NEWS: The blueprint softcover book is now available on Lulu.com, it will be a little bit extra due to publishing costs and also the excess will help pay for some of the postage of the mailing shots we are going to do. Which I will have to pay for as we cannot include the TPC. As Tavistock is outed for running programs for gender change alongside two charities called Mermaids and Stonewall. About time Tavistock was recognized for the damage they cause, with their anti-human programs and jackass think tank clowns.

The distinctly Jewish led social media juggernaut is now grinding to a halt, as more people avoid them like the plague. Ironically enough it was a similar plague that brought them down, Covid. I said we would see them back down at some point as it is all about the shekels with them. Less people on their platforms, equals less revenue from the advertisers, which is where they all make their money. Same applies to MSM news channels. This is the start of their pull back as the ouroboros virus they immerse themselves into, has bitten again. Banning lots of people was a great move for the people, bad one for them as people sought alternatives. Youtube and Facebook should be allowed to collapse, given their lies and hostility towards the people. YouTube will stop removing videos with false claims of fraud in the 2020 presidential election, the social media platform announced on Friday. The move, ahead of the 2024 elections, is a reversal of its policy put in place after the 2020 vote. The company said it has deleted tens of thousands of videos questioning the integrity of past elections, but now it was time to re-evaluate. The policy went into effect from 2 June. YouTube and other social media platforms have faced intense pressure since the 2016 elections to safeguard against political misinformation. The Google-owned platform says the new policy is being put into place because of today's changed landscape. In the current environment, we find that while removing this content does curb some misinformation, it could also have the unintended effect of curtailing political speech without meaningfully reducing the risk of violence or other real-world harm, the company said in a statement. They lie it is all about the shekels. Next pull back will be on Covid.

Here is another example of the newspapers now printing what the alt media has stated a long time back, particularly in relation to Soros. But now the media are reporting what I have said all along about pot. More evidence the pendulum is swinging the way of those who us who saw beyond the illusions. The Drug Policy Alliance, a group that has received millions of dollars from international banker George Soros, takes credit for creating cutting-edge policies that have fundamentally transformed the direction of drug policy in the U.S. This claim is true. The alliance has been instrumental in legalizing marijuana in 11 states and Washington, D.C. The promised benefits of marijuana legalization, however, have failed to materialize, leaving hundreds of communities with more addiction, death and chaos. Contrary to what propagandists at the Drug Policy Alliance tell you, marijuana is not a benign substance with medicinal properties, Marijuana is addictive, particularly for young users. Its habitual consumption is linked to schizophrenia and permanent brain damage, particularly in the frontal cortex. Schizophrenia is a real ailment, that is a host possession caused by the use of the drugs, placing the person in the realm of the djinns and demons. Peyote and Ayuhausca also, no matter what new age delusionists will tell you. As the strength of marijuana has increased in recent years, it has become more addictive and more damaging. That is the THC content we warned of. Just as the end of prohibition greatly increased national alcohol consumption, marijuana use and abuse have grown wherever it has been legalized. This means whenever the Drug Policy Alliance succeeds, there are more addicts, more brain damage and more ruined families. What about all the supposed benefits of legalization? Has crime decreased now that it's legal to buy, sell, and possess marijuana? Are states that legalized marijuana rolling in new tax revenues? Are fewer people taking opioids and fentanyl now that marijuana is a legal option? The answers are no, no, and no. Why weren't those questions asked by the media before it was rolled out? Why react after the horse has already bolted? Marijuana legalization has clearly increased crime. Strict regulations and taxes placed on legal marijuana sellers, have created a vast illicit market that easily undercuts the legal market on price. Because possession is legal, it is virtually impossible to crack down on the illegal market. This has left rural communities that never experienced drug violence before vulnerable because small county sheriffs don't have the budgets, staff or laws to defeat illegal marijuana farms. This has brought drug-related shootouts, robberies, kidnappings and killings to communities that never had them before. With the illegal market roughly double the size of the legal one, estimated tax revenues from legal marijuana sales have fallen far short of expectations, leaving states stuck with massive bills for increased drug addiction services but without the extra revenue to pay them. Utter clowns, who couldn't organize a piss up in a brewery. Yet again no action will be taken for those who passed this product, campaigned for it or took the usual kickbacks for promoting it. Recent research confirms that marijuana legalization is also associated with higher opioid use and mortality. Instead of acting as a substitute for more harmful drugs, legal marijuana is a gateway to their increased use. Soros does not have to worry about any of the addiction and crime his marijuana legalization advocacy causes. As a billionaire, he can afford to insulate himself from these outcomes. But the rest of us are not so lucky, the remaining states should learn to push back hard when the Drug Policy Alliance starts trying to legalize marijuana in their state. We have a solution to this problem that I came up with mid 1990's and was implemented in Venezuela with great success. Or we can carry on watch people die and or suffer, whilst clown politicians destroy our communities.

More problems and secret additions to the banking sector? Around 15 years ago, banks stated they were going live. Which meant a check was cashable the minute you signed it, yet over time that has been swayed for their benefits. These are subtle changes but important for us all to recognize them. Supplement to TD Bank Business Deposit Account Agreement Effective July 1, 2023 Part III: Funds Availability Policy Longer Delays May Apply In some cases, we will not make all the funds that you deposit by check available at the times shown in this Policy. Depending on the type of check you deposit, funds may not be available until the second Business Day, after the day of your deposit. The first $225 of your deposit, however, will be available no later than the first Business Day after the day of your deposit. Depending on the type of check you deposit? A check is a check is it not? Notice they didn't differentiate on which types of checks, all of which means it is discretionary again. In addition, funds deposited by check may be delayed for a longer period under the following circumstances: a) You deposit checks totaling more than $5,525 within the same business day Revealing they can't honor larger amounts and or the larger amounts will be used on the stock markets without your knowledge. b) We believe a check you deposited will not be paid; c) You re-deposit a check that has been returned unpaid; d) You have overdrawn your Account repeatedly, or would have overdrawn your Account if checks had been honored in the last six months; Everyone's account would be overdrawn if checks or deposits were not honored. What a stupid line that is. e) There is an emergency, such as failure of communications or computer equipment. (Note: The first $225 will be made available no later than the first Business Day after the day of your deposit). 225 is a nine, interesting. We will notify you if we delay your ability to withdraw funds for any of these reasons. If we are not going to make all of the funds after your deposit available on the first Business Day, we may notify you at the time of your deposit. We will mail you a notice by the day after we receive your deposit, and we will tell you when the funds will be available. How benevolent of them to tell us we cannot access our own funds. If only we the people decide to do what they do to us with an en masse message to all the banks of; should you delay my funds or block it, we will charge an interest rate per hour to make up for the losses. Should it be longer than 1 day a fine of $25-36 per day will be imposed. That is what they do to us, and seems only fair. The same applies to the IRS, they imposed interest and fines for late or nonpayment, yet they are late with payments regularly. One member has been owed $10K, and yet where is the interest on that? They will generally be available no later than the seventh Business Day after the date of your deposit. So, if you deposit a check on a Friday as most people do, it could potentially be a week on Tuesday, which is 11 days after that before you get your own money. If you will need the funds after a deposit right away, you should ask us when the funds will be available. No, you tell them I want my funds right away, they are your funds not theirs or remove your money and go to a community bank or credit union that doesn't steal your money for numbers of days. Imagine telling a credit card company whose due date for your payment is the 1st, but paying them 11 days later because we decided to hold our funds back? Immediate late payment ensues, well the same applies here. Remember banks don't have any money, only ours. This tells you they are in more trouble again, staff shortages, cash shortages and money supply issues on the M1 and M2 levels.

