of millions of phones, to track compliance with COVID measures among U.S. citizens. In the report, the CDC bought location data harvested in America to analyze movement during the COVID restriction era, including tracking patterns of people visiting schools, churches, grocery stores, and a number of other common destinations. Among the 21 different potential CDC use cases for data listed in the documents, include the, examination of the correlation of mobility patterns data, and the rise in Covid-19 cases with respect to the opening and closing of schools, major retail destinations and places of worship. The report states that the CDC purchased the one-year access pass to the data from data company SafeGraph for $420,000, a company which includes the former head of Saudi intelligence and tech billionaire Peter Thiel among its investors. The CDC documents also claim that the SafeGraph data has been critical for ongoing response efforts, such as hourly monitoring of activity in curfew zones, or detailed counts of visits to participating pharmacies for vaccine monitoring. Another insight into the digital world they are trying to create, whereby they literally monitor everything. The question is, with all this extra data and spying 24/7 on every member of the public, how and why is crime rising and convictions lowering? Perhaps the police are not what you thought they were?

Spain has fired their national intelligence center director Paz Esteban recently in the wake of two spyware scandals. One operation saw key figures in the Catalan independence movement targeted with Israeli spyware program Pegasus, while the other scheme, allegedly foreign in origin, saw top officials in Madrid's government also subjected to illicit and external targeting with the same software. The former spy chief reportedly acknowledged last week that her agency had spied on 18 members of the Catalan independence movement with judicial approval, including the regional president Pere Aragonès.

Yet again the Israeli spyware rears its serpent head, just what are the other countries doing about it? This is about the 6th case of this now recently, how many more are yet to be uncovered? And what if any actions will be taken?

Hearing about another fascist regime doing Nazi tactics on their populace, as we highlighted last week with France and Rhode Island. NZ Crime Minister Jack Ardern I hear have been issued a letter from the government warning, if inoculations of the poison had not been administered by June 1st they could face a $15,000 fine or 6 months in prison.

The monthly Democracy Institute/ Express.co.uk poll of 1,500 Americans, who are likely voters has shown that 43 percent are ok with Ukraine losing, compared to 41 percent not ok, while 16 percent have no opinion. But Democracy Institute has warned that the reason for this is, cynicism of Government policies created by the fact at least half of Americans thought they were hoodwinked over Covid lockdowns. In another worrying development, Americans also appear to be losing confidence in the sanctions regime against Vladimir Putin's Russia, with 53 percent believing it hurts the USA more with the cost of living crisis the top political issue. The findings are yet another blow to the Democrats and Joe Biden, with voters clearly showing their intention to back the Republicans in the midterm elections in November by 50 percent to 42 percent. While Biden polls negatively in all policy areas, one of the worst is foreign policy where 56 percent disapprove compared to 40 percent approve. This follows the catastrophic handling of the Afghanistan withdrawal in 2021 but also appears to have shattered confidence in his Russia/ Ukraine policy. In fact, according to the poll for a second month in a row more Americans believe, that it would be better for Biden to leave office than Putin by 53 percent to 44 percent. Only 38 percent approve of Biden's handling of the Ukraine crisis compared to 52 percent disapprove. And there is a reluctance to have Putin removed from power by 48 percent to 46 percent. They also only see Russia as the fourth biggest threat on 16 percent, behind China 42 percent, Iran 20 percent and North Korea 18 percent. Interesting opinions, as the tide turns against the Government big time, but when the figure reaches over 50% that the biggest threat is actually their own country, then things will begin to improve.

Just as I warned the inevitable crash will follow, once the greed merchants have inflated it enough, by using gullible people to hand over their cash for fresh air tokens. Crypto-currency markets are being rocked after a popular token lost 99% of its value, dragging down a so-called stablecoin with it.

The Terra Luna token fell from a high of $118 last month, to $0.09 on Thursday.

The collapse had a knock-on effect on a linked token, TerraUSD, which is normally stable. Sounds like a military coin, terror USD to me.

Spooked investors are now pulling out of major crypto-currencies, sending markets plummeting, most of the investors are the spooks, as it was, they who created it.

The companies behind stablecoins try to ensure they remain in parity with assets such as the US dollar, with one token equaling $1, for example.

But on Thursday TerraUSD fell to $0.40 according to the trading website Coin Market Cap.

Tether, the most popular stablecoin, also fell off its US dollar peg to an all-time low of $0.95.

The term cryptocrash has been trending on Twitter and Google Search. Cryptocrash means death crash, of people's savings it seems, good luck if you made money on it, but that was kind of funding clowns in doing so.

The combined market value of all crypto-currencies is now reportedly $1.12 trillion, about a third of its November value, with more than 35% of that loss coming this week.

One Bitcoin is now worth about $27,000, its lowest value since December 2020 and down from a high of nearly $70,000 late last year.

Ethereum, the second largest coin by value, has lost 20% of its value in 24 hours.

The collapse of TerraUSD has started what we used to call the panics, yes clowns in, when major financial institutions sold off large chunks of assets, and everyone else tried to take their money out as quickly as they could," economist Frances Coppola said. Yes the major financial institutions orchestrated it's rise and then the fall, whereby they get their money out first, and leave the lower investors to suffer.

Panic is exactly what's going on here he said, indeed.

Gasoline and oil have moved asymmetrically recently, with prices at the pump soaring to a new record even as crude has come off its multiyear high. Last week, the average gallon of gas in the US hit $4.40, according to AAA. Meanwhile, the cost of West Texas Intermediate crude surged in March to $123 a barrel, the highest since 2014, but has since fallen back to around $106. So much for the Trustee saying she would keep it below $30 a barrel (M) The truth is the cost to attain that one barrel is less than $7, the rest is greed based entities, the cut of the profit entities, and the classic in outright thievery is called the market price. Market is a play on words as it should read the mark it up price. Given that 59% of gas prices come from the cost of crude, a 22% decline in oil should've translated to a 13% dip at the pump, but that didn't happen, according to economists at the Dallas Federal Reserve in a Tuesday report. Because they are looting the public to pay back for their wasteful spending, that all went to their cronies, including Ukraine. This disconnect, stems not from the crude oil market, but instead reflects frictions in the gasoline market, wrote senior economist Garrett Golding and senior economic policy advisor Lutz Kilian of the Dallas Fed. Who no doubt are both born to. While lawmakers have called for probes into price gouging, oil companies have little direct control over retail prices, because they own just 1% of US gas stations, the report said. The background of all this is, Biden stated in January that gas prices would go below $3 a gallon (M), and yet no one has called him out on it except this show. Therein lies the problem, a lack of accountability which is the overbearing problem with our flailing Government. If everything was made accountable our Government would be a whole lot fairer. But, it is ran by lobbyists of a Jewish El-ite flavor, banking establishments also of a Jewish EL-ite flavor and Cor-pirate companies also largely of a Jewish EL-ite flavor. Jewish EL-ites are harvesters, in worship of the original Egyptian gods who harvested everything, with their Law of One book and program. Ashayne supported the Law of One book, and why I dismissed a portion of her information back in 2013. The bulk of the 2002 stuff was more fresh and frequency based, the latter not so. It seems like politicians are exploiting the current situation to condition people to accept paying more while accepting less value, and with no real end or practical solution in sight. So, we will provide the solutions instead.

