The book update for you; Volume 3 has received its first edit and the first chapter has received its second edit as well. Volume 2 has been prepared for indexing and book formatting, and is expected to be ready for pre-Christmas release. There is one more part 8C still to finalize on my end for Volume 2. The Volume 1 translations are progressing.

Update for American/Canadian Women's Group for September

The group had a discussion about; what is forgiveness and who is the one who forgives?

We had difference approaches to how and who to forgive, but did agree it was important to forgive and love ourselves. The consequences of not forgiving ourselves could lead to guilt, shame and low self-worth.

We also discussed Integrating our Shadow. We dug a little deeper in to understanding what that meant to us. We are fractal beings and by looking into the dark uncomfortable parts of ourselves, we could acknowledge, accept and feel those parts, let them flow through and let them go. It is important to have the awareness when this happens and integrate it, instead of ignoring or pushing it away. In doing our own shadow work, we can then put the deeper wounds of society into the collective to integrate.

Law CG Group Update: We facilitated the Intro Series Part 6: Money in September. Preparing for Intro Series Part 7: Logic, Argument and Rhetoric on October 23. Helped edit and prepare solutions for the Blueprint shows and publication.

Schooling curriculum, research and database update for September.

We created a curriculum for the Solutions document.

First agenda for the blueprint is: Parents and Teachers. Learning what is the shadow? child and ancestral healing. What are we consenting too? What are the 5 hooks and the hidden 6th the ego? Spiritual hygiene, meditation, clearing, centering, grounding and shielding. What we put into our bodies. Self-worth leading to self-empowerment. Mindfulness-how to navigate through parenting and teaching. Emotional intelligence and communication. Gathering articles and video research to make into our own booklet for parents and teachers with TPC values. Asking the questions who, what, when, where, how and why. Focus on breaking it all down and understanding the material for new members.

TPC Positive Action Update: Not much to report this month as everyone in the group has been focused on writing solutions for our Blueprint.

PA is doing research for our next booklet, a larger project this time. Anyone outside of America who would like to participate, is welcome to join us as this project is TPC-focused and not specific to America. This is the response we got from our PRA request for bonds in California. This is in response to your Public Records Act Request dated July 18, 2022, requesting records related to the following:

Member: Dr. George J. McKenna III Trustee District 1

Member: Mónica Garcia Trustee District 2

Member: Scott Schmerelson Trustee District 3

Vice President: Nick Melvoin Trustee District 4

Member: Jackie Goldberg Trustee District 5

President: Kelly Gonez Trustee District 6

Tanya Ortiz Franklin Trustee District 7

NEWS: This is an interesting piece in terms of who initiated it, and also reveals a bigger problem. A gay rights organization opposed to pedophilia was deplatformed by PayPal, only to discover on Thursday that pro-pedophile organization called Prostasia, continues to be on good business terms with the financial technology company.

Gays Against Groomers, an organization comprised entirely of gay, lesbian, bisexual and even transgender people, was launched in 2022 and has had meteoric success in attracting followers to their cause, exposing the harms done to children by some radicals hiding behind the LGBTQ banner. Correct it is a banner to hide behind, but they also need to understand this letter based acronym is a program against them and us all. That is designed as a clever marketing ploy for depopulation and also a divide and conquer program. Gays Against Groomers wrote early on Tuesday that PayPal and its subsidiary Venmo had dropped them for violating their user agreement. So, lets analyze this shall we, the gays and lesbians are only useful to them when they are being used as part of an agenda against the heterosexuals, is what the system is saying. An opportunity to show public opinion which has a mistrust of the same people for being labeled as pedos themselves, particularly the gay men. It is an often used stigma of gay men that they are into very young boys, whilst that maybe true for some, it doesn't and should not mean the all. Yet again an example of the broad sweep tactic, that only brings division. Personally I think it is refreshing they are doing something about it, as too many will not face up to this deep seated problem. Yet the fake woke system now deems them as trouble and worth banning? Double standards or what? Most people will ask why is there pedophilia on the internet at all, because those that run the internet like Microsoft, Google, Palo Alto and many other platforms of that ilk, are the very ones involved in the cover up of it. All of which means they are also a part of it. Oh for the day we have a money transfer platform that doesn't involve the weak and pathetic system players.

Italy has a new premier, a female called Giorgia Meloni, but the 5 eyes crew based media are not too happy it seems. The great question is: when are they ever happy, unless committing atrocities against we the people? The CIA-run MSM are doing their utmost to frame a nationalist politician that has been fearlessly calling out their bioterrorism and central bankster One World Government agendas, labeling her as a fascist. CNN: Equated Meloni to Mussolini. The Guardian: The Brothers of Italy leader denies she is a fascist but clings to the Mussolini-era slogan God, homeland, family. Why if you are religious do those three words generate a negative spin? According to the Guardian, Meloni's moral and economic inspiration is Viktor Orbán, the man who in recent years has destroyed the opposition in Hungary and achieved legitimacy by weaponizing popular consensus. He has provided an ephemeral sense of security, but Hungarians have paid for it dearly in the form of economic instability and, above all, the loss of their rights. Not according to Hungarians it seems. It so happens that Orbán and Brazil's Bolsonaro are some of the most beloved politicians on the planet today, precisely because they are vehemently against the UN, WEF, BigPharma, BIS, IMF, WHO, NATO and all of the other Cult assets attempting to foist their 4th Industrial Revolution hell on earth. The great irony here is that the One World Government is the transhumanist continuation and amplification of Mussolini, Hitler, the Bolsheviks and Mao into a singular ultra-synthesized techno based communist/Zionist global takeover. Until enough people can appreciate that we do not require leaders, but, rather, minimal governments upholding only the most basic natural laws, politicians like Giorgia Meloni are a kind of antidote and direct danger to the anti-humanist Great Reset agenda. Is she a choice for and by the people? I would say no, but it has clearly rattled some in the 5 eyes and Jewish EL-ite media. Upon saying that of course, this could be an agency ruse, install pretty female, make her out to look bad and get the alt media to support her.

SS Commandant Jacinda Ardern went all Himmler on online people, with staggeringly ironic and copied rhetoric. Yet again using agency fed tactics of accuse others of doing what they are doing. This is a classic line, that should be in line for another of their awards they all love to give each other, as best joke of the year. Ardern suggested that online speech is a weapon often used by those with evil intent. (M) What's the matter Jack? The people not listening to your mainstream pro pagan da anymore? The people are thinking for themselves and you can't handle it? What child level rhetoric that is. The weapons may be different but the goals of those who perpetuate them is often the same. Indeed, they are, WEF, NATO, Black Sun, Rothschild's, Jewish EL-ites all of them psychopaths. To cause chaos and reduce the ability of others to defend themselves. Yes, Order out of chaos is again your realm, this is absolutely hilarious. To disband communities. To collapse the collective strength of countries who work together, she claimed. Oh dear, New Zealand can't even agree a decent and civilized border crossing with its neighbor Australia. Countries working together, no Jack, only 5 Eyes. The rest of this is not speaking to the people, but as a representative of WEF and the clowns. But we have an opportunity here, to ensure that these particular weapons of war do not become an established part of warfare. Essentially, she just declared war on her own people. In these times, I am acutely aware of how easy it is to feel disheartened, we are facing many battles on many fronts, she said. Yes, you are and the people are rising. But there is cause for optimism, because for every new weapon we face, there is a new tool to overcome it. That tool is Fascist Zionism. For every attempt to push the world into chaos, is a collective conviction to bring us back to order. She missed the in that line but it was clear what she was stating, Order out of Chaos is Freemasonic, bring us back to THE Order is what she meant. We have the means; we just need the collective will. That last line reveals they are struggling with the infighting, they are not a collective anymore. What this proves is, they can't handle the truth and they are desperately trying to put a band aid over the crumbling dam of truth. 24/7 of news media coverage, 365 days a year listening to politicians and elected officials, all talking shit, all talking lies, all talking division and all only interested in putting the public in fear, confusion and making them stupid. The people have had enough and they have finally began to awaken, and they can't handle it. Mr. Ardern, the pen-is not mightier than the sword. Link this pity appeal based speech to the ending piece tonight, and a much bigger picture emerges.

