Web Team Update:

On the THI-show.com site: The Web Team is working to add downloadable pdfs to the THI-show transcripts. New Patron Memberships are increasing daily, and it appears there are many in this group with Common Sense!

Donation options to Thomas directly are located at the top right menu bar on the site. You must create a free account to access the free to the public, show audio & transcripts, although they are 3 months behind the paid memberships. Members can now edit their profile, change password, unsubscribe from patron services, should they wish.

Communal Gatherings Update:

On the Think Different site: The Web Team has added some new Communal Gatherings to the site. The THI-only Positive Action. The Peoples Colors (We Rise Together) this will be for outreach to end racial division. These 2 gatherings grew from our recent Solutions Zoom.

We have a feeling many members will be pleased to hear, we have added a TPC Health and Wellness Gathering, with a subcategory Herbal Remedies. More subcategories will be added as we move along.

We also added a solutions, ideas and suggestions category to the Communal Gatherings. Many have ideas and this will make it easy to know where to put those ideas. We don't want them to get lost in one of the threads, as some may come into play at a future point.

A School Curriculum gathering was expanded to Schooling Curriculum & Resources with 2 new subcategories: Adult Curriculum and Children's Curriculum.

Schooling resources is a database for parents and teachers, to assist them whether their children are still in a public or private school or homeschooling.

Many are signing up to participate in the gathering and meetings will begin soon. We would love to see teachers and homeschoolers come and join us in building a curriculum.

Things are moving along nicely within the gatherings and the projects, and we will have an open zoom call to discuss ideas and solutions this coming Saturday at noon MT. Look forward to seeing you all again.

NEWS: This is fairly extraordinary what is being brought up and also where it is being discussed. Israel's occupation of the Palestinians is the biggest terror in the region, MK Ofer Cassif said on Wednesday at a Knesset conference hosted by the caucus to end the occupation. There is a very simple reason why this is so, Cassif said. He was speaking to left-wing parliamentarians and NGO representatives, who gathered in a Knesset conference room to focus on the harm done to the Palestinians since the 1967 Six Day War, when it captured the West Bank, Gaza and east Jerusalem from Jordan. The accepted definition of terror is not a political one such as occurs within the Israeli discourse and in its parliament, he said. The globally recognized understanding is that terror is a form of violence, including the threat of violence, against innocent civilians in order to achieve political aims, the occupation is exactly this. It acts against civilians who are innocent, using violence and oppression and the threat of it, against millions of innocents when the objective is political. He provided this definition to back up his initial words, that the occupation is the biggest terror that exists in the entire region, certainly when it comes to Palestine/Israel. Those who want to ignore the fact that, the occupation is the terror, is either an ignoramus who doesn't know what terror is, or is a liar who knows what terror is and is trying to hide it. Even former prime minister Benjamin Netanyahu in a book, he wrote and spoke of those who fight against a military force are guerrillas and not terrorists. When such a terror exists there is resistance, adding that there is no such thing as a benign occupation. No nation will live under a foreign government without resisting. The occupation itself also gives birth to other crimes such as acts of apartheid, and the demonization and dehumanization of those who resist. Rebel Yamina MK Amihai Chikli pushed back at the idea that Israel was an occupying force in its biblical heartland, noting that if one was talking about occupation, then the matter didn't go back 55 years but 3,500 years. He read from the Bible about the start of King David's reign stating, David captured Jerusalem. His words prompted conference chair MK Aida Touma-Sliman (Joint List) to ask, so is that where the occupation started? Chikli said there was a claim that we are not the natives here, but we are the natives of this area, of Judea and Samaria. Heavy stuff, and yes these same people have kept on attacking the lands around that region for thousands of years. No, they are not native to there, at best they came from the East and Asia, and worse they are not even from this planet in some cases.

Israelis will be able to enter Qatar during the International Federation of Association Football's (FIFA) 2022 World Cup event in November, Foreign Minister Yair Lapid, Defense Minister Benny Gantz, and Sports Minister Chili Tropper said in a joint announcement on Thursday. This will be the first time that Israelis are accepted into Qatar without using a foreign passport. Israel are banned from soccer, because every time they got a penalty kick or corner on an opponent's ground, they opened up a settlement and moved in.

NATO chimed in this week in a classic case of accusing others when the answer lies within. They blamed Russia for global food prices increase, (M) negating their own role in causing the war. If they hadn't gone against the 1991 agreement, none of this would have happened.

Meta formerly known as Facebook, is not exactly in the best shape right now. Reports suggest that the social network Facebook isn't growing like it once was, and Meta's other businesses in advertising, VR, and the metaverse aren't doing particularly well at the moment. It would appear that the biggest hurdle that Meta faces is slowing revenue growth, something that has already started to show its effects on Meta's plans. The company has reportedly canceled plans for its first smartwatch, which had two cameras and was slated to hit the shelves next year. Codenamed Milan, the smartwatch was canned due to issues with EMG (or Electromyography) tech implementation, but cost-cutting is also cited as one of the reasons in the report. In May, Meta announced plans to slow down, or even freeze, hiring for mid- or senior-level positions, days after declaring its financial results for the first three months of 2022. According to a report, Meta told employees at Reality Labs, the division tasked with building the metaverse in the first place to brace for layoffs. Facebook, too, hasn't been coy about its revenue slowdown woes. That's what happens when you shit on your clientele, banned and blocked people and then expect to retain the people. Less people equals less advertisement equals less money into their coffers, and long may it continue.

Ethereum creator Vitalik Buterin believes that unfriendly artificial intelligence poses the biggest risk to humanity.

Buterin on Thursday called for more eyes on the problem of unfriendly AI risk, which he sees as the biggest thing to potentially derail humanity over the next one or two centuries. Buterin shared a paper by AI theorist and writer Eliezer Yudkowsky, that made a case for why the current research community isn't doing enough to prevent a potential future catastrophe, at the hands of artificially generate intelligence. At the forefront of AI innovation are companies like Tesla Inc developing a humanoid robot Optimus, which CEO Elon Musk has said is the most important product the company is working on, even above its EV car business. The importance of Optimus will become apparent in the coming years, Musk had said. Nice to see others warning of it, and way past time someone raised this in higher circles. The issue is who is running it, not necessarily AI itself. My personal opinion is we shouldn't have it until this world operates in a much less darkened way. Those creating crypto or death tokens are not helping either.

In May, the group, previously known as Drag Queen Story Hour NYC, earned $46,000 from city contracts for appearances at venues where children are the prime audience, and received a total of $207,000 in taxpayer cash since 2018. The tally includes $50,000 from New York State through its Council on the Arts, along with $157,000 from the city's Departments of Education, Cultural Affairs, Youth and Community Development, and even the Department of Transportation. Most of the money was allocated by city council members from their discretionary budgets, who set aside $80,000 for the group in the current fiscal year, more than tripling the $25,000 earmarked in 2020. This is how the public school works or doesn't, and something very young children should not be exposed to in my opinion. The school system now is an indoctrinated abomination, running all kinds of divisive agendas, pro pagan da and the teaching levels of the curriculum that is sub 90 on IQ scale. Quite why parents tolerate this for their children is beyond me, it is a critical neglect of their child's development, and this causes mass confusion in early development of the child's brain. Time and a place for everything, but this is a program that doesn't serve the children or the transsexual cause too well.

