

THI-SHOW TRANSCRIPT 2023-06-29

NEWS: This piece has all the warnings I have given about the control and dangers of technology. A man found himself locked out of his smart house powered by Amazon. All because, whilst he wasn't home, an Amazon delivery driver mistakenly thought he heard a racist remark come from the man's doorbell. He reported it to Amazon and Amazon immediately locked down the account, locking the man out of his home. Here's what the man accused of racism wrote on Medium: When I connected with the executive, they asked if I knew why my account had been locked. When I answered I was unsure, their tone turned somewhat accusatory. I was told that the driver who had delivered my package reported receiving racist remarks from my Ring doorbell. It turns out that a delivery driver with headphones on imagined he heard something racist from the doorbell, but the owner of the house wasn't even home when the event happened. He also had cameras all over the property that showed that he was totally innocent. I reviewed the footage and confirmed that no such comments had been made. Instead, the Eufy doorbell had issued an automated response: Excuse me, can I help you? The driver, who was walking away and wearing headphones, must have misinterpreted the message. Nevertheless, by the following day, my Amazon account was locked, and all my Echo devices were logged out. How insane is this? They locked the man out of his own home from Thursday, May 25, to Wednesday, May 31, 2023. The moral is; you are not that smart having a smart home. What if he did say something racist? The question is; who gave Amazon the authority to lock someone out of their own house? Where is the law that covers this? Amazon is a subsidiary of the Military and Unintelligent Agencies fss. They are not there to look after your home, just to spy on you and your children, given the DOD has the largest collection of child porn on their servers. You can't teach the stupid it seems.

Daniel Ellsberg, the whistleblower who exposed the extent of US involvement in the Vietnam War, has died, aged 92. He died at his home in Kensington, California, of pancreatic cancer, his family said. The former US military analyst's 1971 Pentagon Papers leak led to him being dubbed the most dangerous man in America. Ellsberg was one of several Jewish people to cause disruption by outing key disclosures at specific times. Generally to the benefit of Israel and the factions war. We covered Ellsberg in the FHSTOS series Part 5.

We did forecast this year a musical chair event for leading politicians and that has been unfolding. As now Scotland's first minister Nicola Sturgeon is the latest to resign her Government post, the media uses propaganda to cite the job has taken a personal toll, just like Ardern in New Zealand. The former First Minister Nicola Sturgeon has been arrested in connection with the ongoing investigation into the funding and finances of the SNP. Police confirmed a 52-year-old woman was taken into custody as a suspect and is being questioned by detectives. It follows the arrest and subsequent release of her husband, ex-SNP chief executive Peter Murrell, in April. The former SNP leader, who stood down in March, was then arrested and questioned by officers who have been investigating for the past two years what happened to more than £600,000 of donations given to the party by independence activists. The spokeswoman said: Nicola Sturgeon has on Sunday 11 June, by arrangement with Police Scotland, attended an interview where she was to be arrested and questioned in relation to Operation Branchform. The SNP treasurer

Colin Beattie was also arrested and released without charge while further inquiries were carried out. Mr. Beattie resigned as party treasurer shortly afterwards. The Scottish MP's have been up to no good for a long time, yet cover ups allowed them to continue, particularly in light of the child pedophilia ring of MP's in the Dunblane school incidents. Children were killed to stifle any inquiries of it.

It has emerged that, two nine-year-olds were among the 25,000 people forcibly sterilized in Japan under its post-World War Two eugenics law, a parliament report has revealed. The law, in place for 48 years, forced people to undergo operations to prevent them having children deemed inferior. Many of them had physical or cognitive disabilities or mental illness. The law is widely recognized as a dark chapter in Japan's post-war recovery and was repealed in 1996. On Monday, parliament released a long-awaited 1,400-page study, based on a government investigation which began in June 2020. It acknowledged that about 25,000 people had been subjected to operations, more than 16,000 of which were performed without consent. This plays into Part 4 of the eugenics piece in FHSTOS book and series. A sordid tale that happened in many countries now coming to light. Further proof our book is right on the mark again. Many will doubt this could ever take place, it has, and the Rockefellers and Planned Parenthood were at the forefront of it along with Margaret Sanger. Remember they blamed the Germans for this stuff, but the SS copied it from America, and the OSS which became the CIA were after the Japanese torture and eugenics programs. All connected is why.

Yet more clownery, more evidence of dwindling funds and more evidence the government will stiff the people. As more than 1 million people have been dropped from Medicaid in the past couple months, as some states moved swiftly to halt health care coverage following the end of the coronavirus pandemic. Most got dropped for not filling out paperwork. Though the eligibility review is required by the federal government, President's Joe Biden's administration isn't too pleased at how efficiently some other states are accomplishing the task. Pushing through things and rushing it will lead to eligible people kids and families losing coverage for some period of time, Daniel Tsai, a top federal Medicaid official recently told reporters. Already, about 1.5 million people have been removed from Medicaid in more than two dozen states that started the process in April or May, according to publicly available reports and data. More evidence of incompetence as well.

Flight turbulence has increased as climate change has warmed the planet, researchers say. (M) Scientists at Reading University in the UK studied clear-air turbulence, which is harder for pilots to avoid. They found that severe turbulence had increased 55% between 1979 and 2020 on a typically busy North Atlantic route. They put the increase down to changes in wind speed at high altitudes due to warmer air from carbon emissions. Prof Paul Williams said this gem, following a decade of research showing that climate change will increase clear-air turbulence in the future, we now have evidence suggesting that the increase has already begun. We should be investing in improved turbulence forecasting and detection systems, to prevent the rougher air from translating into bumpier flights in the coming decades. Flight routes in the USA and North Atlantic saw the largest increases. Europe, the Middle East and the South Atlantic also saw significant increases in turbulence. All the countries who are mainly pushing the climate change bs. But who goes to the South Atlantic? Mainly the military, are they to be believed? There are also financial consequences. The aviation industry loses between $150m and $500m in the US alone annually due to effects of turbulence, including wear-and-tear on aircraft, said the researchers. It also has an environmental cost, as pilots burn up fuel avoiding it. The study was published in the journal, Geophysical Research Letters. Pilots burn up most of the fuel going around military or no fly zones, fact. You know the real cause of this, what has been more prevalent in the past 54 years referenced? Turbulence is caused by adding matter into the air that hovers around for a period of time, it is called chemtrails. Not to mention using mobile HAARP machines seeding waves into the atmosphere. Hilarious efforts to negate the truth and apply scripted information.

In the United States a federal lawsuit Missouri v. Biden, it stated this. The CISA designates the thoughts of all American peoples as part of the government infrastructure. The Biden Regime has the right to control, which it calls cognitive infrastructure. CISA is the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency. Who seems to think that, not only what you think is their property, but also own how you think. Or so they thought anyway. What it shows is, the abject fear they have of us all. If we use that fear against them, they will crumble.

Justice Brett Kavanaugh rules states can't sue the government just over 'indirect' harm from a federal policy. Then it is about time the Supreme Justice shut down the federals then isn't it? Because what he has just revealed is, two forms of government, one relevant and one not. The one not is what the people stupidly vote for, which with that statement alone, proves is a pointless exercise.