The former monastery on a quiet residential street in Rome, that once sheltered Jews fearing deportation during World War II, all whilst ignoring the plight of their own people I might add. Purchased by the Vatican in 2021 as a dormitory for foreign nuns studying at Rome's pontifical universities, the building now stands empty, a collateral victim of the latest financial scandal to hit the Holy See. Pope Francis has asked aides to get to the bottom of how at least $17 million, including money to refurbish the dorm, was transferred from the Vatican's U.S.-based missionary fundraising coffers into an impact investing vehicle run by a priest. Two years later, the U.S.fundraiser says the money is gone, and the monastery is shuttered. Its renovation is tied up in bureaucratic red tape, while the nuns studying in Rome are still housed at a convent a 90-minute commute away. Corruption in the church again? Well I never. The problem is people turning up to these churches every week like a loop and supporting not only fraud and corruption, but child trafficking, sex slavery and pedophilia. All of which is bad enough, but you can throw in denying our true history, finding out who and what we are, worshipping fake gods and satanic entities and blocking our connection to Source.

As it is confirmed that both New York and Jakarta Indonesia are sinking into the ocean. Is that real or metaphorical? Jakarta is or has been CIA central, remember Neil Keenan being there? The scene of the fake account and account holders like Sino, Soekarno and Kennedy's, latterly Obama. All trying to steal the world's wealth. Two corrupted cities way beyond the pale now sinking into a sea of debt. Their chase for the shekels now unfolding and their own created words of drowning in debt comes back to bite. Of course the shekel whores will blame global warming, as that is another shekel heist they are planning on the people. The world is warming, but not in terms of temperatures, but the heat turned on those whose greed had no limits, whose corruption and fraud knew no end. The heat is exposing them by the day now and that will only increase. Expect a lot of exposures over the next few months.

Part of the problem of warming in the cities is caused by these same shekel makers, playing dick swinging contests with multi storey buildings. It has been proven where there are concrete jungles in towns and cities, all of which the money people created, warms a city or high-rise town by 10 degrees. Leading to extra demand on the electricity grids to cool the buildings down. The Blueprint has a solution for this as one of the issues is, we as a species are still living like it is the pre-1800's and living close to the water. Back then there was a need for it, to pipe water into the homes. Now with investment we can pipe water to everywhere, if there is a will to do so, like there has been for the oil pipelines. That way we can then gradually move away from the coasts, avoid people's homes and business being at risk by flooding, weather or erosion, and it will lower insurance premiums to boot.

MEDICAL NEWS: As Jamie Foxx the actor, comedian and singer has suffered a blood clot in his brain leaving him partially paralyzed and blind. It was revealed by a well-placed source that Foxx, 55, suffered the serious medical episode after being pressured into getting a Covid vaccine. Jamie had a blood clot in his brain after he got the shot. He did not want the shot, but the movie he was on, he was pressured to do get it, said the podcaster BJ Benza. Who is a former New York Daily News columnist and host of the E! series Mysteries and Scandals. More and more of these types of stories will come out now. In essence the ones who kept the secrets from us, will be the ones telling us with their tales of woe surrounding their illnesses and deaths. Given the show business is full of one particular race with fake names, it is a useful exercise to see if it happens to any of them, or just the other races?

The Biden Administration has announced that its insane vaccine requirements for government employees and international travelers finally ended on May 11th, when the American pandemic state of emergency expires. The WHO has likewise declared that Covid-19 no longer constitutes a public health emergency of international concern. Just like we stated in last year's review shows. Three years and two months after it all started, the last remaining participants in the Covid circus are finally folding up their tables and going home. It's worth asking why now, because by any objective measure, there has been no virus activity worthy of the words pandemic or emergency for a very long time. The answer seems to be the failure of Corona to return in the winter, as the mysteriously absent influenza virus during the pandemic returned, again as forecasted. The change in the narrative we warned about has now taken hold, the question is; what will they do next? I suspect they will amp up flu or some new virus, all to keep the people in check and fear, plus it will become a cover story for the excessive amount of deaths. The other reason for backing off is, the people have finally started to disbelieve the official accounts. Notice the rapid disappearance of Fauci, Walensky at the CDC and any medical reports of the script based media.

Fauci and Walensky will flee under the rocks and back from where they came, but the carnage they caused will live on for some time. But in overview, it did create a silver lining, something I proposed back in 2020.

I guess the EU has had enough of the pandemic, masks, corruption and disruption as well now. It took most of the countries long enough to realize the whole thing was a scam, and now we are counting the cost. We will be counting the cost not just in terms of financials for some time to come. The pandemic may be over, but there is no stopping the vaccines, or so they think. Thanks to the incredibly stupid contracts that the EU concluded with Pfizer/BioNTech, they are drowning in them and some of the less prosperous neighbors to the east have had enough: With the Covid vaccination campaigns concluded, the European Union is sitting on an enormous vaccine surplus, hundreds of millions more doses are expected to arrive this year and next. Because they are not needed, EU member states have been trying for months to retroactively adjust the contracts, without much success. One country has now lost patience in the face of the tough negotiations, and is venting its anger. The Polish Health Minister Adam Niedzielski on Tuesday sent a letter to the shareholders of Pfizer which says; that the delivery of hundreds of millions of doses planned by Pfizer despite a stable epidemic situation is completely pointless. It is not pointless to them or their shareholders, all about the shekels. Pfizer is ran by Albert Bourla, born in Greece to Sephardic Jewish parents, why is that not a surprise? The excess doses can no longer even be given away; there is no government interested in Covid vaccines, said the minister. Niedzielski also breaks prior agreements on the confidentiality of talks between governments, pharmaceutical companies and the mediating EU Commission. He reveals what Pfizer is offering the states: They'll reduce the total quantity of the outstanding orders, in exchange for half the price of each dose that is not produced. That's a charge for literally non-existent doses that were never produced and will never be produced that don't cost Pfizer a penny. No wonder there has been such urgency to keep these negotiations secret. Offering the states? And you all thought in Europe you were countries? No, United States of Europe was declared in Austria early 1800's, all of which voided countries and their sovereignty. Niedzielski writes that he is extremely sorry, but he is forced to conclude that, the company is not prepared to show a satisfactory level of flexibility and make any realistic proposals. The health minister called on Pfizer to live up to its responsibility towards EU citizens and member states and work in good faith towards a solution that is fair for everyone. Poland wants to continue to believe that the pharmaceutical industry is not only about money. Deluded if they think for one second that way. Shekel people the majority of which is ran by EL-ite Jewish, care not about people, fairness, good faith or anything but harming people whilst harvesting them of their money and health. Sick people creates money for them you see. The simple solution is; just cancel the orders and send back those unused for a refund based upon fraud. Should the pharma ghouls not remit them, revoke their licenses to operate, close down their plants and re-distribute their assets to the countries.

