

THI-SHOW TRANSCRIPT 2023-01-12

Update from the book team: The Hebrew Index for Volume 1 is being translated. Volume 4 has received 3 edits and Volume 3 is receiving extra edits because of the comprehensive nature of the Cosmic Genetics revelations. The marketing team has a new MeWe page, has made progress with videos and memes, and will be discussing strategy in its next zoom. My apologies to the Book team and the group for not getting Volume 2 out within the specified time. There has been bigger things, ponderings, thoughts, plans and potential missions playing out in the background currently, that has to take precedence in my thoughts and energies.

The new web team continues to progress building on the technical expertise left by departing members and in one case also ongoing support still provided; we are very grateful for both. New and old members with varied skills in web design, infrastructure support, digital content creation and project management have answered the call put out on previous THI shows, they stepped up and have joined the Positive Action group and / or the web team. This now allows us to switch to a more proactive approach than the reactive way of operating in the last couple of months. New projects such as indexing of THI topics, creating a database of all show end pieces, improving the setup and security of the websites as needed, creating new websites for the law and gardening groups, all these are projects either currently ongoing or in the near future. We will deliver all these by coming and working together and learning individually and collectively whatever is required. Join us if you know you can make a difference and want to be part of the change!

In December the Law Group facilitated the Intro to Law Series 9, part 2 of Modern Courts. This is a deep subject and led to some great conversation. We finished the zoom with some rich dialogue discussing universal principles from Aikido, Ucadia concepts, and how the two separate bodies of knowledge relate to the same concepts of universal law. This resulted in the Law Group setting up a new series of zooms to explore Ucadia and Aikido and share practical ways to apply these concepts in daily life. The 2nd of these zooms is scheduled for January 20th. The next Intro to Law series, part 10, Testimony and Evidence is scheduled for Sunday January 29th that will cover how police and authorities trick us into consent and self-incrimination through their process and questions, which they use to gather evidence against us. In looking ahead to 2023, we have decided to make an adjustment to the Intro to Law series. We will alternate months and host a Round Table discussion every 2nd month. This will create a format that encourages everyone to speak up, share insights and ask questions. Our objective is to create an environment where everyone is comfortable opening their throat chakra and speaking out.

A new group has been created from the Law Group, called The TPC Community group. This group wants to explore the Ucadia community model and how it can help inform the TPC Community model. They held their 2nd meeting with a discussion on the Ucadia and Yapa rules of creation. The right of free choice comes from the first rule of creation, I choose to be here. The discussion was lively and the exchange of views and perspectives was beneficial. The group is continuing to meet and explore ideas in 2023. Due to time zone challenges we have agreed to set up an Aussie Law Group Zoom schedule so we can work together and support each other in 2023.

The Positive Action Group met in December to reinvigorate the group and get organized. A number of items were discussed and agreements made: Ensure the PA Group is relevant to all members. The feeling was in 2022, that the focus was N. America centric which left the EU members feeling left out. Schedule a new zoom time that enables EU members to attend weekly zooms on a regular basis. Set up a Program structure to manage projects and prioritize work. This ensures people are not getting burnt out, taking on too much and failing to deliver. By focusing on key priorities and tracking progress we can share the workload more evenly and build momentum.

The Web Development team has some new members responding to the call out in the December shows. This is great news and the team is coming together to get organized. The Social Media team is forming, with new members joining the group. Creative juices are flowing, look for some exciting memes and content that will be going out on multiple social media platforms these coming months. We are preparing to support the roll out of the New Blueprint once we get the go ahead. The Book team is also looking for support from the Web Team and conversation has started around how to epublish and prepare for the launch of FHSTOS Book 2. We are also collecting new ideas. As the group makes progress, we hope to phase in new projects in 2023. All in all, a positive end to 2022 leading to a positive start in 2023. Our aim is to build on the momentum created, making 2023 a year where we stand up together and start to make a difference.

The People's Colors focus has been on developing unity with all races, the initial efforts being the black and white races. Our first efforts were directed to people who already have a following and an established platform to reach thousands. Unfortunately, we received no responses from those we reached out to however, there was evidence of our impact, as leaders we reached out to began to quote things stated in the THI weekly shows! We have now turned our focus in a different direction. We will be using the talent within our CG to develop memes through very short imaginative presentations. We will then launch these presentations on social media platforms, we welcome any catchy ideas. Our goals are to promote unity by exposing divide and conquer programs as well as way-showing the benefits of unification in all races. Our next meeting is Sunday January 15th.

In December, 2022 we discussed manifestation. Members shared about recent manifestations they have created. We realize that at this time, because of the high frequencies, manifesting can be produced quickly. We talked about how manifestations affect the all and shared ideas on how we could do this as a group. The topic for the next group was: Recognizing Me from Thee. This was about rediscovering our authentic selves, separating ourselves from the programming and illusions, dismissing thoughts or ideas that we accepted but that are not our own, and we generally discussed non-consent and dissolving and breaking contracts and agreements that are not in alignment with what is in our best and highest good. We are still meeting every other Weds. via Zoom at 11:00 AM EST. and our chat group can be found on MeWe.

In December the Garden Group did a deep dive into berry growing, focusing on the difference between fungal dominant soils and bacterial dominant soils. The experiments in Korean Natural Farming are continuing. There were planning discussions around information to add to the next section of the gardening guide. There was news of farmers losing livestock to the freezing temperatures in Northern Canada. One TPC member experienced more than a week of below 40 degrees Celsius and had to bring their chickens into the basement for several days, so they wouldn't freeze to death. That story had some comic relief as the roosters prevented anyone from sleeping in over the holidays. Solutions for better heating in barns and animal pens are being worked on. The Gardening and Non-GMO Food Communal Gathering continue to meet by zoom every Saturday Morning at 9:00 am MST or 11:00 am EST and the zoom link can be found in the Community Gatherings Forum under the Gardening CG Zoom Link Topic.

Are you ready for some more Zooms? Coming soon will be an open zoom call that will be a series of presentations not done by me this time, but our own members Kevin Yockey and Michael Blaha. A fascinating delve into time, space, numbers and more that corrects the distortions and lies the system, scientists and governments imposed upon us. The first two parts will be presented likely on January 20th, which is a Saturday which allows more people outside of America and Canada to participate. I will be chiming in at key points of it, to add to the overall picture of it.

I am also pondering whether to do another open zoom call, and re-present the presentation I did in the Common Sense zoom in November. I also have in the works a second smaller presentation that may unfold in the same call or a separate one.

NEWS: Funny how elite, famous or infamous people can just go missing isn't it. Just like the body snatchers in the human and organ trafficking piece last week, here is another one. Scientology leader David Miscavige is apparently nowhere to be found, as prosecutors search to serve the controversial figure with a federal child trafficking lawsuit. The Baxters and Paris filed the lawsuit against the church leader earlier this year, and claim they were forced to work on Scientology boats after signing a one-billion-year contract in exchange for no money. Paris also claims she was a victim of sexual assault by church members while still a minor, and that she was locked inside an engine room when she was 17 as punishment for her mother leaving Scientology. Yet another organized religion allowed to continue, despite the plethora of allegations of malevolent actions. You know the so called authorities tasked to address crimes and issues are in the main not, because they are a part of it and the subsequent cover up of it. This is the arrogance of the EL-ites, as UK Prime Minister Rishi Sunak has drawn ridicule for asking a homeless man whether he works in business before giving him a free hot meal. Sunak, a multi-millionaire former hedge-fund manager, made the remark during a visit to a shelter in London. The PM was filmed at the counter of a soup kitchen run by a charity for vulnerable people. At one point a young man, reportedly named Dean, asked Sunak whether he was sorting the economy out. That's exactly what I'm trying to do, the prime minister said, before asking: do you work in business? No, I'm homeless, I'm actually a homeless person but I am interested in business, the man replied. Jackass and harvester, taking a free meal off a homeless shop, heartless these people.