As gas prices continue to rise on Monday, the average US price of a gallon of gas stood at $5.01, up from $3.08 a year ago. Biden far from fixing the issue decided he would joke about it instead. In a much-anticipated speech on the troubling rise in gas prices, President Biden said we might as well just keep raising the prices until the price counter spins all the way back to zero. Listen, folks, it's too late to lower gas prices, no one knows how to do that, said the President. Seriously did he just say no one knows how to fix it? What an indictment that is. Mask man carried on saying, so, we're just gonna keep raising those prices higher, until all the little number signs on the price boards go back to zero! Those signs can only go up to $9.99, so we're already almost there! In order to speed the process along, the Administration announced plans to do exactly what they've been doing all along, as that seems to be working nicely. Before we know it, gas will be free, Jack!" said Biden excitedly. What an inconsiderate jackass he is, an embarrassment to this country, and in particular the complete retards that voted for him. He makes Trump look mildly intelligent.

As New York continues to collapse under its own darkness and clown programs, now the cops have had enough also. More than 1,500 NYPD officers have either resigned or retired so far this year, on pace to be the biggest exodus of officers since the statistics have been available. Some 524 cops have resigned and 1,072 have retired as of May 31, according to NYPD pension stats. The 1,596 total is a 38% spike from the same period in 2021, when 1,159 cops called it a career, and a staggering 46% climb from 2020, when 1,092 left the force by the same date. Anti-cop hostility, bail reform, and rising crime have fed into frustration among the NYPD rank and file, according to one NYPD officer who recently fled for greener pastures at a Long Island police department after 6 1/2 years with the New York's Finest. The city is out of control especially since bail reform, according to the former Queens cop, who asked to be identified only as Joe. The mantra now is get out while you still can. Joe's patrol gig got worse and worse over time, he said. The last few years so many people had been leaving and manpower was so low that, you'd go to work and you'd answer 25 to 30 jobs a day, and you're burnt out by the end of the day. Here is the classic this show has been warning for some time, there was no time for law enforcement because it would be radio run, radio run, radio run all day long he said. Even when he made an arrest, they were back in the precinct picking up their property the same day. Another sad statistic, it's not the first and won't be the last profession either.

MEDICAL ISSUES: Abbott Sturgis and the FDA were alerted to a whistleblower complaint, about Abbott's Sturgis infant formula plant as far back as February 2021. This complaint, filed with the U.S. Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration, alleges quality control concerns at Abbott's formula plant in Sturgis, Michigan. A whole year before the company's massive recall and shutdown in February 2022 following contamination concerns, which helped exacerbate a nationwide shortage in baby formula. OSHA received a complaint from a whistleblower on Feb 16, 2021, and sent a copy three days later to the FDA and Abbott. The complaint raises further questions about when both Abbott and federal health authorities first knew about quality and contamination concerns at the Sturgis plant, and why it took so long for action to be taken. The OSHA complaint, alleges problems at the Sturgis plant like faulty equipment in need of repair or upgrade, and inadequate safety validation for released product. It was filed several months before similar allegations were made in another whistleblower report, which flagged contamination concerns at the Sturgis plant in October 2021. The allegations made in the October report include ongoing problems with the integrity of seals on powdered products, that the facility had used questionable practices to test whether the issues had been fixed. They also made efforts to evade certain oversight and override quality checks, falsified records on a regular and ongoing basis, and allowed questionable practices related to the cleaning of equipment to proliferate. Why did it take a whistleblower and not a Health and Safety check to raise the relevant concerns? All too familiar ignore issues if it affects the people, unless there is money to be made from it. Time for mothers to go back to making their own baby formula again, as trusting theirs is not something we should allow anymore.

The president of Iberian pharmaceutical giant PharmaMar, has been identified as one of over 2,000 people charged by the Spanish police with having purchased falsified COVID-19 jab documentation, in order to appear vaccinated against the virus without taking the shot. José María Fernández Sousa-Faro, founder and president of PharmaMar, one of Spain's foremost pharmaceutical companies, has been listed by Spanish police as paying to have his name added to the National Immunization Registry, by a criminal network producing doctored corona virus vaccine certificates. Oh the irony of that, don't do as I do, just do what we say whilst we collect the shekels.