Yet more evidence has been unearthed of the atrocities against Indigenous children at boarding schools, this time in America. Most of our listeners are familiar with the Canadian story, as we covered it extensively and had the author Kevin Annett on our show a few times to highlight it. Marked or unmarked burial sites were found, at around 53 different Native American boarding schools across the United States, as part of an investigation by the Interior Department into the troubled legacy of the institutions, which removed thousands of children from their homes. An initial analysis found that 19 schools accounted for 500 deaths during a 150-year period. Many of the bodies were buried hundreds or thousands of miles away from their communities, according to an investigative report released Wednesday. The consequences of federal Indian boarding school policies, including the intergenerational trauma caused by the family separation and cultural eradication inflicted upon generations of children as young as 4 years old, are heartbreaking and undeniable, said Secretary of the Interior Deb Haaland, the first Native to serve as a Cabinet head.

The first-ever inventory of federal Native boarding schools found that between 1819 to 1969, there were 408 schools across 37 states, including 21 schools in Alaska and seven in Hawaii. The estimate is higher than previous research indicated. All of the schools received federal money and were operated by the government or churches. Yet more evidence the Government and Churches work together, operating horror policies on we the people. Families were forced to send their children to the boarding schools, which sought to assimilate American Indian, Alaska Native, and Native Hawaiian children through education, including by giving them English names, cutting their hair, and preventing cultural practices. Haaland commissioned the investigation last June after the Canadian government discovered 215 unmarked graves of children who attended similar schools in Canada. 215 is a lie, there are tens of thousands of them, and not only where the Government and Churches but the natives themselves, just like the African slave trading. An uncomfortable truth, but all the evidence supports it. Part of the problems the natives has faced is, their chiefs are and have been working with rogue off world entities over a considerable period of time. Native lands are like hotels for the off world, which is why they call them reservations. They should have had more reservation about who they worship and worked with in my opinion. But the old fake gods trick of fear was used on many of them. Another question people don't ask is, why is so much of the Native land barred to the public? All very exclusive and not inclusive is it not?

Pastors leaving their posts in large numbers, maybe a future pointer as the truth frequency begins to etch within people's brains. Although Atcheson was already in therapy, he sought out additional help from a spiritual director and began an intense process of discernment. It took me several months to acknowledge that, for me to be in any way or shape whole, I'd have to give up congregational ministry, he said. When your position is giving you panic attacks, it's time to give up the job. So, last month he stepped down, publicizing his move in a Twitter thread that garnered hundreds of likes and responses, including some from other pastors who had also resigned from their positions. Across the nation, stories like Atcheson's are becoming more common as clergy suffer from the burnout and mental health issues, they attribute to the double whammy of the pandemic and increased political polarization. Everything and everyone blames the Covid now it seems, because that is the new mind meme and excuse for people, all of which is a pile of crap. In reality land, the truth frequency is playing merry hell with their conscience and their consciousness. In March 2022, 42% of pastors considered resigning, up from the 29% who did the same in January 2021, according to data collected by Barna. The three biggest reasons clergy cited were immense stress, feelings of isolation and loneliness, and political division, according to Barna. The stress is from them not accepting the lies they have brought forth, not entirely their fault as they followed the script, or scriptures as it where, without questioning the legitimacy of it. Now they have no option. While some faith leaders are just thinking about leaving, others have quit or retired early. The wave of clergy departures could have a unique impact on American society. As pastors leave congregations, there are questions about who will replace them. We the people will, we are the church, the church like your god is within, we don't need church people savior programs running on us anymore. I haven't lost confidence in the work Jesus does, but I've lost confidence in the work that the church does, said Scott Sharman, a former pastor in Burleson, Texas, who entered early retirement in February. That is a half acceptance of marching towards the truth, the church is finished, but that person is not yet ready to let go of the savior program. He went onto say, I think there will be a new model of the church in the next generation or two, he added, pointing to the rise of house churches, or small worship groups in which members share both prayer and their lives. Nope, we will advance beyond the lazy assed based savior programs, of waiting for others to do things for us, and develop into an adult species that does for the self in alignment with others under the rta or golden rule. Religion is for child level people and is not required in an advanced society. Technology is not advancement, soul development and consciousness is.