Is this another evidence of a shift against Israel? Or is it part of the faction wars behind the two Jewish Elite based control systems? Either way it is interesting nonetheless, as it highlights the problems so the masses might eventually learn to see. The U.S. Embassy in Israel is considering denying visas to Israelis suspected of violence against Palestinians, the Israel Hayom daily reported on Wednesday. As part of its ongoing examination of the situation in the West Bank, the U.S. Embassy is considering the rejection of visa applications for those suspected of involvement in violence, attempts to intimidate or incitement to crimes against Palestinians, even if these haven't been convicted in court of any wrongdoing. The purpose of the possible shift in policy is to encourage the Israeli government to act in a way that would limit potential clashes, and to reduce the willingness of Israelis to participate in violent incidents. U.S. visa regulations for entry to the country state that those who have committed violent acts or incited violence may not be eligible for a visa, even if they're not prosecuted or convicted. These regulations have been used sparingly against Israelis, but now the embassy is considering implementing them against those suspected of violence against Palestinians. Regardless of the intentions behind it, that is a positive move for the people.

Here is another example of the reverse of policy being implemented because the previous ones failed, all very ouroboros again you have to say. A record number of foreign Jews have immigrated to Israel in 2022, the Jewish Agency nonprofit announced on Thursday, crediting its efforts to encourage Russian and Ukrainian Jews to make the move called Aliyah to their religious homeland. Interesting comment for those who see and question, their religious homeland they said, that is a massive pointer right there. What it doesn't say is, the native homeland, because it is not, and never was. More than 70,000 immigrants called olim chadashim in Hebrew, from 95 different countries have arrived in Israel since January, the agency revealed, which is the highest number in 23 years. The vast majority hail from Russia 37,364 and Ukraine (14,680), with the number of Russian immigrants alone outnumbering the total figure for 2021 of 28,600. The vast majority hailed from the two countries said to be at war with each other, what a coincidence that is, one could almost deduce from that, that the war is deliberately created. Remember in war they say, we fund both sides, indeed. Jews hailing from North America comprised the third largest group of immigrants 3,500, followed by France 2,049, Belarus 1,993, who will be the next target and the land of the 4th Garden of Eden for the Kali Ma refugees, Ethiopia 1,498. People will not in general ask or wonder why this is unfolding, so here is my take on it to ponder on. What if the death currency they will try to implement on us all, is shared by head of the population? A one world government pretending to be fair, all of which is an illusion. More people, equals more shekels for Israel. More trouble in the high-stakes monetary world it seems. The billionaire founder of Ant Group, Jack Ma, is to give up control of the Chinese fintech giant after a regulatory crackdown.

Ant Group said that after the change no-one would have overall control. The formerly flamboyant Mr. Ma has seldom been seen in public since criticizing China's financial sector in 2020. Following that criticism, Ant Group's planned stock market flotation was abruptly halted. Ant Group runs Alipay, the main online payment system in China, which has eclipsed cash, cheques and credit cards. Is it Jack Ma or Kali Ma? Ironic he runs a group called the Ants.

The Ukraine conflict marked a sea-change for the release of intelligence, the head of the spy agency GCHQ Sir Jeremy Fleming has said. GCHQ is the parent company of the NSA. Washington and London took the unusual step of publicizing their knowledge of Russia's plans ahead of its invasion. The head of US intelligence, Avril Haines, said lessons had been learned including the limits of such moves to publicize intelligence. You publicized it for pro pagan da purposes Haines, and it failed again. Sir Jeremy said Ukraine had seen a new type of conflict in which intelligence was at the forefront. It was at the forefront because it was another fake intelligence war game, designed to provoke Russia, except it backfired on them. Ms. Haines agreed, saying the war between Ukraine and Russia had made it clear that, countries cannot manage any threat from around the world without partners or allies. Except partners and allies is all fake as well, allies equals all lies. Keeping the population up-to-date on what we're seeing and involving them in the conversation in a more significant way is crucial, Ms Haines told Sir Jeremy. However, she added there were limitations. In Russia, efforts to share intelligence had basically no impact, because of the control the Kremlin exerted over information flows inside the country. The Kremlin are not the ones who own 94% of the media, so how can they have so much influence? You do the people a disservice. This extended to other countries who began believing the false claims Russia was peddling about the West's involvement in the war, Ms. Haines said. One of their main narratives is that the United States is provoking this conflict, and that NATO and Ukraine are setting the conditions and threatening Russia and that sort of forced them into this position, she said. But that was the truth Ms. Haines wasn't it, why didn't NATO, the US and UK honor the 1991 agreement about no expansion East? Then Ms. Haines, who let's not forget is Jewish and ran torture camps in Asia, said this absolute classic. Authoritarian states have this kind of asymmetric advantage, where they're effectively controlling the information to their populations. (M) Surely you jest Ms. Haines, the classic retort of blame the other side of what you are actually doing, unbelievable the utter shit that comes out of these people's mouths. Sir Jeremy said he supported the sea-change of declassifying certain intelligence, and using it to pre-bunk a narrative, but much of the world had not completely bought into the argument. Exactly, that is what this piece is revealing, they are stumped as a larger majority of the populace are no longer buying their Operation Mockingbird rhetoric. Despite banning RT and various other channels not buying their bs. The truth frequency reigns GCHQ and CIA and your pro pagan da will no longer work and that is great and real news for us all.