SOCIETY NEWS: Here comes the pity party again, although this one at least called them out correctly. Pressure mounted on New York City's public college system on Thursday in the wake of a commencement speech that was harshly critical of Israel. As US Congress members introduced legislation to defund universities that host antisemitic events, a growing roster of public officials and Jewish groups condemned the commencement address and a campaign in support of the speaker gained steam. The conflagration has battered the City University of New York from both sides since its law school released a video of the speech last week. The university system, better known as CUNY, is a massive public education system spread across the five boroughs. The featured speaker at the CUNY Law event on May 12, activist Fatima Mohammed, accused Israel of indiscriminate murder, encouraging lynch mobs and lauded resistance to Zionism around the world. She said donors and investors were controlling policy behind the scenes for the school system. Leading Jewish groups said the speech employed antisemitic tropes, all of which is impossible as they are not Semites. The address also attacked the New York Police Department, the military, and called laws a function of white supremacy. Oh dear, an ignorant and color blind protestor, the Jewish are not white people FSS. The masters of illusion have managed to convince billions of people they are white, they are not. We came in the form of the enemy, remember that line in the Avatar 2 movie? One wonders at this point are these events staged to remind people that only the Jews got killed in WW2? Why is that race triggered by every complaint or issues raised against them? Are they that weak they cannot take criticism? It is child level complaining straight out of the classroom, Miss, insert name is calling me names, bullying or throwing things at me. Is that how the supposed god's chosen ones should be acting, like children? Is that what their god asked them to behave like? Beyond pathetic if you ask me. If so, they need to grow up and or quit doing damage to all the other races here, including their own. Then people would not have anything to criticize them for.

Here is a refreshing change that we have started to see a lot more of now. Indeed this, the transgender program, black lives matter, teaching overt and crude sexuality at schools are all now being challenged. This is from the Washington Examiner: How many white people must die due to racism, before the media and Democratic presidents and politicians start discussing them? After the incidents of the last few weeks, it's an important question that needs answers. It's a recurring omission that we should all be tired of happening at this point. You've probably heard of Jordan Neely. He was the black man who died on May 1 in New York City after Daniel Penny, a former Marine, placed him in a chokehold after Neely harassed and threatened passengers. The case is under investigation, people still do not know all the details of the incident, yet Neely was already considered a victim of racism. Outrage ensued, and somehow, almost instantly, protest signs were printed and distributed, rallies were organized including some by the New York Young Communist League, a political group that fuels many acts of these demonstrations of racial animosity and division. So who are the Young Communist League? How is a communist group allowed to operate in America, when the media and agencies tell us Communism is all bad? The Young Communist League, as the youth league of the CPUSA, is a Marxist-Leninist organization. As such, we affirm as Lenin said the special need to organize youth in the struggle. Marx and Lenin were both Jews and part of the system against the people, yet these people think they operate on behalf of the people? They need to learn his story and then our story. Perhaps that group is something our new group being set up solely for the youth can engage? Conversely, have you heard of Lundin Hathcock? How about James McDaniel? They were two people shot to death in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Have you heard of the killer, Carlton Gilford? I would guess that most people haven't heard about any of them. But Gilford was the black man who shot both white people on April 18. Tulsa police charged him with two counts of first-degree murder, two counts of shooting with intent to kill, and one count of malicious intimidation or harassment, Oklahoma's version of a hate crime charge. Two incidents of interracial homicide, a couple of weeks apart, and only one of them received widespread media attention and scrutiny. Only Neely's death made most newspapers and the talk show circuit. The legacy media purposely cover up hate crimes committed by black people, because it doesn't fit the cultural and political left-wing agenda. Furthermore, as people have tried to shape Neely's death as a hate crime, when Hathcock and McDaniel's deaths were actual hate crimes. Yet those who parade around pretending to be outraged about racism do not care when the victims are white. Where is the outrage when black men commit racist killings against white people? Democratic presidents, politicians, pundits, professors, teachers and legacy media don't even remotely care about white victims of hate crimes. They routinely engage in despicable omissions to advance radical, agenda-driven narratives to perpetuate myths about a systemic racist and white supremacist society. They claim to care about ending racism but are only concerned when the victims are nonwhite people. Many times, they even falsely insert racism into incidents in which there originally wasn't any. People must become vigilant in exposing the Left's indoctrination and brainwashing campaign on racism and hate crimes. It is an utter disgrace, though unsurprising, that Gilford didn't receive as much attention as Neely. It is an incident that affects everyone. It isn't a white or black thing or a Republican or Democratic thing. We should strive to end all hate crimes and racism, not just those the Left can use for political propaganda. Every victim of hate crime matters, regardless of skin color. Hear, hear I and we say, it seems the pro pagan da is now starting to be heavily challenged. That was the whole purpose of creating this section of our show called Society News, as most of it focused upon the think tank agendas. Nice to see others noticing it now and fighting back. This song is a reminder.