Russia appears to have moved to take direct control of Wagner, after months of infighting between defense officials and the private military group. Deputy Defense Minister Nikolai Pankov said that volunteer formations will be asked to sign contracts directly with the ministry of defense. The vaguely worded statement is widely believed to target the group. But Wagner boss Yevgeny Prigozhin said his forces would boycott the contracts. The private military group has played a major role in the war in Ukraine, fighting on the side of Russian forces. Not exactly, as this group is linked with Eric Prince and Blackwater infamy. It may have started off as a private Russian group, but what is clear is, the West clowns have infiltrated it. They even did their accuse others of what they are doing, by labeling this group Neo-Nazis, which is actually who they are supporting with the Azov battalion. Prigozhin has been embroiled in a public dispute with Defense Minister Sergei Shoigu and military chief Valery Gerasimov for months. He has repeatedly accused the pair of incompetence and of deliberately undersupplying Wagner units fighting in Ukraine. He insisted that his group was well integrated with the Russian military, but said that its effectiveness would be damaged by having to report to the defense minister. The long-running tensions between the Wagner Group and the army have threatened to boil over in recent weeks. Recently the group kidnapped a senior frontline army commander, Lt Col Roman Venevitin, after accusing him of opening fire on a Wagner vehicle near Bakhmut. Lt Col Venevitin was later released and, in a video, shared by Russian military bloggers, he accused the group of stoking anarchy on Russia's frontlines by stealing arms, forcing mobilized soldiers to sign contracts with the group and attempting to extort weapons from the defense ministry. Prigozhin called the comments, absolutely total nonsense. He has also suggested that he is ready to deploy his troops on Russian soil, saying on Telegram that Wagner was ready to fight against insurrectionist forces in the Belgorod region. In December, the US estimated that Wagner had around 50,000 troops fighting in Ukraine. Signs of faction wars in Russia? all very interesting that to me. As most people Kim Goguen spoke to when speaking to Russian Generals, she said they were all Black Sun. Yet, she was taking some funds from them, funny that.

MEDICAL NEWS: I warned back in the 1990's this would be next on the agenda. It is not about your health and all about controlling things and people. The country who started off the anti-smoking campaign that led to bans for smokers from all public places, is now being used for alcohol warnings. New health warnings by Ireland set to be the world's strictest on beer, wine and spirits have sparked alarm from alcohol-producing countries, that argue the labels would impose an obstacle to trade. The US and Mexico have raised concerns over the legislation ahead of World Trade Organization committee meetings this week. Argentina, Australia, Chile, Cuba and New Zealand have also expressed reservations about the law, which Ireland passed last month. While the European Commission gave Ireland the green light, at least nine wine and beer-producing member countries opposed the measure. The labels, which go into effect in 2026, will highlight the risk of liver disease, cancer and the risk of drinking while pregnant, in big red letters on every container of alcoholic beverages. The level of unease among alcohol producers reflects concerns that they could be targeted like the cigarette industry, where warnings have evolved into graphic pictures of tobacco-related diseases. Canada last month unveiled a requirement for health warnings to be printed on every individual cigarette. Coldiretti, Italy's largest farmers association, said Ireland's planned alcohol labels are alarmist and set a dangerous precedent. The European Committee of Wine Companies said that the warnings create an unjustified and disproportionate barrier to trade. Irish Health Minister Stephen Donnelly is unrepentant on the warnings. The vast majority of people are not aware of these risks, he told national broadcaster RTÉ. If the industry is saying, will you not just wait a little bit longer, the answer is a flat no. If only they were as upfront on the Covid? Remember it was the same governments who allowed additives in food, water and cigarettes. The real warnings should be placed on government buildings, military buildings, all medical and social services buildings, pharmacies, think tanks, banks, child protection media buildings.

The Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI) last week released; The potential links between the Wuhan Institute of Virology and the origin of the Covid-19 pandemic report, a statement from the ODNI reads. The Covid-19 Origin Act of 2023 required the Intelligence Community to declassify information relating to potential links between the Wuhan Institute of Virology and the origin of the Covid-19 pandemic. Biden promised to release most of the documents and we await. All documents should be released, this became a global issue and the world needs to know about it. Our members already know all the details you need to know on the Covid scam, following our Expose series Parts 1-11.

Sheesh these people are so slow and behind the times, but finally it is coming out now. Perhaps they should have listened to the conspiracy theorists all along? The World Health Organization is planning to release two new reports on the safety of aspartame, the popular artificial sweetener in drinks like Diet Coke and Diet Pepsi, on July 14. The organization's International Agency for Research on Cancer has assessed the potential carcinogenic effect of the substance. No shit sherlock, you can blame Donald Rumsfeld for that smarting decision to introduce it. Which leads us nicely into the next piece.

Sucralose is a widely used artificial sweetener that has been marketed as a healthier alternative to sugar. Well that should have made you suspicious for a start, healthy or healthier in their world means harms us. It is more commonly known by the brand name of one of the most popular of these sweeteners, Splenda. A recent study has found that a chemical found in sucralose can break up DNA, raising concerns about its safety. Sucralose now found to contain a potentially genotoxic chemical, now found? Really? For quite some years, Splenda has been seen as a wonder ingredient for those trying to cut back on sugar intake. Erm if you are going to cut back, you just take less sugar, not use their substitutes most of which have been outed as a waste product. A recent study, in fact, showed that Sucralose-6-acetate, an impurity formed during sucralose production, was found to break up DNA strands and cause other types of genetic damage. Cosmic Genetics lives on it seems. We also found that trace amounts of sucralose-6-acetate can be found in off-the-shelf sucralose, even before it is consumed and metabolized. According to Susan Schiffman, who was the corresponding author of the study and an adjunct professor in the joint department of biomedical engineering at North Carolina State University and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill said in a press release. Interesting she is from Chapel Hill, as we outed that region of being involved in military medical experimentation, it was also implicated in the Covid virus as well. To put this in context, the European Food Safety Authority has a threshold of toxicological concern for all genotoxic substances of 0.15 micrograms per person per day. Our work suggests that the trace amounts of sucralose-6-acetate in a single, daily sucralose-sweetened drink exceed that threshold. That's not even accounting for the amount of sucralose-6-acetate produced as metabolites after people consume sucralose. The Study: To determine this, the researchers exposed human blood cells to sucralose in a series of in-vitro experiments. Not only did they check for markers of cell damage and genotoxicity, but they also found that it damages gut tissue. This leads to what they call leaky gut syndrome, which is when your gut lining becomes more permeable. Instead of toxins and waste products being filtered out through the kidneys, they instead are absorbed into the bloodstream via the stomach. We found that gut cells exposed to sucralose-6-acetate had increased activity in genes related to oxidative stress, inflammation and carcinogenicity, Schiffman says. It took them how many years to work that out? These products are a license to print money for the pharma sickness bureau. Safety Concerns: The study has raised concerns about the safety of sucralose, which is found in many diet sodas, sugar-free gum and other products. I warned people about diet drinks in the late 1990's, there is more sugar in the diet drinks than the ordinary ones. Diet my ass, all playing on people's fears again. With many people's diets consisting of these products on a daily basis, the research team is concerned that it is damaging their health. They are calling for a review of the safety and regulatory measures for these sugar chemicals. At any rate, they suggest you do your best to limit your sucralose intake to as close to zero as you can get it. However, it is important to note that many other studies have found that sucralose is safe for human consumption. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has approved the use of sucralose as a food additive, and the European Food Safety Authority (EFSA) has also declared it safe. USDA approved aspartame remember and add chemicals to all foods they process, they are another broker for the pharma sickness bureau. A recent study has found that a chemical found in sucralose can break up DNA, link that fact with the jabs and a bigger picture emerges does it not? Break up the DNA over a number of years and then re-program it with DNA jabs?