Iran has been rocked by protests over the past week following the death of a 22-year-old woman in police custody, who was detained after allegedly not wearing a hijab properly. The country's morality police, which is responsible for enforcing what is deemed proper religious observance in public, arrested Mahsa Amini earlier this month for violating the state dress code. She collapsed the day she was arrested, and died a few days later from what Iranian authorities have said was a heart attack. But many inside Iran and throughout the world, including the United States, have cast doubt on the government's claims, and hundreds of women have taken to the streets to burn their hijabs in protest of the country's policies. A hijab is a head covering that some Muslim women wear, covering their heads, necks and ears but leaving their faces visible. Iranian officials are attempting to get the largest protests in years under control, using live ammunition, tear gas and pellet guns. Authorities have reportedly confirmed at least 17 deaths, while others have made higher estimates as thousands of Iranians in cities nationwide protest the government's actions. The leader of the police announced in 2017, while the more moderate President Hassan Rouhani was in power, that arrests for dress code violations would no longer occur, but the police force has cracked down this year under President Ebrahim Raisi, who is considered a hard-liner. A video filmed in the Iranian city of Kerman shows a large group of protesters gathered in public as a woman not wearing a hijab cuts her hair and raises her fist in the air. Protests have broken out in Iran a few times over the past several years. Demonstrators marched against high fuel prices in 2019 and water and electricity shortages last year. I noticed the United States chipped in, not to miss an opportunity to re-enforce Israeli policies. This show has defended Iran many times, but I will not defend the second class women and dress codes enforced there. It is demeaning, antiquated and barbaric and not the remit of a civilized society. One suspects this incident in and of itself though has been blown out of all proportions and organized protestors have been moved in to cause disruption. That was written last week, yesterday a report came in that the Iranian have arrested 7 foreigners involved in the orchestration of the demonstrations, a few guesses to whom they were working for.

About 20 members of a Jewish sect held at a facility in Mexico after a police raid on their jungle base have fled.

Footage showed men, women, and children streaming out of the site in Huixtla, in the west, on Wednesday night.

They had been there since the raid last Friday when two members were arrested on suspicion of human trafficking and serious sexual offences.

The sect, Lev Tahor, is known for extremist practices and imposing a strict regime on its followers.

It advocates child marriage, inflicts harsh punishments even for minor transgressions, and requires women and girls as young as three years old to completely cover up with robes.

Local media said members of the group had been protesting against their detention since their arrival, including rioting and assaulting personnel.

The detainees, dressed in gold, grey and white robes, forced their way past two guards at a gate as one of their members holds it open.

One of the guards trying to hold them back falls down and the group climb over him as they make their escape. A youth is seen turning and kicking the guard as he lies on the ground. That makes me suspicious for a start, as to whether there is something more to this.

Their compound, 11 miles (17.5km) north of Tapachula in Chiapas state, was raided by an elite police unit after a months-long investigation and surveillance operation, involving Mexican and Guatemalan authorities and a private four-man team from Israel including former Mossad and domestic intelligence agents.

Twenty-six members were found at the site, among them Israelis with dual citizenships including Canada, the US and Guatemala, Israel's foreign ministry said. If they were detained how were they able to get out? Why is Mossad involved? Yet again the Jewish people used as pawns it appears to me, although quite what they are doing there does raise concerns.

Fun and games in the Dutch Parliament last week, as the Finance minister Sigrid Kaag branded Democratic leader Thierry Baudet, a threat to Dutch democracy after his claims that she attended a college for spies disrupted the opening day of the budget debate. Oops, guess what happened next? Kaag led a walkout by the entire cabinet after Baudet began his contribution with a tirade about St Antony's College in Oxford, where Kaag obtained a master's degree in international relations in the 1980s. Ya see they cannot handle a bit of truth and walk out like children, beyond pathetic. These are the people the Dutch public are entrusting to look after their country, can you all not see yet, these people are an embarrassment? As Baudet began describing the college as a training college for the western secret services and globalist elites, Kaag rose from her seat and left, quickly followed by the rest of the ministerial team, including prime minister Mark Rutte. So, Rutte did a runner just like Trudeau then. It's not just about tonight and it's not just about me, Kaag said after the first day of the debate concluded in the early hours, here comes the official spin and they just happened to mention Russia again. The wider story is about radicalization. These are the voices of the extreme right. She said Baudet's comments were consistent with a pattern of half-truths, framing and in this case, obviously, peddling a half-baked story on behalf of a dictator, alluding to Baudet's support for Russian president Vladimir Putin. Half-baked story? Half-truths? That implicated her right there within her own speech. Because half-baked and half-truths means that there was elements in the speech that was correct. Baudet was expelled from the chamber on Monday evening by parliamentary chair Vera Bergkamp after he pressed ahead with his speech, ignoring Bergkamp's demands to return to the subject of the debate. Rutte said: There are limits and backed his colleagues' decision to leave the debating chamber, an unprecedented move which forced Bergkamp to suspend the debate, as at least one minister has to be present. Getting up and leaving the room was our way of showing what we thought, Rutte said. No, it showed how embarrassing you are, that you can only accept debate with pre-prepared scripts and will not answer the allegations or claims made. All of which reveals Mr. Baudet told too much truth.

Here is some encouraging news about the rampant expansion of the fake state known as Israel.

The European Union called on Israel to halt West Bank settlements and to preserve the status quo on the Temple Mount, after it held the first EU-Israel Association Council meeting in a decade designed to improve ties. The EU calls on Israel to halt continued settlement expansion, which has reached record highs in the past years, evictions, demolitions and forced transfers, the EU stated. It specifically asked Israel not to move forward with construction in the unbuilt E1 neighborhood of the Ma'aleh Adumim settlement, and to refrain from evicting Palestinians from illegal herding villages in the Masafer Yatta region of the South Hebron Hills. With respect to the Temple Mount, known to Muslims as al-Haram al-Sharif, the EU voiced its support for the status quo arrangement, in which members of all faiths can visit the site, but only Muslims can pray there. The EU recalls and makes a strong call for upholding the status quo put in place in 1967 for the Temple Mount/Haram al-Sharif, and underscores the necessity to respect the status quo also for the Christian holy sites, which are under increasing pressure, it stated. Or we can grow up and worship in the same space, eventually leading to an even more painful realization and understanding, that it was all fake. The council had met annually since its inception in 2000, but ties were strained under former prime minister Benjamin Netanyahu's leadership and the meetings were suspended after 2012. The resumption of the annual gathering is seen as a diplomatic coup for Prime Minister Yair Lapid who entered office only in July. In the document, it reaffirmed its commitment to a two-state resolution based on the pre-1967 lines, with east Jerusalem as the future capital of a Palestinian state. It also confirmed its support of the 2016 UN Security Council Resolution 2334, which condemned Israeli settlement activity and called for its withdrawal to the pre-1967 lines. Sounds very positive and not before time this was addressed. One suspects there is elements of faction fighting involvement within it, but that also brings in part disclosure, and also heightened awareness to the public. In my opinion it should go back to the boundary pre 1947 not 1967.