EXPOSE: Moderna produces one of three COVID shots available in the U.S. In November 2021, Moderna released data on third-quarter sales, showing phenomenal profits from the vaccine of $5 billion worldwide and forecasted $18 billion for the year just from the mRNA vaccine. To take advantage of this revenue stream, the company announced they are developing three new mRNA vaccines for shingles, cancer and herpes. At the start of the vaccine race, the Health and Human Services Operation Warp Speed pledged to deliver 300 million doses of the vaccine by 2021. This was just months after the pandemic had been declared in early 2020. Yet, developing a safe and effective vaccine normally takes years and begins with animal studies. In addition to the speed at which the vaccine was developed, the shot did not fit the definition of a vaccine at that time, as the mRNA product the pharmaceutical companies were planning does not induce immunity in and of itself. Rather, it delivers instructions to the recipient's cells to do that, by producing their own proteins to fight the targeted disease. So, what did the CDC do? They changed the definition of vaccine. Vaccine Definition Changed to Cover mRNA Shots. To fully understand the importance of the change, it's crucial to note that before the Covid pandemic, the definition of a vaccine hadn't changed much through the years. For example, according to an archived snapshot of the CDC's website, the definition of a vaccine February 24, 2011, was: A product that produces immunity therefore protecting the body from the disease, Vaccines are administered through needle injections, by mouth and by aerosol. By July 2015, the wording had changed to: A product that stimulates a person's immune system to a specific disease, protecting the person from that disease. Vaccines are usually administered through needle injections, but can also be administered by mouth or sprayed in the nose. The wording was the same in June 2017 and likewise in June 2019 and June 2020. Produces immunity to stimulating the immune system to. By August 26, 2021, however, the definition had changed slightly to add the words to produce immunity: A product that stimulates a person's immune system to produce immunity to a specific disease, protecting the person from that disease. Vaccines are usually administered through needle injections but can also be administered by mouth or sprayed into the nose. Then, less than a week later, just days after the FDA gave final approval to Pfizer's mRNA jab, the definition changed again, this time, significantly. The definition of a vaccine now reads: A preparation that is used to stimulate the body's immune response against diseases. Vaccines are usually administered through needle injections, but some can be administered by mouth or sprayed into the nose. Notice that the words protecting the person from disease is now taken out, so the definition now says that a vaccine is to stimulate the body's immune response against diseases. Isn't that just what a natural infection does? So, if a vaccine no longer protects you from disease or gives you immunity from it, but merely stimulates your immune response, why do you need the so-called vaccine? especially since you can still get the disease it's supposedly stimulating a response to? As has been made obvious in the past months, the shot developed to stimulate the body's immune response against Covid-19, does not effectively reduce a person's ability to catch the virus or to transmit the virus. According to the CDC, all the shot does is supposedly keep you from getting a more severe case of the virus. However, data and whistleblowers reveal people who have been vaccinated are still hospitalized with Covid-19, and in some areas at rates that are higher than those who are unvaccinated. In other words, the mRNA vaccine against SARS-CoV-2 does not appear to effectively protect you from or fight against the virus. This is important to note since, Moderna recently announced they would be producing three new vaccines using the same technology to fight against shingles, cancer and herpes. Isn't it reasonable to expect that taxpayers will pay millions of dollars and see the same results? One-Trick Pony Moderna Announces Three New Vaccines. In the world of science, Moderna's announcement may raise a red flag. The company is 10 years old with billions in market valuation, but until their Covid-19 vaccine, they had no approved products. The company was founded by two scientists and a venture capitalist Timothy Springer, who recognized the commercial potential of mRNA as a drug delivery technology. He made a $5M investment on this and has earned $400M from it to date. In November 2020, Stat News reported that despite having not produced a single product, the company had made the founders hundreds of millions of dollars. Make that billions of dollars as all three are now billionaires and made it into the Forbes Top 400 wealthiest. Originally, modified mRNA was thought to hold the key to a new source of embryonic stem cells, that researchers planned to use to treat anything from Parkinson's disease to spinal cord injuries. Using modified mRNA, they hope to sidestep the controversy of using stem cells from aborted fetuses. The promise hinged on safe dosing, but in animal studies scientists ran into a now-familiar problem with the mRNA doses. The therapy triggered dangerous immune reactions, yet the lower doses were too weak to show benefit. It was just 42 days after the genetic code for SARS-CoV-2 was released, that Moderna was set to deliver a box of a few hundred vials of the experimental vaccine to the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID). At this point, they had still not overcome the abnormal immune responses in animal studies using the novel genetic therapy. Yet, they were the first to deliver drug vials for human clinical trials. Stat News reports that a May 18, 2020, Moderna press release claimed they had positive interim clinical data from eight volunteers. But they did not provide any raw data to scientists. So, 8 volunteers or jackasses was enough data and testing to approve to near 300M people? Is what they are telling us. Despite this, their share price rose 20% in one day, the FDA approved an emergency use authorization for the drug and the rest is history. The FDA go under the radar far too many times in my opinion, said to be the regulator and yet have approved thousands of products, the majority of which have at best damaged thousands of people, at worst killed hundreds of thousands of people. A mere one year later, Moderna is still working at warp speed, now announcing that they are developing three new vaccines based on the same mRNA technology that, so far, doesn't appear to stop disease or prevent the spread of it. Pfizer has an mRNA shingles vaccine they expect to have in clinical trials sometime after July 2022. Pfizer's partner in the mRNA vaccine race is BioNTech, a company with a similar history to Moderna, having produced no approved drugs before they teamed up with Pfizer, which in 2009 was hit with the largest health care fraud settlement in the history of the U.S. Department of Justice to produce the Covid-19 shot. How Is Success Measured for mRNA Vaccines? The success of Covid-19 vaccines based on MRNA technology from Moderna and rival Pfizer, has prompted efforts to use the novel technology in other vaccines and therapeutics targeted at hard to treat diseases. Considering the announcement of the development of three new vaccines by Moderna, and Pfizer's goal of clinical trials by the second half of 2022, the question must be asked, how is the success of the mRNA vaccine being measured? When the current vaccine for COVID-19 does not stop recipients from getting the illness. It also does not stop recipients from being hospitalized for the illness, and the CDC warns that those who have been vaccinated can still transmit the illness. Yet, even if the vaccine only had a minimal effect on reducing illness or severity of illness, you have to consider the adverse side effects that are being reported by the hundreds of thousands to the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System. How is it being measured? It is being measured on how many dollars and shekels they can make on the back of a lie. How far too many stupid people go along with it and how many corrupt people and organizations there are. That is how it is being measured. You don't think for a second that these people are remotely interested in our health do you? As of February 11, 2022, the system had logged over 1.1 million reports, which include 23,990 deaths, 43,476 people who have been permanently disabled, 33,590 diagnoses of myocarditis or pericarditis and 12,452 diagnoses of shingles. Considering the high number of individuals who have developed significant adverse events, or have died in the days and weeks after receiving an mRNA shot, you have to wonder what the interaction between two or three different types of mRNA vaccines will be within the complex environment in the human body. mRNA Scientist Warns of Vaccine Dangers. In 1987, Dr. Robert Malone mixed mRNA with drops of fat, and found that human cells exposed to this soup absorbed the mRNA, and created proteins based on the genetic code in the RNA. At the time, Malone was a graduate student at the Salk Institute, recognizing that this discovery could very well have some far-reaching potential, he jotted down his notes and then signed and dated them. In early 1988 Malone had another lab member sign the notes as well. Over 30 years later, this discovery was the platform on which BioNTech and Moderna were founded. Yet, in the past year, as Malone has spoken out against the Covid-19 vaccine, and Wikipedia scrubbed his name from the history of the technology. Subsequently, a web search for who invented the mRNA technology, returns a Wikipedia page that acknowledges he had some contribution to the research, but focuses on his promotion of misinformation about the safety and efficacy of Covid-19 vaccines. In other words, Malone has spoken out about the dangers of the shot despite efforts to keep him from getting credit for his work, and much more. As Malone explained in an interview, it was many months ago that he warned the FDA that the spike protein, which the Covid-19 vaccines instruct your cells to make, could be dangerous. The FDA dismissed his concerns, saying they did not believe the spike protein was biologically active, and that vaccine makers designed the injections so the spike protein would stick and not float about freely. Well, they were wrong on both accounts. It's since been well-established that the SARS-CoV-2 spike protein gets free, and that it is biologically active and causes severe problems. It is responsible for the most severe effects seen in Covid-19, such as bleeding disorders, blood clots throughout the body and heart problems, and alters the human genome as well. Can Covid Vaccines Write the Spike Protein Into the Human Genome? The Pfizer vaccine is reverse transcribed intracellularly into the genome of human cells in as fast as 6 hours upon exposure, a study revealed. Pfizer Covid-19 vaccine converts to DNA inside human liver cells, new study finds. These are the same problems we now see in a staggering number of people who have received one or two shots of Covid-19 vaccine. In the months after the shot was released, Malone characterized the research and development of the shot, writing: if I were to propose a clinical trial involving children and entice participation by giving out ice cream to those willing to participate, any institutional human subjects safety board in the United States would reject that protocol. If I were to propose a clinical research protocol, wherein the population of a geographic region would lose personal liberties unless 70% of the population participated in my study, once again, that protocol would be rejected by any US IRB based on coercion of subject participation. No coercion to participate in the study is allowed. Seems that every safety and protocol issue connected with this was ridden over roughshod, or outright ignored, all of which seems like a desperate act to me. With the many people researching now, they must have known this would be exposed at some point. That is why they introduced fact checkers, not to check facts, just discriminate people who do actually check the facts and report on it. They have played a very dangerous hand it seems to me, and has backfired badly on an overview scale. In human subject clinical research, in most countries of the world this is considered a bright line that cannot be crossed. So, now we are told to waive that requirement without even so much as open public discussion being allowed? In conclusion, I hope that you will join me; stop to take a moment and consider for yourself what is going on. The logic seems clear to me. Molecular mimicry may be one of the reasons why mRNA Covid-19 injections are causing autoimmune conditions. It occurs when similarities between different antigens confuse the immune system. Indeed, antibodies against the spike protein S1 of SARS-CoV-2 had a high affinity against some human tissue proteins, researchers wrote in the Journal of Autoimmunity. As vaccine mRNA codes the same viral protein, they can trigger autoimmune diseases in predisposed patients. Malone's Warning to Parents: In an interview Malone discussed two grassroots projects he's involved with. The first is the Unity Project, which opposes vaccine mandates, and the second is the International Alliance of Physicians and Medical Scientists, launched by the Global Covid Summit. Malone also highlighted the second Physicians Declaration by the International Alliance of Physicians and Medical Scientists, dated October 29, 2021. The declaration has been signed by more than 17,000 doctors and scientists and states that, healthy children shall not be subjected to forced vaccination as their clinical risk from SARS-CoV-2 infection is negligible, and long-term safety of the shots cannot be determined prior to such policies being enacted. Not only are children at high risk for severe adverse events, but having healthy, unvaccinated children in the population is crucial to achieving herd immunity. The declaration also demands that health agencies and institutions cease interfering with physicians treating individual patients. Malone also warned parents that the decision to inject their children is irreversible. Here's an excerpt from that written warning: Before you inject your child a decision that is irreversible, I wanted to let you know the scientific facts about this genetic vaccine, which is based on the mRNA vaccine technology I created. There are three issues parents need to understand: The first is that a viral gene will be injected into your children's cells. This gene forces your child's body to make toxic spike proteins. These proteins often cause permanent damage in children's critical organs, including: Their brain, nervous system, heart and blood vessels, including blood clots. Their reproductive system. This vaccine can trigger fundamental changes to their immune system. The most alarming point about this is that once these damages have occurred, they are irreparable. You can't fix the lesions within their brain. You can't repair heart tissue scarring. You can't repair a genetically reset immune system. This vaccine can cause reproductive damage that could affect future generations of your family. The second thing you need to know about is the fact that this novel technology has not been adequately tested. We need at least 5 years of testing/research before we can really understand the risks. Harms and risks from new medicines often become revealed many years later. It is crucial to pay attention to the warnings and the growing list of people, who have experienced adverse effects as Big Pharma starts rolling out new mRNA shots. Although Moderna has announced three new mRNA shots coming, this is only the beginning of how pharmaceutical companies will take advantage of technology, to line their profit margins while indemnified and without regard to human health. It should come as no surprise that the drugs under development using mRNA technology are being developed as vaccines, since the companies will also likely be given the same protection against criminal and civil action as they have for the Covid-19 shot. That one report should put many people off getting these jabs, but as we have seen the bot herd lazy assed mentality is to accept the narrative a TV screen provides them. I am sure in the near future there will be outraged at what has unfolded in the past two years, and the ten years planning that preceded it, but the only person to blame for people getting jabs, are the people themselves. And as parents, you have a greater responsibility as guardians of your children, I am not sure damaged children of the future with these jabs will look upon their parents in good light. No one is saying it is not sad, but I warned some time back that consequences of actions will be unfolding. The pure folly of following the script on Covid was their own responsibility, many of them were told, and many of them ignored the many warnings. All of which makes themselves accountable for their own actions. There was 10 months between the start of the pandemic and the roll out of the jabs, to find out for yourselves the pros and cons of it. Most just ignored that, at great cost to themselves, their families and loved ones. The end goal for this experience is, to never trust an official organization ever again. That will be the silver lining.

