

THI-SHOW TRANSCRIPT 2022-12-01

This as always will be an interesting show, there will be less news, medical, society and other pieces tonight. But there will be three exposes style pieces that explain many of the issues ongoing, with a deep pondering piece as the penultimate piece of the show. With a reality and realization piece to finish off with.

Communal Gathering updates. The American group all but disintegrated recently with only 3-4 members left. Two Australian members had voiced a desire to join the Euro group and wondered if the time could be adjusted a bit to accommodate them. After discussing on our chat page, the Euro group (including several Americans/Canadians) agreed to move the time of the group ahead two hours to accommodate everyone. We now have one women's group meeting every other Wednesday and everyone was very comfortable with the new change. Each member was asked to weigh in on reports that the group was restrictive. All members offered their thoughts and all were in agreement that the group was accommodating, open, and safe and did not feel restrictive. Members said they feel free to discuss personal issues and all were comfortable with the other members and the current format we have all approved. After a recent exodus of some members, we discussed allowing others their free will choices and not carrying any ill-will, anger or other low-frequency energies toward those who chose a different path. Many of us have experienced other women turning against us when faced with disagreements. We discussed how we, in this group in particular, see ourselves stepping up to share with the larger public. The giant strides we have made with our inner work that has resulted in huge growth for each of us personally, and as a group collectively. We talked about how to deal with issues or personalities, that we feel do not support what is in the best interests of the all, without resorting to engaging in low-frequency actions that would destabilize all the positive work and growth we have accomplished. Members voiced their willingness to take on their responsibilities and hold themselves accountable for their actions. We talked about recognizing our own power and continuing to focus on our inner work as well as staying in touch with the three main ideas of THI/TPC: Caring and sharing, Need not greed, and Cooperation, not comparative or competitive. Many of us are aware that we have been a silent majority and we discussed how we might step up as way-showers, and give a face and a voice for a new way forward not only for females, but for humanity at large.

Presented Intro to Law Series part 9 - Modern Courts on Nov 16. We learned that the original Latin root for the word court, is cautio, which means bonding, securitization and bailment of oaths, vows and cases. The word was introduced in the 16th C through the guilds of notaries and judges to commercialize and monetize sin. These guilds are known as the BAR Guild today. We also learned that in the 16th C the word judge was adapted from Latin iug, meaning to bind together, connect, couple together; hence, judgement means a decision, order or sentence of a court concerning a person that binds the mind and flesh to it through consent. Keep in mind that a person is a fictional concept with no mind, hence the need to bind a living mind to the person through consent. All courts are the trading floor of a commercial bank used to monetize sin through the sacrament of penance, in order to assign liability and bind the living mind to the fictional person. The bonds produced are traded. Judges are private contractors working for the private BAR Guild to administer the legal processes. There is nothing lawful, no justice and no due process occurring in modern courts. We will be hosting part 2 of Modern Courts on Sunday, Dec 18. This is a deep subject and one session was not enough to cover the material to the depth required. On Friday, Nov 24, Michael Blaha led the first Ucadia Communities study group with the European members, thanks to Truus Ouwehand for helping to coordinate this. They had their first discussion about forming Ucadia Communities, the process of developing the self, family, tribe and village by building trust through honor. How social and economic interactions derive from spiritual and legal development and how the spiritual and legal are two sides of the mind. More study groups will be scheduled and it will be exciting to see how this conversation and ideas develop.

Less is more is an ongoing theme as members of the Gardening Communal Gathering have learned that radically improved plant health can be achieved, with carefully timed application of highly diluted liquid nutrients. These nutrients can be produced by gardeners, at little or no cost, from local plant matter that is made more available for plants through fermentation processes developed by Korean Natural Farmers.

There have been discussions about plants that are considered problem weeds, which play an important role in earth restoration as they feed off unhealthy soil matter and restore balance by transforming it. There have also been discussions about how weeds and insects can be indicators to show imbalances, and then provide the raw materials to fix it.

Solutions for keeping animals healthy and warm through the winter were discussed. Using greenhouses attached to animal pens is currently showing success in the North for small scale chicken farming.

The Fruit and Nuts Section of the Gardening Guide is complete. We now have more than 500 pages of information on how to grow vegetables, herbs, fruit and nuts.

Work on the General Gardening Information section is under way.

The Saturday morning Gardening zoom link can be found in the Community Gatherings Forum under the Gardening CG Zoom Link Topic.

The Hebrew translation of Volume 1 is completed and the other translations are progressing. The English version of Volume 2 is undergoing final proofread, after which the PDF and ebook will be available for sale. The final proofread is at part 4 of Volume 2 and so close to publishing. It will be available for the book purchase before Christmas. The covers for all versions of Volume 2 are prepared. Second edit has started on Volume 3 and first edit has been done on Volume 4. Volume

3 will be worked on in the New Year, for release around April. All fantastic stuff done by our own members, asking for more members to step up and support them. This section is the way showers in many ways, of what we are doing and not what they are doing. Keep up the good work.

NEWS: Notice the continuation of stars, sports people and politicians dying off is not abating? Irene Cara the latest, only 63. It will continue and perhaps increase next year. A Russian billionaire has become the third top cryptocurrency trader to die suddenly in recent weeks. Risky business to be in that game now it seems, just like the banking industry and Vegas, the few win and most lose. Word on the street is, crypto is about to be collapsed.

As Britain goes on strike with nurses, rail workers and over 100K public sector workers asking for a pay rise to cover inflation. The typical government response is; Union leaders were warned that the Government cannot afford inflation-busting pay rises for public sector workers today as the country braces for a wave of brutal Christmas strikes.

Transport Secretary Mark Harper said he did not have a bottomless pit of taxpayers money to hand out to rail workers, nurses and thousands of others who will walk out in December. Funny that, as money can always be found for military programs, medical programs, fake foreign aid, yet never for the people. Who let's not forget, provided those funds. Simple solution is; stop voting for politicians, until they create government orders to remove all the profits of the central banks and the funds generated by companies over the fake Covid scam, and give it all back to the people.

As discontent in China over the still ongoing lockdowns and Covid measures there, led to the deaths of 10 people in a fire when the building doors were locked to prevent spread of Covid. China quietly is marching towards the techno world with social credit scores and the death currency – crypto.

In Turkey demonstration are taking place against the US funded Kurds. Riots in Belgium, Holland, Kazakhstan and Germany. There are demonstrations and protests in Brazil and Iran and many other places as well, it will not augur well for harmony next year. Harmony will work against the clowns though, as the people are learning to come together again.

As American rail workers prepare to go on strike as well, beware that may well be a deliberate ploy. Clowns are planning for winter chaos, disruptions to supplies, banking delays or closures, potential internet issues and rumors of another lockdown to curb all their created chaos scenario.

It seems they are setting up Poland just as I warned, as the Ukrainian Nazis which are National Zionists not German are moving across the border. Opposition politicians in Poland criticized police recently for detaining anti-fascist activists but not reacting to the appearance of a Nazi-era symbol during a nationalist march. The detention of the activists occurred during the week last Friday's yearly far-right-led Independence March in Warsaw. Many liberal groups who oppose the march have accused the police for years of displaying favorable treatment toward the nationalists while treating protesters of the event unfairly. The counter-protesters held white roses and a banner reading Nationalism is not patriotism, before police removed them from a location near the march route. Oh dear that is a totally ignorant banner, because patriotism is nationalism. Patriotism is about the unrelenting and unquestioning love of your country, does anyone ask why we should love a country? Or why you would love an inanimate object more than the people? An opposition lawmaker, Michal Szczerba of the centrist Civic Platform party, accused the ruling Law and Justice party Saturday of creating an oppressive state with its treatment of peaceful protesters. A Polish senator who also is a member of the political opposition, Krzysztof Brejza, tweeted a photo from the march of participants carrying a banner with the Black Sun symbol of Nazi Germany's SS guards. Brejza noted that police did not intervene. Nice to know the people are beginning to recognize the Black Sun, but they are not related to Germany, they are global. That is a big mistake people make, relating cults and rogue elements against a country, when it is a global issue. You know there has to be another element that is invited to this event, right on cue in came the world's greatest pity party brigade, they never miss an opportunity do they? Also Saturday, the American Jewish Committee condemned an antisemitic event that occurred amid Independence Day events in the Polish city of Krakow, where speakers Friday denounced Jewish people in a park. One speaker talked about burning Jews and the crowd chanted, down with the Jewish occupation. Whilst I do not condone those types of words, it does become understandable when you do not have enough knowledge. People are beginning to see through the Jewish narrative and actions and have had enough. The mistake they make is, to blame all Jews, that is where their lack of knowledge hampers them, and allows the perpetual offended by everything crew to score political points.