The interesting story about the submersible and how it became global news. 5 very non-descript people aboard a luxury craft, suddenly becomes the main news bulletin. Although one was connected to the WEF. Interesting to note many of you all said the same thing, it is a distraction news piece, indeed, they always were. Is the submersible signaling the final end of the Fed Reserve? given the Olympic/Titanic in part created it?

SOCIETY NEWS: A sign that people have had enough of woke programs, echoes through this piece as well, this time hitting them in the pocket. A popular slogan on the right is “Get woke, go broke,” but until the last few weeks there was meager evidence in support of this proposition. Attempts to organize consumer boycotts of “woke” products or companies, like the NFL after Colin Kaepernick’s kneeling for the national anthem, usually fizzled after having little effect. Then came the Bud Light debacle, in which Anheuser-Busch sought to leverage the sensation of the trans-celebrity influencer Dylan Mulvaney with a specially labeled can produced just for Mulvaney, which Mulvaney embraced to the hilt on Instagram and elsewhere. A spontaneous boycott of Bud Light, previously America’s best-selling brand, has cut sales by more than a quarter since this stunt, and the loss of market share appears to have staying power. Anheuser-Busch stock slumped 15% and Bud Light cans sit unsold on store shelves despite deep price discounts, while sales of competitor brands such as Coors Light and Miller Lite have jumped. Barron’s reports that several analysts think the shift away from Bud Light may be enduring, possibly making the micro-targeted Mulvaney promotion the single greatest brand-killing marketing blunder since the Ayds diet plan in the 1980s. Target’s Pride collection has also received its share of criticism. Another spontaneous consumer boycott has taken wing, and Target’s stock price fell for 10 days in a row, losing 15% while the rest of the market started to rally, its worst Wall Street performance in 23 years. Late in the week, J.P. Morgan downgraded Target’s stock. The blowback against gender-fluidity is not limited to consumers. Several Major League Baseball stars have issued public criticism of the Dodgers, and there has been a mounting backlash against anatomical males competing in women’s sporting events. This moment seems different: A line has been crossed, and normies, for lack of a better term for traditional middle-class Americans, are saying enough. Finally people have had enough and voting with their wallets, that will teach the arrogance of these cor-pirations to quit messing with our lives.

As the world burns there was still enough time and the call to have a pride month. A celebration they say about their label and sexuality, does anybody not look at that in overview? Or has the world gone agenda driven mad? Pride month and LGBTQ is a program designed to distract and divide people, allowing them to forget the world is run by lunatics. Allowing them to forget their governments, military, media and medical departments are all using them like batteries. Allowing them to forget the likes of Black Rock, Wall Street and the Federal Reserve is looting theirs and 170 plus other countries. Allowing them to forget that NATO, Rothschild’s, Israel, the CIA, 5 eyes groups are culling people everywhere, not just Ukraine. Allowing them to forget that life is not great for most people of the world. But these exhibitionists, sexual exhibitionists now have a world stage to perform their rituals in full public viewing.

Embarrassing themselves in full public view, yet they are oblivious to it, in the banal pursuit of their 15 minutes of fame. Shallow people doing shallow things, believing they have some sort of moral purpose. They don't, they are exactly what is wrong with the majority of people, self-serving, insecure, shallow and devoid of morals. Those are the facts, the labels do not matter to me, I don't care who or what you are, in fact we have many gay, lesbian in our group and also transgender, none of whom have been targeted or attacked upon for their sexual choices. But far too many people wish to label themselves like USPS packages, replete with a bar code, which has now become a hash tag. Both of which are the Mark of the Beast, branded like cattle, who does that serve? Who are they serving? Pride they call it, another example of people's own stupidity. Pride is a high or inordinate opinion of one's own dignity, importance, merit or superiority, whether as cherished in the mind or as displayed in conduct. Whether craving compliments, fearing our own image or entertaining an overly critical view of ourselves, pride can be both glaringly obvious and deceptively sneaky. That is unbalanced ego, the hidden hook. There should be a seventh hook added to the 5 plus the hidden one, ego, in my opinion, idiocy. The irony is they do not get they are being played, just like extras in a poor B movie production. You know what they say comes after pride? The fall, the fall is not autumn time, it started the moment you went along with their programs. All designed for you to fall. Keep waving your flags, wearing outlandish costumes and rainbow colors, knowing the system is laughing at you and your chronic levels of stupidity. Your participation in stupid programs has caused one moronic idiot to kill 5 of your labels in a Colorado nightclub this year. Thankfully that moronic idiot is spending his life behind bars, but that is what the system wanted and you people are the cause of it, whether that sits comfortable with you or not. 5 people are dead and many more are attacked because you are running exhibitionist level programs in people's faces. Just quit it and get on with your lives.

A concerning statistic is currently viral on Twitter citing a study that claims 45% of young women between the age of 25-44 will be single in 2030. Maybe these two pieces explains why?

A couple of short stories covering the same thing and maybe something some people need to consider before starting a relationship. Am I too demanding? do I have many restrictions or blocks? am I selfish or flexible? am I needy? is my demands, traits and ways dictated by social media and or peers, am I realistic? Answers to those questions all play into making a potential relationship successful. Here are two short stories that appeared on a Newsfeed recently. One guy took his girlfriend to Vietnam and Cambodia visiting all the sites and temples. This was one of her bucket list wishes, but he had a surprise for her during the vacation, he was going to propose to her. All went well then one night he proposed and she said yes. The following morning in tears, she took off the ring and gave it back to him because he proposed to her only in a hotel room. So, she is in a foreign country of her desire and is offered marriage by someone who clearly loves her, and she decides a hotel room proposal is not worthy? I will avoid making judgments, I am sure many of you will have rolled your eyes or indeed more. The problem is, the media, magazines and advertisers deciding how people should live and act out their life. Turning it into all glitz and glamor, and people competing and trying to outdo each other, all of which takes away from what the whole purpose is. It just cheapens the whole thing, but that is lost by the must follow what the stars do people. All of which in many cases costs a lot of money, so leaving people with no money feeling inferior or some going heavily into debt for a single day. The question is; should we really care where people ask each other to get married? If it was all about love, it should not matter. He then made her ask him to get married in the future, and then created a pre-nup if she did. Eventually she had to ask him to get married and he agreed, but now he doesn't trust her.