WARNING SECTION: We find ourselves facing a range of global issues, that the clowns have no way of fixing it, because they have an agenda, the desire to stay in control. But they have been in control a long time and quite frankly have made an almighty mess of it. Due to power and greed, that has facilitated scarcity, famine, continuous wars, death and destruction. Aligned with the fact they think they are superior, more intelligent and have a right to rule over us, an arrogance that has been their downfall. Obsessed with the old program of being the one, which throughout his story has never worked indefinitely, and just produces another of the one programs, groups or people into the mix, in a giant cosmic new boss same as the old boss. We have reached the crossroads and the great split, and what will emerge is a different path altogether. The news this week re-affirms the global issues we face, their ridiculous plans of global financial meltdown, food scarcity, AI programs as they are too stupid to think for themselves, replacing our diets, creating divide and conquer between the races, making us into bio-bots and several other schemes that makes life here unbearable for too many people. The replacing our diet program, from meat to lab generated food, that contains all kinds of waste products, including human foetus's. Here is a substantial list of things that have disrupted our food supply. At least 18 major fires have erupted at food industry facilities and plants over the past six months. All of the fires have been officially listed as accidental or inconclusive. This is a list of US-based food manufacturing plants that were damaged from 2021 to 2022 under the Biden administration. Below is the list of America's 95 plants that have been destroyed, damaged or impacted by accidental fires, disease or general causes. 4/30/21 A fire ignited inside the Smithfield Foods pork processing plant in Monmouth, IL. 7/25/21 Three-alarm fire at Kellogg plant in Memphis, 170 emergency personnel responded to the call. 7/30/21 Firefighters battled a large fire at Tyson's River Valley Ingredients plant in Hanceville, Alabama. 7/23/21 Fire crews were called to the Patak Meat Production company on Ewing Road in Austell, Georgia. 9/13/21 A fire at the JBS beef plant in Grand Island, Nebraska, forced a halt to slaughter and fabrication lines. 10/13/21 A five-alarm fire ripped through the Darigold butter production plant in Caldwell, ID. 11/15/21 A woman is in custody following a fire at the Garrard County Food Pantry. 11/29/21 A fire broke out at the Maid-Rite Steak Company meat processing plant. 12/13/21 West Side food processing plant in San Antonio left with smoke damage after a fire. 1/7/22 Damage to a poultry processing plant on Hamilton's Mountain Washington following an overnight fire. 1/11/22 A fire that destroyed 75,000-square-foot processing plant in Fayetteville. 1/13/22 Firefighters worked for 12 hours to put a fire out at the Cargill-Nutrena plant in Lecompte, LA. 1/31/22 A fertilizer plant with 600 tons of ammonium nitrate inside caught on fire on Cherry Street in Winston-Salem. 2/3/22 A massive fire swept through Wisconsin River Meats in Mauston. 2/3/22 At least 130 cows were killed in a fire at Percy Farm in Stowe. 2/15/22 Bonanza Meat Company goes up in flames in El Paso, Texas. 2/15/22 A fire destroyed most of the Shearer's Foods plant in Hermiston. 2/16/22 A fire had broken at US largest soybean processing and biodiesel plant in Claypool, Indiana. 2/18/22 An early morning fire tore through the milk parlor at Bess View Farm. 2/19/22 Three people were injured, and one was hospitalized, after an ammonia leak at Lincoln Premium Poultry in Fremont. 2/22/22 The Shearer's Foods plant in Hermiston caught fire after a propane boiler exploded. 2/28/22 A smoldering pile of sulfur quickly became a raging chemical fire at Nutrien Ag Solutions. 2/28/22 A man was hurt after a fire broke out at the Shadow Brook Farm and Dutch Girl Creamery. 3/4/22 294,800 chickens destroyed at farm in Stoddard, Missouri. 3/4/22 644,000 chickens destroyed at egg farm in Cecil, Maryland. 3/8/22 243,900 chickens destroyed at egg farm in New Castle, Delaware. 3/10/22 663,400 chickens destroyed at egg farm in Cecil, Maryland. 3/10/22 915,900 chickens destroyed at egg farm in Taylor, Iowa. 3/14/22 The blaze at 244 Meadow Drive was discovered shortly after 5 p.m. by farm owner Wayne Hoover. 3/14/22 2,750,700 chickens destroyed at egg farm in Jefferson, Wisconsin. 3/16/22 A fire at a Walmart warehouse distribution center has cast a large plume of smoke visible throughout Indianapolis. 3/16/22 Nestle Food Plant extensively damaged in fire and new production destroyed Jonesboro, Arkansas. 3/17/22 5,347,500 chickens destroyed at egg farm in Buena Vista, Iowa. 3/17/22 147,600 chickens destroyed at farm in Kent, Delaware. 3/18/22 315,400 chickens destroyed at egg farm in Cecil, Maryland. 3/22/22 172,000 Turkeys destroyed on farms in South Dakota. 3/22/22 570,000 chickens destroyed at farm in Butler, Nebraska. 3/24/22 Fire fighters from numerous towns are battling a major fire at the McCrum potato processing facility in Belfast. 3/24/22 418,500 chickens destroyed at farm in Butler, Nebraska. 3/25/22 250,300 chickens destroyed at egg farm in Franklin, Iowa. 3/26/22 311,000 Turkeys destroyed in Minnesota. 3/27/22 126,300 Turkeys destroyed in South Dakota. 3/28/22

Over 14,000 sheep die in a shipping accident three days ago. Eight days ago, they start talking about this cattle disease in Kansas! Now there's 10,000 cattle dead as of last night in Kansas. This is fairly extensive and shows a systematic deliberate plan to create mass food shortages, to fulfill an agenda. I warned in February 2019 of coming food crisis, back then they were using the DEW weapons to set fire to farmlands and weather wars to wash crops away in all the food basket regions of America.

Clown people think we are all stupid and come up with ridiculous plans as something worthwhile, whilst hiding a hidden agenda, here is another example. While the idea of living on Mars may sound like the plot of the latest science fiction blockbuster, firms including NASA and SpaceX are seriously considering it as a possibility. Several challenges currently stand in our way, including building a self-sufficient spacecraft that can take crew safely, and finding a way to shield astronauts from dangerous solar and cosmic radiation, not to mention enabling them to live in microgravity on a planet with no atmosphere. If you build a wheel within a wheel, and get the rotational spin on the inner wheel, that overcomes the gravity issue. This week, Lord Martin Rees, one of the country's leading astronomers, claimed that the obvious solution to some of these problems is making future explorers part-cyborg. Well I never Mr. Rees, another aged guy oblivious to the robotic world plans, sleep walking us into oblivion. Lord Rees told the Hay Festival: these intrepid explorers on Mars will be out of the clutches of the regulators, and they will have every incentive to modify themselves because they are very badly adapted for Mars. They will use all these techniques to adapt themselves. Within a generation or two they could become a quite different species. Indeed Mr. Rees, but what if you found out they already have bio-bot people? After all the esteemed scientist Stephen Hawkins was a bio-bot, and nobody noticed it. We don't know what mixture they will be of flesh and blood and electronic, but if they become electronic then of course they could be near immortal. Oh dear, the immortal word again, either he is part of it or very naïve to the point of stupid. If that is the case, they would be able to make a very long interstellar voyage, hibernating for millennia. They can do that now, the 1948 Aztec crash had cryogenic beings, you are not telling me the Military and Agency goons haven't reversed engineered it at this point? So, will future Martians really need to become cyborgs? Here are some of the challenges facing human colonizers hoping to settle on the Red Planet, and reveals how becoming a cyborg could solve some of them. In 2013, Japanese firm Takram revealed ambitious plans for artificial implantable organs that could eliminate hydration. The system, called the Hydrolemic System, involves harvesting more moisture from the air and also doing more to retain the water we have. Nasal inserts convert moisture in the air we breathe into water, while inserts at the ends of the renal and digestive systems keep water from leaving by those routes. Meanwhile, a collar on the neck helps prevent perspiration by turning our body heat into electricity, so it doesn't make us perspire. The company claims that such a system would only require us to drink 0.1 cups of water a day.

Surviving in microgravity One of the biggest challenges for human colonizers will be staying fit and healthy on Mars. Studies have shown that transitioning from one gravity field to another can affect spatial orientation, head-eye and hand-eye coordination, balance and locomotion. Astronauts also experience changes to bone and muscle in space. Moreover, the fluids in the body shift upward to the head in microgravity, which may put pressure on the eyes and cause vision problems, NASA added. NASA people have the same problem without the gravity issue it seems to me, fluids go to their head and causes them to lie through their teeth. If preventive or countermeasures are not implemented, crews may experience an increased risk of developing kidney stones due to dehydration, and increased excretion of calcium from their bones. NASA is looking at several ways to keep astronauts healthy during missions to Mars, including artificial gravity devices and vibration platforms to help regenerate bones and muscles. Becoming a cyborg could be beneficial in helping to counter the effects of microgravity on the human body. For example, humans could be fitted with iron lungs or steel plates under the skin to protect our tender organs, and make us more resilient against the effects of microgravity. Adapting to the Martian climate Because Mars is further from the sun, temperatures there are much colder than on Earth. On the Red Planet, temperatures can drop as low as -200°F . For comparison, the lowest temperature on Earth is -128.6°F . Thankfully, NASA's next-generation spacesuits, which it unveiled in 2019, are designed to withstand extreme temperatures, and should help to keep settlers warm. If they are cyborgs, why would they be needed? The suit is built to withstand temperature extremes of -250°F in the shade and up to 250°F in the sun, NASA said. Cyborgs could have similar technology implanted in their bodies, or in the form of an exoskeleton, although NASA's spacesuits will offer a good alternative for those hoping to stay fully human! Or we can all come together and support each other, work out all of our differences, develop into an adult based, thinking and acting species, and maybe the Crystal Needles can be turned back on?