Ukraine's Zelensky stated as of this evening, blackouts continue in most regions and in Kyiv.

The number of affected households has reduced by half since Wednesday, he added.

But millions have been left without light, water or heat as winter sets in.

Speaking in a video address, President Zelensky said the capital and its surrounding region are among the worst affected by the attacks. He said many residents in the city have been without power for 20 or even 30 hours.

He said other areas among the worst affected are the regions of Odesa, in the south, Lviv in the west, as well Vinnytsia and Dnipropetrovsk which are more central.

President Zelensky appealed to everyone to use appliances which use energy sparingly. Please, if you have electricity, this does not mean that you can turn on several powerful electrical appliances at once.

We have to endure this winter, a winter that everyone will remember, he said. A winter to remember he said, indeed says THI. But how many Ukrainian people were without power did the Jewish leader reveal? Six million, it is always 6M with those people, and a subtle reminder of WW2 is never too far away is it. Try 70-90M Zelensky that your ancestors killed in Russia alone.

In light of last week's ponder on the New Mexico earthquakes, one has to ask is this news item related to it? Nuclear waste at the federal government's repository near Carlsbad near Santa Fe New Mexico will be handled by a new company for at least the next decade, after a $3 billion contract was awarded and finalized for the work. The contractor Tularosa Basin Range Services, doing business as Salado Isolation Mining Contractors (SIMCO) – a subsidiary of Bechtel National, was awarded the contract for daily operations of the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant by the U.S. Department of Energy. Records show two protests from other bidders were denied earlier this month by the Government Accountability Office. Those protests were filed by National Tru Solutions, a subsidiary of Huntington Ingalls Industries, and Westinghouse Electric's subsidiary Carlsbad Operations Alliance, delaying the contract award announced in July by about three months. All three companies have experience in handling nuclear waste cleanup via DOE contracts, but Bechtel was ultimately awarded the contract and moved forward with a 90-day transition to take over operations of the WIPP from Nuclear Waste Partnership (NWP) – a subsidiary of Amentum. This site is close to Los Alamos who are the third largest shipper of nuclear waste. Three of the top go to clown groups, no surprise the Cheney led group Bechtel got the contract. The question is are they clearing stuff out, building or rebuilding?

Israel will not cooperate with a U.S. investigation into the killing of Palestinian American journalist Shireen Abu Akleh, Israeli Defense Minister Benny Gantz has said. Abu Akleh, a reporter for the Al Jazeera news network, was killed in May while covering an Israeli military raid in the West Bank. Israel concluded in September that she was probably killed by unintentional Israeli gunfire, despite wearing clearly marked press gear in an area far from any Palestinian gunmen, according to eyewitnesses and fellow journalists interviewed by The Washington Post. In a statement on Twitter, Gantz said the U.S. Justice Department had decided to investigate Abu Akleh's death and called the move a grave mistake. The Justice Department did not immediately respond to a request for comment, after Israel's Channel 14 reported Monday that the FBI had decided to open an investigation into her killing. Israel's Defense Forces conducted an independent and professional investigation, which was presented to the Americans, Gantz said. I made it clear to the American representatives that we stand behind the Israeli Defense Forces soldiers, that we will not cooperate with any external investigation, and we will not allow interference in Israel's internal affairs. That is all fine and dandy Mr. Gantz, but your country and its army of minions interfere with every country and its affairs. You can't have it both ways like in the past, as the Jewish/Israel problem is becoming a hot subject around the world, and becoming a pariah nation to many now. Palestinian officials have accused Israeli forces of firing deliberately on Abu Akleh and other journalists who had gathered outside Jenin to monitor the raid. Which they did. In recent months, Abu Akleh's family has led a high-profile campaign for accountability, meeting with

Secretary of State Antony Blinken and Pope Francis. The lack of accountability, the lack of justice is what pushed me to advocate for my Aunt Shireen, Lina Abu Akleh, who has spearheaded her family's campaign, said last week as the U.N. Human Rights Council heard public testimony on Abu Akleh's killing. Gaining accountability with Anthony Blinken, is like putting the fox in charge of the hen house, he is one of them and takes his orders like the American Presidents from the Israeli junta and lobbyists. In June, the U.N. High Commissioner for Human Rights said the information it gathered as part of its own probe, is consistent with the finding that the shots that killed Abu Akleh, came from Israeli Security Forces and not from indiscriminate firing by armed Palestinians. The State Department later said it could not reach a definitive conclusion regarding the origin of the bullet that killed Abu Akleh, citing an inquiry overseen by the U.S. Security Coordinator in Jerusalem, a joint, interagency body that works with Israel and the Palestinian Authority. The USSC had access to both the Israeli and Palestinian investigations, State Department spokesman Ned Price said. By summarizing both investigations, the USSC concluded that gunfire from IDF positions was likely responsible for the death of Shireen Abu Akleh, the statement said, adding that the coordinator found no reason to believe that this was intentional. If the Israeli are found subverting justice, as they have done many times, there is a simple solution to fix this. Sanction them and cut off their shekels.

White House press secretary Karine Jean-Pierre faced renewed backlash from reporters and Twitter users alike after yelling at the press pool during Fauci's conference. After Fauci spoke about the administration's vaccine efforts, Daily Caller White House correspondent Diana Glebova attempted to ask a question regarding investigations into the origin of the coronavirus. Instead of answering, Jean-Pierre rebuked Glebova for being disrespectful. Asking a valid question is now deemed disrespectful, Jean-Pierre is not a press secretary she is a firewall of a dictatorship.

Two women who accused Jeffrey Epstein of sexual abuse have filed lawsuits against JP Morgan Chase and Deutsche Bank.

They accuse the banks of ignoring red flags about their client and benefiting from the late financier's alleged sex-trafficking operations.

The disgraced financier took his own life in a prison cell while awaiting trial on sex-trafficking charges. (M)

Both lawsuits were filed in New York on Thursday as class action cases.

They were brought by lawyers who have represented dozens of the deceased billionaire's accusers.

The women, who are also seeking financial damages, are not named in the filings.

According to claims in the lawsuit filed against JP Morgan Chase, one woman, described as a former ballet dancer, was abused by Epstein and his associates between 2006 and 2013.

It alleges that JP Morgan knew that its accounts were being used for trafficking because of the identity of the individuals withdrawing large sums of cash, as well as Epstein's well-documented criminal history.

In a separate lawsuit against Deutsche Bank, another woman claims she was trafficked for sex by Epstein for 15 years, starting in 2003 when she first moved to New York.

It claims that in some instances Epstein would pay the woman directly in cash for sex acts.

The lawsuit suggests that the wealthy Epstein turned to Deutsche Bank when ties were severed with JP Morgan around 2013.

It also refers to previous findings by New York banking regulators about Deutsche Bank's business with Epstein.

They concluded that although the bank properly classified Epstein as high-risk, it failed to scrutinize the activity in the accounts for the kinds of activity that were obviously implicated by Epstein's past.

Deutsche Bank previously admitted that it made a critical mistake when taking on Epstein as a client.

