

THI-SHOW TRANSCRIPT 2023-02-02

A special mention for Michael Weber and his family for enduring the medical tyranny and for standing firm.

I see lots of posts on our site all about what they are doing, it would be nice for the members to post everywhere about what we are doing. What a 180 that is. It creates a better frequency, a better vibe not only within the group, but on a wider scale. All part of the Positive Actions.

Volume 2 of our FHSTOS book is now available on THI-show.com at the bookstore and also Lulu.com. The PDF and Epub versions are also available at THI-show.com The prices are slightly higher due to increased publishing costs.

Will we march forth or will it be march 4th or both?

This coming Saturday at noon MT, 11am PT, 1pm CT, 2pm ET, 7pm UK and 8pm middle Europe there will be a special presentation by one of our members that will enlighten you all. I will chime in when appropriate and there will be a Q & A with host and presenter to follow. It will be thoroughly enjoyable event of which this is the first part, part 2 will be the follow Saturday February 11th, Part 3 on February 18th and a Part 4 in the works.

NEWS: Fashion model Jeremy Ruehlemann died at the age of 27, cause of death was not revealed publicly. Lance Kerwin, who rose to stardom in the '70s for shows such as Salem's Lot and James at 15, died on Jan. 24, his agent John Boitano confirmed. He was 62 and no cause of death has been revealed. Jessie Lemonier, a former linebacker with the Detroit Lions, has died at the age of 25, details regarding the cause of death have not yet been released. Lisa Loring, the first actress to portray Wednesday Addams, has died, she was 64.

Yet another example of the medical establishment being riddled by fraud, agendas and heinous programs. Drug-testing company Averhealth, whose products were used by courts to evaluate parents' fitness for custody of their children, is under investigation by the US Department of Justice for medical fraud, according to internal government emails. The Justice Department is specifically looking into allegations, made under oath by former lab director Sarah Riley, that Averhealth disregarded quality controls meant to ensure proper calibration of lab instruments, leading to incorrect results in as many as 30% of reports to Michigan's child welfare agency. The company has denied the claims. The Michigan Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) suspended its contract with Averhealth upon learning of the DOJ probe, the emails reveal. While the testing company said that its contract with the agency remains in place. But, a March 2022 message from a special advisor to the Children's Services Agency director confirmed, the department had discontinued the use of Averhealth drug testing company, after receiving information from the US attorney that Averhealth was under investigation for medical fraud. Medical fraud is one thing, but this goes beyond fraud. So why is this important? I did a piece some time back early into the THI shows, about judges, lawyers, social services, child protection all being involved in snatching children in the UK, and the subsequent cover up. This is also about the practice of stealing children from their families. It has been revealed the US government has been subsidizing child trafficking in all 50 states. This is in relation to the adoption and safe families act, signed into law in 1997 by the Clinton's. Over $80 billion a year is being spent by the Federal Government for this program, to give states over one million dollars for every child they seize from a family. The government itself admits that 83% of the children seized are done so under false pretenses.

A 29-year-old woman has been arrested in New Jersey for allegedly posing as a high school student. The woman, identified by police as Hyejeong Shin, has been charged with using a fake identification document to enrol in New Brunswick High School. Ms. Shin attended the school for four days before staff found out her age. School officials said police are investigating the matter, and a review of the district's enrolment process will be conducted. The issue came to light at a local education board meeting on Tuesday, where New Brunswick Public School District Superintendent Aubrey Johnson told attendees that Ms Shin was caught at the school. Last week, by filing some false documents, an adult female posing as a student was able to be enrolled in our high school, Mr. Johnson said. He added that she had been in a few classes and spent some time with guidance counsellors, who tried to find out more information about her. Ms. Shin's false age was then uncovered, Mr. Johnson said, and the school immediately notified police. She has since been arrested for providing a false birth certificate, with the intent to enrol as a juvenile high-school student, the New Brunswick Police Department has said. Not a particularly pressing story but I wish to make a point about this. How is it someone falsifying papers just to go to school involves the police? Yet, Nazis which is National Zionists were or are allowed to enter this country with false papers provided by the immigration and government departments? With the cover up involving the State Dept, the Dept. of Justice and intelligence agencies, and no one said anything? Says it all about the underhanded operations within this country. The Russians are coming they said 60 years ago, why would they need Russians to come, when enemies from within have destroyed this country themselves. Here is an interesting and familiar story to those who remember Kim and I launching the tax reform in 2019, which Trump ignored. And then repeating it again in our Blueprint. House Republicans are set to vote on the Fair Tax Act introduced by Rep. Earl L. Carter (R-GA) which seeks to eliminate all personal and corporate income taxes, the death tax, gift taxes and the payroll tax while also eliminating the need for the Internal Revenue Service, according to a release. The Fair Tax Act would eliminate the complicated federal tax system and individual income tax return filings and replace current federal income taxes with a national 23% sales tax starting in 2025. The new federal sales tax would be collected by individual states, and monthly tax rebates would be provided based on poverty rate and family size. We set it at 10% not 23%, and worked out, that America would become self-sustaining within 3-5 years with this plan. This would also stop the ridiculous fake borrowing to fund fake wars, the military and black budget clowns from the agencies. The country would be self-sustainable and would end the harvesting by the Jewish EL-ites and the Black Sun cult within the Fed and Treasury.

Here is another reason as to why radical action will be required soon, all of which sets us up nicely with the Blueprint. Moody's economic model indicates that the economy could shrink by 4% in the event of a default, putting nearly 6 million people out of work as the unemployment rate soars above 7%. They had to mention the 6 million figure again, because it hasn't been mentioned for at least the last few days and the pity party wants to remind people again. The stock market could lose a third of its value, destroying upwards of $12 trillion in household wealth. Interest rates would spike, producing an increase in borrowing costs that could linger for years. Borrowing has been lingering since at least 1871, at which point will Americans realize this country is being stripped?

In 2017...Bill Gates warns about a Bioweapon made from an existing virus. In 2019...The Gates Foundation runs a Bioweapon simulation spreading globally. In 2020...a Bioweapon kills 6.7M people In 2022...Bill Gates increased his net worth by 31% to $137B. Some of that net worth increase went into another psychopath based program it seems. Billionaire Bill Gates has invested in an Australian climate technology start-up, that plans to reduce the methane emissions of cow burps. (M) The Microsoft co-founder has been outspoken about the environmental impact of meat production. Methane is the most common greenhouse gas after carbon dioxide (CO2). Livestock such as cows, goats and deer produce methane when their stomachs are breaking down hard fibers like grass for digestion. This fermentation process creates methane gas which is then mostly belched out again. It announced in a statement that it had raised $12m (£9.7m) in a funding round led by Breakthrough Energy Ventures, which Mr. Gates founded in 2015. The investment firm is also backed by Amazon chief executive Jeff Bezos, and Chinese entrepreneur and Alibaba co-founder Jack Ma. Hmm second time in a month Jack Ma has crooped up, jack ass more like it. Meat will become the new shame and guilt program like the cigarettes one, and that turned out wrong did it not? The least affected by Covid were the smokers.