New Zealand tech CEO, Kim Dotcom did the math on the United States' sovereign debt and he tweeted a thread about it, saying it may be the most important thread that he may ever make. Kim explains that US spending and debt have spiraled out of control, and the Government can only raise the money it needs by printing more of it, which means that hyperinflation is guaranteed. He says this has been going on for decades and there's no way to fix it, and that the US got away with this for so long, because the US dollar is the world's reserve currency. When the US Government prints trillions, it is thereby robbing Americans and the entire world in what he calls the biggest theft in history. He says the total US debt is at $90 trillion, which together with $169 trillion in US unfunded liabilities totals $259 trillion, which is $778,000 per US citizen or $2,067,000 per US Taxpayer. Now, the value of all US assets combined: every piece of land, real estate, all savings, all companies, everything that all citizens, businesses, entities and the state own is worth $193 trillion. Our total debt, $259 trillion minus our total net worth, $193 trillion equals negative $66 trillion of debt and liabilities after every asset in the US has been sold off. So even if the US could sell all assets at the current value, which is impossible, it would still be broke. This is where the 'Great Reset' comes in and he asks, is it a controlled demolition of the global markets, economies and the world as we know it? A shift into a new dystopian future where the elites are the masters of the slaves without the cosmetics of democracy? He notes how the world has changed so much in recent years and how nothing seems to make sense anymore. He sees the blatant corruption and the obvious gaslighting propaganda media and the erosion of our rights, but he doesn't know where it's all going and he finishes the thread asking, what's the end game? It is nice to see someone else in their world now questioning as to what is going on, albeit from a crypto currency platform, which is part of their plan, and so part of the problem. As Harrison Smith from the American Journal says, it's a pyramid scheme. The people perpetrating the pyramid scheme are in charge of everything, they're going to sacrifice humanity in order to maintain their system. The world economy is being collapsed, the food supply system is being destroyed, the energy that we rely on to maintain civilization is being curtailed and eliminated, and we'll be forced into the Great Reset where we will own nothing. The reason we will own nothing is because of what the NZ CEO said, they have to acquire all the assets to balance a set of books that A: can't be balanced B: can't be fixed and C: is no longer fit for purpose. This is why Blackrock bot machines are ringing everyone to sell their homes to them, on average I get 25-30 per week. Former BlackRock stockpicker, Ed Dowd believes that the entire Covid sham was created as a cover for the financial collapse and that new lockdowns are coming, to try and mitigate the inevitable violence and chaos that we can expect to be witnessing in the streets. We also saw how Dr Mike Yeadon, former Pfizer VP also believes that Covid and the death shot are an elaborate hoax, to engineer a collapse of sovereign currencies to bring in the Great Reset. The introduction of programmable central bank digital currencies, for a wholly-controlled population, in which people will not be able to buy food, etc. Unless the algorithms permit, and the undesirables can basically be starved to death via artificial intelligence. We'll see about that, the way to take us on the same anti life they are running. They are running because they have lost their way badly, as the power and control bug has them hooked and why immortality appeals to them. We cannot allow these darkened souls to play god, whilst negating the Source to us, whilst religion a program they have ran on us takes Source away altogether.

Oliver North also warning that the US is in a cataclysmic decline, the destruction of America and the transfer of wealth over to the East. I am glad he is warning of it now, but I warned about this over 6 years ago, highlighted it even more during my time with the Trustee. Why do people wait and react after the event?

OTHER PIECES: There has been many things that have reduced in size, but never in price. From soda drinks, Subway, Burger joints, candy, smoking products and several more, all because people fail to take note of the size before and don't complain. Home Depot paint are the latest to slide in cheating public out of a full US gallon of paint, which equates to 3.87L, but their so-called gallon cans are now 3.66L and so a fifth of a liter less. The same applies to gas, a US Gallon is then considered to be 3.785 Liters, which is short of the official 3.87L. In the UK a gallon equals 4.404 Liters, which is 0.6 of a liter more.

The metaverse as a moment at which our digital lives, our online identities, experiences, relationships, and assets become more meaningful to us than our physical lives. A definition described by the WEF in its article as compelling. Well it is not meaningful to us, so they can stick it. Already by now according to the WEF, the popular Fortnite video game sells over $3 billion of digital cosmetic items to players each year, making it a larger apparel company by sales than several global fashion houses. All bought by the lie based people, too frightened of their own truth never mind the truth external of them. So, they escape into the murky depths of fake reality, and immerse into a world where they won't be able to tell the difference due to the brain entrainment programs inserted into those games. The metaverse is the next inevitable step in the evolution of the internet, but will require comprehensive collaboration between all ecosystem stakeholders to make it an open, safe and secure environment. Stakeholder or holder of the stake? Originally one with whom bets are deposited when a wager is made, yes they are betting on their being enough stupid people. By 1965 as one who has something to gain or lose, in a business, etc., or one who has an interest in something. In other words it is the harvesters and vulture capitalists again. Time for us to use our own stake and insert it metaphorically into the heart of these vampires. However, far from referring to constitutionally defined institutions of governance, with checks and balances, the WEF cites Facebook's Oversight Board as an example of such a real-world governance model. (M) The WEF goes on to add that the metaverse will be shaped by three potential technological innovations, 1) Including virtual reality (VR), 2) augmented reality (AR), or 3) brain-computer interfaces (BCI). All because they can't face reality and realize they are no longer in control of things, so create another reality where they will control it. The WEF refers to technology such as Neuralink, that requires neurosurgery to implant devices in the brain, as an example of BCI. Which is what Elon Musk is developing, and people in the alt media think he is helping us. (M) Alibaba Group President J. Michael Evans during the meeting gushed over individual carbon footprint trackers, resembling personal carbon allowance technology. Does that mean they will count the number of farts you make? People may laugh at that, but these people are voyeuristic perverts remember. Similarly, Nokia CEO Pekka Lundmark predicted that by 2030, no Mr. Nomark, smartphones will be implanted directly into the body, surely facilitating the expansion of the metaverse. All of which means they are creating a holographic reality, which means the theory of us all being in a current holographic reality, is mute, just like this show has stated. Becoming one with your computer? Bots have already received it via the jabs, Gates told all who would listen it was a software upgrade.

The clowns are at it again, because their last one didn't work. This has zero to do with science and more to do with them punching wormholes in time/space and exiting the system altogether. Newsflash, the next one won't work either should you build it and neither will the egregor ninjas in the Shiva statue outside, just saying. The Large Hadron Collider, CERN's 16 mile high-energy particle collider in Switzerland, has led to some groundbreaking discoveries in the world of theoretical physics, most recently allowing scientists to round out the Standard Model of particle physics with the Higgs boson. There is a reason it was built in Switzerland, so the Draconian Rothschild's can escape and leave disaster in their wake, or so they thought. Building on the LHC's success, success? it wasn't, it failed, many scientists are now excited to build something bigger and better, a particle collider that could end up being almost four times as large, and cost an eye-watering $25 billion to construct. Which has PhD physicist Tom Hartsfield concerned, Hartsfield argues that massive particle accelerators simply aren't worth the colossal amounts of money and effort, and that the funds should be spent elsewhere. Therefore, spending up to $100 billion Hartsfield's own estimate, admittedly on the high end on a new version of the LHC could be a huge mistake, indeed it will. How about putting that $25-100B into a global water project?