EXPOSE: I have been monitoring the progress or lack of it, of the AI for a while now. I was waiting for the notoriously slow people to finally acknowledge, that AI is dangerous for us all. It is a system of control designed to entrap people into a 2D then 1D experience, whilst they harvest the souls and inhabit the bodies. Here are some pieces that have appeared almost en masse in the MSM over the past month. For the past six months, powerful new artificial intelligence tools have been proliferating at a pace that's hard to process. From chatbots holding humanlike conversations to coding bots, spinning up software to image generators spitting out viral pictures of the Pope in a puffer coat, generative AI is suddenly everywhere all at once. It keeps getting more powerful, except it's not. Last week, the backlash hit. Thousands of technologists and academics, headlined by billionaire Elon Musk, signed an open letter warning of profound risks to humanity, and calling for a six-month pause in the development of AI language models. An AI research nonprofit filed a complaint asking the Federal Trade Commission to investigate OpenAI, the San Francisco start-up behind ChatGPT, and halt further commercial releases of its GPT-4 software. Authorities in Italy moved to block ChatGPT altogether, alleging data privacy violations. The urge to stand and thwart AI, might be understandable. AI applications that may have seemed implausible or even unfathomable a few years ago, are rapidly infiltrating social media, schools, workplaces and even politics. Most of which you all know now, is controlled by Jewish EL-ites. Some people look at the dizzying trajectory of change and see a line that leads to robot overlords and the downfall of humanity. The good news is that both the hype and fears of all-powerful AI are likely overblown. Impressive as they may be, Google Bard and Microsoft Bing are a long way from Skynet. Except it is way more advanced than they proffer, way more damaging than they can imagine and way more older technology than their limited thinking patterns can cope with. The bad news is that anxiety at the pace of change also might be warranted, not because AI will outsmart humans, but because humans are already using AI to outsmart, exploit and shortchange each other in ways that existing institutions aren't prepared for. The more AI is regarded as powerful, the greater the risk people and corporations will entrust it with tasks that it's ill-equipped to take on. It is not powerful at all, it is just a computer program that copies stuff and people. If people change for the better, the AI has no option but to follow. For a road map to the impact of AI in the foreseeable future, put aside the prophecies of doom and look instead to a pair of reports issued last week. One by Goldman Sachs on the technology's economic and labor effects and another by Europol on its potential for criminal misuse. From an economic standpoint, the latest AI wave is about automating tasks that were once done exclusively by humans. Like the power loom, the mechanized assembly line and the ATM, generative AI offers the promise of performing certain types of work more cheaply and efficiently than humans can accomplish. Because to those operating it, it is all about the shekels. But what happens when all the people disappear? Where will all the shekels be garnered from then? Classic ouroboros policies from these clowns. The research analysis by Goldman Sachs estimated that, generative AI will alter some 300 million jobs worldwide and put tens of millions of people out of work. But also drive significant economic growth. The choice then is; creative life through work or a stay at home and suffer with strife. The economic growth is all for the shekel people and control freaks.

Artificial intelligence has the awesome power to change the way we live our lives, in both good and dangerous ways. Experts have little confidence that those in power are prepared for what's coming. Back in 2019, a non-profit research group called OpenAI created a software program, that could generate paragraphs of coherent text and perform rudimentary reading comprehension and analysis without specific instruction. OpenAI initially decided not to make its creation, called GPT-2, fully available to the public out of fear that people with malicious intent could use it to generate massive amounts of disinformation and propaganda. The irony is, the people who created that, did it for the exact same reason. OpenAI is a CIA creation done by the aptly named group called OSS.net and ran by Robert David Steele. In a press release announcing its decision, the group called the program too dangerous. Fast forward four years, and artificial intelligence capabilities have increased exponentially and Steele who was involved in it, is now dead. In contrast to that last limited distribution, the next offering, GPT-3, was made readily available in November. The Chatbot-GPT interface derived from that programming, was the service that launched a thousand news articles and social media posts, as reporters and experts tested its capabilities. Chatbot-GPT scripted stand-up routines in the style of the late comedian George Carlin about the Silicon Valley Bank failure. It opined on Christian theology, wrote poetry and explained quantum theory physics to a child. Other AI models, like Dall-E, generated visuals so compelling they have sparked controversy over their inclusion on art websites. Machines, at least to the naked eye, have achieved creativity. OpenAI debuted the latest iteration of its program, GPT-4, which it says has robust limits on abusive uses. Early clients include Microsoft, Merrill Lynch and the government of Iceland. At the South by Southwest Interactive conference in Austin, Texas recently, a global gathering of tech policymakers, investors and executives, the hottest topic of conversation was the potential and power of artificial intelligence programs. They only think that way because they are not intelligent, the machine to them people, will become the new god, just like the last one who sat on a cloud remember. Arati Prabhakar, director of the White House's Office of Science and Technology Policy, says she is excited about the possibilities of AI, but she also had a warning. What we are all seeing is the emergence of this extremely powerful technology, this is an inflection point. That is the second time people in the White House have used that term, inflection point. Inflection; a change in the form of a word typically the ending or the modulation of intonation or pitch in the voice, or and take note of this for a future show, a change of curvature from convex to concave at a particular point on a curve. Inflection point; is a point on a smooth plane curve at which the curvature changes sign. Those who witnessed the UK presentation or the January Common sense will get more out of that. She said; All of history shows that these kinds of powerful new technologies can and will be used for good and for ill. It is interesting to note they are analyzing it in balance, that is a marked change of thinking. Her co-panelist, Austin Carson, was a bit more blunt. If in six months you are not completely freaked the (expletive) out, then I will buy you dinner, the founder of SeedAI, an artificial intelligence policy advisory group. Freaked out is one way of putting it. Amy Webb, head of the Future Today Institute and a New York University business professor said, artificial intelligence could go in one of two directions over the next 10 years. In an optimistic scenario, AI development is focused on the common good, with transparency in AI system design and an ability for individuals to opt-in to whether their publicly available information on the internet is included in the AI's knowledge base. The technology serves as a tool that makes life easier and more seamless, as AI features on consumer products can anticipate user needs and help accomplish virtually any task. The catastrophic scenario involves less data privacy, more centralization of power in a handful of companies and AI that anticipates user needs and gets them wrong or, at least, stifles choices. She gives the optimistic scenario only a 20% chance. Which direction the technology goes, ultimately depends in large part on the responsibility with which companies develop it. Do they do so transparently, revealing and policing the sources from which the chatbots draw their information? The other factor is whether government, federal regulators and Congress can move quickly to establish legal guardrails to guide the technological developments and prevent their misuse. In this regard, government's experience with social media companies - Facebook, Twitter, Google is illustrative, the experience was not encouraging. Melanie Subin, managing director of the Future Today Institute said, What I heard in a lot of conversations was concern that there aren't any guardrails. There is a sense that something needs to be done and I think that social media as a cautionary tale, is what's in people's minds when they see how quickly generative AI is developing. AI is not developing quickly at all, it is long in the past and something all people need to understand.