EXPOSE: You wish to know why the Jewish EL-ite media always portrays Russia and Russians in bad light, perhaps this piece will reveal more as to why. The Pale of Settlement was a western region of the Russian Empire with varying borders that existed from 1791 to 1917. In which permanent residency by Jews was allowed and beyond which Jewish residency, permanent or temporary, was mostly forbidden. Most Jews were still excluded from residency in a number of cities within the Pale as well. A few Jews were allowed to live outside the area, including those with university education, the ennobled, members of the most affluent of the merchant guilds and particular artisans, some military personnel and some services associated with them, including their families, and sometimes their servants. The archaic English term pale is derived from the Latin word palus, a stake, extended to mean the area enclosed by a fence or boundary. Remember these same people were thrown out of 106 countries since AD came in. In many cases the Jews themselves in my opinion were not the problem, it was those orchestrating them that was the issue. Throughout his story and indeed in the present our story, these diaspora peoples have been pushed into lands, deals made on their behalf, settlements created and a gradual takeover of the local populace. All done from afar, and once a permanent settlement is created, and the EL-ites have what they wished for, the peoples are left to rot, just like those in the Palestinian settlements now, that we reported on recently. It is the same trick over and over, and the ones who suffer are the original locals and the Jews themselves. They have to understand they are and have been used as pawns in the EL-ites game, a game too few know exists. The Pale of Settlement included all of modern-day Belarus, Lithuania and Moldova, much of Ukraine and east-central Poland, and relatively small parts of Latvia and western Russian Federation. It extended from the eastern pale, or demarcation line inside the country, westwards to the Imperial Russian border with the Kingdom of Prussia, which later became the German Empire and Austria-Hungary, all at the behest of the Hapsburg group. Furthermore, it composed about 20% of the territory of European Russia and largely corresponded to historical lands of the former Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth, Cossack Hetmanate, the Ottoman Empire with Yedisian, Crimean Khanate and eastern Principality of Moldavia known as Bessarabia. Life in the Pale for many was economically bleak. Most people relied on small service or artisan work that could not support the number of inhabitants, which resulted in emigration, especially in the late 19th century. Even so, Jewish culture, especially in Yiddish, developed in the shtetls (small towns), and intellectual culture developed in the yeshivot (religious schools) and was also carried abroad. That is part of the problem directed towards Jews and how anti-semitism was birthed, they refuse to adopt or adapt to the local culture, and create their own mini empire so to speak. This is a mistake, the old saying when in Rome do as the Romans do, applies when moving to another country or culture. I never came to America to be British, but I merged in with the culture of the country, even though there are many cultures within America, as essentially America lower States are 48 different countries in essence. The Russian Empire during the existence of the Pale was predominantly Orthodox Christian, in contrast to the area included in the Pale with its large minorities of Jewish, Roman Catholic. Until mid-19th century Eastern Catholic population, although much of modern Ukraine, Belarus and Moldova are predominantly Eastern Orthodox. While the religious nature of the edicts creating the Pale is clear, which was conversion to Russian Orthodoxy, the state religion, which released individuals from the strictures, historians argue that the motivations for its creation and maintenance, were primarily economic and nationalist in nature. The end of the enforcement and formal demarcation of the Pale coincided with the beginning of World War I in 1914 and then ultimately, the fall of the Russian Empire in the February and October Revolutions of 1917. The territory that would become the Pale first began to enter Russian hands in 1772, with the First Partition of Poland. At the time, most Jews and in fact most Russians were restricted in their movements. The Pale came into being under the rule of Catherine the Great in 1791, initially as a measure to speed colonization of newly acquired territory on the Black Sea. Catherine came from the Rurik dynasty which was the precursor to the Romanovs. That was the Odessa region and the Sarmations mentioned in an earlier piece, Sauro-mations or lizard people as it were. Jews were allowed to expand the territory available to them, just like the modern settlements, but in exchange Jewish merchants could no longer do business in non-Pale Russia. The institution of the Pale became more significant following the Second Partition of Poland in 1793, since, until then, Russia's Jewish population had been rather limited. The dramatic westward expansion of the Russian Empire, through the annexation of Polish-Lithuanian territory substantially increased the Jewish population. All of which means it was no longer in control by Russians themselves. At its height, the Pale had a Jewish population of over five million, and represented the largest component, 40 percent of the world Jewish population at that time. The freedom of movement of non-Jewish Russians was greatly increased, but the freedom of movement of Jews was greatly restricted and officially kept within the boundaries of the pale. The name Pale of settlement first arose under the rule of Nicholas I. Under his rule 1825 to 1855, the Pale gradually shrank, and became more restrictive. In 1827, Jews living in Kiev were severely restricted. In 1835 the provinces of Astrakhan and the northern Caucasus were removed from the Pale. Nicholas tried to remove all Jews from within 50 miles of the Austrian border in 1843. In practice, this was very difficult to enforce, and the restrictions were lessened in 1858. The city of Astrakhan is interesting Star of Cohen that essentially means, a fertile area formerly that contained the capitals of Khazaria and the Golden Horde. A key strategic location along the Silk Road, and described as Russia's gateway to Asia, so you can see who and why that was taken over by the Khazarians, all about the shekels you see. Alexander II, who ruled 1855 to 1881, expanded the rights of rich and educated Jews to leave and live beyond the Pale, which led many Jews to believe that the Pale might soon be abolished. These hopes vanished when Alexander II was assassinated in 1881, funny how that happens is it not? Rumors spread that he had been assassinated by Jews, and in the aftermath anti-Jewish sentiment skyrocketed. Not the Jews but more likely those who say they are Jews, but are not. But, this then provides a new solution and a new settlement to create, again using the Jewish people in their sinister harvesting programs. And so it came to pass that Anti-Jewish pogroms rocked the country from 1881 through 1884. The reactionary Temporary Laws, also called the May Laws of 1881, prohibited any new Jewish settlement outside of the Pale. The laws also granted peasants the right to demand the expulsion of Jews in their towns. The laws were anything but temporary, and would be in full effect until at least 1903. In 1910, Jewish members of the State Duma proposed the abolition of the Pale, but the power dynamic of Duma meant that the bill never had a realistic chance to pass. Far-right political elements in the Duma responded by proposing that all Jews be expelled from Russia. At times, Jews were forbidden to live in agricultural communities, or certain cities, as in Kiev, Sevastopol and Yalta, and were forced to move to small provincial towns, thus fostering the rise of the shtetls. Jewish merchants of the First Guild the wealthiest sosloviye of merchants in the Russian Empire, people with higher or special education, university students, artisans, army tailors, ennobled Jews, soldiers drafted in accordance with the Recruit Charter of 1810, and their families had the right to live outside the Pale of Settlement. The classic Jewish EL-ite hierarchical system in play again. In some periods, special dispensations were given for Jews to live in the major imperial cities, but these were tenuous, and several thousand Jews were expelled to the Pale from Moscow as late as 1891. The extremely restrictive decrees and recurrent pogroms led to much emigration from the Pale, mainly to the United States and Western Europe. That is a deliberate ploy and part of the expansionism program, these people employ. Cause havoc within the local populace and get them to turn on the Jews, move them to another area and start the process again. However, emigration could not keep up with birth rates and expulsion of Jews from other parts of Russia, and thus the Jewish population of the Pale continued to grow. During World War I, the Pale lost its rigid hold on the Jewish population, when large numbers of Jews fled into the Russian interior to escape the invading German army. By August 1915, the boundaries of the Pale were de facto unenforceable. The Pale formally came to an end soon after the abdication of Nicholas II, and as revolution gripped Russia. On March 20 1917, the Pale was abolished by the Provisional Government decree, on the abolition of religious and national restrictions, which was accomplished by the Jewish Bolshevik takeover, and set the stage for another theater in which to use the Jews again. The Second Polish Republic was reformed from much of the former territory of the Pale in the aftermath of World War I. Subsequently, most of the Jewish population of the area would perish in the Holocaust one generation later. You see, all done by design, another problem, reaction and solution game that was pre-planned. Jewish life in the shtetls or little towns of the Pale of Settlement was hard and poverty-stricken. Following the Jewish religious tradition of tzedakah (charity), a sophisticated system of volunteer Jewish social welfare organizations developed to meet the needs of the population. Various organizations supplied clothes to poor students, provided kosher food to Jewish soldiers conscripted into the Tsar's army, dispensed free medical treatment for the poor, offered dowries and household gifts to destitute brides, and arranged for technical education for orphans. According to historian Martin Gilbert's Atlas of Jewish History, no province in the Pale had less than 14% of Jews on relief; Lithuanian and Ukrainian Jews supported as much as 22% of their poor populations. The concentration of Jews in the Pale, coupled with Tsar Alexander III's fierce hatred of the Jews, and the rumors that Jews had been involved in the assassination of his father Tsar Alexander II, made them easy targets for pogroms and anti-Jewish riots by the majority population. These, along with the repressive May Laws, often devastated whole communities. Though attacks occurred throughout the existence of the Pale, particularly devastating anti-Jewish pogroms occurred from 1881 to 1883 and from 1903 to 1906, targeting hundreds of communities, assaulting thousands of Jews, and causing considerable property damage. A case of throwing the baby out with the bath water that, why target all of them, when over time they should have worked out the hidden hand game. Unless of course they were all involved in the plot as an off world invasion? That idea may or not be true, but why were they thrown out of 106 countries in the past 2000 years? Can all countries be wrong? Or was there something systematically wrong with these types of diaspora peoples altogether? Most Jews could not engage in agriculture due to the nature of the Pale, and were thus predominantly merchants, artisans, and shopkeepers. This made poverty a serious issue among the Jews. However, a robust Jewish community welfare system arose; by the end of the 19th century nearly 1 in 3 Jews in the Pale were being supported by Jewish welfare organizations. This Jewish support system included, but was not limited to, providing free medicine to the poor, giving dowries to poor brides, Kosher food to Jewish soldiers, and education to orphans. That is good to hear, perhaps even they knew themselves back then, that they were being played? One outgrowth of the concentration of Jews in a circumscribed area was, the development of the modern yeshiva system. Prior to the Pale, schools to study the Talmud were a luxury, this began to change when Rabbi Chaim of Volozhin began a sort of national level Yeshiva. Which is indicative of hierarchy, and a religious book not to be read by the all. In 1803 he founded the Volozhin yeshiva, and began to attract large number of students from around the Pale. The Tsarist authorities were not pleased with the school and sought to make it more secular, eventually they closed it in 1879. The authorities re-opened it in 1881, but required all teachers to have diplomas from Russian institutions, and to teach Russian language and culture. This requirement was not only untenable to the Jews, but essentially impossible, and the school closed for the last time in 1892. Regardless, the school had great impact: its students went on to form many new yeshivas in the Pale, and reignited the study of the Talmud in Russia. Setting the stage at this point for the Jewish Bolshevik revolution, now less than 20 years away. After 1886, the Jewish quota was applied to education, with the percentage of Jewish students limited to no more than 10% within the Pale, 5% outside the Pale and 3% in the capitals of Moscow, St. Petersburg, and Kiev. The quotas in the capitals, however, were increased slightly in 1908 and 1915. Amid the difficult conditions in which the Jewish population lived and worked, the courts of Hasidic dynasties flourished in the Pale. Thousands of followers of rebbes such as the Gerrer Rebbe Yehudah Aryeh Leib Alter known as the Sfas Emes, the Chernobyler Rebbe, and the Vizhnitzer Rebbe flocked to their towns for the Jewish holidays and followed their rebbes' minhagim which were Jewish practices in their own homes. The Chernobyler Rebbe caught my eye, and perhaps the origin of the name of Chernobyl is a pointer? The city's name is the same as one of the Ukrainian names for Artemisia vulgaris, mugwort or common wormwood. Wormwood? Oh my, but then there is another pointer as the name originates from Proto-Slavic it means black grass. Mugwort of course was also in Lord of the Rings just by coincidences according to Tolkien, they were the hobbits. The tribulations of Jewish life in the Pale of Settlement were immortalized in the writings of Yiddish authors such as humorist Sholom Aleichem, whose novel Tevye der Milchiger, Tevye the Milkman. In the form of the narration of Tevye from a fictional town of Anatevka to the author, forms the basis of the theatrical and the subsequent film production Fiddler on the Roof. Because of the harsh conditions of day-to-day life in the Pale, some two million Jews emigrated from there between 1881 and 1914, mainly to the United States. The timing of that moving given our FHSTOS series is indicative, just before the Bolshevik war in Russia? All moved to America who would not be attacked in WW1? All to start the 4th Reich? The Pale of Settlement included the following areas. 1791 The ukase of Catherine the Great of December 23, 1791 limited the Pale to: Western Krai, Mogilev Governorate, Polotsk Governorate later reorganized into Vitebsk Governorate, Little Russia (Ukraine). I wonder why it was called Little Russia? He ponders sarcastically. Kiev Governorate, Chernigov Governorate, Novgorod-Seversky Viceroyalty later became Poltava Governorate, Novorossiia Governorate, Yekaterinoslav Viceroyalty and the Taurida Oblast (Crimea). 1794 After the Second Partition of Poland, the ukase of June 23, 1794, the following areas were added: The Governorates of Minsk, Mogilev, Polotsk which is Belarus and likely the real origin of Poland! Haha. Kiev, Volhynian and Podolia Governorate. 1795 After the Third Partition of Poland, the following areas were added: Vilna and the Grodno Governorate. 1805–1835 After 1805 the Pale gradually shrank, and became limited to the following areas: Lithuanian governorates, Southwestern Krai, Belarus without rural areas, Malorossiia (Little Russia or Ukraine) without rural areas, Chernigov Governorate, Novorossiia without Mykolaiv and Sevastopol, Kiev Governorate without Kiev. Baltic governorates closed for arriving Jews and Congress Poland did not belong to the Pale of Settlement. Rural areas for 35 miles from the western border were closed for new settlement of the Jews. Final demographics: According to the 1897 census, the governorates had the following percentages of Jews: Northwestern Krai (whole Lithuania, Belarus) Vilna 12.86%, Kovno 13.77%, Grodno 17.49%, Minsk 16.06%, Mogilyov 12.09%, Vitebsk 11.79% Southwestern Krai (North & Central Ukraine) Kiev 12.19%, Volhynia 13.24%, Podolia 12.28%. Congress Poland, Warsaw 18.22%, Lublin 13.46%, Plock 9.29%, Kalisz 8.52%, Piotrkow 15.85%, Kielce 10.92%, Radom 13.78%, Siedlce 15.69%, Suwalki 10.16%, Lomza 15.77%. Others: Chernigov 4.98%, Poltava 3.99%, Taurida (Crimea) 4.20% + Karaite 0.43%, Kherson 12.43%, Bessarabia 11.81% and Yekaterinoslav 4.78%. Despite not being native to that area and interference, it should be noted those figures were all fairly high in those regions for a diaspora group. In 1882 it was forbidden for Jews to settle in rural areas. The following cities within the Pale were excluded from it: Kiev (the ukase of December 2, 1827: eviction of Jews from Kiev), Nikolaev, Sevastopol and Yalta. With the rise of a rebellious Israeli youth, one hopes they find the time to understand pieces like this, and recognize the pattern, and how they have been played.