MEDICAL RELATED: It appears that certain sexual lifestyle choices comes with increased risk of disease, as this piece reveals. Research has shown that, the following are some of the most common health concerns faced by lesbian and bisexual women. Lesbian and bisexual women have a greater risk of developing breast cancer than heterosexual women, but they are less likely to obtain regular cancer screenings, like mammograms, which are used to diagnose the condition in its early stages. This is very problematic, because early detection is key to the treatment of the disease and increases the woman's chances of remission. On average, lesbian and bisexual women drink more than heterosexual women, and have a higher occurrence of alcohol-related problems, like alcoholism and alcohol abuse. Research has also discovered higher rates of smoking, cocaine and marijuana use among lesbian and bisexual women than heterosexual women. The use and abuse of these substances is linked to multiple forms of cancer and conditions of the heart and lungs, which are the top three causes of death among women.

Like some of the other health concerns common among lesbian and bisexual women, rates of drug use may be tied to stress resulting from discrimination, homophobia and/or sexism. Lesbian and bisexual women also suffer from higher rates of obesity than heterosexual women. Obesity which is linked to other conditions, like heart disease and cancer, which are among the leading causes of death for women.

Regular activity and a healthy diet can lower a person's chances of obesity, but women should always talk with their health care providers, before jumping into an exercise routine or making extreme changes to their diet. Because of heteronormativity which is the notion that heterosexuality is the norm, some health care providers may assume lesbian and bisexual women are heterosexual when discussing their sexual health. There is always some finger pointing away excuse, I remember a time when doctors knew all their patients and it wasn't an issue. Although in my opinion lesbianism does carry a certain look in many cases, particularly the cutting of the hair very short. It is not always the case, but does apply frequently. It may also be assumed that a woman in a current same-sex relationship has never or will never have sex with a man. Because of these and other stereotypes, it is important that providers not make assumptions about their patients' identities and behaviors, and that lesbian and bisexual women be open and honest with their providers about their identity. That applies whether their provider asks them or not, so they receive the adequate, comprehensive care they need. This is especially essential when discussing sexual behavior, practices and partners.

For health care providers not as knowledgeable about LGBT health, lesbian and bisexual women's health concerns may go under the radar, due to the perception that women in same-sex relationships have lower cases of sexually transmitted infections. But lesbian and bisexual women's sexual health encompasses a number of issues, and these women deserve and need the same level of education and screenings around sexual health as heterosexual women.

Here are some of the tests and ways women can improve their health when engaged in same sex relationships.

Pap Tests:

Lesbian and bisexual women have an increased risk of developing certain gynecologic cancers, but at the same time, they are less likely to receive regular gynecological health care, including pelvic exams and Pap tests. It is important for lesbian and bisexual women to obtain these exams and procedures on a regular basis, because they are used to diagnose cancers and other gynecological conditions early, when they have the highest treatment success rates.

HPV:

HPV has the potential to develop into cervical, vulvar, vaginal, anal or oral cancer. And while HPV is more common among women who have sex with men, a majority of women who identify as lesbian that have had previous sexual relationships with men, are still able to spread HPV by same-sex, skin-on-skin contact. As previously stated, the false idea that same-sex female relationships cannot spread STIs, linked with the fact that lesbian and bisexual women are less likely to receive regularly gynecological screenings, means HPV may go undiagnosed in lesbian and bisexual women and develop into a more life-threatening condition.

Contraception: While this may be surprising to some, lesbian and bisexual women have higher rates of teen pregnancy than heterosexual women. Women who identify as lesbian or bisexual may also still have sex with men and should be aware of the types of contraception available to them.

Pregnancy and Fertility:

Many lesbian and bisexual women in same-sex relationships aspire to have children. It's important for them to find a provider or center, that understands their specific needs and offers services in a caring and compassionate environment for their family. Today, there are many options available for women in same-sex couples to get pregnant, including:

Donor insemination through intrauterine insemination, which is donor sperm are introduced to the uterus using a small tube.

In vitro fertilization, in which an egg is fertilized outside of the body using donor sperm then implanted in the woman's uterus.

Egg donation, which is where one partner may donate her egg while the other partner carries the child.

Embryo donation, which is a fertilized embryo may be donated to the couple. The current sexual lifestyle choices of non-heterosexuals appear to come with a cost to your overall well-being, based on this piece anyway. With society and its propensity for wanting to fit in at all costs, homosexuality has almost become an en vogue item these days. With the increased reports of children backed by irresponsible parents all wanting to change sex, it has to be seen in some way as a fad or the new fashion item, bit like getting a tattoo was 20 years ago. Something that many who got tattoos regret at a later date, but that is the problem of peer pressure, and many at a vulnerable age fall for that program all designed by marketeers. This type of knowledge should be taught at school, and so children have all the knowledge and can make an informed choice with their lives. No one should tell them what they can and can't do in their adult lives, something the religious cult often does, but provide them with all the best knowledge that is available at the time, not give them divisive and program based agendas.

Here is a report that will be music to the ears of all coffee drinkers, time to get your memes going on the chat. A new study has shown that drinking two to three cups of coffee a day could help you live longer. The study found that compared to people avoiding coffee, it was also associated with a lower risk of cardiovascular disease. The findings applied to ground, instant and decaffeinated varieties of the drink, and researchers say they suggest coffee consumption should be considered part of a healthy lifestyle. According to the study, the greatest risk reduction was seen with two to three cups per day. Compared with no coffee drinking, this was associated with a 14%, 27% and 11% lower likelihood of death for decaffeinated, ground and instant preparations, respectively. Study author Professor Peter Kistler of the Baker Heart and Diabetes Research Institute, Australia, said: In this large observational study, ground, instant and decaffeinated coffee were associated with equivalent reductions in the incidence of cardiovascular disease and death from cardiovascular disease or any cause. The results suggest that mild to moderate intake of ground, instant and decaffeinated coffee should be considered part of a healthy lifestyle. The study examined the links between types of coffee and heart rhythms, cardiovascular disease and death using data from the UK Biobank study, which recruited adults between 40 and 69 years of age. Cardiovascular disease was made up of coronary heart disease, congestive heart failure and ischaemic stroke. Prof Kistler said: Caffeine is the most well-known constituent in coffee, but the beverage contains more than 100 biologically active components. It is likely that the non-caffeinated compounds were responsible for the positive relationships observed between coffee drinking, cardiovascular disease and survival. Our findings indicate that drinking modest amounts of coffee of all types should not be discouraged, but can be enjoyed as a heart healthy behavior. The study included 449,563 people who completed a questionnaire asking, how many cups of coffee they drank each day and whether they usually drank instant, ground or decaffeinated coffee. They were then split into six daily intake categories, consisting of none, less than one, one, two to three, four to five and more than five cups per day. The usual coffee type was instant in 198,062 (44.1%), ground in 82,575 (18.4%) and decaffeinated in 68,416 (15.2%). There were 100,510 non-coffee drinkers included in the study. Coffee drinkers were compared with non-drinkers for the incidence of arrhythmias (irregular heart beat), cardiovascular disease and death. Researchers found that 27,809 (6.2%) people died during a follow-up period of 12.5 years. All types of coffee were linked with a reduction in death from any cause. The research suggests that cardiovascular disease was diagnosed in 43,173 (9.6%) people during the follow-up. While all coffee types were associated with a reduction in cardiovascular disease, the lowest risk was observed with two to three cups a day. Compared with abstinence from coffee, it was associated with a 6%, 20% and 9% reduced likelihood of cardiovascular disease for decaffeinated, ground and instant coffee respectively. An arrhythmia was diagnosed in 30,100 (6.7%) people. For this condition ground and instant coffee, but not decaffeinated, was associated with a reduction in arrhythmias including atrial fibrillation - a condition that causes an irregular and often fast heartbeat. Compared with non-coffee drinkers, the lowest risks were observed with four to five cups a day for ground coffee and two to three cups a day for instant coffee, with 17% and 12% reduced risks respectively. The findings are published in the European Journal of Preventive Cardiology. I guess that report proves the medical experts wrong again, the next question is; can we really trust their expertise on anything? Given they have got so much wrong with our health. Smoking proven to prevent illness and disease, and now coffee also? Fits in nicely with my lifestyle then.