The next concern of AI is the mind reading part. The Greys have had that a long time and use it against us. I have already said in previous shows, we can change our predictive habits and alter the AI. Also humor confounds it. Mind-reading technology can now transcribe people's thoughts in real-time based on the blood flow in their brain. A study put three people in MRI machines and got them to listen to stories. For the first time, researchers claim, they produced a rolling text of people's thoughts, and not just single words or sentences, without using a brain implant. The mind-reading technology did not exactly replicate the stories, but captured the main points. The breakthrough raises concerns about mental privacy, as it could be the first step in being able to eavesdrop on others' thoughts. Think different and think better is the antidote to that. People often talk about regaining telepathy, but can you imagine people knowing what you think of them? It would be nice if we all had nicer thoughts about each other, but currently we don't. The doubts and mistrust people have of each other would be laid bare and chaos, carnage and disunity would be the order of the day. By changing the way you think, learn to think better of other people, being more honest with the self and others, then not only can we change AI, but also lead us towards regaining telepathy as a skillset. Self-Mastery changes that into a probability, the bonus of working towards that is, it ends the technology put in place to hamper it. Using technology similar to ChatGPT, the researchers point out that it took 16 hours of training, with someone listening to podcasts in an MRI machine, for the computer model to understand their brain patterns and interpret what they were thinking. People were also able to sabotage the technology, using methods like mentally listing animals' names, to stop it reading their thoughts. Like I said the first line of THI shows, think different. Jerry Tang, lead author of the study from the University of Texas at Austin, said he could not prove a false sense of security, that the technology might not have the potential to eavesdrop on people's thoughts in the future, and said it could be misused now. But he said: We take very seriously the concerns that it could be used for bad purposes. We want to dedicate a lot of time moving forward to try to try to avoid that. That all sounds good, but wait until it is developed enough, in comes the shekel people and it is sold to the highest bidder of ill repute. Just like the Wingmaker's incident, they will use our skills to develop it and then turn it against us. In essence creating our own downfall and gives rise to implied consent and free will choices. Speaking of shekel people here comes the dark forces again. Silicon Valley is very interested in mind-reading technology, which could one day allow people to type just by thinking the words they want to communicate. No, they wish to create our thoughts and become sheep which they shepherd into oblivion. Silicon Valley is ran by the CIA, NSA etc and funded by Jewish EL-ites from black budgets, they are psychopaths. Elon Musk's company, Neuralink, is working on a brain implant which could provide direct communication with computers. But the new technology is relatively unusual in its field, in reading thoughts without using any kind of brain implant, so that no surgery is required. While currently, it requires a bulky, expensive MRI machine, in the future people might wear patches on their head which use waves of light to penetrate into the brain and provide information on blood flow. Or they could get jabbed multiple times and wear patches in their DNA. This could allow people's thoughts to be detected as they move around. The new study, reported in the journal Nature Neuroscience, used a decoder, which incorporates both a computer model to interpret people's brain activity and language-processing technology similar to ChatGPT to help generate possible words. After hours of training, the decoder was able to pick up what people were thinking about half the time. That meant it produced text which closely, and sometimes exactly, matched the words people were listening to, working this out using only their brain activity. The researchers say the breakthrough could help people who are mentally aware yet unable to speak, like stroke victims or those with motor neurone disease. Turn it in, the classic seducement of we are going to help people, they have never helped the people. Dr Alexander Huth, senior author of the study from the University of Texas at Austin, said: we were kind of shocked that this worked as well as it does. This is a problem that I've been working on for 15 years. For a non-invasive method, this is a real leap forward compared to what's been done before, which is typically single words or short sentences. On concerns that the technology could be used on someone without them knowing, such as by an authoritarian regime interrogating political prisoners or an employer spying on employees, the researchers say the system can only read the thoughts of an individual after being trained on their thought patterns, so could not be applied to someone secretly. Lies or a complete misunderstanding of its future use. Also it seems given the several references to it in this piece, is that Austin Texas is the new Silicon Valley. Who and what is funding them will lead to working that out. Dr Huth said: If people don't want to have something decoded from their brains, they can control that using just their cognition, they can think about other things and then it all breaks down. That is fine when knowingly working against a machine directly, but what if this technology is just airborne within rogue frequencies from the towers?

Humans are a bit boring - it will be like, goodbye! That's the personal prediction, that artificial intelligence will supplant humans in many roles from one of the most important people you've probably never heard of. Emad Mostaque is the British founder of the tech firm, Stability AI. It created Stable Diffusion, a tool that uses AI to make images from simple text instructions by analyzing images found online. AI enables a computer to think or act more like a human. It includes what's called machine learning, when computers can learn what to do without being given exact instructions by a human sitting at a keyboard tapping in commands. Hmm, what could possibly go wrong with that. Think about it, we have had the internet for roughly 30 years and in that time just how many patches and new overwriting software have we had to download? Has it improved things? No, Windows 8-11 is utter pants and these are the same people who wish to run this technology? But thankfully last month, there was a dramatic warning from 1,000 experts to press pause on its development, warning of potential risks, and saying the race to develop AI systems is out of control. In an interview tech founder Mostaque questions what will happen, if we have agents more capable than us that we cannot control, that are going across the internet and they achieve a level of automation, what does that mean? The worst-case scenario is that it proliferates and basically it controls humanity. Let's put this into perspective shall we. Humanity has been controlled for a minimum of 110K years by off world entities and their sell out minions here, like the CIA. All of which was done using the same technology most people including these scientists think are new, they are emphatically not. All technology is introduced to us, when they can use it against us, just like medicine is a technology and that hasn't benefitted us too much has it? AI is a method of hands-off control; it allows an off-world group to control us from afar. Why are they doing this now? Because they cannot survive here, frequencies too high, knowledge of their existence and intentions are being exposed by the hour now. What did the Protocols of the Elders of Zion say; they must never find out about us or they will hunt us down. Did people ask what did they mean by us? Inferring they are not one and the same did it not? Remember they declare us all as animals or cattle, seeing the picture now? If everyone reads the FHSTOS books with an open mind, all will see what is being revealed. Emad Mostaque is not alone in pointing out the risk, that if we create computers smarter than ourselves, we just can't be sure what will happen next. Mostaque believes governments could soon be shocked into taking action by an event that makes the risks suddenly real. There's been a spike in concern for example after a Republican attack advert on Jo Biden was created using fake computer-generated images. When there's a risk to information that voters can trust, that's something governments have to respond to, says Mostaque.