But a spokesman for the investment bank said on Thursday: We believe this claim lacks merit and will present our arguments in court. Good luck with the court case, but anything related to wealthy Jewish people are generally squashed, like a permanent day of atonement. Or they cite national security issues.

Yet more evidence of what I warned of in relation to Jewish people. Of how the public would turn against them badly, appears it is unfolding. As multiple Israelis have reported an atmosphere of hostility and hatred at the World Cup in Qatar, with fans refusing to speak to Israeli journalists, waving Palestinian flags in the background of their videos and yelling at them. Moav Vardy, KAN's foreign affairs reporter, was yelled at by a Saudi fan, who told him that, you are not welcome here, this is Qatar, this is our country, there is only Palestine, no Israel. Other videos from Qatar show people immediately walking away when they find out the person interviewing them is Israeli. In one particular video, N12's Ohad Hemo begins to interview a group of Lebanese men who walk away when Hemo tells them he's Israeli. One of them then turns back and asks Hemo what he's doing there and then tells him that Israel doesn't exist. In other videos, people stand behind various Israeli reporters and raise Palestinian flags to protest against Israel. Until the Jewish people realize the problem is who and what they are supporting and stop it, they will face the public barrage as his or their story unravels. Thankfully this was peaceful rejection, but it won't always be that way, is my concern.

Iran's state-affiliated media has called for FIFA to kick USA out of the World Cup after they posted an altered image of the Iranian flag as a show of support for women's rights in Iran. The official Twitter account of the US national football team posted an image of the World Cup Group B standings, but decided to remove the Islamic Republic's Allah emblem and the takbirs from Iran's three-colored flag. The USMNT account posted an image of the group which only showed the Iranian flag bearing its green, white and red colors but without any symbol of the Islamic Republic. This has allegedly breached FIFA guidelines, as pointed out by Iran's state-affiliated media Tasnim News Agency. The USMNT say the gesture was to show support for the women in Iran fighting for basic human rights. Since when has the US been interested in the people unless it fulfills an agenda? Blacks, gays, women etc, do you really think your Government cares about you? You are deluded if you think so. No doubt the USMNT is being ran by the clowns at Langley. Typical stupid child level antics and what is worse is, some people support them in their stupidity. It is kindergarten level behavior, all supported by the Jewish EL-ite media, designed to disrupt countries who will not allow them to rampage everywhere. It is the US agitators who are organizing the disruption in Iran currently, when that money would be better spent on the people in this country.

MEDICAL PIECES: This came from the Washington Post and I said we would see a lot more of these types of reports, it is slow drip disclosure admitting they were all wrong. Being wrong is ok, bringing death for your wrong is not. For the first time, a majority of Americans dying from the coronavirus received at least the primary series of the vaccine. Fifty-eight percent of coronavirus deaths in August were people who were vaccinated or boosted, according to an analysis conducted for The Health 202 by Cynthia Cox, vice president at the Kaiser Family Foundation. It's a continuation of a troubling trend that has emerged over the past year. As vaccination rates have increased and new variants appeared, the share of deaths of people who were vaccinated has been steadily rising. In September 2021, vaccinated people made up just 23 percent of coronavirus fatalities. In January and February this year, it was up to 42 percent, per our colleagues Fenit Nirappil and Dan Keating. We can no longer say this is a pandemic of the unvaccinated, Cox told The Health 202. Being unvaccinated is still a major risk factor for dying from covid-19. But efficacy wanes over time, and an analysis out last week from the CDC highlights the need to get regular booster shots to keep one's risk of death from the coronavirus low, especially for the elderly. Anthony Fauci, the nation's preeminent infectious-disease expert, (M) Fauci is the infectious disease, he used his last White House briefing yesterday ahead of his December retirement, to urge Americans to get the recently authorized omicron-specific boosters. The final message I give you from this podium is that please, for your own safety, for that of your family, get your updated covid-19 shot as soon as you're eligible, he said. The rest of the article went onto providing a plethora of excuses, none of which are valid. More back-pedaling it seems, it will be interesting to see how they keep rolling this out, and also how the vaxxed and disbelieving masses think. Will there be some sort of Executive Order to make all medical people and organizations immune (pardon the pun) from lawsuits?

SOCIETY PIECES: Children as young as four will be able to change their gender at school without their parents' consent under guidance introduced in Scotland. Any pupil who decides they want to switch gender must be supported and listened to in school following the Scottish Government advice. The guidance applies in primary schools, where the youngest children are only four or five, because recognition and development of gender identity can occur at a young age. Take a bow Scottish Education Secretary Shirley Somerville, with the initial of SS, is predictably fitting, what a psychopath she is. I guess the real meaning of education is not lost on her. Quite obviously that will cause outrage amongst the populace, but does that not set a precedent? Because if a child of four can decide their gender, surely they can decide whether or not they are branded by a religious dogma? they can decide whether or not to go to school? They can decide to vote? Where does it end? As for the parents, what they are telling you is, you have no say with your child. The last two years have shown that, children can change their gender and get jabbed with no consent of the parents. Actually they are revealing they own the children, not the parents. If the state own the children, then the state has to pay for them, you do realize that? The question is; what are the parents going to do?

Speaking of transgender, a UK priest cause outrage when he suggested the Jesus was transgendered based on a picture with a cut on his chest, because it looked like a vagina. These people are lunatics.