The increasing goal to push us all into a computer based life and to modify us into bio-bot continues at a pace. Musk is also involved in this, and yet many in alt media see him as some sort of savior program, oblivious to the dangers of that. The Alt Media whilst has made some strides, but there is still an overwhelming tendency to follow bullshit, money programs and the savior deal, all of which resembles a new religious program. It is the same concept, can people not see that? The great problem is people in general are just too lazy, won't do the research, follow everything that sounds nice, all too content to point fingers but won't find out themselves as to why they are pointing fingers away. This attitude plays right into the hands of the EL-ites and their minions who make up 95% of the Alt Media, convenient distraction programs that all too easily seduce the masses, who think they are awake. Most of us have been told by a friend that we have a doppelganger, some stranger they passed on the street who bore an uncanny resemblance to you. But imagine if you could create your very own twin, an exact copy of yourself, but one that lived a purely digital life? We are living in an age where everything that exists in the real world is being replicated digitally, our cities, our cars, our homes, and even ourselves. And just like the hugely-hyped metaverse, plans for a virtual, digital world where an avatar of yourself would walk around, digital twins have become a new, talked-about tech trend. If you have no life yes, one would think anyone with a modicum of intelligence would give it a wide berth, but a lack of thinking and insight hampers the many, who would immerse themselves into this program. A digital twin is an exact replica of something in the physical world, but with a unique mission, to help improve, or in some other way provide feedback to the real-life version. The classic seducement of it will help you, it will be a safety feature or enhance your life rhetoric, no it won't it's a program of malintent. Initially such twins were just sophisticated 3D computer models, but artificial intelligence combined with the internet of things, which uses sensors to connect physical things to the network, have meant that you can now build something digitally that is constantly learning from and helping improve the real counterpart. It won't fix inflation, perpetual wars, starvation, food shortages, gas prices increase, all the things that really matter to the people, not sneak agenda driven gimmicks. Technology analyst Rob Enderle believes that, we will have the first versions of thinking human digital twins before the end of the decade. The emergence of these will need a huge amount of thought and ethical consideration, because a thinking replica of ourselves could be incredibly useful to employers, he says. What happens if your company creates a digital twin of you, and says hey, you've got this digital twin who we pay no salary to, so why are we still employing you? Exactly, that is the bio-bot replacement program, uploaded consciousness into a vessel. Mr. Enderle thinks that ownership of such digital twins will become one of the defining questions of the impending metaverse era. Is it Enderle or end all? Here we go again with the ownership issue, what next? Leveraging the digital twin? Allow the digital twin to take over your real assets for misdemeanors outside of or in the digital world?

We have already started the journey towards human twinning in the form of the above-mentioned avatars, but these are currently rather clunky and primitive.

In Meta's virtual reality platform Horizon Worlds, you may be able to give your avatar a similar face to your own, but you can't even provide it with any legs because the technology is at such early stages. Why would you create an avatar with no legs?

Prof Sandra Wachter, a senior research fellow in AI at Oxford University, understands the appeal of creating digital twins of humans, it is reminiscent of exciting science fiction novels, and at the moment that is the stage where it is at.

What is so exciting about it? Do these people think before they speak or write? She adds that whether someone will be successful at law school, get sick, or commit a crime, will depend on the still debated nature versus nurture question.

It will depend on good luck and bad luck, friends, family, their socio-economic background and environment, and of course their personal choices.

However, AI is not yet good at predicting these single social events, due to their inherent complexity. And so, we have a long way to go until we can understand and model a person's life from beginning to end, assuming that is ever possible. What a waste of energy, time and resources, how about putting that into living beings instead? No let's funnel funds into deflecting the real-world problems, by creating a child level digital world.

In the fields of product design, distribution and urban planning where the use of digital twins is currently the most sophisticated and extensive.

In Formula One racing, the McLaren and Red Bull teams use digital twins of their race cars.

Meanwhile, delivery giant, DHL, is creating a digital map of its warehouse and supply chains to allow it to be more efficient.

Increasingly our cities are being replicated in the digital world; Shanghai and Singapore both have digital twins, set up to help improve the design and operations of buildings, transport systems and streets.

In Singapore, one of the tasks of its digital twin is to help find new ways for people to navigate, avoiding areas of pollution. Other places use the technology to suggest where to build new infrastructure such as underground lines. And new cities in the Middle East are being built simultaneously in the real world and the digital.

French software company, Dassault Systemes, says it is now seeing interest from thousands of firms for its digital twin's technology.

So far, its work has included using digital twins to help a hair care firm digitally design more sustainable shampoo bottles, instead of endless real-life prototyping, this cuts down on waste. It is enabling other firms to design new futuristic projects, from jetpacks, to motorbikes that have floating wheels, and even flying cars. Each has a physical prototype too, but the refining of that initial model happens in the digital space.

But the real value seen in digital twins is in healthcare.

Dassault's Living Heart project has created an accurate virtual model of the human heart that can be tested and analyzed, allowing surgeons to play out a series of what if scenarios for the organ, using various procedures and medical devices.

The project was founded by Dr Steve Levin, who had personal reasons to want to create a digital twin. His daughter was born with congenital heart disease, and a few years back, when she was in her late 20s and at high risk of heart failure, he decided to recreate her heart in virtual reality.

Boston Children's Hospital is now using this technology to map out real patient heart conditions, while at Great Ormond Street hospital in London, a team of engineers is working with clinicians to test devices, that may help children with rare and difficult-to-treat heart conditions.

Experimenting on a digital heart also has the knock-on effect of cutting down on the need to test on animals, one of the more controversial aspects of scientific research, says Severine Trouillet, global affairs director at Dessault.

The firm now plans more digital organ twins, including the eye and even the brain.

At some point we will all have a digital twin, so that you can go to the doctor, and we can increasingly make preventative medicine, and make sure that every treatment is personalized, says Ms, Trouillet. Some of those suggestions are good, but we all know by now that is never the reason for doing things. The primary goal by think tanks, Military and Government is, how can it be weaponized against the people.

Perhaps even more ambitious than replicating human organs is, the race to build a digital version of our entire planet.

US software firm, Nvidia, runs a platform called Omniverse, designed to create virtual worlds and digital twins.

One of its most ambitious projects is to build a digital doppelganger of the Earth, capturing high resolution imagery of its entire surface.