The second story is about a woman who gave a bunch of requests of what she expects from her boyfriend, whilst demanding the right of being independent and a woman who is not at home or child bearing. She shared her dating struggles with her followers, namely the hard time she's had finding a masculine man who matches her progressive views. She opened the video, talking about one of the saddest realizations she has ever had, which she claimed was, as a liberal woman, it is really hard to find a man who is willing to play the more traditional masculine role in the relationship in today's day and age, who is not a conservative. She continued explaining how she's looking for a man who wants to pay on the first date, who wants to open your door, who has that want and desire to take care of you and to provide, but can't find one who is not a conservative. She then released a video revealing some of her scathing critiques of the men she's been running into. She wrote, all these men out here wanting to split the bill, on the first date, Whaaaaaaat. She reiterated she wanted someone who was a natural provider who wasn't conservative. At the top, another of her thought texts popped up, reading, Am I asking too much here?!?! To somewhat be equal yet have a man provide and take care of me to some extent?" She answered her own questions essentially. So, I really don't know what to do because I don't wanna compromise my morals and values just to find a man, but am I asking to have my cake and it eat it too? she said. I think she not only ate all the cake, but all the pies as well. Do these people think before they speak? Clearly not. This is the damage the agendas ran on us have had, people do not know how to act, do or say anymore. It is based on some unrealistic stylized lifestyle, purpose or goals, none of which make any sense. That whole dialogue was ouroboros, and so she has failed to find the proverbial needle in the haystack. Yet, is it not the case, when the needle in the haystack turns up, many still reject it? Where are all the nice guys you scream, right in front of you and in some cases with you. But they rejected, ignored or pushed all those guys away, then wonder why they have no one or end up with an abusive guy. Too many men now feel women don't know what they want, they are too demanding, operating from the head and not the heart, not respectful enough or just using men as a meal ticket or a payout. Sadly today I say to the women, that is how the men think and only you can change that thinking. I have personal experience with some relationships, bizarre demands which I couldn't fulfill in a short space of time and it was ended, just like that. It didn't matter all the help, love and support I gave prior, just out you go. The same also applied with the Trustee, although that was only a working relationship, but she was given support beyond which most women don't get from their husbands or partners, a little respect was the order of the day. It mattered not and out I was cast. Clearly some people have lost their way of what a relationship or being in a relationship means. Love, support, making each other happy, respecting each other, being flexible, allow each other to grow, tolerance, allowing each other space all very basic stuff, yet why is it lost to so many? The polyamorous piece was questioned and pulled apart the first time, less the second time, but it was suggested that I or others were looking for multiple partners of a sexual nature, but I was in a relationship and so none of it applied to me, it was just to help people come together. Too often the glitzy world of media, stars and magazines are deciding your life for you and how your life should be, plays a huge role these days. Because that like fashion is other people's choices, not yours and your partners. But following that path and peer pressure is not working is it? Given how many people of both genders are single. There is an element of entitlement, passive aggressive judgement, my way or the highway and zero flexibility, no understanding or consideration of other people's feelings, thoughts or desires. This is not what it means for two people to fall in love. In the end seeking a partner becomes a lesson in self-sabotage, the battle between the heart and the head, and for most people the head is winning, why? because the heart feelings cannot be controlled, but the head can. It creates false fears and mistrust to overcome the heart feelings, and then ultimately to justify the self-sabotaging of the desire to be in and of love. Hearts have to flow, the head are dams that blocks the flow of the river of love, dams can then become the river of the damned. Maybe this type of speech should be used in schools, and we have to teach our youth how to be and how not to be, before the think tanks and media destroys another generation of potential lovers. Or perhaps it is because there are not enough nice women to create the frequency match? That was a question not a statement. Either way, how can Divine Feminine progress with those actions? You can blame men all you like, but nothing has changed on a wider scale has it since the rise of feminism and girl power. Perhaps that leads to the conclusion, the problem was within yourselves? Love is not meant to be demanding, service to self, about status, materialistic things or money, competing with others, unrealistic magazine and superstar style expectations or some Hallmark level movie either, that is the illusion game and why it doesn't work for so many people. You can carry on blaming the other all the while, but that didn't solve anything for both gender's either , otherwise most people would have much less shadow work to do.