Another example of their ouroboros policies surrounding energy and their fake climate and green agendas. Pleiteticker.de reports on how Germany's natural gas reserves are emptying at record speed, because wind and solar power have been on the scarce side over the past few weeks. This means gas turbines have had to jump in to pick up the slack in electricity production, not one the German government had hoped as it wrestles with the heightening energy crisis. Germany is converting gas into electricity in record quantities, says the report. They then go onto blaming the weather, neglecting the fact that the same climate people are the ones meddling with the weather, and it is all down to high pressure system Erika, the current December is colder than it has been for years. I knew an Erika and she could get a bit stormy at times! In recent days, gas storage facilities have therefore been emptying much faster than before. From December 12 onwards, more than one percent was withdrawn from gas storage facilities in Germany every day. Last week, almost one third of all electricity was generated from natural gas, these are record figures. If the cold persists through the winter, gas reserves threaten to become extremely tight before spring arrives. Well I never! These people are beyond stupid it seems, because those of us who could future think could see this coming a mile off. But instead of blaming the energy woes on failed government policies, federal network agency head Klaus Müller criticizes the situation on the consumers, and worries the gas storage may not last the whole winter. When all else fails blame the consumer, whilst encouraging the consumer to consume and then consume more, do these people not get irony? The atypical fear based rhetoric of, we are running out of – insert commodity, has failed to materialize even once in the last 60 years of their warnings. A national gas shortage in winter can be avoided if, firstly, the savings target of at least 20 percent continues to be achieved, the Federal Network Agency says. Or, a shortage can be avoided if these agencies or politician's use 20% more of their brain capacity and future think. Here the government's solution clearly is that, citizens should accept freezing even more when it's bitterly cold out. Yet there was over 800 million euros paid for unproduced energy in 2021. The problem with wind power is that either too much or too little is produced, due to the weather. Perhaps they need to move to Vancouver, one person produces plenty of wind over there to sustain the production. But the past weeks have seen little wind power being produced, and so gas turbines had to be fired up to keep the grid supplied. But when it's too windy, something needs to be done to keep the grid from being overloaded: wind turbines then have to be shut down. Has nobody come up with a plan to store the energy quickly during the too windy spells? I guess not, too much like common sense that. That's costing Germans 807 million euros this year, because the excess electricity that could have been fed into the grid by the wind parks legally has to be compensated. For the amount of electricity that the operators could have fed into the grid, they still receive compensation from the grid operators according to the statutory tariffs. This sum is higher than ever this year: 807 million euros, a record value for electricity that never existed. What a scam that is, yet nobody says anything! It is a license to print free money for the aptly named energy harvesters. But, the problem is getting bigger, according to the Federal Ministry of Economics. At the time of the worst energy crisis Germany has seen in a long time, when companies and consumers are hammered by energy prices like rarely before, Germany is paying money for energy that also doesn't get produced. So far Germany's response to the energy crisis is plans to build many more turbines, with talks of even tripling its current installed capacity, which of course would only triple grid volatility, thus making it far more unstable than it already is and so create an even much bigger mess. Clown policies in a clown world, running ouroboros programs and then wondering why they don't work. What is worse is, we the people allow them the license to make those errors. Just like the increase in coal production piece last week, it is failing. The problem with clowns is, their programs will never work where shekels are involved.

Just as I warned in past shows, the French will lead the way in Europe with protests. As for the second time within the last 12 days over a million French people have taken to the streets. French protesters launched a new push Tuesday to pressure President Emmanuel Macron into dropping a pension reform plan, with hundreds of thousands taking to the streets in bigger crowds than those seen on the previous day of rallies on January 19. Union-led protesters came out for mass demonstrations for the second time in less than two weeks, challenging Macron's plan to raise the age of retirement from 62 to 64, a flagship reform of his second mandate. Half a million people were protesting on Tuesday afternoon in Paris alone, the main CGT union said, higher than the figure of 400,000 it gave for the last day of rallies on January 19. Paris police put the figure for Tuesday's protest at 87,000. The CGT said 2.8 million were protesting nationwide. The French police put the figure at more than 1.2 million. With the public sector workers also striking in the UK, tumultuous times in the EU. You know why the increase in retirement age? Because these same clowns raided the funds and there is not enough left. There will never be enough funds, period. The supply is about 1/3 of what it was 5 years ago, that is not returning until radical reforms attached to the blueprint we have developed is made. I suspect the backlash forecasted is about to unfold.

I have been ultra-critical of the US Military and yet I am aware there are many within it, who would agree with my stance and wish to change the corrupt system they operate within. I am not 100% sure of the validity of this, as much of the Alt Media is utter drivel. But if it is true I applaud it 100%, I warned last week to watch the military, maybe this is the start of the upheaval required. U.S. Marines nearly got into a blazing firefight with corrupt federal agents Thursday afternoon, when four FBI desperados arrived at Camp Pendleton's gates, claiming to have arrest warrants for two Marines who had peacefully visited the Capitol on January 6. The feds' unwanted appearance marks the second time this week Merrick Garland's Gestapo came hunting for active-duty Marines, whose only motives for visiting Washington were to protest the stolen election and render aid to injured persons. FBI agents on Tuesday unlawfully arrested three Marines: Micah Coomer, stationed at Camp Pendleton; Joshua Abate, Fort Meade; and Dodge Dale Hellonen, Camp Lejeune. Funny they never arrested those who poisoned all the troops for decades at Camp Lejeune, isn't it? All three were arrested off post and charged with misdemeanors. After their arrest, the feds tried to sow discord and paranoia within the Corps, claiming without evidence, that fellow Marines aided their investigation and helped identify the suspects. A source in General Eric M. Smith's office refuted that assertion. No loyal Marine would help the criminal DOJ. The Marines taken into custody are good Marines. Yes, they were at the Capitol, but they entered the building after they saw people getting trampled, to give medical help. There only so-called crime was putting a MAGA hat on a statue. These Marines saved lives, the source said. Following their arrest, Gen. Smith's office issued a bulletin warning all active-duty Marines that the DOJ was engaged in a witch hunt to find any Marine who may have been in or near D.C. on January 6. The office also notified retired Marines for whom it had addresses or phone numbers. The notice cautioned Marines to be wary of their surroundings while off post, because malevolent federal agents were likely surveilling bars, nightclubs and shopping centers. It also suggested the feds might use attractive women making advances to entrap Marines. All very CIA tactics that to me. The FBI is probably skulking in towns and cities near our institutions, but less probable the cowards will have the audacity to show their faces at our home, the bulletin said. Thursday afternoon two black Lincoln Navigators pulled up to Camp Pendleton's San Luis Rey gate, one of eight guarded access points. The occupants approached the Marine sentries and identified themselves as FBI agents, saying they had a federal arrest warrant for two Marines on base. Gen. Smith's office asked RRN to withhold the Marines' names, but we can say one is a Master Gunnery Sergeant, the other a 2nd lieutenant. The four aggressive feds gave the sentries an ultimatum: deliver the Marines, or they'd enter Camp Pendleton to find them. Marines don't take kindly to threats, especially from a criminal FBI, the source said. The gate guards gave their warning, told the feds they could turn around and leave or take their best shot at getting inside. One fed reportedly told the lead sentry that Merrick Garland had given him the authority to arrest the two Marines by any means necessary, and moved his hand toward the holstered sidearm on his right hip. He found himself staring at the business end of the guard's rifle. The sentries, reminded the FBI that Camp Pendleton housed 42,000 fed-hating Marines. Gen. Smith became aware of the unfolding crisis. He has a strong irreverence for the feds, and the gate guards were told we wouldn't surrender anyone to their custody. The feds didn't like that and got highly agitated, causing a standoff that lasted fifteen minutes. The sentries kept their weapons trained on the FBI agents, who were advised to deescalate, get in their vehicles and leave. Finally, the feds caved in; although they climbed aboard their SUVs and left, one fed shouted through an open window, we'll be back and we'll be here waiting, a gate guard said. In closing, the source said that any feds caught arresting Marines will be treated as enemy combatants. If true, it is a staggering exchange and is now showing the people are no longer tolerating the fake authorities. This is a good thing, because the so called authorities have done nothing to benefit the people ever. Like I said, it is going to get ugly this year, but ultimately rewarding.