EXPOSE: This is two separate pieces that explains the division of the peoples, whilst separate, both go back to a common ancestor, theme and peoples. This yet again validates our series FHSTOS, and also why that series was written for the shows and now into books, to end the lies that brings division, war and death. The base of the problem, the cause, is yet again overlooked for the effects, division and violence. The cause is religion. Thirty years after mobs demolished a historic mosque in Ayodhya, triggering a wave of sectarian bloodshed that saw thousands killed, fundamentalist Indian Hindu groups are eyeing other Muslim sites, even the world-famous Taj Mahal. Emboldened under Hindu nationalist Prime Minister Narendra Modi, aided by courts and fueled by social media, the fringe groups believe the sites were built on top of Hindu temples, which they consider representations of India's true religion. Currently most in danger is the centuries-old Gyanvapi mosque in Varanasi, one of the world's oldest continually inhabited cities, where Hindus are cremated by the Ganges. Recent reports claimed a leaked court-mandated survey of the mosque had discovered a shivalinga, a phallic representation of the Hindu god Shiva, at the site. Always a phallic symbol with these fake gods. This means that is the site of a temple according to government minister Kaushal Kishore, saying that Hindus should now pray there. Muslims have already been banned from performing ablutions in the water tank where the alleged relic was found, mosque authorities say it is a fountain. The fear now is that the Islamic place of worship will go the way of the Ayodhya mosque, which Hindu groups believe was built on the birthplace of Ram, another deity. The frenzied destruction of the 450-year-old building in 1992 sparked religious riots in which more than 2,000 people died, most of them Muslims, who number 200 million in India. The demolition was also a seminal moment for Hindutva or Hindu supremacy, paving the way for Modi's rise to power in 2014. The movement's core tenet has long been that Hinduism is India's original religion, and that everything else from the Mughals, originally from Central Asia to the British, is alien. Some groups have even set their sights on UNESCO world heritage site the Taj Mahal, India's best-known monument attracting millions of visitors every year. Despite no credible evidence, they believe that the 17th-century mausoleum was built by Mughal emperor Shah Jahan on the site of a Shiva shrine. It was destroyed by Mughal invaders so that a mosque could be built there, Sanjay Jat, spokesman for the hardline organization Hindu Mahasabha. The Mughals are related to Genghis Khan. This month a court petition was filed by a member of Modi's party trying to force India's archaeological body, the ASI, to open up 20 rooms inside, believing they contained Hindu idols. The ASI said there were no such idols and the court summarily dismissed the petition. But it was not the first such case and it is unlikely to be the last. I will continue to fight for this till my death, Jat said. We respect the courts but if needed we will demolish the Taj and prove the existence of a temple there. Audrey Truschke, an associate professor of South Asian history with Rutgers University, said the claims about the Taj Mahal are about as reasonable as the proposals that the Earth is flat. So far as I can discern, there is not a coherent theory about the Taj Mahal at play here, so much as a frenzied and fragile nationalist pride that does not allow anything non-Hindu to be Indian, and demands to erase Muslim parts of Indian heritage. But while the demolition of the Taj Mahal remains for now, at least, a pipe-dream of the fundamentalists, other sites are also in the crosshairs. They include the Shahi Idgah mosque in Mathura, built by the Mughal emperor Aurangzeb after he attacked the city and destroyed its temples in 1670. The mosque is next to a later temple built on what is believed to be the birthplace of the Hindu god Krishna. Recently a court agreed to hear a lawsuit demanding the removal of the mosque, one of a slew of similar petitions. Police in the northern city have been put on alert. Another is Delhi's Qutub Minar, a 13th-century minaret and victory tower built by the Mamluk dynasty, also from Central Asia. Some Hindu groups believe it was constructed by a Hindu king and that the complex housed more than 25 temples. Such claims were born of a very sparse knowledge of the past, the historian Rana Safvi said. Instead, a sense of victimhood was being fueled by social media misinformation, she said, making them believe it's the gospel truth. If only these people were as passionate of improving the everyday lives of the living as they are of the dead, how things would be so much better now. The fight over the temples is the effect, but no one is focusing on the cause. This religious cult has wasted so much time and energy, wasted millions of people's lives and renders billions to the reality of this program, a full on harvesting cult. If their gods are all so powerful, why haven't they come to save their people and the so called temples? Never has such turmoil been created by a few books telling a largely fake story, caused so much damage. No can prove who wrote the books, and no one can prove the validity of them either, meanwhile the Indian people and many others around the world suffer because of it. Frankly I find the whole thing bizarre at best, and absurd at worst. We now go from India to Israel, just like the FHSTOS book. Israel is panicking over demographics, and yet another ouroboros fails it seems. These people are beyond stupid, running program after program to keep their perceived hegemony, yet lose it anyway due to their own programs. Chaim Silberstein, the head of an NGO called Keep Jerusalem, said that if current demographic trends in the city continue, then if east Jerusalem Arabs decide to vote, within 15 years they could elect an Arab mayor of the capital. One has to ask, what is wrong with making that choice? Isn't that a racist statement to make? Why should Israel only vote for Jews, when the same Jewish EL-ites are imposing multiculturalism on everyone else? It is they who are pushing mass migration into Europe and America, via Soros Foundations and other Jewish EL-ites connections, but the soon as it starts imposing on them, out comes the pity party again of, oh the poor Jews. Truth be known, if all Jews were poor this world would be a better place, fact. Before the Six Day War, Arabs made up only 1% of the part of divided Jerusalem under Israeli control. When Israel took control of the entire city in 1967 and expanded the municipal borders to include several Arab villages, the Arab population rose to 70,000, constituting some 26% of the united city's entire population. By 1990 the Jewish-Arab breakdown was 72% to 26% favoring the Jews, falling to 68%-32% in 2010, and now standing at about 60%-40%. Jerusalem's current population stands at 958,000, of which 581,000 (354,000 Arabs and 227,000 Jews) live in areas that Israel gained control of in 1967. That's what happens when you A: get greedy and B: invade other people's territory. He said estimates are that some 125,000 Arabs out of the 354,000 Arab residents of the city live in structures built without the necessary permits. According to Silberstein, the demographic problem can be solved in one of three ways. This next bit tells you of their panic, and also how they want to control the new version as well. The people of the area need to close ranks and tell them where to go, in my opinion. As any plans of theirs, never ends well for we the people. The first is by massive building, he said that his organization presented a plan to the Housing Ministry showing where 110,000 units could be built within existing municipal borders. Which equates to new settlements. The second way would be through creating a Greater Jerusalem that would include in its borders Ma'aleh Adumim to the north and Gush Etzion to the south, as well as Mevaseret Zion and Givat Ze'ev. Which equates to Greater Israel the establishment and nothing to do with benefiting the people. But guess where Silberstein modeled the new settlements and Israel on? The newly reconfigured city would be organized into a system resembling the boroughs that make up New York City. Yes, lets first replicate and then when completed, replace New York. Is that why New York is being run down? This would add tens of thousands of more Jews to the city, and free up hundreds of dunams of land for construction and industry. So, only to benefit Jews he said, imagine if Britain, Canada, America and other European countries did that? The cries of foul and racism would be unmerciful. The other option to change the demographic dynamics is to simply draw out of Jerusalem's boundaries the Arab neighborhoods of Kafr Akab and the Shuafat refugee camp, which are beyond the security barrier but still inside Jerusalem's municipal boundaries. Each of these neighborhoods, he said, numbers some 70,000 residents, so drawing them outside of Jerusalem's municipal boundaries and creating new Israeli municipal authorities for them, would immediately redress the demographic problem in the city. In other words cut them off and probably build another wall. Why is demographic important to them? Does anyone ask? And if demographics are important to them, why is it not considered important for Arabs or the white race? The primary reason this solution is opposed on the right is, concern that lopping off Arab neighborhoods would set a precedent for dividing Jerusalem, even though both these areas are beyond the security barrier and areas where the municipality has not exerted control. Another objection to such a move is the argument that relinquishing Jerusalem's control over these neighborhoods would create considerable security challenges. Long-term trends playing themselves out on the ground will determine the future of the city more than political declarations. Sitting in the house that Ariel Sharon bought in the Muslim Quarter in 1987, Silberstein told a tale of how he met Sharon in 2003, a couple of years after Sharon became prime minister. Sharon told Silberstein how, before the Six Day War, he took one of his sons to a hill overlooking the Old City, which was then under Jordanian control. That is ours, but it is not in our hands, Silberstein quoted Sharon as telling his son. Now, Sharon told Silberstein, encouraging the acquisition of Jewish property throughout the city and the assertion of Israeli control, it is in our hands, but not ours. The sentiment reflected in those comments, that Israel's sovereignty is being undermined by various actors, and exists throughout the city in name only, is even more pronounced today than it was when Sharon made that comment 19 years ago. Sharon was a psychopath and murderer let us not forget, Israel's sovereignty they cry, comes at the expense of everyone else's sovereignty. Who gave them the right to decide they are above everyone else on this planet? Remember the ancestors of these people were hostile invaders to our planet. Let's reverse Sharon's comment shall we, encouraging the acquisition of the people's property throughout the planet and the assertion of the peoples control, it is in our hands, but not ours. But it can and will be, and they will have a place here the same as everyone else, if they learn to behave and stop subverting our entire planet with their self-appointed special status and pure greed. And yes it is our planet, not theirs. They are visitors.