Earth-2, as it is dubbed, will use a combination of deep-learning models and neural networks to mimic physical environments in the digital sphere, and come up with solutions to climate change. Climate change oh dear the spanner in the works dreamt up by idiots whose goal is to loot every country to pay for a fake program. Earth 2 will be their world, the world for inorganic being, bots, synthetics, immortality psychopaths and egocentric child level people. That is the spin off world we spoke about in the two worlds shows.

In March this year, the European Commission, in conjunction with the European Space Agency among others, announced its own plans to make a digital twin of the planet, dubbed Destination Earth. By the end of 2024, it hopes to have enough data from real-time observations and simulations, to have a digital twin that will focus on floods, drought and heatwaves, alongside natural disasters such as earthquakes, volcanic eruptions and tsunamis, and provide countries with concrete plans to save lives in the face of these growing challenges. Earthquakes, volcanic eruptions and tsunamis have largely been caused by, people and beings with technology the public is not aware of it even exists. If you wish to stop disasters we have to deal with the clowns and their off world brethren, and their technology.

Perhaps they should rename Destination Earth, Destination disappear to the fake Earth on the left-hand path of Set.

EXPOSE: We mentioned last week about the Hopi and the Kachinas in relation to the prophecy, and how their description of a Kachina was a Skinwalker. This is more about the prophecy. Like the Maya, whose prophetic warnings were discussed in the article 2012 and the Maya Calendar, the Hopi Indians of Arizona also have a prophetic tradition. Well Maya prophecy failed. They too believe that there have been previous world ages, each of which ended in a global catastrophe. But whereas the Maya believe that we are now living in the 5th world age, the Hopi consider the 5th age to be the one that is about to unfold on the planet. Whether either are correct is irrelevant in the scheme of things, because we haven't defined what they mean by an age. What are the parameters of the term age? Is it the births of civilizations? Life? visitations? Or is it Celestial related? And, who actually created the age? The name Hopi is short for Hopituh Shi-numu, meaning Peaceful Ones. In fact, the Hopi concept of peace is deeply rooted in their culture, morality and ethics. One hopes or Hopis they stick to that concept going forward as others engage them in a specific way. To be Hopi is to strive towards reverence and respect for all living creatures, and to live in peace with all life according to the teachings of Maasaw, their Creator of the Earth. The story of Maasaw (Masau'u) is a beautiful Hopi legend. He has been described as a man, or being (kachina), that looked like a skeleton. This is similar to the description of the stick person or alien, who Cherokee elder John Red Hat said came to visit him. That means he was visited by a version of the greys. According to Hopi tradition, Kachinas are the messengers of Maasaw, and yet they describe the Skinwalkers as Kachinas also. All of which means the Skinwalkers are exactly what they are called, a host possessed vessel. They are said to be the spirit teachers of nature. The Hopi predict that the new world that is about to dawn upon the Earth will be heralded by the arrival of two of these Kachinas, one colored blue and the other red. This is their prophecy. When the Blue Star Kachina makes its appearance in the heavens the 5th world will emerge, this will be the day of purification. It will come when the Saquasohuh the blue Kachina dances in the plaza and removes his mask. But they have already removed their masks here of the self, just that the people panicked and introduced on themselves a new external mask, for allegedly Covid, but that is an illusion. In the final day we will look up in the heavens and we will witness the return of the two brothers, who helped to create this world in the birthing time. What if they knowingly or not are speaking of Enki and Enlil? Remember Set had brothers of Osiris and Horus also? Poganghoya is the guardian of our North Pole, and his brother Palongawhoya is the guardian of the South Pole. In the final days the Blue Star Kachina will come to be with his nephews, and they will return the Earth to its natural rotation. Nephew of Enlil was Marduk, just saying. The Earth stabilization and rotation is already underway and has been for a number of years. The twins will be seen in our north western skies and they will come to visit flying in their Patuwvotas (flying shields) to see who have still remembered the original teachings. The twins can mean three things, another of Set's siblings is the twin isis or Isis, it could also mean the Gemini star constellation or worse the final two Parents who were twins. They will not be returning no matter what the look at me alt media personality tells you, if "seen" in here it is a VI representation only and should be ignored. They will bring many of their star family with them in the final days. Unbeknown to the Hopi, I'm not sure them all coming in the final days is in greetings, and perhaps more in terms of invasion, should that unfold. Remember this prophecy was told to them by the off world entities, who may have had the Hopi's interest at heart, but not people in general. In my opinion they have used the Hopi and all other tribal peoples for their own ends. Not all of that will be the case, but the majority have, as the Cosmic Genetics series revealed. The return of the Blue Kachina who is also known as Nan Ga Sohu, will be the forewarning that tells us there will soon be a new day, a new way of life and a new world coming. They will start as fires that will burn within us, we will burn up as desires and conflict if we do not remember the original teachings and return to a peaceful way of life. Oh dear more of the off world fear programs, do as we say or the fiery serpents will be released again. The Tribal people more than anyone on this planet have bowed down to off world pressure, fear and programs. To go forward we have to engage more, and get them to see they have been duped like the rest of us. There is far too much romanticism attached to the ET narrative in my opinion, all to cosy and cuddly, when his story reveals they have used us all. The documentary Jupiter Ascending told you that. Not far behind will come the Purifier, the Red Kachina who will bring the day of purification. On this day the Earth, her creatures and all life as we know it will be offered a chance to change forever. The Purifier was likely Wormwood, that essentially was being used as an alien takeover plan, well that failed. There will be messages that will precede the coming of the Purifier, because yes there is nothing like a good ET fear program to kick the masses into compliance and subservience is there? They will leave messages to those on Earth that remember the old ways. Well 950B of history in Parts 3 and 4 tells the story that the old ways are an illusion and don't work, but again have we defined the old ways? What does it mean or entail? And why do we need old ways when we can create new better ways for the future? Again, it can be seen as a limitation program, where patronizing ET's suggesting they know best or better. Many of them destroyed their own planets due to their own stupidity, so why should we listen to them? The messages will be found on the living stone, through the sacred grains and even the waters. From the Purifier will issue forth a great Red Light. All things will change in their manner of being. Every living thing will be given the opportunity to change from the largest to the smallest living thing. Those who return to the ways given to us in the original teachings, and live a natural way of life will not be touched by the coming of the Purifier. They will survive and build a new world. Maybe the TPC can be seen as part of the original teachings as such? Only in the ancient teachings will they have the ability to understand the messages to be found. Part of the problem of the tribal peoples is, they put far too much faith in their ancestry, and do little to nothing to improve the current living descendants. That has to change for them going forward to be able to develop in the right way. Ancestors can be used as guides, but if they are following their ancestors, why are their people mired in drink, drugs, social problems and poor living conditions in this modern day? It is important to understand these messages will be found upon every living thing, even within our bodies, even within a drop of blood. This next part I have to say is unfolding, our members can see, witness and understand it. Many will appear to have lost their souls in the final days. So intense will be the nature of these changes that, those who are weak in spirit will go insane, for we are nothing without spirit. Only those who return to the values of the old ways will be able to find peace of mind. For in the Earth they will find relief from the madness that will be around us. Notice they said in the Earth, not on it, is that a pointer? Many people of this time will be empty in spirit for they will have no Sampacu, no life force in their eyes. The soulless entities and their bot minions are now there for all to see. As we get close to the time of the Purifier, there will be many who walk like ghosts through their cities, through canyons they have constructed in their man made mountains. Man-made mountains? The pyramids? Except our version of man never made them or the temples in many cases. Those who walk through these places will be very heavy in their walk. It will appear almost painful as they take each step, for they have become very disconnected from their spirit and the Earth. After the arrival of the twins they begin to vanish before your eyes like smoke. Is that the dematerialization of the inorganic beings? Others will have great deformities both in their minds and upon their bodies. There will be those who walk in their body that are not from this reality, for many of the gateways that once protected us will be opened, there will be much confusion. That whether