The US Congress has passed a nearly $1.7 trillion spending bill, most likely averting a partial government shutdown. The House of Representatives passed the bill on Friday afternoon by 225 votes to 201. The bill will now go to President Joe Biden who needs to sign it before midnight. The package will fund the US government all through the next fiscal year, to 30 September. It had passed the Senate on Thursday by 68 to 29 in a cross-party vote. The 4,155-page budget contains measures to help Ukraine, bolster US defense and funds for US domestic priorities. The bumper package contains $772bn for domestic programs and $858bn for defense. Let's just stop that right there and highlight that shall we, because most Americans won't and therein lies the problem. Let's get two things clear; A: All government money comes from and belongs to the people and B: politicians are supposed to spend it for the benefit of the people. Please explain how then can they allocate $772B for domestic programs, the majority of which will be spent on programs like fake diversity, minorities, divisive programs, clowns and think tanks, but nevertheless they allocated the so-called people $772B out of $1.7T. For the Johns Hopkins math based people, that is 45% of the total. Then they allocate the Military $858B which is $86B more than the people got. Wrap your head around that, $858B for 1.3M employed by the DOD, and $772B for 330M Americans. The defense budget took 50% of the total budget, the people's budget I might add. Where is the outrage? Why are the US Military revered when they steal 50% of our budget to fight in wars, proxy or otherwise, that no one wants? It also includes another $45bn in emergency aid to Ukraine and about $38bn for regions recovering from natural disasters. Biden had asked for $37B and gets $45B for Ukraine, but what's $8B between friends and or agendas? after all it is not their money when allocating it, but miraculously does end up in their pockets via shell corporations and bank accounts. Aid to Ukraine now totals $113B, which is $342 stolen off of every man, woman and child in the country, all 330M of them. So, the emergency aid to Ukraine is more important and voluminous than the emergency aid to Americans? What does that say to Americans? That a Podunk proxy Israel country can be given more of our money, than the actual people who generate the money to begin with, that says it all. It shows just how much our so-called politicians think of their fellow Americans. Yet 300M+ say absolutely nothing, therein lies the real problem. Thieves will carry on thieving whilst they get away with it, and this and every other budget is outright theft. It also authorized $10 billion in security assistance and fast-tracked weapons procurement for Taiwan. Another $10B that should be going to American needs, but no let's spend another $10B on war. Does anyone ask, why the $45B for Ukraine and $10B for Taiwan, not come out of the DOD budget? A pay rise for troops; a 4.6% wage increase for members of the military, on top of the $858B the Military got. Yet inflation rose 9%, and so their wage increase is actually in real terms a decrease of 4.4%. If only people understood basic math? Further Military spending, as increases in housing and food allowances for military families and increased funding for public school constructions on military bases. Ok to fund Military schooling, but not spend on the many crumbling schools for the people? But there is more, as another $106.2 million to repair military facilities damaged by hurricanes Ian and Fiona. Then we have these expenditures, all about looking after themselves again. Capitol police support: The congressional police service will get a boost of $132m, bringing its total budget to $734.5m. Security for senators: US lawmakers have faced growing threats in recent years, and $2.5m has been approved to improve security at senators' residences. What about the safety and security of the people? The irony is those that receive that money for security for themselves, have spoken about taking away the funding for the so-called security for the people, with defund the police. The point is, they will keep on misspending and looting our money, for as long as we allow it and not make them accountable. Because what they are saying is with this bill, is the military and war machine is more important than the people. Be nice if the military actually defend the people, but as we at THI know, that has never been the case, no matter how many fly by's, parades and flag waving you do. Proud to be an American, has to be replaced with, embarrassed to be an American. Because only then can we begin to start fixing things.

MEDICAL: Remember I said they would come out with a new virus or variant? Well the first week of the year has passed and here they come with the new fear packages. The newest Covid-19 variant is so contagious that even people who've avoided it so far are getting infected and the 80% of Americans who've already been infected are likely to catch it again, experts say. (M)

Nearly 15 million excess deaths from any cause may have occurred during 2020 and 2021, nearly three times the 5.42 million covid-19 fatalities that were reported over the same two-year period. When you consider those labeled Covid may be deaths wasn't, 5.5M out of 8B is hardly a pandemic is it? For some countries, the team used mortality data from 2015 to 2019 to calculate the number of expected deaths per year, which they compared with the number of reported deaths from any cause over two years of the pandemic. In the countries that lacked the necessary mortality data, such as some in Africa and the Middle East, the researchers used a statistical model to predict their excess deaths. Based on countries where mortality statistics are available, the model linked excess fatalities with factors that can influence death rates, such as covid-19 restrictions and the prevalence of other conditions, such as diabetes. Results suggest 14.83 million excess deaths occurred worldwide from the start of 2020 to the end of 2021, of which just under 5 million were in 2020 and more than 10 million were in 2021. Of course the lockdowns began in March 2020, but the experimental jabs were rolled out in January of 2021, hence the increase. The country with the most excess deaths relative to its expected number of fatalities was Peru, which saw twice as many deaths from 2020 to 2021 compared with what would have been expected if the pandemic had not occurred. This was followed by Ecuador and Bolivia, which each had 1.5 times more deaths. Peru alongside Australia and Chile enforced strict restrictions racking up the most days under lockdown. Here comes to the excuses. Comparing excess mortality in different countries can be of aid in evaluating the impact of different measures taken by governments around the world, which may in turn aid in fighting future pandemics, says Giacomo De Nicola at the Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich, Germany. Nevertheless, for many countries in the study, the expected deaths from 2020 to 2021 were predicted using a model that doesn't account for the fact that populations may be ageing or becoming younger, says De Nicola. An ageing population would increase the expected mortality and reduce the estimated excess mortality, he says. Funny they never mentioned the aging population dying during the pandemic, or the fact they were killing the elderly either.

Here is another example of how the US Military uses your sons and daughters, and not give a shit what happens to them. Yet, even to this day some still join it, yet many are beginning to refuse which is a good thing. With no guinea pigs to fight their fake sacrificial wars, ends hundreds of thousands being killed each year. The number of US service members who have been exposed to toxic forever chemicals is much higher than the military has claimed, a new independent analysis of Department of Defense data has found. A Pentagon report that aims to assess the scope of PFAS chemical exposure on its bases, as well as health threats posed to service members, estimated about 175,000 troops across 24 facilities had drunk contaminated water.

But an analysis of the military's report by the Environmental Working Group (EWG), a non-profit that tracks PFAS pollution, found the numbers are probably much higher and could top more than 640,000 people across 116 bases, and potentially even millions of people when past service members are factored in. Moreover, the report seemed to omit health issues linked to PFAS exposure, such as kidney disease, testicular cancer and fetal effects. The overall report is frustrating, said Scott Faber, senior vice-president of government affairs with EWG. The Department of Defense is trying to downplay these risks, rather than aggressively seeking to notify service members and clean up its legacy pollution, he said. It has long history of looking the other way when it comes to PFAS pollution. A long history of deliberately causing it for their heinous experiments as well. The DOD are another group who have a permanent day of atonement it seems, and when asked for a comment on the report, silence. PFAS are a class of about 12,000 chemicals often used to make products resist water, stain and heat. They are called forever chemicals because they do not naturally break down and persist in the environment. The chemicals are linked to cancer, liver disease, high cholesterol, thyroid disorders, birth defects and autoimmune dysfunction. They knew this yet still used it on their own people? PFAS are thought to be contaminating drinking water for more than 200 million people nationally, and contamination has been found in and around hundreds of DoD bases at high levels, because the chemicals are the main ingredient in firefighting foam the military uses. Congress mandated the DoD report in the 2019 National Defense Authorization Act, but the military has not published it on the department's PFAS website, so it is unavailable to the public or service members except upon request. That's the part that ought to bother every American, Faber said. It's not just that they purposefully underestimated how many service members were exposed, it's that they didn't tell anyone. The DoD's analysis, dated April 2022, seemed designed to reduce the exposure estimates in several key ways, EWG noted. It only included bases where levels for two types of PFAS, PFOS and PFOA exceeded the Environmental Protection Agency's previous health advisory limit of 70 parts per trillion (ppt). But the EPA lowered that level in June to less than 1 ppt for each compound. Though the report came out about two months before the change, the military often lobbies the EPA on environmental rules, the pending change was publicly known, and the military likely rushed to get its report out ahead of the EPA's formal announcement, Faber said. The numbers also did not include four large bases, Fort Bragg, Yakima Training Center, Fort Leavenworth and Picatinny Arsenal, where levels ranged from 98 ppt to 647 ppt. The levels peaked at over 21,000 ppt at Horsham air national guard base in Willow Grove, Pennsylvania. The report also only considered military members who were on bases at the time of the analysis, meaning it is a snapshot in time. The military began using firefighting foam with PFAS over 50 years ago. The real question is how many millions of service members drank the contaminated water over the last half century? Faber asked. The numbers would probably be higher if the military also included other kinds of PFAS. PFOA and PFOS are two of the most common, but thousands more are in commercial use, and the EPA also has health advisory limits for two other compounds. Though Congress required the DoD to include an assessment of health risks to troops, the military excluded risks for fetal and maternal health because it focused on military members and veterans, the department wrote. EWG noted that about 13,000 service members give birth every year, and many live on DoD facilities. The military also made no mention of increased testicular and kidney cancer risks. It's shocking and there was no explanation, Faber said. Congress has ordered the DoD to phase out firefighting foam that uses PFAS by October 2023, and develop a cleanup plan. And develop a clean-up plan? After 50 years of contamination, that is nearly as long as the Russian's are coming narrative, they didn't, but didn't have to with the enemies from within. The military already missed a deadline to submit a cleanup plan to Congress. The simple solution is; get a task force to assess all the damage, do a full costing to correct all the damage caused, and then deduct it out of the DOD budget.