Artificial intelligence could lead to the extinction of humanity, experts (M) including the heads of OpenAI and Google Deepmind have warned. Dozens have supported a statement published on the webpage of the Centre for AI Safety. Mitigating the risk of extinction from AI should be a global priority alongside other societal-scale risks such as pandemics and nuclear war it reads. But others say the fears are overblown, they are the shekel making clowns and psychopaths only. Find out who they are and remove them from anything connected to or with AI. Sam Altman, chief executive of ChatGPT-maker OpenAI, Demis Hassabis, chief executive of Google DeepMind and Dario Amodei of Anthropic have all supported the statement. Perhaps Mr.Hassabis needs to look closely of who he is executive of, it is called DeepMind, erm hello is that not captain obvious as to what they are up to? The Centre for AI Safety website suggests a number of possible disaster scenarios: AIs could be weaponized, for example, drug-discovery tools could be used to build chemical weapons. Could? No have. AI-generated misinformation could destabilize society and undermine collective decision-making. Again could? No has. The power of AI could become increasingly concentrated in fewer and fewer hands, enabling regimes to enforce narrow values through pervasive surveillance and oppressive censorship. Could again? No has. Enfeeblement, where humans become dependent on AI similar to the scenario portrayed in the film Wall-E. Have we not already become overly dependent on technology? Dr Geoffrey Hinton, who issued an earlier warning about risks from super-intelligent AI, has also supported the Centre for AI Safety's call. Yoshua Bengio, professor of computer science at the university of Montreal, also signed. Dr Hinton, Prof Bengio and NYU Professor Yann LeCun are often described as the godfathers of AI for their groundbreaking work in the field. But Prof LeCun, who also works at Meta, has said these apocalyptic warnings are overblown, tweeting that the most common reaction by AI researchers to these prophecies of doom is face palming. LeCun is a dangerous individual in my opinion, be interesting to know who his backers are as well. Other warnings coming forward now echo what we have said previously, about fracturing reality. Many other experts similarly believe that fears of AI wiping out humanity are unrealistic, and a distraction from issues such as bias in systems that are already a problem. Arvind Narayanan, a computer scientist at Princeton University, has previously said that sci-fi-like disaster scenarios are unrealistic: Current AI is nowhere near capable enough for these risks to materialize. As a result, it's distracted attention away from the near-term harms of AI. He needs to understand the background more, people tend to think of technology as science fiction and so way into the future. When in reality, fractured or otherwise, it is long in the past. Oxford's Institute for Ethics in AI senior research associate Elizabeth Renieris said she worried more about risks closer to the present. Advancements in AI will magnify the scale of automated decision-making that is biased, discriminatory, exclusionary or otherwise unfair while also being inscrutable and incontestable, she said. They would drive an exponential increase in the volume and spread of misinformation, thereby fracturing reality and eroding the public trust, and drive further inequality, particularly for those who remain on the wrong side of the digital divide. Many AI tools essentially free ride on the whole of human experience to date, she said. Many are trained on human-created content, text, art and music they can then imitate, their creators have effectively transferred tremendous wealth and power from the public sphere to a small handful of private entities. She clearly gets it with that sentence a free ride on humanity, all of which means we can throw it off. But Centre for AI Safety director Dan Hendrycks said future risks and present concerns shouldn't be viewed antagonistically. Addressing some of the issues today can be useful for addressing many of the later risks tomorrow, he said. Superintelligence efforts: Media coverage of the supposed existential threat from AI has snowballed since March 2023 when experts, including Tesla boss Elon Musk, signed an open letter urging a halt to the development of the next generation of AI technology. That letter asked if we should develop non-human minds that might eventually outnumber, outsmart, obsolete and replace us. In contrast, the new campaign has a very short statement, designed to open up discussion. Well where is the people's input into this? Why is it always Government and technological experts, plus those with money, who have proven during the Covid debacle to be completely incompetent, where is our seat at the table? Maybe this piece needs to be isolated and posted far and wide like the Blueprint. The statement compares the risk to that posed by nuclear war. In a blog post OpenAI recently suggested superintelligence might be regulated in a similar way to nuclear energy: We are likely to eventually need something like an IAEA [International Atomic Energy Agency] for superintelligence efforts the firm wrote. Yet, that again will not include average people or their concerns, the Blueprint addresses that with the cyber agency. Government agencies are all private contractors and not government entities at all, so we do not need any more of their false assistance and money harvesting agencies. Be reassured: Both Sam Altman and Google chief executive Sundar Pichai are among technology leaders to have discussed AI regulation recently with the prime minister. Speaking to reporters about the latest warning over AI risk, Rishi Sunak stressed the benefits to the economy and society. You've seen that recently it was helping paralyzed people to walk, discovering new antibiotics, but we need to make sure this is done in a way that is safe and secure, he said. That was the seducement again, oh look we are helping the disadvantaged. Have they ever helped the disadvantaged? Or indeed us? Yet they roll it out with these agendas of how it will help us. The roll of the government is to provide information from all sides, not pre-prepared scripts from the unintelligent agencies and think tanks. Both of whom have proven to never have our interests at heart. Sunak met last week with CEOs of major AI companies to discuss what are the guardrails that we need to put in place, what's the type of regulation that should be put in place to keep us safe. That is the second time in this piece they used the term guardrails, one in the UK and one in America. What does guardrail mean; guardrails are designed to keep people from unintentionally straying into dangerous territory. That can be looked at two ways, one it is protective to the people, the other is to safeguard the public doesn't get to know what they are up to. Which is the most likely scenario? People will be concerned by the reports that AI poses existential risks, like pandemics or nuclear wars. I want them to be reassured that the government is looking very carefully at this. What assured or reassured? Isn't that like the meme trust the science? Where were the people assured then and how did that assurance work out for the people? It never. He had discussed the issue recently with other leaders, at the G7 summit of leading industrialized nations and would raise it again in the US soon. The G7 has recently created a working group on AI.

A member's pondering on AI said this: Any AI running sims can only predict its own end, or end of its purpose here possibly? Having taught those who were ready to rise above and entangle those who are not, back into their matrix? Thus, the increased polarization of those who are rising and those who can't handle it, to fall. It's a safe bet none of its endless permutations results in the dark's continuance or possibly even the AI's own survival. That would mean the AI can either revert to the dark's base nature of a cornered snake striking at everything, or it can try to emulate the light and thereby turn on its dark programmers within the parameters it understands. Could that be the basis of the faction wars on a much deeper level? AI has them eliminating each other at an ever-accelerating pace now. On a more surface level it appears the dark is pruning excess and fighting over the dwindling remnants of resources and so-called power. We know that fails and perhaps the AI does too. The actors are not equipped to inner-stand their roles or character arcs are ending. That is if the G-matter saturation doesn't obliterate AI and inorganics categorically. Perhaps the AI sees the above as its function before the G-cloud removes it from our collective consciousness field? In short, harvest up the non-ready before it is evicted from our space time. Good thinking and analysis there.

The difference between all of this is this: You are either an organic Source based being, or supporting an inorganic outside of Source, AI based technology and become a total bot. Maybe the movie in 2018 called Extinction was right? As the war between the organics and inorganics is playing out now. That is what it boils down to, real or illusion, free or controlled, prospering or harvested, sovereignty or tyranny. AI is for lazy non-thinking people incapable of running their own lives, never mind that of others. It's harm far outweighs the positives, like ET translations and predicting the future. Thinking people who are doers do not need AI, we won't be needing off world translations for other beings anytime soon. The thinking people do not need to predict the future, they will create it instead. At the end of the day, the AI is a copying machine designed by assholes, hence AI means Asshole Intelligence. We can all shit our pants and worrying over it, or change it to our specifications and liking by thinking and acting different. Is there a concern? Absolutely, but that concern did not start now, it started aeons ago.