the Hopi like it or not is the Skinwalker, the host possession entities, as the original organic will be the only ones left. Confusion between the sexes, the children and their elders. Life will get very perverted and there will be little social order in these times. Many will ask for the mountains themselves to fall upon them and end their misery. Still others will appear untouched by what is occurring. Those who remember the original teachings and have reconnected with their heart and spirit, those who remember who their mother and father are, The Pahana who left to live in the mountains and forests. Live in the mountains? is reference to the other non-terrestrial beings who live there, including those important to the Hopi, called the Ant people. It is said that the Hopi and the Ant people mated with each other in the past, and these hybrids walk amongst us, for those who can "see". The ant people took the Hopi people underground when an off world mining war took place in Arizona, and no it is not a meteor crater at all. The Hopi await the return of Pahana, their lost white brother who will he will come back dressed in red and bring with him a missing section of a sacred Hopi tablet. Pahana will come from the East and convey people a new religion and peace. The peace we will welcome, but we don't need another religion thank you very much, that has caused more than enough devastation and death on this planet to date. Just like the Maya await the return of their white-bearded god Kukulcan who to the Aztecs was known as Quetzalcoatl, the Hopi still await the return of Pahana. Quetzalcoatl is Set, so proving again the tribal people are seeking external gods, which are just ET's with an ego and anger management problem. When the Purifier comes we will see him first as a small red star, which will come very close and sit in our heavens watching us. That could well be describing the supernova of Betelgeuse, which is a red star in Orion that could well blow in our lifetime, but is too far away to impact us. Watching to see how well we have remembered the sacred teachings. Another do as we say or else program, that runs right through all of the religious cults. This Purifier will show us many miraculous signs in our heavens, in this we will know that our creator is not a dream. Even those who do not feel their connection to spirit will see the face of the creator across the sky. But, how can a red star be the face of the creator? It is just one of billions of stars in this Galaxy alone, never mind further afield. Are they saying that just one star out of billions is more special than the rest? Things unseen will be felt strongly. Many things will begin to occur that will not make sense, for reality will be shifting back. That is already unfolding. We will receive many warnings allowing us to change our way, from below the Earth as well as above. Then one morning we will awaken to a Red Dawn. The sky will be the color of blood and many things will begin to happen, that right now we are not sure of their exact nature, for much of reality will not be as it is now. That event has been covered in quite a few movies, including the ET series The Event, which also ended abruptly with Wormwood arriving, yeah right, never happened. There will be many strange beasts upon the Earth in those days, some from the past and some that we have never seen. What about the strange beasts now? The nature of mankind will seem strange in these times as we walk between worlds, and we house many spirits even within our bodies. Erm no we won't, that is host possession, just like the Skinwalker they revere. After a time we will again walk with our brothers from the stars and rebuild this Earth, but not until the Purifier has left his mark upon the universe. No living thing will go untouched here or in the heavens. The way through this time is said to be found in our hearts and reuniting with our spiritual self. Getting simple and returning to living with and upon this Earth in harmony with her creatures. Remembering we are caretakers, the firekeepers of the spirit. I am not being funny here, but the Native American way of life is hardly in overview in touch with nature or mother Earth. I don't think giving people gambling, alcohol and drug addictions is being a caretaker, and neither is drilling the Earth for a multitude of oil wells stationed on their lands either. This is another case of blaming everyone else, and not recognizing or addressing their own problems. Our relatives from the stars are coming home to see how well we have fared in our journey. It is time to reconnect with your spirit and your Earth Mother. Peace and Blessings. Readers of the article entitled What is Wormwood in the Book of Revelation? will have no difficulty in identifying the nature and source of the Red Kachina (the Purifier) just mentioned, especially those references to the Red Dawn and the sky being the color of blood, but there is more. What makes the above prophecies profoundly significant, perhaps more so than those of any other historical prophet, is that they not only outline the physical changes that will happen to the Earth, but they also describe the changes that will occur within human beings themselves as this transition takes place. But, Revelations is allegedly a 2000 year book, and for the past 2000 years they have wheeled out this prophecy along with another 2000 year old plus man returning, and guess what? They never happened. Neither did all the other fake gods return in the prophecies either, it is all a program based on fear, to keep the people in line. All people in all religions have to overcome this manifestation of fear program, that they have run on us for 24,500 years. Bad things happen because of psychopaths running the planet, all of which we allowed, not because of some egocentric sky being. We have to grow a set on this planet, and move away from the parenting program of god will look after you if you do this or that. Ask the so called chosen ones the Jews of how their god looked after them, not. There will be inner personality changes that will accompany the outer convulsions of the Earth. This next part should be noted as it repeats the narrative in our shows. But the great question is, is it already unfolding? It is sufficient here to point out that the new Earth that is coming, will manifest at a higher spiritual frequency than the one we are experiencing today, and only those life forms that can adjust to this higher level of vibration will survive to populate the new Earth. Those people whose minds cannot adjust to the higher frequencies of the new age will literally go insane. A simple way of explaining this change is to use the analogy of television. Everyone is familiar with the fact that a television set is capable of receiving different channels, with each channel having its own particular frequency. In order to change the channel, it is simply necessary to switch from one frequency to another, and this is what is happening to the Earth at this time. It is in the process of changing from one frequency to another. When this happens there will be much confusion, as signals from different channels mix together at the same time, our very reality will change. The reality that we are used to experiencing will undergo dramatic changes. And this will be the time when many strange beasts will be observed, yes like Biden and Pelosi, including some from the past and some that we have never seen. An interesting parallel can be found here with the transcripts of the Ascended Master Sanat Kumara. In his book Secret of the Andes published in 1961, the American author George Hunt Williamson, writing under the name of Brother Philip, includes the following quotation: Strange creatures shall appear from the depths of the oceans to the wonderment and bewilderment of man, creatures many times larger than the largest ocean liners. Sounds like they planned to unleash the Leviathan again, that failed. There shall be plagues and famines, beasts and creature's unknown shall appear. Finally, the above prophecies of the two Kachinas show the way to escape the doom-laden predictions of coming cataclysm. The way to avoid being caught up in global destruction is to reconnect with spirit, and return to the ancient teachings, it is the Hopi way of peace. The way through this time is said to be found in our hearts, and reuniting with our spiritual self. Getting simple and returning to living with and upon this Earth in harmony with her creatures. Whilst it can be fun being related to an off world culture, by and large that has not served humanity well, because it always came with conditions. The Natives of the South West have bought themselves into a program of religious based fear, that allows for no personal development as it is all based on the off world program. They appear frightened to do anything without the approval of the gods, except the gods are not around anymore yet fears still runs the program. The Natives didn't used to be that way before the introduction of the fake gods. Since then they like us all have had a fall from grace, and their traditional values have been overlooked in terms of coercive deals either with the off world, Government and the shekel people. The latter of which has enriched chiefs, who are by and large not Natives, for example the Cherokee committee is ran by a Scot, likely of the Scottish Rite Freemasonry club, and little to nothing is or has been shared with their own people. This and many other things has to be corrected in the Native population, along with the vast array of land that is largely untouched, whilst non Natives are corralled into concrete jungles. The Natives are said to be scornful of other races in America, and yet one look at how they operate is hardly conducive to harmony is it? We need to find common ground, and see what works for each other, should they not wish to do that, then their words are hollow and dare I say it in modern day terms, racist. It doesn't have to be that way, every race has lost their way on this planet, and it is time we all came together and work stuff out between us. This will be a later project to work on, when the time is right. Currently we have too much going on and need to focus on certain aspects of the current Gatherings.