WARNINGS, DIVISION & AGENDAS: With all the talk of climate change and the world is getting hotter, there is a possible interesting connection between that and this narrative put out by scientists. That bears some pondering on. When facing rising temperatures, ant colonies collectively evacuate the nest when the ground becomes too warm, almost as if the colony of ants has a greater, collective mind or neural network. A new peer-reviewed study suggests that indeed, ants as a group behave similarly to networks of neurons in a brain. The study examines how ant colonies integrate information about the external environment with internal state parameters to produce adaptive, system-level responses. Rockefeller's Daniel Kronauer and postdoctoral associate Asaf Gal developed a new experimental setup to analyze decision-making in ant colonies. As reported in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, the researchers found that when a colony evacuates due to rising temperatures, its decision is a function of both the magnitude of the heat increase and the size of the colony itself, with larger colonies evacuating the nest at higher temperatures. The study suggests that ants combine sensory information with the parameters of their group to arrive at a group response, a process similar to neural computations that translate to decisions. We pioneered an approach to understand the ant colony as a cognitive-like system that perceives inputs and then translates them into behavioral outputs, says Kronauer. This is one of the first steps toward really understanding how insect societies engage in collective computation. So, ants don't like the hotter temperatures, and why they stay underground per se. The collective hivemind of ants has long been documented, all of which suggests genetic engineering, now where have we heard that before?

San Francisco's homeless are suing the City by the Bay, demanding that it stop rounding them up like criminals and invest in affordable housing instead. More than 57% of the city's homeless is unsheltered, according to advocacy group Coalition on Homelessness, which filed the lawsuit along with seven homeless individuals. San Francisco has failed to provide enough temporary shelters, the group said when announcing the action. San Francisco has close to 8,000 homeless people, according to the city's website. The City's decades-long failure to adequately invest in affordable housing and shelter, has left many thousands of its residents unhoused, forcing them to use tents and vehicles as shelter, said the lawsuit filed in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California. The advocacy group accused San Francisco's Mayor London Breed, what a clown based name that is? The police and other authorities of acting to criminalize homelessness through an array of brutal policing practices, that violate the constitutional rights of unhoused San Franciscans. As a society collective, this is shameful of how the people do not support those who fall on hard times. What happens if it happens to us all one day? Time to demand our tax dollars in each state, provides a designated budget to accommodate people in sheltered homes, not fund conglomerates and the rich only.

The awful pro pagan da of agendas in school, based on EL-ites views of the world, not the people's, raises its ugly head again. The term K-12 for non-American's means ages 5/6 through to 17. A Syracuse University professor is defending the inclusion of a sexually explicit book in the nation's K-12 schools, saying she doesn't see what is so scandalous about it. Let's see if we the people decide whether it is scandalous or not? Katherine Kidd, coordinator of the Syracuse English Studies program told the student paper The Daily Orange, that keeping a book like Gender Queer out of schools solely on the basis of it being sexually explicit, limits discussions about young adults' discovery of gender identity in relation to their bodies. Kidd said banning the book, the most challenged publication of 2021, erases the experiences of what folks like author Maia Kobabe describe, and added it's scary that it is being challenged for pornographic material. Kidd's remarks were part of an article titled: SU professors emphasize reading banned books focusing on gender and sexuality which also covered Margaret Atwood's The Handmaid's Tale. That book, now almost 40 years old, was included in the American Library Association's list of most challenged books in 2019 and has been banned across school districts nationwide for even longer. Kidd said she will strive to include novels and readings that are controversial, as a way to expose her students to viewpoints and ideas that differ from their own. If only they would do that with other topics, instead of subscribing to engineered indoctrination programs. I do try to introduce students to not only banned and contested texts, but also perspectives that might be alternative to what they're used to, Kidd said. I always tell my students, I don't expect you to agree with this point of view, I don't expect you to sympathize with this point of view, I just need you to read it and think about it. It is ironic though that when they are pushing an agenda, they are citing critical thinking skills for the students, yet curiously nowhere else in the curriculum is any evidence of critical thinking skills being encouraged. But whereas Kidd's students at Syracuse are legal adults, Gender Queer is used at the K-12 level and features sexually explicit language and artwork. Like these small examples: I can't wait to have your cock in my mouth, I am going to give you the blowjob of your life, which is not censored in the book. That maybe every male adults dream, but that surely is not what 5-14 year old's need to be hearing? Kidd said that the ultimate message of Gender Queer, isn't its lewd images and words but the revelation of a personal experience of self-discovery. Which is all well and good, but again we must ask why only that one topic? Author Kobabe defended her book as unbelievably tame in a recent interview with Time magazine. While conceding it does touch on masturbation, sex toys and sexual health. Kobabe said these are things that pretty much everyone will encounter in some form or other in their life. Where does this fit in with the church? Given many schools are of a religious denomination, they tell you all sex is banned even masturbatory, which is the ultimate in self-discovery. This is borderline telling children to have sex at a younger age, all of which fits in with the hyper-sexualization of children, to serve the pedophile EL-ites. It is the totalitarian creep of the sexualization of a child of any age, to fulfill the desires of those who participate in this under a cloak of secrecy. If only they were as passionate and pushy about teaching children properly, with critical thinking and teaching them real life skills and the basic essentials, instead of the utter rubbish they are being taught now. What is worse is, too few teachers even realize they are teaching crap, due to generational pro pagan da and dumbing down of education. Message to the teachers, understand what education really means, which is training animals, then let's get together and formulate a real teaching course the children deserve. Hey teacher, leave those kids alone springs to mind.