OTHER PIECES: Recently we touched on the piece and revelation that America and Russia have been working together since the time of Abraham Lincoln, which was 1861. We have revealed in the past that the agencies here, far from the public glare of Russians are bad, have actually worked with the KGB since at least the 1940's. But, here is a piece that will ruffle the britches of Americans who fear the Russians. Because right in the heart of Long Island's famed Gold Coast sits a Russian-owned compound that has long been suspected of being a hive for espionage. Long Island is more famous for the Montauk program, where the Russian Bolsheviks involved in that as well? The sprawling 39-acre estate was purchased by the Soviet Union in 1946, as country retreat for their delegates to the United Nations. It has been rumored that the property also served as a base to actively recruit American double agents, and spy on Long Island's robust defense industry at the height of the Cold War. Its current use is unknown. Double agents on are on our own soil? Does that make any sense? Russia is bad but can house American traitors on their own soil? Yeah right, whose kidding who here? Named Killenworth House, the property features a Gatsby-like manor containing 49 rooms, a swimming pool, a tennis court, multiple greenhouses, lush gardens tended to by a team of 50 gardeners. Beyond those details, very little is known of what goes on behind its fortress walls on Dosoris Lane. Since it was first purchased by the U.S.S.R 70 years ago, the mysterious suburban compound has been a hotbed for geopolitical and local tension. Recently a group of Republican Long Island politicians called on President Biden to expel Russian diplomats from the property. That wasn't the first attempt as in December 2016, the Obama administration announced that two Russian diplomatic facilities, one of which was on Long Island, would be closed as part of the retaliation for the Russian interference in the 2016 United States presidential election. It was initially reported that Killenworth might be the Long Island site, but the designated facility turned out to be another mansion owned by the Russians called Norwich House in nearby Upper Brookville, New York. Killenworth is still used by the Russian delegation. So, not one but two properties owned by the Russian Government, all of which proves the media rhetoric of Anti-Russian is all fake for the public's benefit or fear package. One of the things that is most disconcerting is, the fact that we have no idea what they're doing behind these walls, what kind of nefarious activities they could be engaged in, said Nassau County Executive Bruce Blakeman said on Sunday. Blakeman, whose grandparents immigrated from Ukraine, has a right to be paranoid because in 1982, a high-ranking Soviet defector told US intelligence officials that the top floors of Killenworth, contained the world's most advanced electric surveillance equipment. That was 1982, so why is it an issue now? Because Blakeman is born in and born to and is creating fear and distraction programs. According to Newsday the original Killenworth home was built in 1897 before it was demolished in 1912, to make way for an even bigger home for the Standard Oil heir, George Dupont Pratt. At the time, the mansion cost $1million to complete, $28million in today's money. The Russians paid roughly $75,000 for the estate in 1946 as a vacation retreat for visiting diplomats. That is dodgy right there, who would build a house for one million and sell it for $75K 34 years later. It was purchased by Vyacheslav Molotov, Joseph Stalin's right hand man. Stalin you might remember from last week was working directly with Roosevelt to gain world power. Immediately, local Glen Cove residents were leery of their new Soviet neighbor, who they believed had unsavory intentions of spying on nearby defense industries. At the time, Long Island was home to a robust Military Industrial Complex which included seven military bases equipped with nuclear weapons, one which was armed with Nike Hercules missiles designed to be the last line of defense against Soviet bombers. Not far from Glen Cove was The Republic Aviation Corporation, which was responsible for building one-third of all US military combat jets, and Grumman Aerospace, the manufacturer of Apollo's lunar modules. Off Orient Point, is the Plum Island Animal Disease Center, which today remains a top-secret government facility researching biological warfare. If it doesn't make sense it is a program, why would the US Government go along with this? Remember the "Russians" were now ran by the Jews following the real Holocaust during and after WW1 and WW2. Now it makes much more sense, remember what we call today as Jews, are in both camps of the Rothschild's and the Black Sun cults.