OTHER PIECES: This piece highlights the stupidity of getting involved in things we really do not understand. But, the desire for some people to be a part of something, lures people into these programs with devastating consequences. The warnings of these programs needs to be taught in schools and adult classes. Rumors surrounding the unexplained and sudden death of Kat Restin, a young woman from Virginia, continue to circulate on social media outlets. These rumors claim she tried to summon an African spirit using the practice of voodoo, and subsequently died after being visited by Papa Legba, a Haitian deity associated with serving as an intermediary between the spirit world and the human world. The report went onto dismissing claims of how she died and also in part dismissing the practice. Who or what is Papa Legba? Papa Legba is a lwa in Haitian Vodou, Winti and Louisiana Voodoo, who serves as the intermediary between the lwa and humanity. He stands at a spiritual crossroads and gives or denies permission to speak with the spirits of Guineé, and is believed to speak all human languages. Who made him god? Deciding when to speak or not? In Haiti, he is the great elocutionist, Legba facilitates communication, speech, and understanding. He is commonly associated with dogs. Papa Legba is invoked at the beginning of every ceremony. Papa Legba has his origins in the historic West African kingdom of Dahomey, located within present-day Benin. Dahomey was the major supplier of African slaves. The names Dahomey, Danxome and Danhome all have a similar origin story, Dakodonu requested additional land from a prominent chief named Dan or Da. An awful lot of Dans in there, is that the origin of the tribe of Dan? Dan means chief. Dahomey became an adversary to the British Empire after the abolition of slavery during the 19th century. The United States never established any formal diplomatic relations with the Kingdom of Dahomey. However, the last known slave ship that sailed to the United States secretly and illegally imported a group of 110 slaves from Dahomey, purchased long after the abolition of the slave trade. The British sent diplomatic missions to Dahomey in an effort to convince King Ghezo to abolish human sacrifice and slave trading. The continued saga of the human sacrifice appears to be the operations of all the older tribes. Human sacrifice was an important part of the practice. During the Annual Custom, 500 prisoners would be sacrificed. In addition, when a ruler died, hundreds, to thousands of prisoners would be sacrificed. In 1727, an English trader alleged that he witness the Dahomey massacre 400 people during a Vodun ceremony, the number is also often reported to be 4,000. He usually appears as an old man on a crutch or with a cane, wearing a broad-brimmed straw hat and smoking a pipe, or drinking dark rum. Legba is syncretized with Saint Peter, Saint Lazarus, and Saint Anthony. His veve incorporates a walking cane on the right side, offerings to him typically include candy. Legba is a favorite Lwa of children due to his jolly, grandpa-like image. He is often tasked with babysitting and distracting children, a typical male role in the matrilineal religion, while more serious rituals are being performed by the adults. In Benin, Nigeria, Togo, and Ghana, mainly among the Yoruboid and Gbe Tadoid peoples, Legba is viewed as a young and virile trickster deity, often horned and phallic, and his shrine is usually located at the gate of the village in the countryside. Horned? Like Moses then, phallic? Like Osiris or Shiva. Alternatively, he is addressed as Legba Atibon, Atibon Legba or Ati-Gbon Legba. Papa Legba is thought to have emerged from the Yoruba and Gbe (Tadoid) diaspora as a continuation of the Orisha Eshu. Ori are known as the personal patron of each individual Yoruba person, all very Stargate that to me. This emerged as Lwa Papa Legba in Haitian vodou, spirit Papa Laba in New Orleans Hoodoo and as the Oricha Elegua in Santeria. Typically he appears in the arts, whether video, music, movies or tv shows, an all too common theme that. In his study of the Delta blues, Robert Palmer discusses the appearance of Legba in blues lyrics and lore. Palmer notes that Legba can be referred to/identified as the Devil, Papa Legba and The Black Man throughout the history of the blues. This is also made clear in ethnomusicologist Bruno Blum's text for the CD box set Voodoo in America, where reference to Papa Legba, deity of roads and crossroads in Robert Johnson's iconic song Crossroads is explained. There is extensive referencing to voodoo in the Sprawl trilogy 1984-1988 by William Gibson. In the second book, Count Zero 1986, Papa Legba stands at the gateway to cyberspace as the master of roads and pathways, with other loa appearing throughout the book. Loa like Iwa is a god in the voodoo religion of Haiti. Papa Legba and Voodoo appear again in Spook Country 2007, a book from one of Gibson's other trilogies. Gibson also wrote this as the opening sentence of Neuromancer 1984; The sky above the port was the color of television, tuned to a dead channel. Ponder on that line for a while. A 1985 episode of the TV series Miami Vice in Season 2, Episode 8, called the Tale of the Goat, centers on a malign Vodou priest by the name of Papa Legba. The story of the goat? Are we talking Baphomet here? In keeping with the image of Legba often conceptualized in Haitian Vodou subculture, Papa Legba is depicted as controlling the gateway to the spiritual world through the use of drugs, walking with the aid of crutches, and smoking a pipe. “Controlling the gateway to the spiritual world through the use of drugs”, yes indeed it does, but you enter a very differing spiritual world than people imagine, essentially a gateway of hell. All done by the use of drugs. The drugs based enlightenment is on a par with the enlightenment of the Illuminati, it is the false light. It is another version of snake oil, to wean off people from one program to another. For those of a religious persuasion, here are some facts to consider: A: you cannot be spiritual and religious B: you cannot be spiritual and do drugs C: you cannot enter the mental planes doing drugs. The musical group Talking Heads made a song named after him, the song can be found on their 1986 album and soundtrack to the David Byrne film of the same name called True Stories. The Danish band Volbeat features what appears to be a cartoon interpretation of Papa Legba in their 2017 animated video for The Black Rose. The Black rose? Perhaps his story will reveal more about that? The most common meaning of the black rose is that of death. The color black is commonly used in funerals and cemeteries, and it is often associated with death and mourning. Also, it can be associated with bad luck in some cultures, as it is believed to attract bad spirits. Attracts bad spirits indeed, they also represent lust and vanity. Which is the absence of love and unbalanced ego. The color black is also associated with evil, bad luck and bad spirits, that is because of the jet black race Lucifer brought here. The black roses also mean hatred, regret and tragedy, as the dark color of the rose represents the negative thoughts and feelings associated with it. The black rose was a sign of power and strength in ancient civilizations such as Ancient Greece and Ancient Rome. Which means it is Draconian in origin, remember Anu’s symbol was the rose. In China, Japan, Korea, and many other Asian countries associate the black rose with death and mourning. Remember those countries are associated with Sirius, and also invaded by the Kali Ma exiles. Speaking of the Kali Ma brings in India, and it will come as no surprise that, India associates the black rose with good luck, completion of a project and achievement. Remember India still celebrates Shiva, known as the destroyers of worlds. South Africans associate it with the bloodstains of the war of the Boers. Was it Boers or Bauers which is Bayers? It is as clear as “Orange” for me. Spanish people connect it with death and as a symbol of lost love. The black rose has been known and loved throughout history, but there’s no clear evidence of its first appearance. Actually, it doesn’t exist. Although symbolically it does and reminds me of a story the then 3-4-year-old grandchild of mine relayed symbolically to the family, who didn’t get it, but I did. I had just split with the ex-wife and I wasn’t popular in visiting to eldest sons and his wife and things were frosty, and the grand-daughter knew it. I will back up 4 days prior to that when I had a dream with the grand-daughter of being in the woods with her and picking flowers. The following Sunday upon my visit, the granddaughter called for an audience and proceeded to tell a story. I instinctively knew this would be interesting, and looked at youngest son and nodded, he knew what was going on but couldn’t say anything. She then told a story of me and her going to the woods to pick flowers. I got a blue one and her mother got a yellow one, and carried on telling those there the color of the flowers. Her mom said but you have left out my ex-wife and my eldest son her father, what flowers did they get? Following a long pause and turning her back on them both, she said they got black flowers. I knew immediately what she meant, those two were plotting against me and she was warning me. That was the last time I was allowed near or saw the grandchildren, September 2013, just 6 weeks after starting my radio show host career. And yes that was deliberate on their part, no longer was I mute and controlled, so they and the system operating them plotted against me, including all of the friends I had in Florida and some of my own family. This is what happens when you speak of truth and raise your vibration, it makes you a target with some brutal consequences, too few will tolerate the levels of interference in your life. Their loss became your gain, but never let anyone tell you being a public figure is pleasant, it's not and has been at times a brutal journey of sacrifice. But, despite all that sadness I managed to overcome all of that and pushed on, that is a lesson for us all. No matter what shit life throws at you, keep being and trust in yourself and keep going. So where did it all begin? this black rose narrative? It is said it can be traced back to the ancient culture of Persia. Not our type of Persia which is Iran/Iraq, but their type of Persia after their hostile takeover, the Sumerian Anunnaki. Many times, the black rose was used by these ancient Persians as a symbol of fertility and life. Who speaks most of fertility and life? Egypt, but more like genetics-based fertility and the afterlife. Which brings in the dark spirits again. Papa Legba is a recurring character in American Horror Story, appearing in the third and eighth season, as a gatekeeper of the afterlife. He is an acquaintance of Marie Laveau, having granted her immortality in exchange for the offering of one innocent every year. Immortality for sacrifice? There is the seducement program again, signing them up for the Metatronic. Immortality like magic and money, comes with a price, a heavy one. Papa Legba's portrayal in the show has attracted some criticism, with many noting that the portrayal of Papa Legba was more similar to Baron Samedi than the mythical Papa Legba himself. Who is Baron Samedi? Baron Samedi means Baron Saturday, also written Baron Samdi, Bawon Samedi or Bawon Sanmdi, is one of the loa of Haitian Vodou. He is a loa of the dead, along with Baron's numerous other incarnations Baron Cimetière, Baron La Croix and Baron Criminel. Which is cemetery, the cross and criminal, bit like the church then isn't it? He is the head of the Gede family of loa; his brothers are Azagon Lacroix and Baron Piquant and he is the husband of Maman Brigitte. Together, they are the guardians of the past, of history and of heritage. Maman Brigitte was a voodoo goddess, also referred to as Manman, all very avatar or walk in that. Azagon: Mode go goats and sheep in a row along the paths, also use the word azagon with the same meaning that on the spot. Is AZ short for Azazel which had a realm in another AZ, Arizona. Agon means conflict, and so the Azazel conflict. Azazel is another of the spirit demons. In the Bible, the name Azazel appears in association with the scapegoat rite; the name represents a desolate place where a scapegoat bearing the sins of the Jews during Yom Kippur was sent. The Day of atonement goes back a long way it seems, yet too few ask, as to why everyone has to bear the sins of the Jews? Baron Samedi is the leader of the Gede, loa with particular links to magic, ancestor worship and death, all very Egyptian then. Loa means voodoo god, as I write this Mauna Loa has erupted on Hawaii, Mauna Loa means the silent voodoo god. I guess it is not silent anymore, pay close attention to that eruption, particularly those on the west coast. The former President-for-Life of Haiti, François Duvalier, known as Papa Doc, modeled his cult of personality on Baron Samedi; he was often seen speaking in a deep nasal tone and wearing dark glasses. Due to affiliation with François Duvalier, Baron Samedi is linked to secret societies in the Haitian government and includes them in his domain. Baron Samedi is usually depicted with a top hat, black tail coat, dark glasses and cotton plugs in the nostrils, as if to resemble a corpse dressed and prepared for burial in the Haitian style. All very men in black that. But the old man in the top hat I have encountered a few times, the last being to remove him from the Trustees home, he and it was syphoning her life force, and she ignored it despite her daughter seeing him as well. Some people do love to meddle with things they do not understand. The dancing with spirits may seem fun, but with little to no knowledge of what we are dancing with or what we are engaging, it is not something we should be doing. Like the ayahuasca ceremonies, same thing, dancing in the spirit world with zero knowledge is a recipe for disaster. Once they attach to and with you, that person is in deep trouble, as there are too few people who understand it and even fewer who can deal with the attachment. This is the realm of witchcraft, and some people are that enamored with being part of something they will insert themselves into a program of dire consequences. Witchcraft light or dark is one and the same, magic light and dark is one and the same, and it always comes with a price.