SOCIETY NEWS: There just to be a saying finders keepers, unless of course it was someone else's property and then a good deed could be done. But two treasurer hunters who took the time and expense to unearth something out of the ground, that dates back 1100 years, decided at great cost to not reveal their findings. To most people that seems fair, as no one alive today unless your Henry Kissinger, was alive back then to claim it. But the greedy system and state lays claim to everything that is not their own it seems. The two UK people unearthed what was described as valueless, a better term would be priceless, and decided not to tell the authorities. The coins dated back to King Alfred and are said to rewrite history. The pair were then jailed for over 11 years each and asked to repay $600K each, which if they didn't within 3 months, their sentences would increase an extra 5.5 years jail. Personally I think this is scandalous, as you get less for murder in the UK. The point is they found it, why do the state or authorities have the final say or recall on who owns what is buried 1100 years ago. Fascist Zionism on steroids, and all about the shekels again.

A male was stabbed to death in Tulsa by a female, police said Friday. Officers were called to a home in south Tulsa late Thursday and found the male being treated by paramedics. He was taken to a hospital where he died, police said in a statement. In a second story a first-grade teacher who cops say was deliberately shot in the chest by a male. Abby Zwerner is the educator who was struck by the bullet in her classroom at Richneck Elementary School in Newport News, Virginia. Two violent stories that are all too common, and yet another statistics of violence. Yet there is a difference and a reason for highlighting these two, because violence has become something that we all just tolerate and ignore. But, these two are different. The first described was a male and female and the male died, but the female was his own sister. The boy was just nine years of age and the girl was just twelve, a 12 year old stabbing to death her 9 year old brother. The second story was of the teacher who was female and just twenty five years of age, thankfully she survived. But the male who shot her was just 6 years of age. A 6 and 12 year old attempting to take someone's life, where is the reaction to that? Have we become so blasé about violence and death, we just overlook it, like it is some sort of video game existence? How quickly times change, the life or concerns of a 6 year old boy was do they have a ball or not. The life of a twelve year old girl was, do they have a skipping rope or not. Now the skipping rope and ball is replaced with a knife and gun. What a reduction program that is. People will point fingers at various agendas provided to them by the system, yet miss the captain obvious of what has changed in that period of time. What has changed is, the introduction of technology. Replete with consent to a range of malevolent actions and programs. Movies got more violent, shows also, more sexual content and then we come to the enhanced version of the TV MK Ultra, the video games. The amount of coercion, malevolent beats, brain and heart intrusive elements seeded into those games is an utter disgrace in a supposed civilized society. Games designed by Military and agency goons for the sole purpose of pro pagan da and subversive of the individuals mind. Subliminal messages inserted for potential Manchurian candidates, datamining to find out who has the dark level genes, are all generated and delivered for an agenda against humanity. That is why 6 and 12 year old's do what they do now. But, whilst people discuss the effect and not look for and address the cause, these events will just keep on rolling out.

This is an example of the future total surveillance if we don't stop it. Conservatives and free speech activists on Twitter railed against a recent video depicting police interrogating and ultimately arresting a pro-life woman who was silently praying outside a U.K. abortion clinic. Those who watched the woman's arrest after admitting she was praying in my head were appalled. Some claimed this was proof that Great Britain had become a dystopia. According to ADF UK, Birmingham authorities have established buffer zones near abortion clinics, making it illegal for people to engage in behavior disapproving or approving of abortion. This includes graphic, verbal or written means, prayer or counseling, she's charged with suspicion of failing to comply with Public Spaces Protection Order. Have you ever heard of such ridiculousness? Thought praying is a crime? If that is the case, perhaps they should arrest all who go to church then? Ban priests who turn up in hospitals or hospices, after it is the same thing is it not? What matters here is not whether you are pro-abortion or not, that is the effect. But they think they have a right to choose your beliefs for you, ignoring it because you have no interest in the subject, is how the totalitarian creep works. Because one day they will trample on something you do have a belief or have interest in, what happens then?

EXPOSE: This expose in part we have covered before, but this goes deeper into it again. With our extra knowledge from other shows, plus the Cosmic genetic series, we can delve deeper and dispel the frankly absurd notions put forward by their story. A series of bizarre conspiracy theories, that have never repeated in real life, yet believed by billions, yet the same peoples will not look at alternative more common sense based narratives to explain these conspiracies. This is about the Aztecs and their story, but is it their story at all? Maybe it is someone else's story? Maybe a familiar foe is the originator of the story, as we will find out. In the context of creation myths, the term Five Suns describes the doctrine of the Aztec and other Nahua peoples, in which the present world was preceded by four other cycles of creation and destruction. Either they did Johns Hopkins math and missed one out, or they arrived after the first elimination of mankind. It is primarily derived from the mythological and cosmological beliefs and traditions of earlier cultures from central Mexico and the Mesoamerican region in general. The Late Postclassic Aztec society inherited many traditions concerning Mesoamerican creation accounts, while modifying some aspects and supplying novel interpretations of their own. But was it their own? In the creation myths which were known to the Aztec and other Nahua peoples of the Late Postclassic era, the central tenet was that there had been four worlds, or Suns, before the present universe. There was 5, we are in the sixth version currently. These earlier worlds and their inhabitants had been created, then destroyed by the catastrophic action of leading deity figures. They are not deities at all, but parasitic off world entities playing Source. The present world is the fifth sun, and the Aztec saw themselves as the People of the Sun, whose divine duty was to wage cosmic war in order to provide the sun with his tlaxcaltiliztli or nourishment. Without it, the sun would disappear from the heavens. People of the sun, in comes Ra, who is represented on their temples, it is not a feathered serpent, but solar serpent. The so called feathers they try to convince us of, are solar rays above the serpent being, known as Ra. Thus the welfare and the very survival of the universe depended upon the offerings of blood and hearts to the sun. The classic lie of the sacrifice of the people, whether human or not to satisfy the fake gods. Whereby they consumed the energy of the being or in some cases consumed the being itself. This practice was taught to some of the tribal peoples as well, as they eat the heart of their enemies to gain the energy and strength of that warrior. Just like the mating of the black voodoo people with the white race, same concept. From the void that was the rest of the universe, the first god, Ometeotl, created itself. You see what I mean about conspiracies? On a par with immaculate conception, it was created by using the meat suit or vessel of another, and uploaded consciousness technology was in placed into the new vessel. If it came out of the void, that was the Black Sun group and the Hydra Draconis. The nature of Ometeotl, the God of duality was both male and female, shared by Ometecuhtli the Lord of duality, and Omecihuatl the Lady of duality. The illusion of choice fake gods then, duality equals believe and follow me and to have no choice of your own. Triality is your choice, remember to use it always, not fall for their dualities. Ometeotl gave birth to four children, the four Tezcatlipocas, who each preside over one of the four cardinal directions. Over the West presides the White Tezcatlipoca, Quetzalcoatl, the god of light, mercy and wind. Over the South presides the Blue Tezcatlipoca, Huitzilopochtli, the god of war. Over the East presides the Red Tezcatlipoca, Xipe Totec, the god of gold, farming and Spring time. Over the North presides the Black Tezcatlipoca, also called simply Tezcatlipoca, the god of judgment, night, deceit, sorcery and the Earth. Interesting the white rules over the west, the red over the East with their fake Red army and declaring it is Russian or Chinese.