Recently we touched on the Fibonacci sequence and how it was corrupted into merging the Matrices with the BeAST technology. Was it corrupted, or was it always corrupt? Fibonacci is not even the real name, the real name is Leonardo Bonacci, was Bonacci pulling a great fib, which means a lie? Although born in Italy, the sequence did not come from him or Italy, it came from a not surprising source in India. Called the modus Indorum, meaning method of the Indians, today known as the Hindu-Arabic numeral system, with ten digits including a zero and positional notation. In came the binary coding ones and zeros. Its origin is no surprise either with the ancient Egyptian multiplication method, and using an abacus for calculations, was an advance in making business calculations easier and faster, which assisted the growth of banking and accounting in Europe. And we all know who took advantage of that system. The book was called the Liber Abaci. In ancient Roman religion and mythology, Liber the free one, also known as Liber Pater the free Father, was a god of viticulture and wine, male fertility and freedom. He was a patron deity of Rome's plebeians and was part of their Aventine Triad. The Aventine Triad has been described as parallel to the Capitoline Triad of Jupiter, Mars and Quirinus on the Capitoline Hill. Quirinus the double headed entity was linked with the internet distraction based entity called Q, in an earlier show called Are the gods returning? The festival of Liber called Liberalia on March 17th, became associated with free speech and the rights attached to coming of age. His cult and functions were increasingly associated with Romanized forms of the Greek Dionysus/Bacchus, whose mythology he came to share. Sounds similar to the Lieber Code does it not, and Bacchus is related to Satan worship. Before his official adoption as a Roman deity, Liber was companion to two different goddesses in two separate, archaic Italian fertility cults; Ceres, an agricultural and fertility goddess of Rome's Hellenized neighbors, and Libera, who was Liber's female equivalent. Liber and Libera sounds similar to Lucifer and Luciferia. In ancient Lavinium, he was a phallic deity, just like Osiris then. A common story like the Cain and Abel that seems to echo throughout their versions of history. Liber also personified male procreative power, which was ejaculated as the soft seed of human and animal semen. Oh dear a chimera then, and people still worship these genetic abominations?