Jacinda Ardern is the latest big name to step back from her position due to burnout. Burnout or exposure? Running before the masses chase it down? Is her decision enough to finally move the needle on workplace mental health? Asked the report. Why the discussion on mental health now? She/he/it was clearly deranged from the off. Controversial Former New Zealand Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern will require more ongoing security and protection than any previous PM, according to political scientist and former intelligence worker Paul Buchanan. Buchanan cites a rise in documented threats against Ardern, which have reportedly tripled between 2020 and 2022, as well as what he claims is increased misogyny and violent sentiment as reasons for the increased security measures. Or the fact her Fascist Zionist policies were stifling every NZ resident could be more the case.

SOCIETY NEWS: The knock-on effect applies in this piece, of people making decisions that impacts the lives of we the people, yet curiously too few challenges them to stop making those types of decisions on our behalf. This is the effect piece, but the cause was the Supreme Court meddling where they shouldn't, with the Wade v. Roe overturn decision. This has caused many people to rethink their paths, and take some radical decisions to protect themselves, albeit those procedures comes with a big risk, like all surgery. This is a story about a guy in Missouri, but is playing out on a much wider scale. Lyon Lenk will go to his urologist's office in Kansas City, Missouri, US. He'll be given a local anesthetic, and the doctor will cut a tiny incision in Lenk's scrotum, locate his vas deferens – the tube that carries sperm through the penis – cut it, and seal the ends. The incision will be closed, and Lenk will go home, take some over-the-counter painkillers and as long as there are no complications, be free from discomfort within a week or so. Lenk, 35, and his partner have no children, and they want to keep it that way. When the United States Supreme Court ruled in Dobbs v Jackson Women's Health Organization, that there is no constitutional right to an abortion, overturning Roe v Wade, the decision that has protected abortion rights since 1973, he scheduled a vasectomy. I think like a lot of people in my situation, this is something that we were probably on the fence about before Roe v Wade got overturned, says Lenk. But this is the only option to keep my partner safe at this juncture, because I live in Missouri. As Missouri has one of the trigger laws that went into effect, criminalizing abortion right as it got overturned. It just got really scary and really real all at once. More young men are inquiring about and getting vasectomies. It's a trend that's been observed informally in several countries, and has particularly spiked in the United States since the Supreme Court's decision. Google Trends tracked a huge uptick in US searches for vasectomy, along with the related search terms Roe and abortion. The search volume was even higher in places with trigger laws. A report from telehealth research company Innerbody Research showed searches for where can I get a vasectomy increased by 850% in the days after the news, with the biggest jumps in the conservative states of Texas and Florida. One practice in Florida told CBS News that the number of child-free men getting vasectomies under the age of 30 had doubled since the ruling. Urologists in New York, California, Iowa and elsewhere have reported similar upticks. It's a norm-bucking trend. As responsibility for birth control, has traditionally even for long-term couples, has long fallen disproportionately to women; with female sterilization, oral contraceptives, IUDs and other options for women remain the most common forms of birth control in the US. But with more

Americans focusing on contraceptive decisions in the wake of the Dobbs ruling, the rise in interest around vasectomies may signal a shift towards men taking more responsibility for their own reproduction or lack thereof. In many countries, vasectomy has been a niche practice. Rates are especially low in developing nations, with average prevalence usage by women aged 15 to 49 in relationships as a form of contraception between 0% and 2%. It's more common in other countries: UN figures from 2015 show that in Canada and the UK, prevalence stood at 21.7% and 21%, respectively, whilst in the US, the UN figure was 10.8%. While vasectomies in American men between 18 and 45 were on the decline between 2002 and 2017, studies have documented some notable spikes, especially during the 2007 to 2009 Great Recession. A 34% increase in vasectomy utilization during the Great Recession, was most strongly correlated with the rise in unemployment rate, wrote researchers in the Department of Urology at Stanford University. Economic conditions are not the only factor in vasectomy upticks. Concerns linked to climate and overpopulation have led to a desire, for some, to limit their family size or have no children. In Australia, where vasectomy rates are relatively high compared to some developed nations, doctors are reporting an increase in men younger than 30 seeking the procedure. Between 2020 and 2021, there's been close to a 20% increase in the number of childless men under 30 requesting vasectomies, a doctor in Australia. There are also anecdotal reports that vasectomies among young men are becoming more prevalent in the UK and even in China, where sterilization remains culturally taboo. In the US, says Alexander Pastuszak, assistant professor in the division of urology surgery at the University of Utah, the most common reason for seeking a vasectomy used to be my wife asked me to. But since the Supreme Court's decision, he says, more men seem to be taking ownership of their reproductive options, as women's options become more limited. Particularly in the states where the anti-abortion laws have really been reinstated, my colleagues have definitely seen an uptick in the number of men coming to see them for vasectomy, says Pastuszak. There's a sense that, we can't just have sex anymore on our terms. Stanton Honig, professor of clinical urology and division chief of reproductive and sexual medicine at Yale School of Medicine, also believes the political climate is a driving factor in the rising number of vasectomies. We did see an initial spike in quotes for vasectomy with the overturn of Roe v Wade, he says. As many urologists are now backed up months to do vasectomies. In overview it is nice to see people taking personal responsibility again. But in overview as well, it is a nice little depopulation program they have running there, and yet again in predominantly white countries. They never do anything without there being several reasons behind it, but the primary reason for it was, depopulation. The issue is, those that need to be depopulated are the very ones proposing this. If these psychopaths shared more of the wealth and resources, the world would have many less issues. Guilt and shaming people away from one of life's main purposes, reproduction, is a very sick society. People not having children because they don't have enough money, largely due to the Jewish EL-ites who create these programs is, a society that is not developing. This whole episode is because the clowns are terrified of adding more souls into the mix, that will end their control over us. That is the top and bottom line of it, they are riddled with fear, time to increase their fear and take this planet back, is very close at hand now.