Their myths of the five suns will be revealed now, but is it SUN or SON? The first sun: It was four gods who eventually created all the other gods and the world we know today, but before they could create they had to destroy. What a bizarre concept, what it reveals is, they failed everytime and humanity rose up and so they destroyed it and reseeded the populace with their creations. For every time they attempted to create something, it would fall into the water beneath them and be eaten by Cipactli, the giant earth crocodile, who swam through the water with mouths at every one of her joints. Is the Cipactli actually the firmament? Was the firmament manipulated by the crocodile people, ran by Sobek the crocodile god? The four Tezcatlipocas descended the first people who were giants. They created the other gods, the most important of whom were the water gods: Tlaloc, the god of rain and fertility and Chalchiuhtlicue, the goddess of lakes, rivers and oceans, also the goddess of beauty. To give light, they needed a god to become the sun and the Black Tezcatlipoca was chosen, but either because he had lost a leg or because he was god of the night, he only managed to become half a sun. To give light, they needed a god to become the sun and the Black Tezcatlipoca was chosen it said, that is the false light of the ones who call themselves illuminated, the Black Tezcatlipoca is the Black Sun group. The world continued on in this way for some time, but a sibling rivalry grew between Quetzalcoatl and his brother the mighty sun, who Quetzalcoatl knocked from the sky with a stone club. Sibling rivalry was not only common amongst the false gods, but their minions here as well, called the bloodline families. Quetzalcoatl was Thoth, which brings in Isis, Horus, Set and the likes, but also Thoth had a crocodile companion called Ammit. With no sun, the world was totally black and in his anger, Tezcatlipoca commanded his jaguars to eat all the people. That will not be the last evidence of these fake gods and the anger management issues.

The second sun: The gods created a new group of people to inhabit the Earth; this time they were of normal size. Which means they did Cosmic Genetics again or brought a slave colony from other planets. Quetzalcoatl became the new sun and as the years passed, the people of the Earth grew less and less civilized and stopped showing proper honor to the gods. No, the people saw sense and stopped believing in fake egotistical aliens. As a result, Tezcatlipoca demonstrated his power and authority as god of sorcery and judgment by turning the animalistic people into monkeys. No, they did Cosmic Genetics again and created Neandrathal. Quetzalcoatl, who had loved the flawed people as they were, became upset and blew all of the monkeys from the face of the Earth with a mighty hurricane. He then stepped down as the sun to create a new people.

The third sun: Tlaloc became the next sun, but Tezcatlipoca seduced and stole his wife Xochiquetzal, the goddess of sex, flowers and corn. Tlaloc then refused to do anything other than wallow in his own grief, so a great drought swept the world. The people's prayers for rain annoyed the grieving sun and he refused to allow it to rain, but the people continued to beg him. Then, in a fit of rage he answered their prayers with a great downpour of fire. It continued to rain fire until the entire Earth had burned away, the gods then had to construct a whole new Earth from the ashes. Uh oh here comes the Phoenix again.

The fourth sun: The next sun and also Tlaloc's new wife, was Chalchiuhtlicue. She was very loving towards the people, but Tezcatlipoca was not. Both the people and Chalchiuhtlicue felt his judgement when he told the water goddess, that she was not truly loving and only faked kindness out of selfishness to gain the people's praise. Chalchiuhtlicue was so crushed by these words that she cried blood for the next fifty-two years, causing a horrific flood that drowned everyone on Earth. Humans became fish in order to survive. Seriously? And people believe these tales? Only in religion does such bizarre conspiracy tales gain traction. Anywhere else in society this would be laughed at and dismissed as lunacy.

The fifth sun: Quetzalcoatl would not accept the destruction of his people and went to the underworld where he stole their bones from the god Mictlantecuhtli. He dipped these bones in his own blood to resurrect his people, who reopened their eyes to a sky illuminated by the current sun, Huitzilopochtli. The Tzitzimimeh, or stars, became jealous of their brighter, more important brother Huitzilopochtli. Their leader, Coyolxauhqui, goddess of the moon, lead them in an assault on the sun and every night they come close to victory when they shine throughout the sky, but are beaten back by the mighty Huitzilopochtli who rules the daytime sky. To aid this all-important god in his continuing war, the Aztecs offer him the nourishment of human sacrifices. How nice of them, none of the chiefs I would imagine, it literally beggars belief the mental torture the Aztec's brought upon themselves for these fake gods. They the offered human sacrifices to Tezcatlipoca in fear of his judgment, ah the fear tactic that runs through all religions. They then offer their own blood to Quetzalcoatl, who opposes fatal sacrifices, in thanks of his blood sacrifice for them and give offerings to many other gods for many purposes. Should these sacrifices cease, or should mankind fail to please the gods for any other reason, this fifth sun will go black, the world will be shattered by a catastrophic earthquake, and the Tzitzimitl will slay Huitzilopochtli and all of humanity. Black Hole Sun time again, again playing on the fears of the native populace.