EXPOSE: Another revising of his story into our story and some reality with this piece. It is atypical for the MSM to denigrate those few who have actually served their people to some degree. All supported by the clown Western intelligence agencies, who work for their dark overlords without impunity. A get of jail free card under the heavily disguised banner of National Security, and we have worked out by now, whenever the word national is used, skullduggery unfolds and or a cover up of sorts. First, Obama falsely portrayed Gaddafi as a monster; then, he lied about the need for harsh sanctions to punish him for crimes he never committed and, finally, he launched an illegal war under a pretext as phony as Lyndon Johnson's Tonkin Gulf Resolution and George W. Bush's Weapons of Mass Destruction. Once upon a time, in a faraway land that was very rich because of its oil wells, a bad king kept his people in poverty and subjected women to sexual and domestic abuse. But after many years of oppression, a charismatic young officer overthrew the bad king in a bloodless revolution that lasted less than two hours and in which nobody died. Imagine that? Even the bad king was allowed to live out his life in a luxurious villa, surrounded by family and servants, until he died peacefully of old age many years later, at age 93. The dashing young officer quickly abolished the monarchy and established a People's Congress. He threw open the royal treasury and distributed its riches to the people, so that they prospered. All westerners just listen to this next section and ask, is your government who are supposed to be the good guys doing this? A free home was guaranteed to every citizen, college education was also free. So was medical care and if the country's own doctors couldn't cure your illness, the government paid the cost of sending you to a country where they could. Happy were the people, but happiest of all were the women. The new government not only liberated them from sexual and domestic abuse; it also granted them full and equal rights with men, and they won more than half the seats in the People's Congress. The above may sound like a fairy tale, but it actually happened. In 1969, 27-year-old Colonel Muammar Gaddafi overthrew the Libyan monarch, Muhammad Idris bin Muhammad al-Mahdi as-Senussi, in a bloodless coup. However, the fairy tale did not have a happy ending. Western powers were not pleased to see the Libyan people enjoying the benefits of their extensive oil reserves, which the colonial powers had been virtually stealing for themselves for decades under King Idris, in return for helping him remain in power. The king also allowed Britain and the U.S. to open military bases in the country. The Western powers wanted those good days to return and for that, they had to get rid of Gaddafi. So people like the Bushes, Obama, Netanyahu and the Shah of Iran could divvy up the oil between them. Yes, the Israeli and Iranian leaders sharing looted deals, I wonder why the western press will never publish that? Gaddafi, who had not only nationalized Libya's oil for the benefit of its people, but was also planning to start a Pan-African currency that could help turn African nations into producers of high-value products, instead of being exploited by the West merely as suppliers of raw materials. The west's first step was to crush the Libyan economy with punitive sanctions. The west is the left hand path remember, the path of Set. On March 4, expert witnesses testified at an International People's Tribunal on U.S. Imperialism about the adverse impact of sanctions on Libya imposed by the U.S. since the 1970s, and how they set the groundwork for the 2011 U.S.-NATO invasion that destroyed Libya. Organized by an assortment of peace and social justice organizations, the hearings were part of a series that aims to spotlight the pernicious impact of U.S. sanctions on 16 countries in Latin America, Africa and Asia, arguing that such sanctions function as a key tool of U.S. imperialism. Latin America was Operation Condor perpetrated by the CIA and the P2 Lodge. The latter was certainly the case with regard to Libya, on which the Nixon administration began applying sanctions in 1971, two years after Gaddafi's revolution against King Idris, who had ruled Libya from 1951 to 1969. He was a grandson of Sayyid Muhammad ibn Ali as-Senussi, the founder of the Senussi Muslim Sufi Order and the Senussi tribe in North Africa. Idris's family claimed descent from the Islamic prophet Muhammad through his daughter, Fatimah. The Senussi were known as a nomadic tribe, now where have we heard that before? By the end of the nineteenth century the Senussi Order had established a government in Cyrenaica, unifying its tribes, controlling its pilgrimage, trade routes, and collecting taxes. Nomadic, trade and taxes, all sounds rather Jewish to me. Under King Idris, Libya found itself within the Western sphere of influence. It became the recipient of Western expertise and aid, and by the end of 1959 it had received over $100 million of aid from the United States, being the single biggest per capita recipient of American aid. $100M of our money I might add, it is large enough now, but 64 years ago was an enormous sum. After he came to power, Gaddafi very rapidly removed the massive U.S. military base at Wheelus along with a British military base, and took measures to nationalize Libya's oil industry so that oil revenues could be used to develop Libya's economy. Gaddafi later set up a base to train Arab and African liberation and Palestinian resistance fighters, and tried to advance Pan-African unity and a South Atlantic Treaty Organization (SATO) that could rival the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Because of his independent policies, resistance to foreign colonialism and the threat that he would free Africa from the choke-hold of dollar dominance, Gaddafi was for decades a target of Western regime change operations and sanctions. At the tribunal, Hamza al-Toumi, a Libyan engineer and military expert, detailed how U.S. sanctions specifically targeted the aviation industry in an attempt to weaken its economy and military. After the sanctions were imposed, Libya could no longer obtain many of the spare parts it needed to repair planes and had to drastically cut the number of domestic flights. Libyans had to drive to neighboring countries to fly. Many pilots had to leave the country and the whole economy suffered with the lack of investment in new airports. Furthermore, at least one plane crashed because it did not have proper safety equipment. There were many more road accidents, because people had to always travel by road and people suffering from medical emergencies died, because they could not be airlifted to hospitals due to a dearth of airplanes and helicopters. On the military side, al-Toumi emphasized that Libya could not upgrade its air defense system because of the lack of spare parts, making it vulnerable to foreign invasion. During the U.S.-NATO attack of 2011, it could not effectively fight back. Which is the way these clowns work, cowardly fighting. The training of pilots in the country had been hampered and Libyan Air Force planes were grounded. Essam Ekhangli, a Ph.D. student at the University of Illinois, read a statement prepared by the former Minister of Health under Gaddafi, Mustafa Zaid, who emphasized that the sanctions were a new type of war waged by the West on Libya, that affects regular people by restricting their access to quality health-care and travel and makes bank transfers very difficult. The same modus operandi sanction play was made by the empire of chaos in Syria. Libyan companies and institutions could not buy items they needed, including advanced medical equipment made in the U.S. like MRI machines and CT scanners. Zaid specified that when Gaddafi came to power in 1969, there were very few doctors in Libya, which was heavily dependent on foreigners in the health-care sector, marking the sanctions as especially cruel. The sanctions further resulted in the freezing of Libyan assets that were held in overseas banks, depriving the Gaddafi government of its own revenue streams. The fraudulent pretexts: The U.S. and UN expanded sanctions on Libya in the early 1990s under the pretext that Libya had carried out the bombing of Pan Am Flight 803 over Lockerbie, Scotland, in December 1988, when there was no proof of this. The case against a Libyan intelligence officer, Abdelbaset al-Megrahi, who was accused of masterminding the Lockerbie bombing, depended on an unreliable Libyan defector and forensic evidence that proved to be false. Scottish law professor Robert Black called Megrahi's trial the most disgraceful miscarriage of justice in Scotland for a hundred years, and UN observer Hans Kochler said that the decision to convict Megrahi was totally incomprehensible and a spectacular miscarriage of justice. In 1986, another fraudulent pretext was adopted to justify a U.S. aerial attack under President Reagan: Gaddafi was accused of bombing the La Belle discotheque in West Germany and killing two American soldiers. The chief of the anti-terrorism police in West Berlin concluded after investigating the La Belle discotheque bombing that the police had no hard evidence let alone proof that Libya had been involved. When the case went to trial, the prosecution at the trial was unable to prove that Colonel Gaddafi was behind the bombing, a failure the court blamed on the limited willingness of the German and U.S. governments to share intelligence information. German investigators later uncovered that Musbah Eter, a Libyan agent who was part of the group that allegedly carried out the bombing, ran a CIA-front operation in Malta and had long worked for the CIA. Well I never, who could have possibly thought they would be involved in it? he says sarcastically. He may have been acting as a provocateur who orchestrated a black-flag attack designed to provide a pretext for the U.S. bombing of Libya and the ratcheting up of deadly sanctions. Like they have done numerous times since World War 2. The CIA have been responsible for more murders of Americans than any other organization on the planet, yet hardly any Americans are aware of it. Gaddafi's letter at the time said this: Now, I am under attack by the biggest force in military history, my little African son, Obama wants to kill me, to take away the freedom of our country, to take away our free housing, our free medicine, our free education, our free food. To replace it with American style thievery, called capitalism, but all of us in the Third World know what that means, it means corporations run the countries, run the world and the people suffer. So, there is no alternative for me, I must make my stand, and if Allah wishes, I shall die by following His path. The path that has made our country rich with farmland, with food and health, and even allowed us to help our African and Arab brothers and sisters to work here with us, in the Libyan Jamahiriya.

2011 U.S.-NATO Criminal Attack: The U.S. sanctions directed against Libya were designed to weaken the country in order to prepare the way for the 2011 invasion, which was based on lies and deceits. A lot of the disaffection against Gaddafi in Libya that the U.S., Great Britain and France tried to exploit was a result of the sanctions policy, which was never reported on in the West. The 2011 uprising in Benghazi was led by Islamists and evolved very quickly into an armed struggle against Gaddafi's government, which was legitimate in the eyes of most of the Libyan people. President Barack Obama, nevertheless, said Gaddafi should go. Stories were fabricated that Gaddafi was massacring his people and was about to commit genocide when, in fact, it was rebel forces and U.S.-NATO bombers that killed massive numbers of civilians. The second to last speaker at the tribunal, Dr. Murad el-Sadawi, who works at the University of Rochester Medical Center, emphasized that rebel forces backed by the U.S. emptied the town of Tawerga of Blacks after the overthrow of Gaddafi. El-Sadawi displayed images of civilians who were killed in U.S.-NATO airstrikes, including members of the el-Hamedi family who died in an airstrike that resulted in the deaths of 34 civilians. Behind the Headlines: NATO Slaughter - James and Joanne Moriarty expose the truth about what happened in Libya The last speaker, Salah Khalifa, described the abominable conditions in Sirte during the U.S.-NATO bombing, which, he said, randomly struck civilian areas. Khalifa emphasized that, the post-Gaddafi government passed laws that would exonerate all rebels from any crimes that they conducted so that they would not be prosecuted. Mustafa Fatouri, a Libyan journalist, ended his talk by discussing how the U.S. is now pressing only for legislative elections but not presidential elections, which it fears Muammar Gaddafi's son, Saif al-Islam, will win. If that occurred, it would prove that everything the U.S. had said about Gaddafi being a brutal dictator was a lie, so they cannot allow that to happen.

