

THI-SHOW TRANSCRIPT 2024-01-18

We are now starting to get some feedback on the work done to promote the Blueprint. So positive signs are ahead. This next piece should have been in the End of year review Part 2 but arrived too late for inclusion. I will read it out now and add it to the transcript of the Part 2 review.

This has been an exciting year for the Garden Group as we finally have the Web page up with the Gardening database, thanks to the hard work of the web team and the volunteers who did data entry. In 2023, the People's Club Garden Group members continued to experiment in their own gardens with the various ideas discussed in the zooms, meeting every week to report results, helping each other with suggestions and sharing success stories. We kept our vibrations high, overcoming many challenges. Starting new gardens and raising animals, reviving damaged soil in old gardens, experiencing extreme cold, extreme heat, wild animals and insects eating crops was demanding. Plus local municipalities spraying unwanted insecticides and herbicides, too much rain, not enough rain, too much sun, not enough sun added to the mix. With several different growing zones in different countries represented, sometimes opposite challenges were being experienced by different members at the same time. It was really amazing to be able to come together on zoom every Saturday morning to support each other.

The Solutions discussed included: Bird houses to help reduce snails and insects, bat houses to reduce mosquitoes and owl nesting boxes to reduce rodents and rabbits. Reviving clay and hard pan soils through natural farming techniques and terra preta. Fermented food for healthier livestock. Sprouting and microgreens as a source of fresh produce in winter. Biofuel and geothermal heating solutions for greenhouses in the North. We experimented with a form of gardening called electro culture. We discussed the importance of community composting. We explored the ways that plants communicate with energy, using bacteria as messengers and how healthy soil contains healthy bacteria and fungi. We defined what is truly organic and how the people have been fooled into paying too much for food based on misleading labels. How chemical herbicides and pesticides destroy pollinating insects. How genetically modified foods cause food allergies, produce terminator seeds and cause heritage varieties of vegetables to go extinct through cross pollination. We discussed foods that are being treated like controlled substances, corporate price fixing, the creation of shortages with farm production limits, the destruction of food and the mafia style control of food sales. We discussed the anti-life war on weeds and how people are being indoctrinated to destroy many wild food and medicine plants. We also discussed how some people can be taught by example, as they see the growth in our gardens and want to know how we did it. We talked in great detail about Korean Natural Farming, as one member has been following this practice with great success in his garden. We found that some of the Korean herbal medicines that are good for plants, are good for people too. Overall, the TPC Garden Group have come to understand that approaching all aspects of the food growing process with love and life-based intent, is more powerful than all the tools in the garden shed. All fantastic stuff and points brought up for greater attention.

NEWS: Here is an amusing, ironic and proof-based piece that also highlights the narrative war ongoing between humanity and the Jewish junta. The UK's Eurovision 2024 entry Olly Alexander signed a letter referring to fellow competing nation Israel as an apartheid regime, it has been revealed. In December, the Years and Years singer was announced as the UK's representative in Malmö, Sweden. However, his selection has sparked controversy after Alexander signed a letter from an LGBT+ organization hitting out at Israel and Zionist propaganda amid the war with Hamas. That to me is the amusing and ironic part, as the very group created to create division by the Jewish EL-ite think tanks, are now turning against them. It is the classic ouroboros in essence and for those who have fought against these programs, highly amusing to watch unfold on themselves. The revelation has prompted criticism from the Conservative Party, with a source accusing the BBC of either a massive oversight or sheer brass neck in selecting Alexander. So, what the Conservative party are suggesting is, you can only pick candidates based upon favoring Israel? What an indictment that is and also reveals who they really operate for. However, The Daily Telegraph reports that the BBC does not plan to take any action as Alexander signed the letter before he was revealed to be the UK's act. Meanwhile, the Jewish charity Campaign Against Antisemitism insisted that the BBC can and must cut ties with Alexander. So, unless you favor Israel, your talents and skills don't count is what that reveals. You all thought the Eurovision song contest was about talent, turn it in, it is about making political statements based upon false his story. The rhetoric in this letter, which is seemingly endorsed by Olly Alexander, is extreme, they said. At a time when nearly seven in 10 British Jews feel afraid to express their identity in public, this must not be the person to represent our country at the Eurovision Song Contest. Whilst I have empathy for the Jewish in fear, what did they do to stop the fear of every other country, due to the forced changing of religions, wars created by those going under the banner of being Jews, countries, societies and cultures taken over by the Jews. What about the fear of the Palestinians? 82% of them displaced and no homes to go back to? Enough is enough of the perpetual pity party tactics, you want the fear to stop, then join us and fight against the Israeli junta.

Here is another small sign that things are changing and people not tolerating things anymore. Carrefour, one of France's biggest supermarket chains, is dropping PepsiCo items from its stores after prices have become too expensive. This means products like Pepsi, Lay's, Gatorade, Quaker, Cheetos and other brands owned by the parent company will be scrapped from shelves. The stores are posting notes by the products that read, we are no longer selling this brand due to unacceptable price increases. Once those items sell out, they will no longer be restocked. This will also apply to Carrefour stores in Italy, Spain and Belgium. The move is the latest in the company's fight with suppliers over price hikes. In September, Carrefour started a shrinkflation campaign, putting notes on products that shrunk in size but cost more, even as inflation has eased. The supermarket chain's move to scrap PepsiCo products impacts more than 9,000 of its over 14,300 stores across four countries. Great idea and a sign that people are turning against the major companies harvesting the public.