The variations and alternative myths: Most of what is known about the ancient Aztecs comes from the few codices to survive the Spanish conquest. Their myths can be confusing not only because of the lack of documentation, but also because there are many popular myths that seem to contradict one another. Could that be because the non-Spanish Sephardic's decided to not only destroy history, but then proceed to write their own version of it? Originally the Aztec knowledge was passed down by word of mouth and because the Aztecs adopted many of their gods from other tribes, both assigning their own new aspects to these gods and endowing them with aspects of similar gods from various other cultures. Older myths can be very similar to newer myths while contradicting one another by claiming that a different god performed the same action, probably because myths changed in correlation to the popularity of each of the gods at a given time. All designed to confuse those who questioned it later, and why certain gods whether S.American, Egyptian, Greek or Roman all have similar characteristics, why? because in many cases they were one and the same being. Other variations on this myth state that Coatlicue the earth goddess, was the mother of the four Tezcatlipocas and the Tzitzimitl. Some versions say that Quetzalcoatl was born to her first, while she was still a virgin, often mentioning his twin brother Xolotl, the guide of the dead and god of fire. Born whilst a virgin, what utter rubbish, this is hybrid technology. Tezcatlipoca was then born to her by an obsidian knife, followed by the Tzitzimitl and then Huitzilopochtli. Born by a knife? A knife gave birth? Bad lord, and these people believed this crap? Adds a whole new meaning to the song; the first cut is the deepest! The most popular variation including Coatlicue depicts her giving birth first to the Tzitzimitl. Much later she gave birth to Huitzilopochtli when a mysterious ball of feathers appeared to her. The Tzitzimitl then decapitated the pregnant Coatlicue, believing it to be insulting that she had given birth to another child. Oops the red queen was off with her head, some terrible anger management issues here, even when they were just born, remarkable. Huitzilopochtli then sprang forth from her womb wielding a serpent of fire and began his epic war with the Tzitzimitl, who were also referred to as the Centzon Huitznahuas. Oh my, here comes the fiery serpents again. Sometimes, he is said to have decapitated Coyolxauhqui and either used her head to make the moon or thrown it into a canyon. Further variations depict the ball of feathers as being the father of Huitzilopochtli or the father of Quetzalcoatl and sometimes Xolotl. Well, Quetzalcoatl was Thoth, who was Avian. Other variations of this myth claim that only Quetzalcoatl and Tezcatlipoca were born to Omoteotl, who was replaced by Coatlicue in this myth, probably because it had absolutely no worshipers or temples by the time the Spanish arrived. The Spanish arrived? (M) It is sometimes said that the male characteristic of Omoteotl is named Ometecuhtli and that the female characteristic is named Omecihualt. Further variations on this myth state that it was only Quetzalcoatl and Tezcatlipoca who pulled apart Cipactli, also known as Tlaltecuhltli, and that Xipe Totec and Huitzilopochtli then constructed the world from her body. So, now we have a moon built out of someone whose head was chopped off, and the world was created out of a crocodile! Turn it in. Some versions claim that Tezcatlipoca actually used his leg as bait for Cipactli, before dismembering her. Perhaps he just wanted to get his leg over? Although if he wanted to have sex with a croc, he would have to do it snappy! The order of the first four suns varies as well, though the above version is the most common. Each world's end correlates consistently to the god that was the sun at the time throughout all variations of the myth. Though the loss of Xochiquetzal is not always identified as Tlaloc's reason for the rain of fire, which is not otherwise given, and it is sometimes said that Chalchiuhtlicue flooded the world on purpose, without the involvement of Tezcatlipoca. It is also said that Tezcatlipoca created half a sun, which his jaguars then ate before eating the giants. The fifth sun however is sometimes said to be a god named Nanauatzin. In this version of the myth, the gods convened in darkness to choose a new sun, who was to sacrifice himself by jumping into a gigantic bonfire. The two volunteers were the young son of Tlaloc and Chalchiuhtlicue, Tecuciztecatl, and the old Nanauatzin. It was believed that Nanauatzin was too old to make a good sun, but both were given the opportunity to jump into the bonfire. Tecuciztecatl tried first but was not brave enough to walk through the heat near the flames and turned around. Nanauatzin then walked slowly towards and then into the flames and was consumed, Tecuciztecatl then followed. The braver Nanauatzin became what is now the sun and Tecuciztecatl became the much less spectacular moon. A god that bridges the gap between Nanauatzin and Huitzilopochtli is Tonatiuh, who was sick, but rejuvenated himself by burning himself alive and then became the warrior sun and wandered through the heavens with the souls of those who died in battle, refusing to move if not offered enough sacrifices. The gist of that story is, two went through the portal, the other didn't believe or was consumed by fear. The wandering sun part is the black sun and or a black hole, which again is the sun that consumes, the real sun gives life, not consumes it. Some of these myths were covered in popular culture. The myth with Nanauatzin serves as a framing device for the

1991 Mexican film, In Necuepaliztli in Aztlan. The version of the myth with Nanahuatzin is in the 1996 film, The Five Suns: A Sacred History of Mexico, by Patricia Amlin. Rage Against the Machine refers to intercultural violence as the fifth sunset in their song People of the Sun on the album Evil Empire, indeed. Thomas Harlan's science fiction series In the Time of the Sixth Sun uses this myth as a central plot point, where an ancient star-faring civilization the people of the First Sun had disappeared and left the galaxy with many dangerous artifacts. Now isn't that interesting, yes they stole our technology is what that symbolizes. The concept of the five suns is alluded to in Onyx Equinox, where Quetzalcoatl claims that the gods made humanity four times before. No, they meddled with at least 4 times with Cosmic Genetics games, and when we built up and became a threat to them, they unleashed Cosmic and planetary wars. Tezcatlipoca seeks to end the current human era, since he believes humans are too greedy and waste their blood in battle rather than as sacrifices. Like one is better than the other, it is the two sides of the same coin again and the duality choice. Death in war or death by your own people, is still death, no matter what they convince you of, like it is the lesser of two evils. The question is; why are the only choices, evil? So, the five suns had names. Nahui-Ocelotl the Jaguar Sun, inhabitants were giants who were devoured by jaguars, the world was destroyed, was it related to the fall of the feline founder race? Nahui-Ehécatl the Wind Sun, inhabitants were transformed into monkeys, this world was destroyed by hurricanes, which was the seeding of the Neandrathals, and they are where the out of Africa story originates from. Nahui-Quiahuitl the Rain Sun, inhabitants were destroyed by rain of fire, only birds survived or inhabitants survived by becoming birds. Which means the world was ran by the Avian's, Thoth and Set. Nahui-Atl the Water Sun, this world was flooded turning the inhabitants into fish, a couple escaped but were transformed into dogs. The fish and the dogs' story? Now where have we heard that? The fish people were the Dogon from Sirius, Sirius is known as the dog star. Nahui-Ollin the Earthquake Sun, we are the inhabitants of this world. Should the gods be displeased, this world will be destroyed by earthquakes or one large earthquake and the Tzitzimimeh will annihilate all its inhabitants. Should the gods be displeased? Have they asked why it is plural? Does that not reveal what this and all other religions, whole narrative is based upon? The gods are not god, but a group of extra-terrestrials pretending to be god. Whilst acting like petulant children, self-aggrandizing behaviors, ego off the charts, sense of entitlement and severe anger management issues. Does that sound like THE god, or even a god, which is a higher evolved being? No, me either. All the advancement of the past 200 years, yet the one thing that hasn't advanced is, the people. Riddled with low intelligence and self-worth, because anyone with an ounce of common sense would see right through this whole illusion game. The native tribes have played a major role in subverting the rest of the races here, for 1: putting out myths and conspiracy theories, 2: harboring and working with these same off world imposters 3: it is they who are harboring some of these off world imposters on their aptly named reservations, 4: it is they who dance with the corrupt Astral spirit world, 5: they who seduce people seeking enlightenment into consuming not only dangerous potions, but potentially astral demons as well and 6. it was them that sold us out to the Draco remember. There is a lot to admire about the Native culture, but also a lot to not also. Their dancing with the off-world and indeed in some cases mating with them, has had an enormous negative impact the world over for us all. They need to heal and come clean, your ancestors sold not only us out, but you as well. The current natives are not responsible for what went on in the past, but you are responsible for the shenanigans of the now and the disruption effects to our future. Come forward and speak in truth is my request, and let's fix this mess our naïve ancestors created.