Another event involving violence, another event if the race was different would have yielded more fake outrage. A Missouri man was chased down by thugs in a uniform called police, who then set about repeatedly punching him and kicking whilst he was on the ground, including to the head. The man was tasered as well, despite little to no struggling and left propped up against a car. The man later died, he was black. Yet another example of police targeting black people it seems, and yet there is a twist to the story. As the five cops involved in his death, were all black. Just as I pointed out in the zoom following the Saturday show recently. So much for black lives matter, when they are indiscriminately killing their own. Yet again that will not be addressed and yet again only THI will point out the problem and the solution. The question that has to be answered is; why are the black community so riddled with violence? All too easy to blame whites, police or Hispanics, but where are the fingers pointing back? The lack of fingers pointing back, are what hampers the ending of this great problem in society, leading to more and more black people to lose their lives. The time for police talking is over, they have done nothing to address the thuggery, corruption, fraud and deceit within their own ranks. Government have took no action either and the media propagates it. If we had a proper Justice Department the role of the media in this would or should have been investigated and dealt with. The buck starts and stops at home though, within the black communities themselves. Time to clean house, vigils and protests have never worked as that is the effect, the cause is your own people. Unless of course you find violence appealing? That was a question not a statement. On a wider note, is this further evidence of the voodoo genes, that the URS tried unsuccessfully to address?

Throughout my time as a radio show host and before that, I gave several warnings to those who would listen about many topics. But, one in particular should have come to the fore over that duration, the use or misuse of technology. One of the deeper understandings I have is the inherent dangers of the overuse of that modality. The gravest mistake of the masses is, not grasping it in the now, not grasping the potentials of the future and thirdly thinking all technology is science fiction and way off into the future. Big mistake. There is no new technology, none, it is all old and introduced to us here, when they can market it and at the same time weaponize it against us. Amongst the many warning was a show done in 2019, that should have been alarmingly to you all, as it has been referenced far too many times in the past 18 months, called Clowns in Panic. In it warned again of the grave dangers of underestimating its scope and the overwhelming interference it has in our lives. Here is a partial BBC report highlighting it, because they do have to tell us. Given I know the BBC and others tune into our show, perhaps they need to rethink more deeply as well? All those whose jobs involves speaking in any format, will be replaced by a machine. Think news readers, weather people, teachers, yes teachers as the chatgpt we highlighted recently is currently being tested for classrooms. Receptionist, desk sergeants, call centers, shop assistants, meet and greeters, cashiers, which is already implemented in some cases. Generals and other leading military, agency people, administration people, bank tellers, insurance agents and I could go on for the rest of this show citing examples of jobs being replaced by the replicating machines. Machines you pay to build and then they work for free until maintenance is required. Which is a lot less than pensions, holiday pay, sick pay, maternity pay etc, to the shekel people who only think of the bottom line, this is their path, except they have not realized that ultimately they will be replaced as well, more on that later. Here is the article. Before the pandemic, Mark had a lot of autonomy in his job in the IT department of a US industrial firm. He and his teammates were able to get their work done, he says, without our manager doing much, you know, managing. Then comes the sleight of hand move. That changed abruptly when the company transitioned to working from home. The monitoring started on day one, says Mark, whose surname is being withheld for career concerns. The company began using software that enabled remote control of employees' systems, and Mark says his team had to give their manager the password, so he could connect without us having to accept. If the password changed, he requested it by email first thing in the morning. The surveillance, explained Mark's manager, was aimed at making sure everyone stayed productive and had the same kind of open communication they'd had in the office. That was the seducement based on fear, next comes the mode of making you fearful. In reality, it made Mark anxious, and contributed to him quickly feeling overworked and burnt out. It was just stressful, feeling that I had to be actively using the computer at all times for fear of him thinking something like a phone call or bathroom break was me slacking off, he says. With the rise in remote work has come a surge in workplace monitoring, some 2022 estimates posit the number of large firms monitoring workers has doubled since the beginning of the pandemic. And the tiny man says; well I never! Some monitoring programs record keystrokes or track computer activity by taking periodic screenshots. Other software records calls or meetings, even accessing employees' webcams. Or, like in Mark's case, some programs enable full remote access to workers' systems. Hence my term, they are voyeuristic perverts. Regardless of how they choose to monitor workers, many firms are embracing monitoring because they believe it ensures the productivity of remote employees, says Karen Levy, associate professor in the Department of Information Science at Cornell University, US, and author of the book Data Driven: Truckers, Technology, and the New Workplace Surveillance. Karen Levy, I wonder what race she is from? I say that in total sarcasm. But amid the uptick in monitoring, there's mounting evidence that electronic surveillance can, in some cases, do more harm than good. No shit sherlock! These people are slower than the Russians, who were allegedly coming for America since the 1950's. Workers chafe against it, and surveillance can lead to stress, cause employees to quit and even make workers do their job worse, on purpose. A 2021 study from internet-security tool ExpressVPN of 2,000 employers and 2,000 employees working remotely or on a hybrid schedule, showed that close to 80% of bosses use monitoring software. Working on a hybrid schedule? Oh my, the implications behind those words.