EXPOSE: This following piece is a product of much pondering on several different topics, and goes across many of our shows. Three apparently separate pieces, two of which are news items brings us to a stunning conclusion. The great ignoring of male problems continues largely in silence around the world, as the advertisers and think tanks wants it to remain that way. Men are not as complaining about medical issues, particularly anything sexual related, and this sets up this piece in many ways. The medical focus is all on the female problems, particularly the last 50 years since the rise of Feminism they say, but feminism did not become the main theme for many of the western women, it was the rise of the female Masculinity side we have all witnessed and indeed suffered. The men are left as a shadow of their former selves and the male role type now reduced to a more feminine role. One female member stated, she feels men are more caring and compassionate than females today, and that is evidenced within our own group, but it is being endeavored to change that and great work is underway on that aspect of it. But an important thing to remember in the female group is, you are there to change you only, not the whole species, that is their responsibility. But let's see if we can create some sort of role models, operating in a better way. The female is now the warrior and the male more nurturing in general, by general I mean across a spectrum and not individuals. The only problem is, the female warrior is not as good at it, and the male nurturing is not as good as the female nurturing. That is my opinion and people can take it or leave it. If triggered by those statements, address it within, as ignoring the truth and facts of it, will never correct it. Forget matriarchy and patriarchy, yet more duality rubbish they hoist upon us to give the illusion one is better than the other, it is not, no matter how much male or female posturing you put forth. Why doesn't either work? Because it was supposed to be all equal, but the males took on the better portions of the female, and the female took on the worst portions of the male, one could state they took on the male reptilian form. Remember the term; let us make man in our image? Now apply that to what I have just said, and perhaps it all now makes sense. The bible was not written by or on behalf of humans, only the reptile versions of it. Hence it is riddled with violence, incest, plagues, pestilence and pedastry, do they sound holy? Or human qualities? I remember starting to read it aged around 7, and the word in the first number of pages was, begat. What is begat? The definition of begat means you had offspring. An example of begat is a woman who gave birth to two children. Begat, commonly spelled as beget, refers to an event, action or thing that caused something else to happen. An example of begat is when a court decision starts a riot. Begat means you had offspring, it didn't say what type of offspring did it? Begat is a woman who gave birth to two children, twins, digital or otherwise. Remember all the study of twins? Perhaps you need to ponder as to why? Beget, refers to an event, action or thing that caused something else to happen, hold onto that thought as this piece unfolds. Offspring means: a person's child or children, remember a person is a fiction. It also means an animal's young, which one? And also the product or result of something, just like the last beget meaning. Synonyms connected to offspring are; progeny, fruit, spawn and seed. The latter two may trigger an ah ha moment. Progeny; a descendant or the descendants of a person, animal, or plant; offspring. Progeny can also mean; a body of followers, disciples or successors. Now are you getting it? That was the introduction per se, now let's get into the two news pieces that came out recently and made me ponder again. The first states that; Men are producing fewer sperm all over the world. According to a recent study published in the academic journal Human Reproduction Update, men of all demographics are seeing a significant enough reduction in sperm count that scientists are calling for awareness. If this reduction continues at its current pace it could lead to human extinction. Human extinction on Earth? Who would that benefit? According to the study, men have seen an overall reduction of 1.2 percent in average sperm count each year from 1973 to 1999. That accelerated after 2000 to 2.6 percent per year on average. So it got worse after 2000 just as the extra DNA children came in, perhaps the fear porn piece of Y2K, was more KY- 2K, as in KY jelly. The origins and meaning of the brand name 'K-Y®' are unknown, that is a red flag for a start. But it was developed by a pharmaceutical company in New York, now alarm bells should be ringing. The two owners Van Horn and Satwell went onto working after bankruptcy with, Johnson and Johnson. However, it is not only the future of fertility and avoiding human extinction that is at stake. Finding out why men are experiencing this reduction in sperm counts is important because it affects men's health in other ways. Some known causes of lower sperm counts include diabetes, depression, drinking, drugs and obesity. All of which is caused by these very same people, from one hook to another. But the global silence about male fertility problems, has created for them a nice vacuum to fill. All of which leads to infertility issues, which brings us to the next item.