EXPOSE: If you thought GHW Bush's was fake given he was a Scherff to later become President, and then his son to follow was bad enough, then you throw in another issue with a fake Birth Certificate given to Obama with a dead man's Social security number, then you think you have heard it all in America. But no, there is another birth certificate issue with another former President to reveal in this piece from 2009. In 2022 we do not have to go far in finding the truth, the Truth has its own way of finding us. After discovering the true identities of George Herbert Walker Bush, Sr. which is George H. Scherff, Jr. who went onto becoming the 41st U.S. President, in previous pieces and also the FHSTOS Plus 17 called the SS(p), Nazis and Aliens. He was not the only one according to The Idaho Observer, April, 2007, because Senator John Sydney McCain, III, is actually John McCann II. The evidence shows that JS McCain III, through his father and grandfather, is directly connected to the British Crown via Prince Albert/Edward VII. Which makes that family line in part a Crown agent. Then we have the great American piss take President, given at the time the two main protagonists according to the American Unintelligence agencies, was a Hussein and an Osama, how ironic is it that America ended up with a President called Barack Hussein Obama? Replace the b in Obama for an s and it is complete, add the b and s together and it reveals the real story as, bullshit. But, the real name was Barry Soetoro as is more commonly known, but lesser known is Barry Rockefeller. Obama is also the leader of what is known as Langley 3, which is the Muslim Brotherhood department over there. Langley 1 is the Reaganites, Langley 2 is the Nazis, 3 is the Muslim Brotherhood and two years ago they set up a Langley 4 because they were pissed at the ineptitude of the other 3. Infighting between each department that is faction based continues to this day. Those of you in that organization who are tired of the corruption, coercion and infighting and want a new path, please come and speak with us and let's get the Blueprint moving forward that will help us all. For more details on McCain and others type in, The Three Stooges go to Washington, Parts 1-7b, The Idaho Observer, May 20, 2008-July 18, 2009. A fairly enlightening and damaging his story of how fake American politics is, in fact none of it is American. It should come as no surprise that another U.S. president has been caught in several lies, that warrants a delve into his genealogy. A recently-discovered 1952 Texas newspaper clipping, from either The Denison Herald or The Sherman Democrat, describes a birth certificate controversy which involved then-U.S. Presidential candidate Gen. Dwight D. "Ike" Eisenhower. Eisenhower went on to become the 34th President of the United States, serving two terms before leaving office in 1961. Eisenhower was allegedly born on October 14, 1890 in Denison, Texas. After receiving a letter from an undisclosed New York law firm during the 1952 presidential campaign, Harold Schmitzer, the Denison City Secretary replied that, Eisenhower did not have a birth certificate filed with the Grayson County Clerk's Office. That has now become an all too familiar pattern in U.S. presidential genealogies, and smashes the notion and frankly laughable idea that, you must be American born to become the President. (M) The great question is: has that ever applied? If there ever existed a further public controversy regarding Eisenhower's birthplace, it was definitely quashed. However, sufficient biographical accounts have been written in an attempt to legitimize Dwight D. Eisenhower's birth in Denison, Texas, a fact that few dared to dispute, that is, until now. Eisenhower's smoking cannon: A Texas newspaper article. The following is a verbatim transcription of the aforementioned article found in a Denison, TX newspaper, Ike Gets Birth Certificate; Filed In Courthouse Here, whose publisher/author is/are currently unknown. Dwight David Eisenhower now has a birth certificate officially recorded in the office of the County Clerk, Grayson County, Texas. The certificate was signed Wednesday by County Judge J.N. Dickson and recorded by County Clerk J.C. Buchanan. It is the first official notation of Eisenhower's birth Oct. 14, 1890, in Denison. The filing came about through a long process. A New York law firm wrote Harold Schmitzer, Denison City Secretary, asking if Eisenhower has a birth certificate registered in that city, Schmitzer replied there was none. A Denison newspaper carried a story saying Eisenhower's birth had never been recorded. Lonnie F. Roberts read the story and checked with the county clerk's office in Sherman, who told him there was no birth certificate recorded for the Republican presidential nominee. Roberts wrote to Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower in Denver, Colorado, asking if she would compile the birth information from the general. Mrs. Eisenhower wrote Roberts that, Ike was very amused when he learned he had never been born officially. As soon as Roberts received the information from Mrs. Eisenhower he drew up a formal, legal birth certificate which he sent to Ike's brother, Arthur B. Eisenhower, in Kansas City, Missouri. Arthur Eisenhower swore that Ike was born at the time and place stated, but was not sure about the time of day. Mildred B. Burgess, notary public in Jackson County, Missouri., notarized Arthur Eisenhower's signature. Roberts received the elder Eisenhower's reply Wednesday, and promptly brought the document to Sherman for recording. He is now sending the certificate back to Mrs. Eisenhower. Eisenhower's political guardian angel: It is apparent that Lonnie F. Roberts either had enough political clout or was instructed to create a birth certificate on Dwight D. Eisenhower's behalf. Who was Lonnie F. Roberts? How is it that he was able to circumvent Texas and Federal law, the Federal Elections Commission and the U.S. Constitution, fraudulently creating a birth certificate by using the U.S. Post Office, a few biased relatives and a Texas judge? Judge Dickson was obviously instructed to certify the document, but by whom? Based on a few forthcoming facts, Lonnie F. Roberts, Arthur B. Eisenhower and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower would have, at least, committed mail fraud, which is a felony. Was this now the benchmark for asserting one's birthplace and citizenship? Why weren't doctors, hospitals or other medical officials contacted to corroborate a birth? The usual they didn't keep good records in those-days excuse does not apply. There were no records because the story is yet another U.S.-presidential genealogical fraud, just like Scherff, Soetero and many others. Remember in the FHSTOS we covered about the two Roosevelt's, both were connected to the Dutch story and the House of Orange. Certainly, administrative officials at the West Point Military Academy would have required a birth certificate or other proof of citizenship upon his enrollment to the school. Apparently not, as proven with the GWH Scherff narrative. Did Eisenhower state that he was born in Denison, Texas? Records indicate that there were two Lonnie F. Roberts born in Texas, the first in 1911 and the second in 1922. The one born in 1911, there is an army record of a Pvt. Lonnie F. Roberts (February 25, 1911-January 11, 1989). The 1930 U.S. Census in Los Angeles, CA lists him at age 18, born about 1912. About 1912? This is the same method of obfuscation employed by the Bush/Walker clans, the McCain/Vaulx clans and the Obama/Soetero clans. Coincidentally, Dwight D. Eisenhower was issued his Social Security number in California. Both Roberts' were issued Social Security numbers in the state of Colorado, which puts one or both in direct proximity to the Eisenhower's, according to their residence in Denver. Pvt. Roberts was likely instructed, as were the other participants in the scheme, to manufacture a birth certificate and insure the cooperation of the Grayson County judge. It is likely that the two aforementioned articles were never read outside of Denison, Texas, Ike or his handlers probably saw to that. A gratuitous, repetitious biographical account minimizes negative publicity about the hoax. In Denison: Birth Place of a President, Archie P. McDonald, Ph.D. penned for the East Texas Historical Society, an anecdotal account of Eisenhower's birthplace. http://www.texasescapes.com/DEPARTMENTS/Guest_Columnists/East_Texas_all_things_historical/DenisonBirthPlaceOfPresidentIAMD301.htm Mr. McDonald wrote in part: What is in question here is this: was Ike a Texan? where he was born? or a Kansan? where he grew to young adulthood before going off to West Point in 1911? And the answer probably should be that Ike was a citizen of the world, who rarely lived anywhere for long after his graduation from West Point, until his final residence on a farm near Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. West Point it seems is the go to place for dodgy registration peoples. That Ike was born in Denison, Texas, on October 14, 1890, was confirmed by his mother. When Ike became famous during the war, Jennie Jackson wrote to ask if he had been born in Denison. He responded that he did not know and directed her to his mother, who said that Ike entered the world in this north Texas railroad town. Specifically, Ike was born in the front bedroom of a two-story structure located at the corner of Lamar and Day streets, adjacent to the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad. The reason for this blessing came to the Eisenhower's in Denison was that Ike's father, David J. Eisenhower, worked as a wiper for the MKT in the Dennison rail yards. Within six months of the event, the Eisenhower family returned to Kansas and Ike grew up in Abilene, which he and others always regarded as his home town. Ike visited his birthplace three times: first, in 1946 while still in the Army; in 1952 while campaigning for the presidency; and in 1965, just four years before his death. From the nine-foot statue of Eisenhower in his WWII uniform, which greets visitors in the yard, through photos and artifacts which occupy every room, the visitor is reminded of the era in which Ike was born. Giving Mr. McDonald the benefit of the doubt, he probably was unaware of Eisenhower's birth certificate controversy. That he relied upon anecdotes and third-hand accounts is typical, especially where records do not exist. But McDonald did address the birthplace issue more than a few times, which had obviously consumed a major portion of his piece. Mr. McDonald probably did not have the luxury of reading the 1952 Denison newspaper article, which described a manufactured birth certificate.