That no doubt increased in 2022, moreso after that until people say enough is enough. All of this piece to date has yet again covered the effect, but what is the cause? I am going to sit here quietly for a bit and I am asking you to write one or two words on the chat to describe the cause, then we will continue with this piece. What is the cause? If you said fear it was a good answer and it certainly plays into it. But the biggest cause is, a lack of trust. Too few trust each other and it is something we have tried to address in THI and moreso in the village. I have already discussed that issues surrounding males not trusting females and vice versa, plus the deeper problem of females not trusting each other as well. It then comes down to, what do females actually trust? It can't be themselves, as you don't trust your own or the opposite sex, so it is not possible to trust the self. This then hampers your development, as self-mastery cannot be attained without 100% trust of the self. 100% truth in and of the self as well is then required, which then allows you to not waste energy defending yourself or your truth. A world of no trust, brings a world of fear, brings a world of divisiveness and only helps the dark forces. But what also plays into this surveillance is, our own lack of discipline. Some people will do anything to get out of doing their work, we have all seen those people in our working environments. Looking busy all day whilst doing nothing in essence. This then leads to mistrust amongst those in the work force, and subsequently everyone is on a watchlist. We must learn to trust each other, for us all to prosper. Man approaches woman, and she thinks he just wants to get in my knickers. Woman approaches man, and he thinks she just wants all my money or assets. How can a society evolve with that level of thinking? The answer is, it won't. In a selfish society there are more takers than givers, in the song Heaven and Hell it says; the less that you give you're a taker. Humanities inherent ability to be lazy, certainly in terms of thinking for the self and in some cases people just being totally lazy and contributing nothing to society. The latter of which will embrace technology, because technology is in overview a lazy tool. Of which the phone is the classic example, no longer do people study, they only seek the answer to be right. All whilst being surveilled 24/7, spied upon 24/7, leaving their intimate details available for the voyeuristic perverts, all whilst not thinking it is unfolding against them. It is funny they will rail against what used to be called a peeping tom, yet now allow a vast array of peeping toms to invade their lifestyle, the great question is; what or where is the difference? The next stage of this technology and politicians really need to start to think more is, a machine based Government. The ultimate one world government in essence, no puppet politicians to pay off and all the public decisions made for them by an off world based AI system. All doing the work for them and us, why? because we were too lazy, absent minded and ignorant to protect our organic lifestyles, and handed the responsibility over to puppets, and then the machines. The one thing the makers and designers of this forgot is, where is the shekel earning replacement coming from? Because this scheme is designed to save you spending your shekels, yet will deny most people a living, and so your shekels earning will plummet as nobody has any money to spend in your shekel making shops and industries. I bet with your narrow minded thinking you never thought of that did you? My answer to you is; typical. You are the thinking man's lobotomized version. You will own nothing and be happy they said, what happens when the pushers of this becomes part of it? Do you seriously think your titles and wealth it will keep you out of it? Are you retarded? Because if that is what you are thinking, I have news for you, the machines will not recognize you as anything different, and you will suffer the fate of the masses also. The piece first they came for the blah blah, and because I am not a blah blah I ignored it. Eventually having ignored all the blah blahs, it comes down to you, and you will be consumed like the rest of us. That is how it works jackasses, wake up and smell the machine based tyranny. What happens if the machine is a Stargate type replicator being? How will you plan to stop them then? Or will you wait in classic human trait of react after the event has unfolded, because by then it is too late again. In essence you people in the WEF and other clown based meeting are doing the work for off world machine races, whilst thinking you all have the golden ticket. You have a golden ticket all right, a fool's gold ticket.