Is Meta(tronic) planning another memory wipe, with a new version of blank slate technology? Is the great question we should all be pondering at this point. Are the likes of Zuckerberg and Musk being tricked into creating technology for the gods just like The Wingmakers? Or, are these entities not human and playing hide and seek in meat suits for the same fake gods agendas. Musk with his neuro link technology now plugging into the Thothian bird based social media, called twitter. Gates saying the jabs were software upgrades, why would he say that if a person or entity was not a computer?

The Sun rising in east is life and west is death they say, is that symbolic of how the clowns wish to transfer over? The transfer of false life and illumination to the Solar rising sign? The transfer of the energy harvesting system known as the financial system over to the East, was planned to be in 2012, which was the end for life here, or so they thought. But is also coincides with an 8-year mobius loop before the 2020 Day of the Svarog. Does that coincide with the Day and Night of the Svarog? If my 2020 belief is correct, it brings up interesting connotations, as the Night of the Svarog came on 1012, and so a thousand years before the infamous 2012 date. It also coincides with the time of Radomir and Mary Magdelene. The previous Day of the Svarog then would have been 4AD and so around the time of the Jesheua's times 3, like a trifacta which is a closed loop system. The Night of the Svarog before that would have been 1004BC, and so the previous Day of the Svarog before that reveals an interesting date again, 2012, only BC this time. What if we are running on separate timelines? a thousand years apart, or 1008 which incidentally equals a 9. 3020 5036 7052 9068 were all nights of the Svarog. 2012 4028 6044 8060 10076 all the days of Svarog in BC time. All equal a 5 numerically in BC, but in AD they equal a four. 490 years into a Night of the Svarog they launched the Flood wipe. Jesheua 12 was born 16 years before the night of the Svarog, 16 is a double mobius loop. With Ashayne's announcement of the return of Jesheua 12, although the date is not known, could it be 16 years before again, which means he returned in 2004, and 16 years before the day of the Svarog, or could it be 16 years after, which would make the return in 2036?