Eisenhower's self-incriminating disclosures dispute historical accounts: Dwight D. Eisenhower could have never imagined that, information he gave an INS agent at Ellis Island would come back to posthumously haunt him 85 years later. As detailed in an Ellis Island passenger manifest, on September 27, 1924, returning from Cristobal, Canal Zone Panama on the USS Cristobal, Maj. Dwight D. Eisenhower made two declarations to Customs Officials: 1) that he was 34 years of age, and 2) that he was born in Tyler, Texas. Based on his published birthdate, Eisenhower was only 33 years of age on Sept. 27, 1924. This may seem insignificant, though no one reaches the age of 34 until one's 34th birthday, it has always been that way. So why did he misstate his age, or was he just confused? On this same day in 1924, Eisenhower declared his birthplace was Tyler, Texas. Certainly, a major in the U.S. Army would have known where he was born. After all, everyone else who has studied anything about Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the 34th President of the United States, has heard that he was born in Denison, TX. That was the storyline in 1952, but Eisenhower's 1924 U.S. Customs declaration disputes this more recent claim. In naming Tyler, Texas as his place of birth, Eisenhower did not describe a suburb of Denison. The distance between the two towns via US-69 S, in 1952 and 2009 terms, is 130 miles - a 3-1/2 hour trip by car. The same trip today, via US 75 S from Denison to I-20 E through the Dallas metropolitan area, then onto US-69 S totals 164 miles and is estimated to take 2 hours, 43 minutes. Eisenhower could not have been confused about the locations or distance between the two towns, could he? During the same Ellis Island incident, either Dwight and/or Mamie Eisenhower informed the INS agent that their son, John Sheldon, age 2, was born in Hennen, Colorado. A search for Hennen reveals no results, and several current residents of the state attest to the fact that they have never heard of it. The name Hennon is an Anglo-Saxon name that was originally derived from the personal name Henning or Hemming. The letters n and m were often regarded as interchangeable in the medieval records. Hmm how convenient, seems so much of the letters were interchangeable from that time, all of which allowed for obfuscation of the truth, particularly anything to do with Jewish. Perusing the USS Cristobal passenger list, on lines 18 and 19 were the names of two respective passengers: Lawrence (Keyser, W. VA) and Mrs. Mary C. (Norfield, VA). Their last names? Hennen. Official accounts of John Sheldon Eisenhower's birthplace indicate that he was born in Denver, Colorado. Why did the Eisenhower's say he was born in Hennen, Colorado? Might he have been born in the Canal Zone, outside of the United States? Was this another feeble attempt to legitimize the Eisenhower's and their 2-year-old son as Americans? The three biographical inconsistencies above prove that Eisenhower's 'official' accounts are fictional. It is implausible that anyone, let alone a private in the U.S. Army, after reading a newspaper article, would independently spearhead a plot to create a birth certificate for a U.S. presidential candidate. It is equally ridiculous to assume that the ultimate investigative task would have been assigned to Mamie Eisenhower, the wife of the former Supreme Commander of Allied forces in Europe and the first supreme commander of NATO. Born as "David Dwight Eisenhower," it is inconceivable that Eisenhower changed his name to "Dwight D. Eisenhower" while attending West Point Military Academy, without first submitting a genuine birth certificate. Had he done so, there would have been no controversy in Denison, TX prior to the presidential election of 1952, his statements to the INS agent at Ellis Island may have never been scrutinized. It is ironic that the president who, in his farewell speech to the nation, warned us about the looming military industrial complex, yet failed to warn us about his own dubious, genealogical background. At least, Grayson County Judge J.N. Dickson saved a most-revealing newspaper article for posterity's sake. These revelations will undoubtedly lead to many others hidden beneath a quagmire of international political obfuscation. The Truth, despite preconceived notions, has a way of appearing at the most relevant times, and these are very auspicious times. The Eisenhower's, more than anyone else, would have truly known where they were born, they just forgot to tell everyone else. It has always concerned me as to how much hero worship is given to ex-Presidents following their death here. More so, if it is in relation to war mongering and battles. That hero worship of those of the past, has allowed the controllers to turn the current ones into something untouchable and resembling some sort of demi-god. That is not a good look in overview for the public, it makes a falsely elevated platform for those in charge. We the people should not be giving our power away to those that seek it in that manner. A president, whilst it will have a look of an important role, is not that important in the scheme of things, except in one area, ego. It is just a job at the end of the day, why is it elevated to such highest status? Massive security costing billions of dollars just for a guy or girl to do a job? The keep it in house mechanism that has gone on since the Pilgrims arrived, has to end also. Apart from the fact it is not fair or transparent, it is because after 400 years it has never worked as it should do, and what is worse is, the country has been involved in perpetual wars since it's in House, Founder created, his story. Killing millions of people and creating perpetual debts on the people fortunate to still be alive. If Americans really want a country to be proud of, the wars has to stop, the in house political circus has to stop, the siphoning of money has to stop and invest in the people and the country only, this is what our New Blueprint for Humanity brings to the table. From now to the end of this show will have a theme, multiple ponderings and dots for you all to connect, listen closely. I will leave this piece with a pondering. The two recent exposes, the FHSTOS Plus 17 and this piece all revealed dodgy birth certificates, underhanded entries into the country via Paperclip, leaves one to ponder. Given the birth certificate issues including Tesla, were all these people born as hybrids from Orion?

OTHER PIECES: An interesting piece although versed in religiosity, does bear some insight into the symbols and power games of the self-appointed EL-ites. For those new, the term EL-ite is what I believe is the correct way to pronounce it, based on the words themselves. EL capitalized or not means god, El is also the name of a Canaanite god known as the King of gods. El, Il and Al are all variations of the same thing, hence the term AL -lah. In Arabic lah means no, and so that would mean al-lah means no god. In Arabic they say that AL means the, which makes no sense, just like religion itself then. So, in Arabic al-lah means the no! just like that'll be a no then. They say you cannot separate AL+LAH in terms of sound in Arabic language when referring to the Almighty God Allah, as the word for god in Arabic is ilah. Which reveals another dot connector and more proof the Muslim faith is built on the Jewish/Hebrew cult, as the Hebrew version of AL and EL is IL. Any questions? We move on then. Lah is popular in scouse language in Liverpool England with, you know what I mean lah. Lah means lad, and is pronounced as such, yano wharra mean lah.

With the appointment being made official as Charles as King, following his mother lying in State for four years, hence why they didn't open the coffin. This brings in some interesting comparisons with the past, and we all know how things repeat in their world. King Charles Philip Arthus George and his Coat of Arms that has much symbology upon the whole badge. The mouth of the Antichrist is the lion = from England. Rev. 13:2 Beast: King/Kingdom: thus, he said, the fourth beast shall be the fourth Kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces. Daniel 7:23 The author compared the 4th Kingdom to the 4th Reich which they believe is Europe, no that was the 3rd, the 4th is America. The tread it down and break into pieces is, the countries and what has now become countries within countries, for example Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and many others. And yet has the same not happened to America with the advent of the states? Which started off with the 12+1 all under the Crown, and it could be said under the Commonwealth as well, as a colony of. The King Anti-Christ in scripture reveals, And the beast which I saw was like unto a leopard and his feet were as the feet of a bear, which is Russia. And his mouth has the mouth of a lion which is Great Britain: and the dragon which is the Devil gave him his power, his seat and great authority. Revelation 13:2 The lion is Great Britain and who sits on the throne? whose genealogy links him back to the Tribe of Judah, the Lion: The Lion of the tribe of Judah, the root of David Revelation 5:5 The Devil is the Great Red Dragon Revelations 12:3,9 Prince Charles' coat of arms contains a visual representation of the Beast in Revelation 13. His name adds up to 666 in Hebrew and English. He has an RFID chip implanted into his right hand. He applied to be King of Europe. He wants to unite all the world's religions into one, and claims to be a descendent of King David and as such, he claims to be the rightful heir to David's throne. Interesting stuff, but neither David nor Solomon were good people, and neither will be reclaiming that throne, it has all been negated.