MYSTERY PIECES: The Government of India admitted in Parliament that it is difficult to conclusively prove that Ram Setu, the bridge between India and Sri Lanka that was visible until 500 years ago was manmade, as the Ramayana took place 18,000 years ago. The bridge is 56 km long and satellite images show only limestone shoals. This will not stop social media from talking about the floating stones of Rameshwaram, never once considering that the common pumice stone used by beauticians to remove dead skin also floats in water. Tourist guides in Sri Lanka will continue to take educated Indians to prehistoric spots identified as Ravana's Palace, Ravana's garden, Ravana's underground bunker, Ravana's airport and the mountain of herbs that Hanuman brought from the Himalayas. Herbs from the Himalayas? All very Milk Ocean that is it not? Dronagiri village in Uttarakhand does not worship Hanuman as they are upset that he took away their mountain of herbs. The great grudge game being played out from the past, is something people need to stop, yes I am looking at you Ireland and many others playing out grudge games, without having the foggiest idea as to why, just stop it. If Indians bothered to ask Sri Lankans about the history of their island, they would learn that the oldest texts in Sri Lanka such as Dipavamsa and Mahavamsa, which are about 1,500 years old, which do not refer to Ramayana or Ravana. They do, however, speak of a prince called Vijaya, who came from India. He descended from lions giving the island the name of Sigha-dvipa or Sinhala, or the lion-island, which became Sahalan in Arabic, and Ceylon in Dutch. Lion island or lion-serpent island? given the close connection of the Nagas in that region. The island was also called Tamralipta, the copper land. Wherever copper is located, the off-world traders have been digging, as copper is more valuable than gold away from here. It was also Swarnadeepa, the golden land, which became Serendip in Arabic, from which comes the English word serendipity or something found by chance. Sri Lanka or Sri Lak, a local name, simply meant an auspicious or fertile island, a common noun, not a proper noun. The old chronicles refer to a rivalry between the Mahayana Buddhists and the Theravada, the old school Pali Buddhists. Mahayana Buddhists who came from Chola land, which is Tamil land, tried to impose their way across the island, which led to violent opposition. Yet again people killing each other over fake religions and gods. It has been postulated that the Mahayanists composed the text Lankavatara Sutra, which talks about how Buddha arrived in the island of Sri Lanka to teach Ravana the Buddhist doctrine. Are the Mahayanists the origin of the Mayans? This is the first Buddhist document which tries to connect Sri Lanka with Ravana. Eventually, the Mahayana influence waned and Theravada prevailed. But the tension continued between the Cholas who worshipped Shiva and the Theravada Buddhists of Sri Lanka. Sri Lankan kings attacked Madurai while Chola, even Kalinga, kings attacked and destroyed Anuradhapura, the ancient capital of Sri Lanka, forcing kings to take refuge in hills. All this happened over a thousand years ago, and the hostility perhaps led to the propaganda that the people who lived on the island beyond Rameshwaram was originally home to demons, or Rakshasas, whose king had once tried but failed to take Shiva south. Chola kings sponsored the Tamil Ramayana, Khamban's Iramavataram. Lanka, a word that simply means island, came to refer to the island beyond Rameshwaram ruled by Buddhists who defied Chola power. Sri Lankan kings in the 10th century saw themselves as belonging to the solar or Ikshavaku (Okkaka) dynasty of kings, to which belonged Ram of the Hindus and Siddhartha Gautama of the Buddhists. In Sri Lankan memory, many previous Buddhas visited the island, and finally Ashoka's son Mahinda (Mahendra) arrived here with a sapling of Buddha's famous Bodhi tree. Thus, in Sri Lankan memory, it was the keeper of oldest Buddhist doctrines, and had nothing to do with Hinduism. All this science and history, of course, does not matter to those with faith. Fighting over religion and fake gods should in a civilized common sense society have ended thousands of years ago, but the repeat loop programs all still playing out. In essence the wars become another version of ritual sacrifice, something that is totally lost on the people fighting the wars. I guess you can't teach stupid. Ram Setu has another name which provides a clue, Adam's bridge. This bridge no matter how they try to deflect it, was built by off world genetic shenanigans by creating an advanced monkey type race of beings. It was their Adam and Eve again, like the Neanderthals before them, another Adam and Eve. These monkeys were used as slaves, Adamu means slave. They were called the Hanuman, they are depicted with a human like body with a monkey face, and one interpretation of Hanuman is one having a disfigured jaw, all very Hapsburg that you have to say. Is it Hanu man or Anu man? That piece was written a few weeks ago, and then a listener asked me did I know about the spear of Anjana, which I didn't. But what synchronicities were found by looking it up. According to Hindu mythology, Anjana is the mother of Lord Hanuman, otherwise known as the Monkey God. Although Anjana was an Apsara, a female spirit of the clouds, she was cursed by a sage to take form as a monkey on earth. Despite this curse, Anjana was a pure and devoted being, and was ultimately relieved of the curse through the gift of her son Hanuman. During her time on earth, Anjana married a Vanara chief named Kesari. Since the couple remained childless, Anjana prayed to become better and repay her karmic debt for the curse. In doing so, Anjana symbolizes the universal strive to liberate the divine from animalistic suffering. Her devotion is rewarded by the immaculate conception of Hanuman. Vayu, god of the wind, I thought it was Roger! Vayu delivered the divine power of Lord Shiva and Parvati to Anjana's womb, and so Hanuman was born as an incarnation of Shiva. Hanuman's monkey-like features are attributed to Anjana's status as a Vanara at the time of his birth. In Hinduism, Vanara are either monkeys, apes or a race of forest-dwelling people. In Sanskrit: it means forest-dwellers. In the epic the Ramayana, the Vanaras help Rama defeat Ravana. They are generally depicted as humanoid apes or human-like beings. Humanoid apes or human-like beings? That is a further confirmation of the Cosmic Genetic series. How can the Sri Lankan government deny their own history? Although the word Vanara has come to mean monkey over the years and the Vanaras are depicted as monkeys in the popular art, their exact identity is not clear. Their identity is clear, the thinking on or the realization of the facts, is what is not clear. According to the Ramayana, Vanaras were shapeshifters. In the Vanara form, they had beards with extended sideburns, narrowly shaved chin gap and no moustache. They had a tail and razor-sharp claws. Their skin and skeleton were reinforced with an indestructible Vajra, which no earthly element could penetrate. Which is suggestive of reptile skin, a toughened armor shell. Unlike other exotic creatures such as the rakshasas, the Vanaras do not have a precursor in the Vedic literature. All of which confirms they were a created being that was brought here by the off world invaders, just like the domesticated cat. The Ramayana presents them as humans with reference to their speech, clothing, habitations, funerals, weddings, consecrations etc. It also describes their monkey-like characteristics such as their leaping, hair, fur and a tail. Aiyangar suggests that though the poet of the Ramayana may have known that Vanaras were actually forest-dwelling people, he may have portrayed them as real monkeys with supernatural powers and many of them as amass, with resemblances of the gods with god like powers, to make the epic more fantastic. That is again a deflection of the truth, because most people cannot handle it, so they twist it into fables and myths, due to their inability to face facts. Armed with ridiculous theories like Darwinism, which in overview is a limitation program, designed for people to belong and stay in boxes, they created for us. Stepping outside of the box or theory present unlimited possibilities and realities, that actually make sense, unlike their fables. According to one theory, the Vanaras are semi-divine creatures. This is based on their supernatural abilities, as well as descriptions of Brahma commanding other deities to either bear Vanara offspring, or incarnate as Vanaras to help Rama in his mission. The Jain re-tellings of Ramayana describe them as a clan of the supernatural beings called the Vidyadharas; the flag of this clan, bears monkeys as emblems. Here comes another deflection of truth that makes no sense. G. Ramdas, based on Ravana's reference to the Vanaras' tail as an ornament, infers that the tail was actually an appendage in the dress worn by the men of the Savara tribe. (M) turn it in. The female Vanaras are not described as having a tail, well I never, I guess they were not that fashion conscious back then or in reality land they were not born with certain appendages. According to this theory, the non-human characteristics of the Vanaras may be considered artistic imagination. No, the interpretation of it is artistic imagination, because they have no real imagination and cannot comprehend what is in front of their own eyes. Monkeys as gods? Can't have that, as that upsets the mind meme they have been given, that man is above everything else, yet, isn't that a definition of racism? This is the same culture that celebrates flying elephants, have you ever seen a flying elephant? This same culture celebrates a being with multiple arms, yet if a child is born with deformities nowadays, they are merciless taunted and also shunned, where is the consistency? In Sri Lanka, the word Vanara has been used to describe the Nittawos mentioned in the Vedda legends. Nittawo or Nittevo were said to be a small tribe of small bigfoot or Yeti-like hominid Cryptid native to Sri Lanka. No archeological evidence has been found to prove the existence of these humanoids, but they are ubiquitous in Vedda mythology and Sri Lankan folklore. The no archeological evidence doesn't stack up either, as even if found they are labeled with what the system provided for them, as a branch of the ape or monkey family. Too easy to misrepresent the facts, and when more obvious examples kick in, silence prevails and the officials take over and describes in their words the cover story. In steps the Smithsonian and removes all the evidence and is kept in secret bunkers away from prying eyes and questioning minds. Here are some questions to ponder on; what if these monkeys never died? What if they still exist just outside of our eyesight spectrum? What if these being are the yeti, the abominable snowman, the sasquatch and various other names of hominid like apes? In the Ramayana, Vanaras are created by Brahma to help Rama in battle against Ravana. They are powerful and have many godly traits. Taking Brahma's orders, the gods began to parent sons in the zion of Kishkindha, identified with parts of present-day Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh, and Maharashtra. In the zion? The zion in India? Oh my, and we all thought the zion is Jerusalem and Israel. That line reveals further proof of FHSTOS. Rama first met them in Dandaka Forest, during his search for Sita, who was his wife. She was probably away somewhere having an immaculate conception. An army of Vanaras helped Rama in his search for Sita, and also in battle against Ravana, Sita's abductor. Nala and Nila built a bridge over the ocean so that Rama and the army could cross to Lanka. This is the land bridge still visible on their Google maps. As described in the epic, the characteristics of the Vanara include being amusing, childish, mildly irritating, badgering, hyperactive, adventurous, bluntly honest, loyal, courageous and kind. The Vanaras also appear in other texts, including Mahabharata. The epic Mahabharata describes them as forest-dwelling, and mentions their being encountered by Sahadeva, the youngest Pandava. In the Ramayana, the Vanara Hanuman changes shape several times. For example, while he searches for the kidnapped Sita in Ravana's palaces on Lanka, he contracts himself to the size of a cat, so that he will not be detected by the enemy. He turns into a spy, well I never! Later on, he takes on the size of a mountain, blazing with radiance, to show his true power to Sita. This so called shapeshifting is a trick of the eyes in my opinion. Only one reptile species is capable of shapeshifting according to my knowledge. The Vanaras are also evil creatures in the tabletop roleplay game Gandariah Lords of Arcanas, where they were created by the Garuda power to spread misfortune and avenge the rakshasas. Anjana is a powerful symbol of the struggle between spirituality and earthly reality. This can also be seen as the difference between the heart and mind. True spirituality does not reside in the head, only the heart where the spirit/soul package is housed. The earthly reality has been manipulated to the point of non-reality, which can only be based within the mind. The mind is a virus, the heart is the antidote. In the tale of Hanuman's conception, the inner divine mother is trapped in animal form by her own karma. A tale of our own descent in essence, as too many represent the more animal form and behaviors, than the crown of creation. Through penance and devotion it was said, she is able to relieve herself of this suffering; a timeless moral to an ancient story.