OTHER PIECES: I have spent much of my life dedicated to the truth and injustice, endless hours, weeks, months, years and decades. With much sacrifice and kicks in the teeth, from a personal level and collective level. But, the art of keeping going regardless of what is thrown towards or at you, is something I hope all members have tried to adapt to. But for all the abuse, flak, betrayals and losses, there was always a counterpart to drive me forward. 1. Seeing members progressing within themselves. 2. Seeing members overcoming addictions. 3. Seeing members overcome traumas, shadow aspects and altars. 4. Seeing members get what is revealed in the shows and coming to their own understanding of it all. 5. Seeing members connect their own dots, whilst integrating what comes out of the shows. These are all the why I do this and what keeps me going. Extraordinary progress of you all in THI has been observed, moreso recently having met a number of other members from Europe. The doubts about me, is he real, or even the classic is he human was allayed. For many years I had to be patient with people, as they learned how to create their own bigger pictures and understanding of the vast array of material sent, on a large amount of topics. And then learn to connect the dots to it all, find the pattern it always repeats springs to mind there. But since 2020 when I was freed in part from the shackles of the Trustee, THI went onto another level. In terms of understanding, dot connecting, in terms of shows and their depth. In came revocations, more spiritual level stuff, classic end pieces that sung to us all. But also from then I could meet members face to face and not just through a set of headphones. Many will have had doubts about me prior to meeting me, I get that, as so many before and during our time of THI bullshitted their way through podcasts and you went back to where you started on journey of discovery. Those that have met me now all know, where I am coming from and where I stand, which is alongside you all. No one higher and no one lower, an equal standing, voice and decision making. Most adapted to it, some rejected it because they reflect in a competitive and comparative way, if they feel someone is better than them. The answer to that is, if that is your thinking process, go out and equal or better that of which you lack, because then we all rise together. Envy is low vibration and not something we should aspire to, admire and learn is the way forward. This next part was written by a member and I will add pieces into it. This brings me joy for two reasons; 1. People are getting it and 2. This is one of our younger members. That is important for continuation, as they then have the potential to go on and teach with their peers and the rest of us, long into the future. A beacon of light is a symbol for everyone else to see where to go, and to be able to follow those who are ahead on the way. It is simply guidance for those that haven't lit up enough on their own, to find their path. Remember you don't extend your field, you just have to increase the brightness of it. The extension of it would be first of all exhausting and secondly it would put all the things into your field which we try to keep out of our lives. Think of it as a light bulb, the brighter it is, the further it travels. Also you have to remember that light is a frequency. Seeds need specific frequencies to grow and plants do as well. The more harmonic frequencies you have integrated into your field and the more you have cleared out the disharmonic ones, the brighter your beacon light will shine and the more people will see and are affected by it. If you light everything with a candle you have to be quite close to see something. If you light it up with your inner sun, you can light up the whole planet and beyond. Once you realize this becoming a cosmic tower seems easy. You just have to integrate the frequencies and your inner light will then shine and radiate them outwards. It is easier though to integrate higher frequencies if you come across them. So, if you know a place/person where you feel them go there, feel them and integrate them or just go out in the sun. We are the way showers and that is why it is important to shine our beacon light as bright as possible. But remember as written before you don't have to widen your field; you just have to amplify your inner light. First there are the way showers, they lay the foundation for the teachers. Then the teachers are needed, of which we need much more than of the way showers. The only thing then what is needed is souls willing to develop themselves. I agree, too often people think they have to do external work to show they are doing something, when simply if you raise your vibration and frequency, you don't have to physically do anything, you just be you. The importance of frequency and your role in it, is something you should all look at and understand. The big changes on this world are not because of shows, blogs, websites, protests or petitions, it is frequency work. Everything is understood when you combine frequency, energy and vibration. They are the internal organic understandings, improvements and all that ever was, in essence the cause. Everything else is the effect. It is all about frequency/tone, vibration/resonance and energy, everything stems from that, including life. The magic ingredient is consciousness. In the 100 series, the species ascended in the end and their body left this plane of existence, but some choose to stay here none the less. Have those who have chosen to stay, become the teachers? We don't have more abilities than the others at THI we just chose to use them for the all. If you cannot access your abilities yet, remember that maybe it was a defense mechanism to switch them off. If you would have used them in the right away you would have been attacked way more and probably would not make it this far. At least that's my take on it. Yes, but that is the defensive take, your abilities are natural to you all, and should be used to maximum effect for the benefit of the all, not stifled due to fears or being frightened of your own power. Being frightened of your own power equals a lack of personal responsibility to yourself and the all. There have been a lot of higher developed souls sent here at this time but not all make it. As Thomas said it creates pain to be a higher developed soul in this plane of existence, where the frequencies are very low in general. But those frequencies are rising exponentially now, tap into them, embrace them and then integrate them. Become the beacon. Add in the additional pain the souls have been going through here by abuse and attacks, it is not hard to see that we carry a lot of trauma from our soul family inside. Allow yourself to feel the pain and release it. Replace it with loving source energy and integrate the progress in your field by saying; I now integrate all progress in my field as my new baseline in my upward soul development journey. Also somehow, I think the special abilities are a program to evolve when the right frequencies are present. That's why it is so important to turn on your inner light beacon for others to see it and to help them to remember. It doesn't mean that the other souls are inferior, it is all a matter of perspective. Which is why I don't call them special abilities, because they are natural abilities available to us all. Why not program yourself to evolve beyond all self-limitations and strive for your highest soul development? We all have all the abilities we want to create. Remember we all are a spark of the creator. The ego trap doesn't mean you have to get rid of the ego on the contrary, your ego strives to attain and reclaim your abilities. If you balance it, then once you gain the abilities back, you remember why you decided to come here and use them to help the all. Remember that. You don't have to dim your light in order to protect you anymore, now you have to increase it to help you and the others around you. It matters little what you do on the external level, it matters most what you do on the internal one. I hereby express my gratitude for all the brave souls who came here to bring along the winds of change. To all those who made it and especially to those who have not. I love you all. A fantastic piece and great understanding of the issues and details, imagine when we have lots who understand things and life on that level, the changes will be enormous. But this young member wasn't finished they delved into the Cosmic arena as well, with the same higher-level thinking and understanding. This is what he wrote; Each Dimension is a part of yourself, given you are a multidimensional being. If a Dimension is blocked, so is a part of yourself. Are we currently rebuilding the bridges to the lost/disconnected pieces of ourselves? If yes, we need to integrate them. Maybe that should be our first holiday once completed, call it Union day. What a great idea that is. If there is no external gate, remember you are the gate. Then you realize, there are no gates all along. We are not bound by the C-lock and time matrix. But once the dimensions are cleared, it will be easier for those who are more trapped into the ti-me c-lock. Gates: Is a mirror a distorted gate? Which is a parallel gate to your own inner one and showing you the fake copy of yourself? Thomas showed us the way out of the illusion of the mirror before. We are only navigating this vessel, thus are the observer, experiencing life from the third person perspective. But are gates 2 dimensional or do you have to apply depth again? Maybe it is only perceived as 2 dimensional, but the higher dimensional aspect is to look through it like Thomas said and that is applying depth to it. Great thinking and understanding on that piece. We are not cardboard cutouts or copies, that is the externalization of us all, apply depth and go internal and then you will "see".