In a recent report and study, scientists have shown that world food production has soared in recent decades, as carbon dioxide has taken small steps to reclaim atmospheric levels common through geological time, until the relatively recent past. Food production has soared, yet why do so many starve? Because it is a deliberate plan by shekel based people and think tanks. One Italian scientist estimated that reducing atmospheric CO₂ back to pre-industrial levels, would lead to an 18% decrease in the production of many basic global foodstuffs. Which is interesting as, who was it that created and profited from the Industrial Revolution? The families again, and now these same families are saying that we are responsible, no! it was them and their desire for making cartels out of all commodity markets. The current level of atmospheric CO₂ at 419 parts per million (ppm) is near an all-time low. If it goes much lower, say to around 180 ppm, plant and human life will start to die off. According to the ecologist Dr. Patrick Moore, over the last 500 million years the amount of carbon in the atmosphere has fallen from 15,000 billion tonnes to just over 850 billion tonnes. Oops the Gretas and think tanks of their world, will not tell you that will they? Is that an indication of terraforming for something else? Add that question to the ponder posed at the end of the Expose. A minute part of this enormous capture is released during periods of natural warming, especially from the vast stores held in the Earth's oceans. Many scientists remain relaxed about rising levels of CO₂. Dr. Roy Spencer, the former senior scientist at NASA, also notes the beneficial effect on plants, adding: though CO₂ is necessary for life on Earth to exist, there is precious little of it in Earth's atmosphere. Oops. What is beyond dispute is that the Earth has 'greened' dramatically over the last 40 years, thanks to the extra gas. It has been estimated that there has been a 14% increase in vegetation, mostly due to higher levels of CO₂ in this period. In a paper published in 2016 by 32 authors from eight countries, it was noted that there was a persistent and widespread increase, in growing season greening over 25-50% of the global vegetated area. More vegetation of course means more food up and down the chain. Every form of life benefit, from insects to tigers and of course humans. More food that needs to be shared, so many people massively overweight whilst many goes starving, in essence that is harvesting. We need to learn to come together and share the resources as equally as possible. The climate science site No Tricks Zone recently highlighted two further scientific studies, that showed higher CO₂ fertilization effects were driving global greening and enhancing photosynthesis. A group of Agri-scientists suggested there would be a 30-50% increase in photosynthesis with CO₂ in a range from 451 to 720ppm. This would lead to a 25% increase in crop yield. This made me ponder and reveals, if people talk to or moreso breathe on new plants, they will yield extra growth. The scientists looked in particular at barley and found an increase in yield of 54% if CO₂ rose to 700ppm. Meanwhile, another group of scientists have found that elevated levels of CO₂ are very helpful for fruit trees, producing increased photosynthesis, efficient use of water, growth and biomass. With CO₂ at 600-750ppm, plants will grow 30% faster. Research is said to be lacking for fruit compared to many other crops, but the authors conclude that: there is undoubtedly a fertilization effect of CO₂ on fruit species, that increases with the advance of climate change. It has got nothing to do with climate change. You do realize what this all means don't you? Larger fruit bearing? larger trees? Quicker crops? What does that remind you of in terms of a movie? Think Avatar. Was the reduction of CO₂ what brought about the decline in all living things here, certainly nearly all living species are smaller than in the past. From people to the trees themselves.

Well I was pondering the other day, following just writing the previous piece about the clowns global warming bs. Upon pontification I wondered is it a threat to other groups the alleged rising levels of CO₂, because for humans and plants it is fine, despite what clown scientists and their shekel making fear programs state. So, I typed in this: Is CO₂ detrimental to lizards? And my pondering appears vindicated. By 2080, global warming could result in one-fifth of the world's lizard species becoming extinct, a global study has found. Even under the most optimistic scenarios for curbing carbon dioxide emissions, the analysis by an international team shows that one-fifth of the globe's lizard populations, corresponding to 6% of all lizard species, may go extinct by 2050.

Barry Sinervo, an evolutionary biologist at the University of California, Santa Cruz, who led the study. He and his colleagues found that climate change has already driven 12% of the populations of Mexico's colorful Sceloporus lizards extinct since 1975. If emissions continue at current levels, he predicts that by 2080, 39% of the world's lizard populations will have vanished, corresponding to a 20% loss in species. Sinervo wasn't intending to study extinctions. Rather, he had planned to use a Eurasian lizard, Lacerta vivipara, to examine the role of coloration in lizard evolution. But when he went to sites in France, Italy, Slovenia and Hungary where Lacerta had been studied, the lizards weren't always there. A few years later, he found that Mexico's Sceloporus lizards were also vanishing. Concerned, he assembled a team to examine the issue globally. Studying reports of extinctions on five continents, the scientists concluded that the problem is widespread. It's happening really, really fast and we're seeing a massive extinction wave sweeping across the planet. Of the handful of similar analyses, a 2008 study found population losses in amphibians living in Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming, and another found that small mammals in Yosemite National Park in California had tracked warming temperatures in the past century by shifting their range. Lizard disappearances in the areas the team studied can't be due to habitat destruction because, they're occurring where habitat has been protected. Rather, hotter sites close to the equator or at low altitudes are most likely to lose their lizards. To see how hotter climates damaged the reptiles, Sinervo's team created a dummy lizard, set it out in the sun at sites in the Yucatán peninsula where Sceloporus is found and where it had gone extinct, and monitored its temperature. Like all organisms, lizards must avoid overheating and keep their body temperature within a certain range to survive. The problem, the team found, seems to be warmer spring times, rather than higher maximum temperatures at midday or in midsummer. Higher temperatures in spring, mean that the animals spend less of the breeding season out foraging and more time in the shade. That is the time of year that females need the maximum amount of food, says Huey. If the temperature gets higher in the spring, then the lizards restrict their activity. They simply may not have enough active time to catch enough food.

Underfed females do not have the resources needed to make young, causing populations to crash.

The ecological consequences of lizard extinctions are unknown. If Barry's right or even close to right, Huey says, the world as we know it will be very different. Lizards are primarily insect eaters. So, if a population goes extinct, that will affect the insects living there. Lizards are also prey for many snakes, birds, mammals and some other lizards. But how serious those effects will be is going to be very difficult to predict. But here is another potential problem, but could also be seen as beneficial. Yet one wonders why scientists are not blaming these creatures for increased CO₂ instead of humans. I guess this species is unable to pay for it, unlike us, all about the shekels again. Leaf-cutter ant nests emit thousands of times more carbon dioxide than the surrounding soils do, a new study has found. On the forest floor, leaf-cutter ant nests look like massive piles of dirt dotted with several holes. A new study finds that these holes release carbon dioxide from the ant nests into the air, up to 100,000 times more carbon dioxide than from surrounding soil surfaces. Researchers estimate this contribution to be nearly 0.5% of total forest carbon dioxide emissions.

The mention earlier about the lizard called lacerta, brings up something very familiar on the internet around 20 years ago, which I will cover in another show. But, Lacerta is one of the 88 modern constellations defined by the International Astronomical Union. Its name is Latin for lizard. Although not included in ancient star charts of Europe and the Near East, the stars of Lacerta, along with some in the eastern portion of Cygnus, were coincidentally combined by early Chinese astronomers into their flying serpent. All sounds very Quetzalcoatl to me. Similarly, the Chumash people of California call this part of the sky, lizard, and include it in multiple stories. The SSP led US Navy has a ship called USS Lacerta. All very interesting stuff and perhaps with an overview of this piece, it will bring in deep ponderings and perspectives.