MYSTERY PIECES: Part 2 I was pondering on a saying from my hometown, which when said in the accent of that town could be a reverse mind meme and a pointer. We have spoken about Tara, in the early FHOSTOS series and her relation to not only Perun the leader of the URS and Vedics, but to a place in Ireland. The place in Ireland called the Hill of Tara is a sacred place, that was likely built to Tara herself, until the reptile based Tuatha De Danaan replaced it and them. Is it tara or terrar as said in my hometown, which means goodbye. Goodbye Ra? Is that unfolding? Tara also plays into the connection of this planet and her via the Seal of Amenti. That has made good progress, the finer details of which cannot be released at this time.

An interesting piece done by the MSM that confirms another of our memes within the show. The meme find the pattern and it always repeats, something that I told the Trustee, except she found their patterns and repeated it. Pattern recognition according to IQ test designers is a key determinant of a person's potential to think logically, verbally, numerically and spatially. Spatially being a key component, you can't overview if you are not spatially aware, plus another line from our show of, apply depth to it. Compared to all mental abilities, pattern recognition is said to have the highest correlation with the so-called general intelligence factor. In a repeating loop based and ouroboros system, it can only repeat the patterns, just like an AI system. The AI system only copies the inputter and then just repeats it back, just like the chatgpt system. No ingenuity, only repeat scenarios based upon the past, all of which leads to another of our memes as a way to counteract that repeating loops. It is called future thinking, with one caveat, do not repeat the failures of the past. Speaking of people repeating the and their failures of the past leads us to the next piece.

In January of 2020 I was asked to do another task by the Trustee, related to the Omega System, and said I would take a look. I did and then I didn't and fobbed Kim off that I was working on it. I had no intention of working on it, it was a syphoning system, like another CIA/NSA back door into the new but old system. Around March of that year after deflecting talk of the Omega, I told her I don't trust it. For the last near 3 years since that time, she carried on working with the Omega and failure after failure has ensued. In the April 2020 I told her it would be twenty months for a breakthrough unless she implemented the plans she was given, she said I am not waiting 20 months to finish this shit, I want to retire. In 2021 when we were 4 months from a potential event, Kim wanted to do it herself and dragged the event forward to the July, so she can be the one person, that failed and the potential for a major change in the November of 2021 was lost. But Life force members all sat their waiting for Kim to integrate the Omega system, when in reality she was syphoning all of your energies. Which explains the chaos of the last few years, regardless of the Covid nonsense, which she also played a role in with Trump. Where is the personal responsibility for dozens of wrong moves made that not only impacted her, but us all. So the 20 months wait has now reached 33 months and counting, due to her decisions. Do I feel good I was right on all those decisions? No! why, because it impacted us all in a bad way and that is all on her. Another decision she didn't listen to was; you need a 3 or more person team to supply her with balanced decisions, otherwise I said you will carry the can for everything if it goes wrong. That is not only unfair but wrong, but that is the path of desire to be the one and only. Their system made it that way, they set her up for a fall and she duly obliged them. Her karmic debt is immense, whether she likes that or not. She has yes people around her, when she needed balanced and visionary people, but like yesterday trash, those all got discarded, due to again the desire to be the one and only. The one closest to her or was, has a business partner who manages for KPMG, which is Rothschild's, you can't make this stuff up. I wonder if Alan, Alan, Alan still believes he made the right choice? Or is he in denial like the jabbers? Fast forward from March 2020 to January 2023 and the great non-listening person has finally realized that, that the tiny inconsequential man who talks shit, who only wanted to sleep with her and is working for the Black Sun, erm touche – just saying, whether knowingly or not, that the tiny man was right again. She took 34 months to realize what she and only she has been doing with this statement on the Omega. Energy that formed money was used to buy your existence and bind you into their reality! The Omega AI system trapped you, drained you and made the 99% powerless to make the 1% powerful! All controlled by a structure that ended at the FED to print money! No shit sherlock is my reply, but that is what she imposed on us all for the last near 3 years, her inability to listen cost not only her, but us all. The system she took on, hampered us all and boosted the clowns she was supposed to be stopping. This comes after Kim said on 28th December last year, that humans will have no ownership of their soul, mind, body. On top of I am removing all of your chakras and grey matter in your heads, and people listen to this? The question is; who made her Source? 11 years on as the Trustee, no funds, no stopping the Fed, no stopping the power of the banks, no alternative system implemented, no defined plan, no Restoration plan and no enforcement of any kind or level. So, now in her desire to be the savior and right again, she has implemented something else. The Omega is completely gone! Stated as her being the savior, when it was her who implemented it. Alpha now controls both Front (Omega) and Back (Alpha/Load-bearing), but guess what? That is wrong as well, I guess we wait for another 34 months for her to realize that as well. Here is a clue, Omega = omicron and Marduk, Alpha = Draco as in Alpha Draconis. Here is a basic common sense question for everyone; why with the most extensive system ever built, the Quantum System, why would you need to integrate their clown based systems like Alpha and Omega? Unless it was for negative purposes? Naivety and ignorance has its limits, and she went beyond them over the past 3 years. It becomes stupid, dangerous and damaging to us all, she has to unlearn what she was programmed with and start again. I said after the split, she has 4 years to re-invent herself and go again, but 3 years on she is still stuck on the hamster wheel of repeat after repeat, and repeated failure I might add, due to the inability to get out of his and her head. In the words of the song Children of the sea, she threw away the key and locked the door. And that applies on many, many levels not just the banking system. But, that is her legacy to date, her burden, her karma and her choices. And the people bowed and prayed to the neon god she made, neon means new, a new god of her own making. New god the same as the old god is essentially what that is, with a digital twist. Is the neon god a glowing Ba'al or global? Neon is highly volatile, just like her. Neon signs are used for adverts for a reason, to blind you. When you channel streams of neon ions through a magnetic and an electric field it splits in two (duality) and measured it, it creates two different parabolas of deflection. Neon content observed in samples of volcanic gases and diamonds is also enriched in  $^{20}\text{Ne}$ , suggesting a primordial, possibly solar origin. When that last line is understood on a much deeper level, the implications for us all are enormous. Neon is produced from air in cryogenic air-separation plants, plants in stasis, ponder on that deeply as well. You know where it is produced most? Moscow and Odessa, Russia and Ukraine, it is a current coincidence? Or indicative? Neon is used in vacuum tubes, high-voltage indicators, lightning arresters, wavemeter tubes, television tubes, helium–neon lasers and cryogenic refrigerant's. What a nice collection of misused items that is. Neon is called a noble gas, is that in overview connected to nobility or manipulated by them? Nobility brings us the title of Lords, her neon god is the Lord or Lucifer. One talks about integrating the nine within us all, the other declares she is the nine only, along with her Neon god on 9D. And the people bowed and prayed to the neon god she made, whilst we all suffer the sound of silence. I said time would tell, but time is now telling on her, enjoy the dance with the time matrix whilst I have no time. Take the personalities out of the equation here, what is the overview? and then ask where are they leading us to? But as things unfold with these pieces, something else crops up and adds to it. The world's first artificial human is called neon. Replete with capture of; Neon is a computationally created virtual being that looks and behaves like us. As we divest from us acting and behaving like them, in their image and likeness. The boot has now turned and they are creating themselves and copying our image. The two world separation is now firmly set in motion, without the spinning. Final piece on this and her; she was given a half way opportunity last Friday, frigg's day and 3 separate locations and times to meet up and failed to turn up. And that is ok, I and we have done rather well without her, can she say the same? I suspect not. Her worst fears now will come into play, next lifetime she will be returning here but in a very differing situation. No wonder she wanted to build a time machine with a CIA/Black Sun bed partner. The woman with all those titles that delivers nothing, couldn't face the tiny man. I greater question is; when will she learn to face herself? And more importantly, who is looking back at her in the mirror? Who is the man in the mirror? Who consorted who? Step back or face consequences of actions. The energy is supposed to be shared not harvested, hence your demotion. T-1 and now reassembled in a new way and path, that benefits the all.