But the US and their 5 eyes counterparts have previous with sanctions that have destroyed whole countries and their peoples. Like the sanctions on North Korea. On February 17, the International People's Tribunal on U.S. Imperialism hosted a session on North Korea where experts condemned the cruelty of U.S. sanctions. Like Libya under Gaddafi, North Korea has been singled out for sanctions because it has a) refused to integrate into the U.S.-dominated world order; b) advanced its own way of economic development, and c) stood up to U.S. military aggression. Ju Hyun Park specified that U.S. sanctions on North Korea were first imposed in 1950 just after the Korean War officially broke out. The U.S. had provoked the war by artificially dividing Korea at the 38th parallel and supporting a terrorist regime in South Korea led by Syngman Rhee, which massacred many of its own people and triggered hostilities with the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK-North Korea) in an attempt to take it over. So, South Korea was killing its own people, just like the Ukrainians were and are. The goal of the sanctions, Park specified, was to cause great suffering to the people of the North while the U.S. was in the process of dropping 635,000 tons of bombs, more than in the entire Pacific theater during World War II. When the Korean War ended in a stalemate, the sanctions were sustained in an attempt to prevent North Korea from rebuilding its economy. However, this strategy failed and, in the 1970s, the North exceeded the South in its economic output, developing heavy industry while providing free education, health care and housing to its people. But then, the Communist Bloc collapsed at the same time that North Korea experienced devastating floods. The Clinton administration, however, cruelly sustained sanctions in an attempt to punish North Korea for its defiance, and to trigger popular disaffection with the government. Today, the sanctions remain harsh, having been aggressively expanded by the Obama, Trump and Biden administrations as part of the imperialist Pivot to Asia strategy and because of North Korea's attempt to develop nuclear weapons to protect itself. So, Trump was no different to the other two clowns either side of his fake Presidency. As for the nukes, a common fear based rhetoric from the unintelligent agencies script-based news media. It is my understanding nukes have not been available for use here since the late 1960's, particularly after the Malmstrom air base incident, when unknown craft switched all the nukes off twice. Incidentally, we have had no nukes go off since then. All UN member states have been called on to block financial transactions with North Korea and sever banking relations with it. The import of metal items has been banned, and oil imports have been capped at 5,000 barrels per year, less than Belgium consumes in a single day. As a result of the sanctions, North Korea's exports fell from $2.7 billion in 2016 to $1.8 billion in 2017, while the UN reported overwhelming difficulties in its paying for medical and sanitation equipment. According to Peace Now, 3,968 North Koreans died in 2018 because of delays in UN aid programs and other consequences of the sanctions. Nevertheless, the country is surviving and thriving economically, to some extent. Perhaps people will begin to see the patterns of repeated scripts and eventually work out who the real dictators and regimes are. Get the treasonous and murderous news readers to tell the gullible public, that such and such leaders are massacring their own people and we should all agree that the military should bomb them into oblivion. In essence that script is a pretext to war for clowns and bankers.

MYSTERY SECTION: Here is their latest attempt to try and explain why the poles are moving, it is typically scripted and yet again comes out of the University of Austin, Texas. Are they becoming the new Harvard? Over the course of about two decades, humans pumped enough water out of the ground that we shifted Earth's poles by almost a meter. This is equivalent to the polar drift caused by melting Greenland ice over the same period. Erm no it hasn't, it has A: moved much further than that B: zero to do with moving water and C: zero to do with climate change either. Most people would go about their lives and wouldn't be aware of Earth's wobbles or the drift, says Clark Wilson at the University of Texas at Austin. He and his colleagues modelled how changes in the distribution of water around the planet have affected the drifting of the poles. Some of that polar wander is down to natural causes. Because Earth isn't a perfect sphere, it wobbles like a top several meters each year. The poles also drift due to changes in the distribution of mass around the planet, such as the movement of water due to the seasons. There are a number of things contributing to polar drift, and they all add up. Filling reservoirs and pumping groundwater, as well as climate change melting glaciers and the resulting sea level rise all contribute, though it wasn't clear what was the influence of each specific change. Indeed, but they still throw in climate change. Wilson and his colleagues modelled the drift using estimates of the amount of groundwater pumped between 1993 and 2010, which totaled around 2100 gigatons, and the associated rise in sea level, which they estimated at 0.3 millimeters per year. Estimated is the key word, not fact. The polar drift attributed to these changes from groundwater pumping amounted to about 80 centimeters. Wilson says this is especially due to large aquifers located at mid-latitudes, which have the greatest effect on polar drift. The only thing that affected the drift more than changes in groundwater was the rebound of landmasses after the lost weight of melted glaciers from the previous ice age. Which proves it is all balancing out. This doesn't itself have particular consequences in terms of changes in the length of day or of the seasons, says Wilson. Although he says that knowing the precise location of the axis is essential for any GPS technology to work. It isn't working as efficiently anymore and won't, unless they can adjust the satellites every month or quarterly. Is this setting us up for a water tax? I wouldn't put it past these people, all about the shekels. Yet isn't it the shekel people pumping all the water? So, having described the scripted narrative and blamed humans for it. How about we define that better and blame oil and water companies for doing it? The poles are moving because they are going back to where they belong, before Parallel worlds and Rose lines. Here is an interesting piece that came to my attention and is relevant to recent shows and places visited. Do I think this person is 100% valid? No, but each to their own conclusions. It said this; Although I notice a certain reluctance to delve into the ancient stories of the Anunnaki, because of all their drama and their complex interaction with humanity, it seems to become unavoidable. This time I was triggered by Elena Danaan who said that Ningishzida, who we had fairly recently got to know as the sleeping giant in the subterranean world in Florida, not only was Quatzecoatl but Thoth as well. We have covered about Thoth being Quetzacoatl some time back. When you search around a bit, this is indeed rapidly confirmed in various texts. So, this Giant was an important figure, but what do we know about this guy? What follows is an introduction from Elena, followed by relevant information from Zecharia Sitchin's work and some highly critical words by Ashayana Deane on Thoth, who apparently is just another Anunnaki. Introduction by Elana Danaan. In a video-interview with Robert Khalil on November 9, 2022 Elena made the link between the multifaced Thoth who evidently appeared as Ningishzida, but also as Quatzecoatl. In this short fragment she says a few other interesting points in regard to the fall of Atlantis for instance. A group of elite Anunnaki were working with the Atlanteans and while there was a big war raging, and the flood was about to happen they went to both sides of the continent. I still need to get used to the idea that many Atlanteans were in fact Anunnaki. Indeed, but it wasn't just Anunnaki as part of the Atlanteans either, there was many races connected to that. But, it also depends on which time period, and also which Atlantis. Thoth and the war with Marduk: If you live very long lives it might be some kind of habit to change your name occasionally. When Thoth was still working under the name of Ningishzida, he had a war that lasted for 350 years with Enki's son Marduk, who also liked to play around with names, as he preferred to be called Ra during those days in Egypt. It was only after Enki who liked the name Ptah too, intervened, that Thoth was forced to leave Egypt to Enki's son and head for the Americas. Ptah was who the original Alex Collier was telling us all to worship remember. Have you noticed all these ancient history researchers, commentators and UFO followers all seems to have an angle for the fake gods that have done much damage to us and the planet? Thoth from Stonehenge to America: So Thoth went and during his trip to Latin America he would have started Stonehenge. Let's read a bit from the master, Sitchen himself: Thoth moved on: he guided the building of the Stonehenge around 2800 B.C. Exiled, Thoth, after he'd finished with Stonehenge, took a band of his followers in 3113 B.C. to Mesoamerica, where he once as Ningishzida, now Quetzalcoatl, the Winged Serpent, brought his Sumerian and African overseers and technicians with him to the Western Hemisphere. Thoth helped set up observatories in Central America, gave the Mayans their calendar and also designed and supervised the building of observatories and tin and gold processing plants in the Andes. Sitchin the master? Oh dear, he was an illuminati member, he told you what they wanted you to hear. Fair amounts of truth, like Ashayana Deane, but with a slant towards a faction or bloodline family. Thoth did not build Stonehenge, some evidence now points to the Rus building it. Impressive on the stuff done in the Americas, yet no evidence exists to prove that to be the case. Other than what is known today as Egyptian artifacts and tons of gold in the Grand Canyon and other places, no evidence supports he built anything of that ilk. Some critical thoughts on Thoth: Although it is quite tempting to rejoice in the awakening of a giant who had many famous names, and who might help us forward towards our star trek future, this doesn't mean that we should ignore all information that is less favorable about 'NingishQuatzalThoth'. I remembered that Ashayana Deane was not as positive about this man and I think we should be open to this possible side of the coin as well, in order to prevent us from turning into gullible people who might start adoring awakening giants who might have a background which is not as glorious as we would like. I agree, we don't need their past dragged up again, it all failed. Not one worked for the benefit of humanity, all self-serving and egotistical. Let's hear what Ashayana Deane, who says that she was able to read the Emerald Covenant CDT Plates, had to say about Thoth: Mayan-Quetzalcoatl, forced Human tribes to adopt Nibiruan-distorted Mayan Calendar and Nibiruan-created Julian Calendar in Rome. Egyptian Osiris-Isis mystical schools, the Atlantian Emerald Tablets, which were in part written translations of part of data stored on Emerald Covenant CDT-Plate-11 stolen by Thoth in 22,340BC. and Brotherhood of the Snake Atlantean mystical schools. Led Nibiruian Anunnaki invader races in the Eieyani Indigo Massacre of 22,326BC Lemurian Islands (Kauai Hawaii). Thoth Alpha-Omega Melchizedek mystical schools, I wonder who uses the Alpha and Omega systems today, and failed with them? Lord Melchizedek and related channel contacts, the Christian- Protestant text distortions, Osiris-Isis-Horus Egyptian schools. Most groups were Emerald Covenant loyal until Thoth defected from Emerald Covenant just prior to the SAC and Eieyani Massacre of 22,326BC. In her book, which is quite extended and complicated, she distinguishes a group called Thoth-Enki-Zephelium Anunnaki. Some final reflections: This current fascinating journey which encompasses not only present-day developments as described by Elena Danaan and JP, for instance, it also entails the study of our past and it seems that the old Sumerian texts might prove quite valuable. It is attractive to simply absorb everything that is told by these current day sources and not question it, but I think we owe it to humanity to also pay attention to other aspects. As we know from our historians: the account of our history is highly dependent on who tells the story. There is a difference in sharing knowledge with the Mayans and forcing a Nibiruan distorted calendar on the Mayans. Which supports my belief that, all calendars are not related to here at all, but their collective home worlds. And what is all that talk about a stolen Emerald Covenant Plate, and that massacre of the Eieyani Indigo's on one of the Lemurian islands 22,326 BC? And how strong is that link between Thoth and Ptah, or Ningishzida and Enki? Deane even talks about a certain former alliance between the Thoth group and the Enlil-group. Perhaps Ashayana Deane just tuned into a distorted source, but perhaps there is indeed some truth in all that. Who could check whether there indeed was such a massacre more than 24,000 years ago as was suggested, and why was it done? Why would his semen be transported to Iraq to help in opening up a possible ark down there? Cosmic Genetics right there and no different to the fallen ones and mating with Earth women. And what about this other giant who was once part of the Enlil-team, who would have changed sides to Enki? What is his story? What did he do when he was part of the opponent? They were not opponents, just the duality two sides of the same coin again. People really need to understand that, because we are not and never where on that coin. Why did Thoth use that symbol of that Ibis Bird and why did he change to a winged serpent when in the Americas? The Ibis or the Phoenix or the Bennu bird, all worshipped by fake religions like Hebrew and the Mormons. People have to understand that religion is the tool to get us to worship those who oppressed, slaughtered and enslaved us. Religion is the world's largest Stockholm Syndrome factory. And these researchers, particularly the more well-known ones, are their secret disciples.