How Common Is Infertility? Probably more common than you think. According to the National Survey of Family Growth conducted by the CDC, approximately 1 in 8 couples struggle with infertility. It's estimated that 48.5 million couples worldwide struggle with infertility. Let's ignore those figures shall we, as the CDC uses Johns Hopkins math, just like their VAERS system, it is grossly under estimated. Given the whole piece we did on sterilization of females in several countries in FHSTOS Part 9, that must also add to the list. According to the CDC's national report on Assisted Reproductive Technology or ART, there were 231,936 fertility treatment cycles performed in America in 2015. The CDC reports 186,157 ART cycles in which an embryo was transferred. Of these 186,175 procedures, 60,778 resulted in live births, thanks to ART, 72,913 infants were delivered in 2015. 1 million: Number of babies born in the United States between 1987 and 2015 through the use of IVF or other assisted reproductive technologies, according to a report released in 2017 by the U.S. Society of Assisted Reproductive Technology (SART). Assisted reproductive technologies include IVF or the use of an egg donor, sperm donor or adopted embryo. Adopted embryo should be noted. The article stopped at 2015 for ART, art is creative, but where they creating? And more importantly what? 2016 saw a rise of 32K to 263K, by 2018 that became 306K, could not find any further figures after 2018. Further figures shows 9% of males suffer fertility issues, 11% of females, what a 9-11 that is! In approximately 40 percent of infertile couples, the male partner is either the sole cause or a contributing cause of infertility. Where is the male support for that fact? Can you see the problem and program now? Intero-vitro fertilization, Intero means complete, whole, intact or full. Vitro means outside the living body and in an artificial environment. Combined it becomes a full living body outside of the body in an artificial environment. Let's recap some of that, 61k live births, but 73K infants delivered, so an extra 12k children born were multiples, roughly 17%, one in every six children. What are the normal odds of giving birth to twins?

Within the general population in the 21st century, the chances of having twins are about 3 in 100, which is 3%, compared to 17%. Researchers have recorded an increase of nearly 60% since the early 1980s. Is that due to the IVF?

The next part gets into the shekel making process, it is like a double or triple whammy in overview, not sure whether these sums are 2015 prices or now. The average cost of a single IVF cycle in the U.S. is between $10,000 and $15,000, and is dependent upon insurance coverage, patient characteristics and the treatment center. A complete In Vitro Fertilization cycle can cost anywhere from $4,900 to over $30,000. The cost to bring home a baby could indeed be as low as a one cycle total if that cycle is successful, though it's safer to plan for an average that accounts for two IVF retrievals and a few FETs (the average couple undergoing IVF in the US undergoes two IVF cycles). At CNY, that price range is something between $16,000 and $20,000. The national average is in the range of $40,000-50,000. It is not uncommon to encounter those who have spent over $100,000 on treatment. Others show much higher with these costs from 2010. Fertility treatment Median per-person costs: Medications $1,182, IVF (mother's own egg) $24,373 and IVF (donor egg) $38,015. Here comes the snake oil hard sell tactics, and look how you can benefit by donating, yet that donating leads to them selling them. The goal for anyone undergoing IVF is to have plenty of healthy embryos to choose from. More healthy embryos mean more chances to implant those embryos and a greater likelihood of becoming pregnant and giving birth. Sometimes patients have too much of a good thing, though, and wind up with a greater number of healthy embryos than they need. In this case, communication is key. Talk to your doctor about options if you end up making more embryos, like donating to other families who would love to use embryos to grow their families. That's right, embryos can be donated to other families who are unable to conceive using their own embryos via a process called embryo adoption. That would mean that you and your partner would have genetic children who don't live with you, and that your children would have full biological siblings who aren't being raised with them. Have they considered the psychological aspects for those children? No, we have an agenda to carry out and make shekels. If embryo adoption isn't for you, embryos can also be donated to science or destroyed. Whether you donate them or not, they end up in science labs, like Planned Parenthood and are placed in foods and cosmetics. Just be sure that you and your partner (if you have one) are on the same page about what you'll do with extra embryos before beginning the IVF process. If you have a partner? Oh my, if you don't have a partner why would you be involved in making babies? All the hormone shots involved with IVF mean that you'll have lots more hormones than normal coursing through your body. That might leave you irritable, bloated or even turned on. Although it's true that women have to deal with most of the medical procedures associated with IVF, the whole process can be draining for hopeful dads as well. Nice afterthought. But as TJ Farnsworth, of Houston, Texas, a dad by IVF and founder of Aspire Fertility said; the emotional aspect for men is something that gets broadly ignored. To end the shekel portion with this line, it is estimated that the fertility industry in the U.S. is worth $5.8 billion annually. Which is more than 56 countries annual GDP, for perspective. You do realize at this point, we have focused on the effect again, IVF is the effect, but what is the cause?

A recent ruining of mine on the chat was, I told people the tooth fairy, Santa Claus and the baby stork didn't exist. More on ruining later. Someone posted an interesting video of postcards from the 1800's with photoshopping clearly evident. Clouds in the same shape in many postcards taken from differing places, you see I said technology is never new, only re-introduced for an agenda. In the multitude of 1800's postcards was babies everywhere, growing out of cabbages, eggs, the water and various other plant life. Plant life? Remember the line earlier? Progeny; a descendant or the descendants of a person, animal, or plant; offspring. Babies on trains, flying vehicles, zeppelins all attended to by one female. But there was something else in many of the pictures, a stork or heron. The researcher said there was evidence of lots of babies arriving on the register, with no evidence of who was the mother in the 1800's. This got me pondering, the author pondered on the cloning of babies in the 1800's, which was a valid pondering based on the general knowledge available to most of us. But, my pondering went a little deeper, what if those babies were hybrids? The 1800's date is interesting as it brings up the mud floods discussion, but the 1800's had another important milestone that may well play into these additional babies implying they were grown elsewhere and by other than the traditional sexual union method. Remember the line earlier; Beget, refers to an event, action or thing that caused something else to happen, now are you connecting the dots? In the 1800's the Draco agreed to step down and let humans run the planet, which I took with a giant bowl of salt to be honest, I am glad I am honest, because they are not. In my opinion they just got their proxies as controllers up front, whilst they hid in the background. Rothschilds, Rockefeller, Morgan, Warburg, Mellon, Vanderbilt, Harriman, Carnegie, Astor and many others of that ilk began to run things here. Did things get better or worse? I can hear everyone going worse. This enables the Draco to say again, look the humans are messing up again, when they are or were orchestrating it. What if this seeding of babies were all Draco genetics babies? To eventually takeover again by proxy with these engineered and seeded babies, who no doubt went onto becoming the authority figures 30+ years later. This is what the royals have done for years, the males get loads of prostitutes from around the world, for prostitutes read baby factories. The offspring are then sent to the location of the origin of the mother, brought up in their way and heavily funded until they are ready for a top position. It is clever in a way, and nobody is the wiser, no records of the children or their parents, or as we found out with dodgy US Immigration, papers and records go missing or are altered. In the video it showed rows of babies in incubators at a science fair, and stated even the royals came to view it and them, why you may ask? Looking at their progeny? Progeny means spawn and seed remember. The classic recent example of missing or altered papers is, Barry Soetero, better known as Obama. The genetics wars of the Cosmic Genetic series it seems is still ongoing, the recent demographic issue related to Israel tells you that. People would argue but we would know, there would be a difference? There are at least 6 differing versions of Hillary Clinton, a similar number for Britney Spears, two or three versions of Joe Biden and two versions of Trump. The great question is; did or do the masses notice? Of course not. That is why you have to learn to “see”, the 16 members who went to Arizona with me, will tell you we don’t see jack, because their brain is not conditioned to see in a particular way. Upon entering the Petrified Forest, no one said, there is no forest, and that is not a slight on them, as too few can see things in a critical way, they just accept or worse assume. The people don’t see anything, essentially deaf, blind and dumb, I hate to say that, but the facts speak for themselves. If you didn’t see that before 2020, then I warned in 2015 in and from 2020 we would “see”. The Covid debacle has shown you all, just how stupid the masses are, they agree with and to anything the fake authorities will tell them. Even now with overwhelming medical evidence of the fake vaccines and the fake origin of the said virus, people still line up like concentration camp people awaiting their new version of the city of light pill, or in this case vaccine. Never underestimate the people’s ability to ignore the captain obvious and repeat loop-based programs. Maybe they were programmed that way? Ponder on that. The Cosmic Genetics series stated; the Draco are programmed via their DNA to hate humans or be ambivalent towards them. The V Series told us the reps are bred for efficiency, not rendered weak by human emotions. But there was something else in many of the pictures, a stork or heron was said earlier, they both look like the Bennu bird. Which brings in the Phoenix, or not anymore after this year, and the Hebrew Anunnaki, the so called chosen ones and their master race. The phoenix which rises out of the ashes they say, ashes are caused by fire, fires are used on sacrificial altars, holocaust means burnt offerings, what were the sacrificial offerings? Babies. Is it a case that, they sacrificed our babies to replace them with their own via IVF? Beget, refers to an event, action or thing that caused something else to happen. The great question is after this piece is; is begetting another word for replacements? And subsequently hybrids? In 2018, 1.9% of all babies in the U.S. were born thanks to ART. Near 2% may not seem a lot, but totalitarian creep is their method of operations. That 1.9% in 2018, equates to 9.5% in 2022, almost 1 in 10. That is presuming the figure hasn’t increased. Why would the authorities spend so much time convincing us the world is overpopulated, and why since the 1800’s again has this overpopulation been mentioned every decade since. Why then with that rhetoric would they introduce technology to increase the population, when they have spent much time trying to reduce it, as FHSTOS Part 9 revealed? It makes no sense, unless it is a program. Remember despite the reproduction of each female going from 4.7 to in the 2 range, they have told us the population has doubled since the 1950's. The question is; if it has doubled, who are the other half of the population? In FHSTOS we laid out the overwhelming evidence of the Hebrew Anunnaki replacing the white race. That has even been discussed in Congress recently, and also the origin of the Jewish Race being Asian and Khazarian, both of which has come from our shows and now book. So they wished to replace the white race via voodoo magic, mating, wars, sterilizations and various other methods, that much became clear with the figures presented in FHSTOS Part 9. But this hybrid program got me pondering, and the question I pondered on is; are they eliminating the whites via the IVF program, and would the figures support that theory? Participants of the IVF program are as follows; African Americans 4%, Asians 3%, and Hispanics accounted for 1.5%. Caucasians made up the majority of the patients, constituting 91.5% of the patient population. I rest my case. All the evidence points to them inserting their hybrids here to take over the planet and it's natural born organic people. The stork, heron and phoenix all look alike, with a long hooked nose, which race of people have the same features? See picture. Is that indicative? Is that why we have so much bird politics, with left and right wing? Just like the Thoth entity portrayed on the hieroglyphs, half man half bird. Just like the plagues doctors who turned up in bird like masks, for another of the humanity resets in the 16th and 17th centuries. Remember the Jewish diaspora where immune to said plagues and other diseases of that ilk. Begat is a woman who gave birth to two children. Given the fascination with twins, add in the adopted embryo and what are the odds the twin maybe another race or species? They couldn't eliminate the soul, they couldn't get two souls in one vessel, but you can get more than one baby. I guess Cosmic Genetics never went way, but they will in due course. Remember I said in 2020, Covid may bring a silver lining? It did and it has, and so no fear is needed or allowed.