ENDING PIECE: Sunday and Tuesday will be remembered for the show value it brought to many people who listened to it. But, there is a much deeper scope and picture behind both of those shows, and the one still to come. We started off each solution with why this is needed? It then went onto detailing each solution to each topic we covered, even the Preface, the last piece of show two started off with the same thing. In some ways it spoke to the EL-ites and others who self-appointed themselves as our rulers, we have a solution for that also. But, it spoke of their fears, and indeed the piece itself ramped up their fears, whilst giving them a peaceful out gate. I have often spoken of the fears of the EL-ites, and as a listener that can be hard to comprehend, and you then base it on your trust of me. My time with the Trustee observed and heard those fears, and Covid was a last resort style move, to put them back in control in their Order of chaos. But, the timing of a recent book published this month should not be lost on the listener, no more than Biden's speech referenced twice recently either. Survival of the Richest author Douglas Rushkoff published an exposé the other day at The Guardian, about how the world's money-grubbing tech gurus are actively trying to build themselves survival bunkers, to weather the coming apocalypse that they are helping engineer. In reality land they are engineering their own downfall, and underground bunkers will not help them, the Mountain men of the 100 series should trigger and eliminate that notion. Consumed by the grounders, should be your clue. What happens when Polaris is no longer the Ark? Which side of the tilt will you be on? Five mysterious billionaires summoned theorist Douglas Rushkoff to a desert resort for a private talk. Interesting it was the desert, given the off-world connections in those regions. The topic? How to survive the "Event": the societal catastrophe they know is coming. That is not the only event, it is a series of events to come, events are in the now, and also some we have already been through. Here is a synopsis of the book, with added input from me. Rushkoff came to understand that these men were under the influence of The Mindset, a Silicon Valley-style certainty, that they and their cohort can break the laws of physics, economics and morality to escape a disaster of their own making, as long as they have enough money and the right technology. (M) (J) The mind of Set that means, it also means they cannot operate in the heart, they are symbioted to and within the mind, think Stargate, think Ra. These billionaires' biggest concern seemed to be about how to ensure that, the security forces they hire do not turn on them once everything hits the fan. How do I maintain authority over my security force after the event? asked the CEO of a brokerage house. It turns out that the bulk of the private meeting was centered around the security issue and how to keep security forces paid, fed, and happy so that they continue to protect the very tech billionaires who destroyed the world in the first place. While one of them suggested simply locking their food behind combinations that only they knew, at least one of the tech billionaires proposed forcing their security teams to wear disciplinary shock collars to ensure their compliance. Another brought up the idea of building non-human robots to serve as guards and workers for their underground, dystopian paradises that they expect to survive in once society collapses. Do you now smell their fear? Do you understand the timing of the Blueprint? Rushkoff, tried to reason with the men about how a more pro-social approach, centered around partnership and solidarity is the most promising for preserving our collective, long-term challenges. It turns out that none of them wanted to hear any of this. Because they have the mind of Set and that all people will only want lynchings and retribution, and I cannot blame them for that thinking. Because sadly that is the mindset of many, but we at THI and TPC were designated to operate in the heart, not the mind. Rushkoff said; The way to get your guards to exhibit loyalty in the future was to treat them like friends right now.. Don't just invest in ammo (think IRS) and electric fences, invest in people and relationships. They rolled their eyes at what must have sounded to them like hippy philosophy. In the end, Rushkoff says he came to the realization that billionaire tech moguls, are actually the losers in this whole scenario. I agree, because all the pieces of papers with numbers on, will not save them from their fate, only the Blueprint can and will. In Survival of the Richest, Rushkoff traces the origins of The Mindset in science and technology through its current expression in missions to Mars, island bunkers, AI futurism and the metaverse. Hmm island bunkers? That reveals much, thanks for the tip. In a dozen urgent, electrifying chapters, he confronts tech utopianism, the datafication of all human interaction and the exploitation of that data by corporations. The latter of which was to re-create the fallen solar system AI machine since 2015. Through fascinating characters, master programmers who want to remake the world from scratch as if redesigning a video game. Yes, they are they told us that with the Metaverse, it is another example from the 100 series, an AI built world done by ALIE, which when separated says a lie, or separated again is AL meaning god, and I.E. an example of. That is the city of light world, a fake reality for those who cannot face reality, you even had to swallow a medical device to enter it, all shaped in a figure 8 mobius loop. Bankers who return from Burning Man convinced that incentivized capitalism is the solution to environmental disasters. Capitalism under the form of fresh air tokens, where compliant and lazy people have their lives lived and decided for them by a machine. Rushkoff explains why those with the most power to change our current trajectory have no interest in doing so. They can't, is why, they cannot sustain their possible Metatronic lifestyles within the new reality based organic world. And he shows how recent forms of anti-mainstream rebellion, QAnon for example or meme stocks, reinforce the same destructive order. Q anon as this show has ascertained were at the top of that structure, the Black Sun Elements. It is the Hydra from Agents of Shield. This last paragraph sums up what we are all doing within this group, and why the village was created as a foundation to build anew, in essence, for those who are waiting for events, that was one of them. This mind-blowing work of social analysis shows us how to transcend the landscape The Mindset created, a world alive with algorithms and intelligences actively rewarding our most selfish tendencies, and rediscover community, mutual aid, and human interdependency. In a thundering conclusion, Survival of the Richest argues that the only way to survive the coming catastrophe is to ensure it doesn't happen in the first place. It is already happening to us and to them, only difference is, we have a plan and they don't, it's that simple. In other words, the mind of Set initiated via memes, algorithms and MK ultra on a docile public, including many in the alternative media also. From selfish tendencies to rediscover community, mutual aid, and human interdependency, now where have we heard that before? From solely service to self, to service of the self to then be in service to others. Now can you all grasp what I have been saying for the past nine years in dribs and drabs? Now do you fully understand why that blue print was developed? Now can you grasp the timing of it all? The sequencing, the story book and increasing flow and dynamics of all the shows in overview. It has all been there for you all to self-decode and come to your own conclusions, but also, come to your own choices. This piece ends any doubts of how the richies, clowns and EL-ites feel, so what happens next? Ruskoff said; they will likely be the first to go once all bets are off, because We the People see them for who they are. Interesting use of We the People again, something Biden repeated twice in that speech. You want more evidence of synchronicity? This was said within this past week by Mr. Putin. He said this: It is based on our historical affinity, and it is that right that led generations of our predecessors, those who built and defended Russia for centuries since the period of Ancient Rus, to victory.

How many times have we heard that term outside of our show? And it comes up to the world this very week? The top order know who we are, what we are doing and yet curiously the so called awake community by and large passes us by. That has served us well in the building years, not to be drawn into a separate fake reality world with partial truths, promises and wait clubs, but now is the time for us all to come together. This monumental task is not just down to me and those who bothered to get involved, this is an in your face challenge to you all. Do you want a better life, living and world? Because if you do, that requires you to actually participate, not just happy clap people from the peanut gallery. We are all responsible and charged as a dereliction of duty to ourselves, each other, our children, our country and our planet. The time for complaining, whining, what about me, pointing fingers away and a lack of personal and collective responsibility is now officially over. Each and every one of you is now part of the solution or part of the problem, choose wisely.

To kick start all of your efforts to support us in terms of time, donations, ideas or suggestions, our team is building a designated website called The New Blueprint for Humanity. We will require many hands to operate it. It will contain the shows done to date, the one to follow, a donation button that will be to cover the cost of the administration work, filing, registering, producing and delivering the Blueprints to the relevant people and or organizations. A separate company is also about to be created in relation to this as well. People will ask why not use the TPC? we can't for legal reasons and we have other big plans for that coming soon. Today we purchased the domain names required for this. We have secured thenewblueprintforhumanity.org and .com and also newblueprintforhumanity.org and .com for the website coming soon. I am requesting our Positive Action group to be expanded with many other members for this undertaking, get off your backsides and come and support your own type of people please. My first suggestion for the PA group is to formulate a letter and pdf to Douglas Ruskoff, requesting his assistance and potential support of this. Plus requesting a meeting at the village and or by zoom, in how we can get him to become a liaison with the EL-ites to formulate a plan in the village or other suitable location. October 2, 4 and 6th is the transition from their world into ours, from in their time matrix to our out of time advancement. This is it; this is what we have all been working towards, in my case most of my life. I know many of you think a lot of me, I am asking you now to support me and us in this monumental task, of restoring us, the people, the governance, the environment and our precious planet, we call home. Now is our time to act. Are you Higher Universal man or a mere statistic of their fallen world?