Let's have a closer look at Elana Danaan shall we. How is it possible she has the same surname as the reptile invaders to Ireland? Passed off as benevolent gods, when they killed the kings of Ireland and the Queen of Scotia, she who rebelled against her "Egyptian" family and background. She is buried in Tralee Bay on the SW coast of Ireland. Let's see how many connections to clown groups she has. Born in France, Elena Danaan graduated in Fine Arts in Paris and completed a Post-Grad in Archaeology at the Louvre University. Oh, dear not a good start. She worked as a field Archaeologist for twenty years of her life, among which eight years in Egypt as an engineer epigraphist for the CNRS (Karnak, Luxor, Cairo, Dendera, and Valley of the Kings) before returning to France, assigned to the University of Toulouse. Egypt, she says? Oh my. Completing studies in Druidry, Shamanism, energy and sound healing, she is actually working as a spiritual practitioner. The former two are highly questionable at best. Helena Zacharias, plus Delaporte as her ex-married name. Zacharias is a Hebrew name, the most famous of which was a cohen or priest. Delaporte is a nobility bloodline family. Why hasn't she used her real name? Why did she drop the H from her name, all very Jewish that and take that last name? Which is associated with the reptile group who did so much damage in the past in Ireland, called the Tuatha de Danaan. Elena Danaan is an Archaeologist who spent many years working on diverse sites in Egypt and in France studying ancient cultures. Hereditary Shaman, she also studied Pagan spirituality, Magic and Alchemy, not good for me that, all very New Agey at best and cult at worst. She was trained and ordained as a Druidess. She has been an Extraterrestrial contactee since childhood, Elena Danaan became an emissary for the Galactic Federation of Worlds. I presume that is the Galactic Federation of light as it was called by them, by us, galactic federation of liars. Elena inherited of two strong strands of bloodlines from her biological mother: the royal Magdalene line by her French grandfather, did she jump on the bandwagon of the Da Vinci code? Does she know there are two Mary Magdalene's? The former being connected to Osiris, Isis and Horus, which kinds of fits with her narrative does it not? Also, the Saami-Norse line by her Gotlandish grandmother, Marie Danaan, from whom she changed her name to after her father passed. She moved to Ireland in 2011, where she settled in the "Kingdom" of Kerry. On the sacred Hill of Tara, Elena met with true Irish Druids, with whom she decided to take the path and start long years of study and initiation. Hmm, well that is all changed now. Elena could help Laura Eisenhower exempting her great grandfather Dwight Eisenhower from a burden of false accusations, by confirming that he never wanted to sign with the Nebu Grays, that he never did and that he was tricked by the MJ12 and the Military Industrial Complex. Really? Then where is the evidence to support that statement? Think about it, rarely does that level or that type of information come out, yet it did and it implicated Eisenhower. Nowhere have I seen and counteraction to that statement of fact, in all the years I have been researching. What has Laura Eisenhower ever offered to our community, except parroting old material? She brought nothing fresh to the table and only appears to be involved to cover up her family selling out American's. Elena Danaan's work was noticed by Dr. Michael Salla, with whom she started sharing her intel delivered by extraterrestrial beings. Andromedan Contactee Alex Collier also supported her work, becoming her friend and mentor. Salla is another fraud, stealing other people's material and passing it off as his own. As for Alex Collier he died in either 2007 or 2008, is it is highly unlikely there are 3 people with his original name. Like I have said with all of these people, take what they offer but look for the twist to the narrative, what angles are they plugging? And whose agenda are they following? These prominent peoples in relation to ET's, many of which went onto selling out all so easily to the Coven based Gaia TV and the onto the mainstream with the distorted truths of Ancient Aliens.