MYSTERY PIECES: Did you know that the 3D image of the 6-pointed star is called a tetrahedron? But also, more importantly perhaps, it is called the Merkaba star. Tetra means four, hedron the face of a geometrical solid, the 4 faces, the 4 corners and the 4 winds springs to mind. But hedron comes from the Greek word hedra, with the e hyphenated, what if the e is a y? the 4 faces of the hydra?

Masonic temples are called Lodges, those who reside there are lodgers, which means it is a lodging house. Indian places are called Reservations, those who reside there have been on reservations, which means it is place of reserving. Who is lodging and who is reserving? Is the great question.

Speaking of Indians, our book revealed their path from India, hence the term Indians to the Americas. Once here, they slaughtered the natives in their millions, and then decided to mate with the remaining tribes, to then get amalgamated and look like they are part of the scene. Those Kali Ma also went further south though to the Central Americas and created another myth laced legends surrounding one particular group. A group that is second only in fascination to the Egyptians, the Mayans. You wish to know why? because they are connected. Maya is an Indian/Hindu word, not Mexican or Central American, it means illusion. Oh my or is it oh maya? This is the land of illusion and not enough love to go round.

Another pondering on salted oceans, how was it done? Why was it done? Could the off world with their crafts seeded salt crystals into the firmament, whereby the weight of the crystals brought the water down?

The value of what was done in May, only bears fruit if the people take responsibility for it. Acting in a better way, a more loving way, a more higher frequency based way, a more caring way. Those are the characteristics of true freedom, the characteristics we must ascend to. Are you 2, 3 or 4? I guess no time will tell.

Recently members of the village decided to take a trip to the theater, to see the latest movie of Avatar 2. I went not to see the movie, but to see what it reveals. This is how they relay messages, all hidden in plain sight and several things were garnered from the movie. Even the preludes appeared to bring key pointers, an advert stating the future is now. Another movie pronouncing the world is changing, terraforming is the correct term, and the battle between dark and light on that front continues. The same movie stated a force moved the sun, following Tuesday's piece, perhaps that is a pointer? Another movie coming out called Quantumania, was showing the mini sun power packs and proclaimed the Galaxy needed guardians, indeed. Avatar began early on with a conception mystery, possibly relating to the fake Mary birth via the immaculate conception, when anyone who has listened to the Cosmic genetics series will understand this was a technology based birth. All done in a lab, just like the IVF and possibly making both a hybrid program. They mentioned that a spider was left here and related it to a stray cat, all very interesting to those with knowledge. The spider race either set up or ran the old AI, or did both. They were referenced in a piece by a Russian by the name of Habytov many years ago before like most other things of relevance, it disappeared from the internet. The confirmation of the spider race was revealed when the old AI went down in 2017 time. The line of happiness is simple, should not be lost upon listeners, it is only man who makes everything not simple. They showed the Pandora world, looking just like Earth, in front of the red spot on Jupiter. This piqued my interest, as a ponder of mine around a month before the movie was, is the Jupiter red spot a portal? A swirling mass that never goes away? I took from the movie that, that pondering was more correct than not. The sky gods then unleashed a weapon of fire, that turned things into dust, I suspect that was a reference to a smaller version of the fash weapon. The scientists then revealed the uploaded consciousness I have been speaking about for some time. This involves uploading the whole consciousness of a being into a type of USB stick, they then obtain another vessel and download the consciousness of the person or entity into the new vessel. This is the origin of an avatar. A throwaway line in the show that made little to no sense, unless you followed the V series we covered in FHSTOS Plus 18. It said: the mind as the saltiness, I would probably have to watch it again to get more scope on that line, but, is the mind corrupted in a way by salt? it begs the question; is the mind creating the saltiness of the ocean? They have told us it is salty, and it does taste salty, but can we truly say all the oceans are salty? Is it possibly the case that if you repeat a lie often enough, it becomes the truth? They interestingly revealed an above ground maglev train, mirroring what is below most of us around the world. During the escape of Jake and family and upon visiting other tribes of the Pandora world, one said if they catch us, they will skin us. The process of skinning people, derived from the tribal people here in the past, but, it was also the punishment for not following orders on the V ships. The connections should not be overlooked in my opinion. They made this comment in the show, which is suggestive of real life, systematic awareness is rising globally. The sky gods were also heavily into building robots and war machines, this is again a pointer to real life. War of the future will all be done by technology. As mentioned earlier with the technocrats piece. The company doing it was RDA, yet a search of RDA brings up the meaning, recommended daily allowances. Is that a reference to carbon output? The most stunning line in the show for me was, you can't put babies in cryogenics. That has huge implications for the Aztec crash in 1948, as we were told they were hybrid babies. Maybe they were not babies at all? Is it possible when removed they are grown children? Is there a mention of it previously? Yes, in FHSTOS Part 4 and the birth of Melchizedek. Who came out fully dressed, proclaiming the lord, circumcised and looking over the mother he had just killed. It then shows Pandora life mirroring not only here, but the other worlds, as female leaders scorned and fought with each other. A sneaky inclusion and heads up that will be missed by most was, on the insignia of the sky gods said; prjt phnx. This reveals Project Phoenix, which on the ground was a Vietnam CIA torture program, yet Project Phoenix has a much wider implication, as I revealed in Tuesday's end of year review. Another pondering of mine apart from the Jupiter portal based on this movie was, is the water world they refer to, the firmament? Moreso when they said; water has no beginning and no end. Funny that as the clowns have been telling us we are running out of water, another one of their scare tactics it seems. But is the quote referring to water as Source? After all they do say; water is the SOURCE of life, just like Source is the source of life, and it has no beginning or end it seems. Another line in the movie said; the sea is home? What does that mean? Is this in relation to the Aquatic race below some oceans? In particular in the Bermuda region and Cuba? Or does it mean our home once on the land is now underwater due to the several floods here? There was a place in the movie where it mentioned the 3 brothers rocks, was that a nod to the Rothschild's brothers? A word about to be spoken it said, but what is or was the word? This has obvious religious connotations, in the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. Word was capitalized, so it means a person or entity and nothing to do with language. Word is another mistranslation of the Lord, also capitalized. Which is a reference to Anu the Lord, the lord who was not god but portrayed it. They showed the whales being used as weapons, with a military group called CETOPS, interestingly they used an Australian and Asian guy for the lead operations with the whales. Australian and Asians are known for the whale culling, was likely the symbolism behind that. The latter part of the movie touched upon social conditions and how to become more advanced. It was all about learn how to trust each other, something we all need to do as well, but trust comes from people acting in the right way with each other over time. The problem is, not enough act in the right way over time. It was interesting about how they said killing is forbidden, which brings in the download I got back in 2018 of, transmute not kill. The mistrust and infighting between the tribal clans caused many issues, delays, harm and poor decisions, until the youth stepped up and showed the adults how to act and behave. Refreshing concept to be displayed in a movie, and that may well play out here, as most adults have failed to operate in a correct way or manner. Amazingly they mentioned yet again about the youth serum, taken from humans again and called it Amrita. I was then thinking, I am sure I have mentioned that in a previous show, so when I got home I typed in Amrita, and yes it was covered in FHSTOS 8A, here is the mentions of that. The tale begins in the remotest periods of prehistoric time, when the gods and asuras churned the Milk Ocean to extract from it the Amrita, the elixir of immortality, Rāhu was present at that time and overcome with pride. When the Amrita finally emerged along with several other treasures, the devas and asuras fought over it, however Vishnu in the form of Mohini the enchantress manages, man to woman avatar, to lure the asuras into handing over the Amrita to her, which she then distributes to the devas. A deva is described as not as a female, but a male deity in Hindu, it means heavenly or divine, female version is devi, another example of the cross gender meaning being played out by think tank social engineering bodies, female personalities are known as devas, which is the male version. Svarbhanu, an asura, disguises himself as a deva and tries to drink some Amrita himself, Surya (the sun-god) and Chandra (the moon-god) alert Vishnu to this deception, Vishnu then decapitates Svarbhanu just as he is about to swallow the nectar, leaving his head and beheaded part of body immortal, later the head part is known as Rahu and the tail or torso part is known as Ketu. The path of the Avatar series I found interesting, from the forest to the sea, where will Avatar 3 go to? The family is the fortress it revealed, but who is the family and where is the fortress? Is the pondering for us all to make. A line near the end should be remembered on a deeper level by us all, all energy is only borrowed. Like time in essence, hence the fight over the Amrita, to go you more time and energy. But that essence is at the expense of others, life here depends on the expense of others in terms of our food, whether meat or vegan as both are living entities. But if energy is only borrowed, how much are you consuming? Service to self is over consuming and many portray themselves as service to others, but unless you are sacrificing your wants, needs and desires for the benefit of others, you are still residing within the boundaries of service of the self. The harvesting of others energy when there is no pay forward actions, means service to self only. So, if energy is only borrowed, what is your consumption?