ENDING PIECE: One of the brickbats thrown at me on doing the many shows now is, my ruining of things. I make no apologies for that, as life, history and the things we hold onto of what we thought we understood, is and was all wrong. It was one giant mirror game, all an illusion, a poor copy of the original so to speak on a giant Cosmic scale. This has been a difficult prospect for you all I know, as one by one many of the things, ideologies and thought processes we have held onto for such a long time, suddenly the prospect of it all appears to have not been correct. This is a life altering change for us all, and the great question is; is or was anything sacred on this planet? Not for a very long time is my reply. Ruining things was what was required, no matter how painful it is, being attached to something that is not serving, feeding you or sustaining you, ultimately ends in the ruination of you. Our beliefs and thoughts we have held onto for so long, was ruining us, the evidence of that is now overwhelming. But, it is still a heavy process undertake and many of you reluctantly have done so, and many have done so kicking and screaming at times towards the messenger. But perhaps in overview and look back into time, you will all now see that was what was required to provide the foundation for the potential of something better. I have stated many times over the years that the very Institutions designed to protect, serve or improve us, have been and are all corrupted. The church, schools, Universities, Colleges, Military, Agencies, Governments, Hospitals, Clinic, Medical Divisions, Drug and Alcohol services, Social Services,

Child Protection units, Charity companies, Banking, Wealth advisors, Pension schemes, the food and water industries, the Supplement, Health and Organic industries, the processed food and meat industries and the more recent industries surrounding Technology. All of them are weaponized against we the people, and if you work in them and some of us must, and you are triggered, good, because that means what I have just said is the truth. That is what triggers are for, in essence it is your soul reacting to the truth, the vessel will argue and fight against it, but it doesn't mean it is right. The soul knows right and wrong, the vessel due to too many operating in the controllable head and mind will lie unto itself and do anything to avoid being wrong. We have all done it, all steered ourselves down pointless paths, all argued over pointless things, they may not have seemed pointless at the time, but in overview they are. The classic alt media example of that is, flat Earth. Who cares what shape it is? Round, oval, flat or penis shaped, what does it matter? Will it change things for the better if it is an Osiris style obelisk? No! and so it is a pointless argument that goes round and round like an endless loop. It is called circular argument for a reason, and humanity have been doing circular things for far too long. With circular arguments or otherwise, it cannot change anything, because it is a fixed loop, an enclosed space where everything repeats because there is no opening only external change can bring. In essence what had to happen here is the reverse of what we have to do in here. We needed an external source to come in and change things here, we needed to absorb those changes in here to then facilitate the internal changes we required to provide an external solution to fixing the internal here. Only then can we go within, because what was within was wrong, only then can we observe not absorb after we have done enough soul searching and indeed sin eating. Soul searching is suggestive by the very words, because we had lost our true connection to the soul, and ultimately the Source itself. The sin eating is the reverse also, we had to consume all kinds of narrative that was contrary to what we thought we knew, to then cleanse out the internal and replace it with something better, the truth. Ruin or ruining is the capital letter N analogy, the middle part is where you unlearn the lies to then go on the right hand path and the open gate. But people still persist with certain things that they have refused to let go of, whether it is alcohol, drugs, salt, organic, health foods or supplements, because they are not ready to let go of the lie. And that is ok for the vessel part of you, but is it feeding or hampering the soul is the great question? The biggest hurdles peoples in THI have faced has been the drugs, alcohol and medicinal aspects. The gods introduced alcohol, all the gods drank wine, yet all the gods fell remember, what does that tell you? Drugs were another off world technology initially also, as was agriculture, and only recently are we finding out that agriculture is actually not a good thing, for us, the soil or the planet. Some introduced that technology to fatten up the harvest, the harvest was humans. Everyone has seen now how the medical industries all work against us with the Covid scam. The world's worst joke is; it is for your own health, except it is not funny for the millions of people who have died or suffered at the hands of the scientists, chemists or indeed their real name, alchemists. Al = god and chemists, chemists of the gods. If you have to take any tablet, pill, potion for longer than a few weeks, they don't work, period. They are the ultimate in masks or masking. The body recognizes the symptoms and will act accordingly to the placebo intention of the drugs, the body then produces its own medicine and then can eradicate the problem. This is the theory behind urine therapy. So, if you have to take pills for months, it means they are not providing what the body needs, and so they are no longer of any use to us. Replace the pills all of which were a savior based crutch with your own internal medicines and healing. But the success story of THI is many of you took on board those suggestions, and not one of you has reported back to me any ill effects. In fact many of you have attributed to me of changing your life, no, you did. You have ruined everything Thomas, indeed I did, but the questions back are; A: has it improved your life? B: has it improved your understanding? C: Has it made you a better, more whole and rounded person? How far people will go depends on you not me, I am just the messenger who takes all the flak when you are triggered.