ENDING PIECE: Following my decision to do a show every two weeks, it has allowed me to engage the various teams over the past two weeks and see where we are at with it all. It is pleasing to see everyone involved is working hard and producing some fantastic material, ideas and platforms. I am asking for more help for them, if everyone can do there little bits and help the team go forward. We are looking for a data in-putter for the gardening and archive sections, please contact me on the main mewe or send an email to truth.honor.and.integrity@gmail.com if you can help with that. Exciting announcements are in the pipeline and to accommodate that I came up with a new idea for the show. Every second week we will do updates from the various groups as things are getting busy and maybe some guests coming on the show and discussing the blueprint, websites, gardening or law developments. That will be a shorter show as the content will be generated by the teams themselves and I will cover it. Next week will be the first show of that kind, and so we will be back to a show every Thursday but it will alternate between THI and the Blueprint plus TPC news. On Tuesday July 4th we will be releasing the first three copies of the paperback Blueprint that is available to all on the THI-show.com and the new blueprint for humanity website. The copies will go out to Candice Owens, Douglas Rushkoff and Elon Musk. Then the research team who have done extensive research to come up with many names will convene to decide who is next with the pdf versions and potentially more full copies. The research teams were tasked this week to come up with the names and addresses of all MSM media outlets, then we can flood their offices with the Blueprint. Roger and I attended a law podcast yesterday, first external show for me for at least 4 years and first with a THI member since the Trustee. It was an interesting podcast and it will be posted when we get the recording, hoping there will be more of those shows. The past two weeks gave me some time to continue to edit the FHSTOS Volume 3 and push that along again. I have also finished off a FHSTOS Plus 20 show, which will be next Tuesday all being well, FHSTOS Plus 21 is less than an hour from being ready as well, no date for that yet. Exciting times and plans ahead.

The ending piece is different this week from all that have gone before. This is an important piece for all colors of the spectrum, as it is designed to bring unity to all the differing races that reside here. With the clowns only reduced now to creating divisive programs, it is our duty to stifle their programs and bring people together again. This is all the clowns have left to engage in, their fear is palpable. The only thing keeping the illusion going of, they are in control, is fear and division. To counteract that, people need to work hard on themselves and with each other to bring a unity amongst us all. Unity means we have the power, division keeps them going longer than necessary. Fear and division is the glue to their power now, time we took our power back as a unified grouping. To do that though requires everyone to raise their truth barrier, to let go of country, religious, color, sexuality and other divisive hang ups and come together. The greatest barrier is the lack of truth of our history, it has deliberately divided us all. Remember when the Lord came down it said in the book? Of how he gave them all different languages and scattered the people to the 4 corners? Why did the Lord do that? So that the people wouldn't coalesce together. Split them up, keep them occupied, tell lies to each group and have them all at each other's throats. The classic divide and conquer tactic that has worked all too well. Our collective lack of knowledge of our history has hampered us all. It has allowed deep divisions amongst us all, whilst they sat back and laughed. Country against country, political ideology against political ideology, color against color, race against race, religion against religion and the list goes on. But what has it achieved for the people? Anything beneficial? The emphatic answer is no. Yet, is it not the case we keep doing the same things and expecting different results? At which point will that program stop running? At which point will humanity stop fighting each other and come together? At which point did insanity become fashionable? Here is shocking point all must look at with an open mind. We found out from several references and also prominent rabbi Jews, that they all worship Lucifer. Lucifer 75K years ago brought a jet black race of humanoids here, installed with dark voodoo. Their purpose was to end the white race on this planet again, this was 35K years after the continent Da Arya sank in the war with the Koshey's. That war led to weaponry being fired at their moon base, and the moon broke up and hit our planet. This jet black off world race were the progenitors of the darker black skinned people here now, including some of the tribal races. It is entirely possible they were brought here as slaves, given most of the other non-human races trapped here, were also brought as slaves. Perhaps that is why some call it the slave planet? The key was the mixing of the white and black magic, which then enhanced the black race and devalued the white race, plus also weakening the whites genetic line. Lucifer and army were defeated back then, but 35K years later they came back again. This time he brought 3 races not native to our planet, the black/brown, yellow and red races. It is suspected the black races came from Nikotae in the Antares System, but the yellow race is from Sirius and the red race the Pleiades. Again with the directive of mixing with the white races to weaken their genetic structure and eventually eliminate the white race. Again it is likely the black/brown, yellow and red races were brought here as slaves as well. The white race at the time were instructed by the Urs to not mix sexually with the other races, due to the interference of genetic coding and the fact at that time, we were not all the same type of HU-man. Remember there are three versions of human. These are some of the facts we have presented in our FHSTOS and the subsequent books, which you can purchase from the website THI-show.com These are very unpalatable facts for many to accept, but the very people or beings who brought them here, then have told you all, the white man ran the slave programs. Oh the irony of that, typical tactic of accusing others of doing what they have done. Many of the tribal races were part of that shipment as well, their history is not as told either in most cases. This is why most of the tribal races knows about the off world groups who came here, they in part were working directly with them. What is largely unknown to them is, they were being used as pawns. Yet as the earlier piece revealed, the white races brought much to this planet and also tried to help the jet black race themselves, by removing the aggressive gene in the males to then make them more balanced, sadly that genetic attempt failed. This is why too many black races in Africa are extremely violent, people can deny it all they like, but the facts speak for themselves. People may argue that the white country known as America has high gun related crimes, indeed it does. But that doesn't state that over ½ of those gun related crimes are done by people of color. Nor does it state the fact that 46% of gun related crime, is suicide. All this may seem far-fetched to those who haven't followed this show for some time, I get that. But his story makes little to no sense, does it? Riddled with at best half-truths and a whole heap of lies blocking us from true knowledge. But consider this; what if it is all true? What is your reaction then? Who will you blame for your plight? Where is my true home world? Can I and will I be able to return? So many questions and too few answers due to being denied the knowledge. We should never take personal or collective responsibility for what all of our ancestors have done, that was their doing, not ours. Or for what they didn't do either. But we can take responsibility for our poor actions here and now and vow to correct them. Only then over time can we learn to trust each other again, learn to work and play better together. We can end racism, which is a misnomer anyway, it is inherent DNA based geneticism as to why all colors are against each other. That divide and conquering of us all, allowed the dark forces to play in the background against us and at our expense. If this truth becomes accepted, it all ends real soon. The white race are the true guardians of this planet, but remember the white race are not all white skinned either. Come and helps us heal the planet and all of its varying races of humanoids together. Then we can advance this planet for the betterment of the all, whilst each of us advance our own species or races as well.