The delicate and gentle Saturday's show recently, a tiny walk in the park that brought up the occasional light thinking and pondering. What? You don't agree with that assessment? This song came up in my head and echoed much of that Saturday show. As I walk this land of broken dreams, I have visions of many things. But happiness is just an illusion, filled with sadness and confusion. America is the land of broken dreams and many nightmares, yet we had visions of many things. Happiness is just an illusion, yes the providence of sorrow, whereby you become happy in grief and pain. What becomes of the brokenhearted, who has love that's now departed? I know I've got to find, some kind of peace of mind, baby Perhaps the heart is broken due to using too many pieces of the mind? The departing love is the music of the spheres. The roots of love grow all around, but for me, they come tumblin' down. This speaks to the seed below the ground awaiting to flower, when you step into your own power. But if you don't use that power wisely, it will come tumbling down. Every day heartaches grow a little stronger, I can't stand this pain much longer. Yet we continue to put up with our plight and don't do enough to change things. I walk in shadows searching for light, cold and alone, no comfort in sight. If you integrate the shadows and shine your beacon, you will realize you were never alone, only in a self-created box. Hoping and praying for someone to care, always moving and goin' nowhere. I am hoping and pleading for everyone to care, ducking and jiving will not attain that basic human trait. It can only heal what you have recovered, is an important topic and take home from that Saturday show. A brutal hard hitting no one left out piece, of how we as a collective have neglected anything that is beneficial to us all. Arguing over effects whilst ignoring the cause. And yes, despite some who may protest, we are largely to blame. No matter what color race, gender, sexuality, political party or religious denomination. Yes we all have a common enemy on the external, the evidence of that is overwhelming. But, the common enemy is us, for allowing that small few to denigrate, trample, harvest, trafficking and poison us in the first place. Their reign ends soon, in fact their world will collapse spectacularly soon and it will get ugly. Of that there can be no doubt. But Saturday's piece ended the illusion, our time now is facing the realities. Further work has been undertaken in relation to that show and is progressing nicely.

ENDING PIECE: What becomes of the broken hearted? Healing when you strive to do so. What becomes of the broken minded? Retardation, control systems, Russian dolls, labels, boxes and fear. We have mentioned certain things in recent show of celestial type events, which got you all pondering. There are many that have not been released as it is ongoing and being processed by the team. That is not designed to keep you out of the narrative, but these things are of a very sensitive nature and requires large responsibility, as a slip up can lead to catastrophic outcomes. But, certain things crop up in their world, most of which makes no sense, unless you know the background to

it. Most of our listeners have been told, you were just not ready to receive, and that is ok. The throwaway lines, the sometimes cryptic pieces and the at times in your faces pieces were not connected together enough to form the bigger picture. The recent show a Book of Revelations left you all pondering, mind blown and in some ways confused. But, speaking to those who have processed that show, they all say that show has changed them and their lives. It was meant to. But science in their limited world of effect's based thinking, does throw up the occasional bigger picture, even though they don't understand it or contemplate the outcome. I was waiting for certain events for confirms of some of the hidden aspects not yet revealed, this is one of them that broke in the MSM this past week. The piece said this. The Earth's inner core stopped spinning. But don't fret, it appears this happens from time to time, say every seven decades or so, which is clearly a Jewish based opinion as they love their 70 number. A new study published in Nature Geoscience by geophysicists Yi Yang and Xiadong Song of Peking University in Beijing, explored the nature of movement of Earth's inner core, largely made up of iron and molten liquids, or so they think. They found the inner core's movement recently reduced enough they consider it paused, all part of what seems to be associated with a gradual turning back of the inner core as a part of an approximately seven-decade oscillation. The last turning point was in the early 1970s. All of which negates their narrative, as that is only around 50 years not 70, more Johns Hopkins math it seems. We don't quite know the speed of spinning, but it appears that may be because the inner core remains in a constant state of flux and switches directions roughly every seven decades, thanks to electromagnetic imbalances and gravitational forces. Electromagnetic imbalances, hmm he muses, I wonder why? The new study further tracked seismic waves through the core to see how they played out on the other side of Earth. This globally consistent pattern suggests that inner-core rotation has recently paused, the study says. Clearly they do not know what is causing this and again are reacting to the effects. I guess you all want me to reveal what is and what has caused this, my answer is no. I can hear it now, Thomas you little shit tells us the answer. My reply is; I already did, but did you listen? Wells the fargo Thomas. I will leave you with some questions for you to arrive at your own answers. Think as above so below, as within so without. What was spinning that is not spinning now? How does that relay to another pattern? Is it to or from Rus? The final two questions are: where have we been and where are we now? The answers of which can fill you with joy or with fear, depending on whether you are in heart space or mindset. Signs, signs everywhere there are signs, but can you read or see them?