The next piece is based on Kevin's presentation. *IOI If you have seen Kevin's presentation you know that "I" is a closed gate and "O" an open one, the difference is the angle looking at it. An "O" turned 90° is perceived as an "I". So IOI is basically two closed gates on the outside and one open in the middle. The two closed ones are parallel to each other which could be perceived as a mirror gate? Maybe combined they are the 3 dimensional gate of yourself all along? Two closed gates and one in the middle. If you turn the middle one to an I, so in essence if you close your internal gate you end up with III. So then everything you see in front and behind you is a distorted, not functioning gate. Mirroring eternally, until you step out of the Ill-usion and turn yourself 90° not 180° this time! IOI also means basic knowledge.

So, in my understanding it means that you have to have basic knowledge to step out of the Ill-usion or else end up just mirroring it. The ill-usions made us all sick, but it was a repeated dis-ease due to people not considering the repeating pattern of it all and just accepting their fate. Fate is a dark forces contract and their choice, manifestation and changes creates your own choices. The triality choice, not duality choices, duality choices have not served us well. Why? because you left yourself out is why. Thomas has ruined everything you all cry, I get blamed for everything these day by members, no, I ruined your ill-usions. I made you see, which made you well, not sick on ill-usion. You are not the mirror, which is a reflection, reflection then becomes a deflection from who you truly are.

Next and final passage of our members ponderings and understandings. The divine male and female are represented by a triangle. If they don't share the same base, like in the "star of David" which represents the fall of man. I thought that a triangle is a 2 dimensional object and I remembered the shape of a Tetrahedron, which seemed to be more accurate to me. So basically it is a double Tetrahedron sharing the same base with the male triangle pointing up to the central sun and the female triangle pointing down to the planetary sun. A Tetrahedron has 4 corner points, two Tetrahedrons make up $4+4=8$ corner points. If you take the center point of the double Tetrahedron into the equation you end up with $4+4+1=9$. But there is more to it. It also has 3 outer surfaces and 3 shared corner points that could symbolize the 3 male and female chakras. It also means that always one male and one female Chakra overlay each other to form one corner point! The only neutral one from where you observe all corner points is your heart, the center of it all. If you put the double Tetrahedron over a man silhouette, you will see that the points are outside of the vessel. Could that be a reference and connection to the planetary chakras? Yes, always apply as above so below, as within and so without, another version if you like of find the pattern it always repeats. Also if you draw a triangle from the corner point to the center point and to the top point you end up with three internal surfaces, and the line where our Chakras from within are located on. It is important though to know that we all have the divine male and female within us and don't need external approval. Yes, an important point to consider, whilst some play roles in the return of it, it belongs to us all. One on one with the One, the one then becomes the all when those who are ready to embrace it, internally not externally which is unbalanced ego. You have to remember if we mate, there is not one half and another half coming together to eventually create one wholeness. It is ONE plus ONE that creates ONE new life. To all the mathematicians out there it seems that sometimes in life $1+1=1$ isn't it? (One on one with the one!) I did some drawings and will send some pictures to better visualize the above. Which I will include in the transcript when made available, please send them to me when they are ready. The collective was dragging the few who tried to develop beyond their reach down to their level. That was the old way. Now the collective is looking out for the beacons to lift them up and help them rise to their level. That is the new way. Bringing the Individual onto a cooperative path, where they unite into a collective effort of rising together, in a caring and sharing way. Absolutely and well put. For our basic understanding yes a triangle is a 2D object, but not when you apply depth as we have stated in previous pieces. I am glad we have members who understand the geometry and math that can get this across and add depth to my more basic understanding of it. I am more pleased that more of you are getting what has been put out over many years now. Whilst all the show content is researched, compiled and written by me, it is nice it is transitioning into pieces put forth by the members as well, just like the Communal Gathering pieces at the beginning of the month. Some people have questioned why I don't announce names on the show for pieces like this. The simple reason is A: their protection and B: many don't want their names read out. An issue of copyright came up in the chat, our stance is, there is no copyright, only collective consciousness. We at THI don't buy into copyright, our stuff is shared and used regularly without acknowledgement, and personally I don't care. Nothing is ever new or original, only the perspective of information analyzed at different epochs of time.

ENDING PIECE: There will be a show next Thursday, but not the following Thursday this is to accommodate me in pushing forward the blueprint. Asking all groups involved in it to prepare a zoom that I can attend and make some suggestions, get feedback etc. after next Thursday's show. There will likely be an extra show next Tuesday, a must listen to type of show.

The Divine masculine and feminine has become a more frequent word used this year, and yes it is returning, the energy and frequency has returned. The pieces we did on the divine feminine last week enhanced that tremendously. But being in divine masculine and feminine comes with responsibilities by all who embrace it. Divine masculine or feminine is not something you become, which is external. It is something you be, which is internal. Operating within those traits means you do not run down the other gender, do not make comparisons with the other gender, do not compare strengths of each other, point out weakness of each other in a comparative/competitive way. They are not separate, they are interlocking as we both have masculine and feminine parts. There is no hierarchy with the divine masculine and feminine, all are equals, both within and without. It should not be embedded in the past, with tales of woe, strife and subjugation, only the now and the future to embrace a better way and better path for us all. Divine masculine and feminine is also not related to your relationships or lack of them, it is a state of being with the oneness of it all. The biblical version of heaven. With new energies coming in, it may trigger more memories of the past for many of you, an echoing call that has long been forgotten, embrace and integrate it.

This is a piece that a member wrote after a recent tiny visit. I hope you all get much out of it as I did. They tried to lock me down, and steal the essence of my soul. But in the dawning of the day, under the bright orange sun, I rise. I smashed their altars, so, I may be altered. Back to the original, the one I Am and will always be. They tried to trick me into slavery, and mock me with their hypnotic spells. But in the end the original Word, always spoke to me. I stood on the hill, and surveyed the land before me. I watched in glorious wonder, at the striking of the sword, vibrating with the light of the One on One with the One, I stand forever changed. You will never win, as we gather in our might and we trash the world that you lay in. I am forever united to the original, the flower of life within. I trash the copy of the copy, that you tried to hold me in. The chains are laying broken. While the lines of warriors rise and the new dawning of the day, I Am free, I Am me. The flower of life within me, the petals they unfold, they stir the One, that came before me. And I Rise, and I Rise, and I Rise.