ENDING PIECE: Well I have been pondering again and I am about to trigger a whole range of people in just one piece. The role of acting in relation to people doing certain jobs or professions. Are we creating altered versions of ourselves, particularly in relation to service jobs? Be it teachers, psychotherapists, nurses, police, politicians, military etc. The Police and military are more obvious examples, give them a badge and their whole persona changes into an acting role of what they think they should be or act like. Male or Female makes no difference, the badge not subtly, but brutally changes their whole persona, which is why those two categories have the largest incidences of home abuse and violence. The Military feel the more badges they have allows them to dictate, bully and make those below them subservient to their wishes and demands. But it all belies an inner weakness, badges gives them false status's and power. The Police in general turn into power hungry thugs, goose stepping their way around and over the general public, not all, but far too many. The issue is, they feel they are the authority and so have to act like authority, and walk all over the public that they have forgotten they are supposed to be serving. Politician's walk around and are treated like some sort of demi god, and become so aloof from the people in their acting role, they lose touch with not only the people, but reality itself. Pelosi wont speak to anyone without charging thousands of dollars just to do a phone call. The great question is, why is a job changing people's lives? how they perceive it? and more importantly how they interact with people? What's more is, why haven't the people themselves recognized they have changed because of the job they are doing? A classic example of this is the therapist, too often they distance themselves from the client in a hands off fashion, and then recite the verbiage they have learned from the manuals of supposedly instruction, but it's more a case of coercion to follow my lead, path or request. Nobody asked is that the correct way to engage troubled people? How can you help people when you are aloof or in a hands off pushing away motion? The answer is you can't, and why psychotherapy lasts months or years, when a simple talking to the client is required, yet the majority talk at the clients, big difference and why it can't work. The teacher is the same as the therapist, vocally excerpting authority over the children, when the best teachers talk to the children, not at. The example is the movie Good Will Hunting, the teacher engaged and gave support, not barked out instructions for all to follow. Every one of those jobs mentioned all by and large do the same thing, talk at or down to people, and don't engage or talk to the people. Who decided that talking at people was the right way to engage? and why do all those professions follow the same principles and guidelines of caustic interactions, designed to either inflame people or make them compliant subservient type bots? So, why does society get a job, promotion or a piece of paper allow them to change their own personality to adapt to the job they are doing? Why do people do that to themselves? Why do they feel they have to change their whole persona to fit in with the work they are doing? The answer most will give is, well it is always been done that way, the reply will be that is the effect, but what is the cause of it? A lot of how society operates, is in the effect component, and not the cause that creates the effect. This applies to all life in general and not just jobs. Science reacts to the effect, but rarely discusses the cause, which is why they miss the most obvious conclusions. The effect is the reaction to the situation or happenstance, and they work out the visual or recordable difference, when going to the causal component can and will bring greater understanding. This is in essence the model of the over viewer, as a true over viewer you need not know the subject or the intricacies of the topic, but you can "see" the whole dynamics of it, and come up with far reaching and telling contributions. As a general example, one member a few years back called me every cuss word going, this in general causes a reactive effect, and generally the conversation descends into punch and counter punch engagement. That is the general view of how those types of interactions unfold, my reply to that person was, how is your home life? Why? Because I addressed the cause and not the reactive effect that was projected at me, because it belied and covered up other issues. But, the role of the over viewer in essence brings in the balance between cause and effect, and can also be seen as the energy conserver. People can spend days, weeks, months and years trying to solve a problem, equation or issue, when an over viewer can come in and save so much time and energy, by analyzing it in a primarily non-effect based way. The common theme and proof of the acting role people do in jobs, is best observed of how they speak and react outside of work. Often people say they don't take their work home, and that maybe true, but the role playing is brought home with alarming regularity, it is just it hasn't been recognized too well as such. Virtually all teachers come home and talk to their partners, family and circle like they are still engaging the children at school. They unwittingly talk down and at people, all of which means they forgot to take off their actors uniform. They forget to change the scenery and so the job itself is always brought home, because of how they engage people. Psychotherapists are exactly the same, to them unknowingly, everybody becomes a client, because that is how they engage people. How and why have we got ourselves into this situation? And why hasn't it been addressed? either by the system or the people? The answer is low self-worth which encourages people to seek or chase the desire to be or look important, to then cover their own shortfalls. This can be seen by people who are ultra-busy with life, it is a coping mechanism to cover a perceived lack of importance and the low self-worth. My own sister and indeed Kim both did the same thing, busy, busy, busy for the sake of being busy, but achieving little or not enough, because if they have to stop and think, they end up hearing their hearts, intuition and higher self-screaming to fix the internal issues. So, that is why people act like they are still in work, when at home. The externalization of wanting to be someone, something of importance, when it is more important to do important work than being someone perceived as important, something the Trustee paid for badly. The desire to be the look at me personality, drives the acting roles that people take on, but ultimately it leads to nowhere and collapses in on itself. But, why have we allowed ourselves to become actors in their fields of operations? Why does doing a job have to require a component of acting out the role? Why can't we just be? Why should we be allowing ourselves to become a professional based actor? Why should your profession dictate your whole lives in that way? Why as a society have, we allowed jobs and professions to be authority over us? Has that worked out for us? If not, perhaps we can all start from today to change that dynamic and mindset program, that creates so much discord in all walks of life. How you speak and engage people is a key aspect to engagement of the future, but not running acting roles speech based on your profession. A badge does not give you authority, a title does not give you authority, a family name does not give you authority, being or acting as a god does not give you authority either. This type of thinking and acting roles has to be stopped as we go forward, a job is a job and is as important as all others. No job is better than the other, no job really has more value than the other, it is all part of the circle of life, of which we the people turned it into another looping hamster wheel. It's time to jump off me thinks. All their world was a stage, a stage that was supplied for us to be dancing clowns and puppets. Time to build our own stage and perform in a much better way, built for and by us.