Less than one year into my radio show career I took on a then behemoth duo in the alt media. I could no longer stand the lies or the silky production show that was leading listeners and their pockets into financial and delusional bankruptcy. I took the brave step to out Corey Goode and David Wilcock in June 2014. I told people that Corey and his wife made the whole story up to get the attention of David Wilcock. Wilcock bought it, as it then became a multi six figure contract for them both on the Coven based Gaia TV show. Goode it should be remember, in one of his jobs was a trainer for agency clowns in how to be a shill or troll on the internet. At the time, the only one who supported me was Shane the ruiner, but he had reason to do so, as Corey and Wilcock cut him out of the Gaia TV deal. Shane and I warned Wilcock it was all a ruse, a lie and made up story of some fanciful Blue Avians, which I know don't exist. But Wilcock went ahead anyway. It was then dubbed the Blue chicken cult by Clif High who like many others only jumped on the bandwagon around 2016-17 time. I took endless amounts of flak for ruining the blue chicken story, including from Drake and many members of Cosmic Voice. But I stuck to my words and said time would tell. 8.5 years later it seems the story has come the full cycle, as a couple of weeks ago it seems Corey split the beans. As one comment on this video revealed; I couldn't believe it when I saw the Corey Goode deposition and he said that he made it all up. Then he said to all the people out there who question him about his testimony, he says, I don't care. Neither do we Corey, time will not be kind to you, just saying.

ENDING PIECE: There are differing densities that goes with each dimensional/plane. The dimensions are the frequencies, created by the vibrations of those within it. The lightness (weight) is the density of the spirit, less baggage less weight. Less weight the more light in terms of density (weight) and also being in the light (life). These are the energies. The 3 principles of the universe are frequency, vibration and energy. Life is the energy created, what frequency you become depends on your development, which determines your vibration and impact on the field around you. Frequency is increased by your thought patterns, a dance between fear and love, thoughts of the mind or thoughts in and of the heart. A frequency is the effect, the cause is Source from the original blueprint. What beings do with that frequency, is down to us. The frequency after that is determined by beings within that field, is it a wave or an overlay wave? Do we manifest organic? Or dance with technology which is inorganic? The vibration comes from the energy of life; how do they operate en masse? Is it in violence, greed, envy? Which brings in chaos, all are low vibration, which means you remain in the lower dimension and distorted wave patterns. The energy is generated by those in the field, and can vary to bad energies, bad thoughts and bad intentions or the reverse. Those energies then split off into two categories, fear or love. Except love cannot reside in the lower vibrational field, what you think is love is an illusion. Those that operate in a low vibrational field are not in love, they live the lie and only convince themselves of it. True love is a frequency, that rarely is connected to a person due to too many low vibrational people. It is something you can experience outside of a relationship, and when you do, you will know the difference. Both fear and love are manifested, materialized and created by you only, you are what you attract. The law of attraction is the saying, so your life is determined by you, not governments, clowns and authorities, just you. When energy, frequency and vibration combine, it produces life. How that life creation is made, often determines the path of the creation. Which or what energy, frequency and vibration are you creating for the child? Low vibrational energy, frequency and vibration is creating a low energy, frequency and vibrational child. Which then adds to the chaos and fear, which then keeps many in the low vibrational field and then growth of the species is stifled. This is the dance with and of the dark forces, they are the order out of the chaos. But only you can comply with it. How many thought of their energy, frequency and vibration can affect the child's development? There is that lack of thinking again is it not? reacting to the single point of light, information or event, when there are other aspects, angles and viewpoints to be garnered, outside of the purview that the dark forces formulated for you. The key is overview, insight, the 7 spectrum angles which matches the 7 chakras and the 7 soul development levels of the planetary, galactic, cosmic and Universal levels. Seven in Greek means Hepta, for those who have watched the movie Arrival and the Heptapods, may garner more thinking and pondering on that. They spoke in symbols, but where they symbolizing us? Hepta is 7, those of the seven went into the pods, emerged into the 8 and into the loops and the few who have developed went out of the loops and into the chamber for the 9, the open spiral of progression, after the stagnation of the 8's. But the 9 is not the end either, just like our own series FHSTOS, there is a plus. Like water, the source of life, there is no beginning and no end, depends on your input and output. Do you stagnate or progress? That all comes down to you. Focus less on the effects of life, focus more on the cause, because ultimately, you are the cause that creates the effect. In the world of duality are you a cup half empty or half full type of person? If you answered that question, you missed the point. Who decided you are a cup? You did by answering it, the answer was I am not a cup half or otherwise, I am a whole living being that was developed for the purpose of being the crown of creation. Which is not dependent upon words, but deeds and actions. Stop trying to fit in, just be you, stop researching for something you already have, stop aspiring to be something you already are, stop externalizing something that is already within, quit the fear and be of, in and within love. Love is the cause and the effect, what is your input into it? Are you the seed or the flower?