It came to my attention another internet warrior is getting people into trouble, Roman Didulo of Canada. Telling her followers to not pay utility bills, credit cards etc as they are all paid for, which is correct in America, but not sure that applies in Canada. As part of the deal for putting Americans up as the debt collateral, the state then is or should be responsible for all its people, in terms of bills. But the double or triple dippers did not tell you that, did they? But, just because it is valid, like not needing drivers licenses for non-business cars, not required to pay income tax, it is not a valid pursuit to get involved in, and often leads to bad situations. These people often tied to common law, far too often get their followers into trouble, and some have been jailed, and some have been killed also. Didulo like Anna Von Reitz, Kimberley Goguen and Emily Windsor Cragg all come laden with various titles of alleged authority, and yet none of their claims have come to fruition. Didulo goes under the titles of HRH Majesty Queen Romana Didulo. Head of State, Commander-in-Chief, Head of Government of Canada and President and Queen of The Kingdom of Canada. All very impressive, yet what has it achieved? What is it with these women and their titles? All or some of the titles maybe valid in some cases, but what have they done with those titles? The answer is zero. Titles are only useful if it brings power for the benefit of the people, not the self. The self-angle makes you no different to the clowns in essence, reveling in being important, instead of doing important work. Rest assured that will never happen with this person and group, our group is different, it is about the all, not the one. The greatest King or Queen you can ever be is, the King or Queen of your own vessel.

There has been much said about Technology healing, from med beds, to the hook up to a computer technology various alt media promoted, including Life Force. But, did anyone ask, is this technology exactly what it states? Or is there a sinister side to it like all other technology introduced? To those who are sick, they will accept anything to be cured, and therein lies the problem. Endless pills and potions, now machines and yet the real healing machine is the self, providing you work on the self. Med beds came from Rand, the same corporation who built Dulce and other underground bases, why should we trust them? The answer is you shouldn't. All external technology has been weaponized against us, and with that knowledge people should stay away from anything they offer. The latest is the sarcophagus technology, it is not new and again should we trust anything that was associated with the fake gods located in Egypt and Sumaria? Let's look at sarcophagus shall we. Sarco means flesh, phagus means eating on, feeding or devouring. And so sarcophagus devours the flesh of the person inside it. People have asked for this type of technology as it is said to be healing, yet how can it be with that description? Is the description of the sarcophagus in the Stargate series valid? That it heals the person going in it? But, what if it doesn't heal the original person, and is essentially making a clone? Because if it devours the flesh, that is exactly what it is producing. Thankfully we are going separate ways.

ENDING PIECE: This is from Kerry Cassidy and is of a broader interest than the information presented. Is it true or is she being set up? Is this another of their distraction pieces, all because their world and control system is failing? A friend of a friend who is involved with a Bio Pharma company based in the Bay Area, that supposedly is making a product that will be sprayed in surgical rooms to get rid of pathogens and viruses, is doing a deal with a group in Europe. They had an in-person meeting in the UK on a base there, if true, it is likely Menwith Hill. In attendance was someone from the U.S. Embassy accompanied by a couple U.S. military and a Reptilian. The other members were humans both European and Executives from America. There were about 12 or less people in the meeting. The California executive was introduced to the Reptilian and shook hands with it, it was wearing a military uniform. Which is interesting as traditionally they do not shake hands or embrace. We are trying to get more detail on which branch of the U.S. military. If true, it will be the Navy as they are connected to the SSP. This executive flew back and called my friend. Now we assume that this display would be leaked from that guy to my friend, who is one of my regular sources an ex-marine. According to Mark Richards the Reptilians have wanted disclosure for a long time. Personally I would take that with a pinch or bucket of salt, but, what if our revocation of reveal yourself is working? ET Disclosure the many will cry, you are not mentally prepared is my reply. There is a lot of romance and lack of pondering surrounding the ET issue. Ponder on this, are you ready to face the great unknown? How would you react to meeting differing creatures or beings? Although you do know you have met them prior, you just didn't "see". What is your reaction to an animal or mammal being speaking to you? How will you approach the situation? Fear and panic or will you be passive and exhibit curiosity? Will you treat them as a god or a being above you? Will you 45/55 and embrace the situation, or panic and project or strike out? That is something all must think over in their head, run simulations during meditation and see how you react. You do know ET Disclosure will end religion, as it was they who created it, how will the religious people feel? How can we help them is my thinking. The truth will set you free, but only if you embrace it. Part of the problem on this planet including researchers in the alt media is, they only accept their version of the truth, and are not open to all possibilities. Most people, particularly the religious have truth barriers, and most have that barrier around their knees or ankles, how can you "see" with truth down the lower portions of your vessel? The answer is you can't. For full Disclosure and truth, that barrier needs to be at the crown or beyond, because then it is above your eyes, and then you can "see". Even on the more earthly disclosures, Americans don't want to hear how bad they have been represented, and the same applies to other countries as well. It becomes a finger pointing away exercise, the nasty Russians or Chinese, when if all peoples pointed the finger back at themselves, we could all make progress. America itself has been built on pure illusion, the flag, the anthem, the bald eagle, the currency, the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, the legal System, the Government, The National Bank, the Treasury and the IRS and many other items are all fake, or created by the Crown who controls this country. Will they handle that truth? Because if they can't, forget ET Disclosure for them people. At this point, all people with access to the internet have had an opportunity to learn the truth, there are no excuses. But, if we are to develop into an adult species, radical stances will be required going forward. I believe the best method is what I proposed privately to the Council sometime back in 2013. A UN style address, that will likely be for a few weeks to a month, and the truth revealed on all levels to society, including the ET invasion here. Make it a global broadcast on all tv channels and so it will be the only thing that all the people can watch for the duration. Will it be a shock? Not to our members it won't, as you have all increased not only your truth barriers, but embraced it, processed it, healed it and then have striven to provide solutions to it. To the rest, no matter how much they glibly discuss ET's, it will be a seismic shock to their system, particularly for the religious cults. The AI scenarios have suggested as many as 2.3B could commit suicide, I don't believe that to be true, as I don't believe their 7.5B figures to be true either. But, it will be a massive opportunity for all the people and indeed beings to come together, and end the lies, the division, the harvest and the death and destruction wars, the majority of which I might add, have been caused by beings not from here, or not native to here. I will leave you all to ponder deeply on this piece, and be honest within yourself. As you may well have to face these scenarios in the near future.