Here is another group not tolerating stuff anymore either. More than 200 members of the armed forces and veterans, have signed an open letter accusing the military leadership of breaking laws and violating rights with its policy of forced vaccinations. The signatories demand accountability and promise to take legal action to establish justice. More than 200 active-duty soldiers and veterans addressed the American people in an open letter recently, demanding accountability for the illegality and harm caused by Covid-19 vaccine mandates for U.S. military personnel. The letter accuses prominent leaders, including Gen. Mark A. Milley (retired), former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and other high-ranking officers, of breaking the law, trampling on constitutional rights, denying informed consent, permitting involuntary medical experimentation and suppressing the free exercise of religion. This will increase over the coming year the benefits of which are multi-fold, but I still don't think lawsuits should be allowed unless like this case, it was forced. But this will ripple through the military and hopefully cause many of them to walk away, discourage others from joining it also. The source of this article has been contacted and sent the Blueprint pdf and they have responded to us for more engagement.

Another sign of people seeing the problem and calling it out. The chancellor of a California university has strongly condemned a series of social media posts by an assistant professor, labeling them as revolting. The posts, which appeared to contain threats against Zionist journalists, have ignited a firestorm of criticism and concern. An account affiliated with a University of California, Davis, faculty member Jemma Decristo posted last week on X, stating, one group of people we have easy access to in the US is, all these Zionist journalists who spread propaganda and misinformation. They have houses with addresses to kids in school, they can fear their bosses, but they should fear us more. The post notably concluded with emoticons depicting a knife, axe and drops of blood. Which is a pity as it allows them to discredit the accuser and deflect from what was said. Why would Jewish journalists have names and address of children in school, unless it was to intimidate them? How is this allowed?

Another example of a program breaking down, which echoes the American problem of the same nature. Drastic shortages of sailors have forced the Royal Navy to decommission two of its warships. HMS Westminster and HMS Argyll were allegedly retired so their crews could transfer to the service's new Type 26 frigates. The news comes as UK sailors were sent to the Red Sea to protect merchant vessels from Houthi rebels. According to official statistics, the Royal Navy has performed the worst of the services for recruitment in the last 12 months. Its intake of recruits dropped by 22.1 per cent in the 12 months to March 2023, while the RAF dropped by almost 17 per cent and the Army by nearly 15 per cent. In response to the crisis serving Royal Marines have been offered £500 to persuade friends on civvy street to enlist. Last night, former head of the Royal Navy Admiral Lord West said that Britain's warships were dropping like flies. He added that the UK needs a much bigger surface fleet, as the Royal Navy is presently limited in what it is able to achieve. Shadow defense secretary John Healey has accused the government of failing to get a grip on problems within the armed forces. Last year, Admiral Sir Tony Radakin, the head of the UK's armed forces, admitted the Royal Navy had just 11 or 12 frigates and destroyers which were fully operational. It is pleasing that many people are seeing through the illusion of joining the military now. Being sent into battle for something which doesn't benefit the people, only the EL-ites and bankers, is not a cost worth paying. I guess people have had enough being soul-diers and the sacrificial war games will begin to dwindle. It could also be an issue of interference from above the military, in terms of NATO and the private army of the Rothschild's.

Budget cuts in the UK has gone on for decades and local councils often suffer the brunt of it, it was that way when I worked in one. Cutting services to the children and elderly whilst spending millions on political correctness training, was the order of the day. Local government often feels the brunt of spending cuts and town halls up and down the country, will have been watching recent Commons announcements with a grim sense of de ja vu. A total of eleven Section 114 notices declaring effective bankruptcy have been issued by local councils since 2018, compared with just two in the 18 years before that. In recent months we have seen Birmingham, the country's largest council, file a Section 114 notice, while it Nottingham's local authority is considering going the same way amid crippling pressures. It is not just about our cash-strapped local councils. A look around Britain today and this is a country that cannot afford another round of deep public service spending cuts. The NHS is in crisis, the schools are crumbling and the justice system is a dangerous mess. Writing in the Mirror, Merseyside-born Paul Nowak, the General Secretary of the TUC said: This Cabinet of millionaires is happy for our kids to be taught in portable cabins and for our loved ones to be treated on trolleys. They are happy for local council services to be driven into the ground. They are happy for sewage to be pumped into rivers and for trains and buses to not run on time. The world looks very different from a private jet. I couldn't have put it better. The problem is A: the people forget the government has our money and we should decide how it is spent and B: no one bothers to make them accountable, which exacerbates the problem A. Clowns in office will continue to ride roughshod over us all, until we learn to fight back and make them accountable to the people. That also means the people must help them as well.

This is a report from one of our members, that highlight the Maui fire last year and all the anomalies so often associated with these types of events. The Lahaina Fire on Maui has left a wake of death and destruction, with on-site witnesses providing first-hand accounts to help create an information hub and a repository of relevant videos, pictures, data and interviews. Survivors caught in the fire have sent in their images and testimonies. The information is freely available to everyone at MauiCommunityInvestigation.com. Thirty verified anomalies and important questions about the fire have surfaced, that remain unexplained and unanswered. Five former fire captains and chiefs all arrived at the same conclusion when they reviewed the data: This was not just a natural wildfire. Their expert opinions emphasize why an objective, transparent, community-led investigation is vitally important. Tim Stokesbary, retired Fire Captain of Kauai reviews anomalies and proposed causes here: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=fZ0ouv3BsOE&t=2s> Investigations of the Lahaina fire are currently being conducted by the state attorney general, Maui County, Hawaiian Electric and relative to class action suits. But even a cursory inquiry reveals why a community investigation must also proceed. Hawaii's Attorney General hired Underwriter Laboratories' Fire Safety Research Institute to conduct the official investigation. Underwriter Laboratories is a member of the World Economic Forum. This is the same organization that conducted the investigation into the New York City tower collapses on 9/11/2001. Their infamous NIST report was filled with false claims, flawed analyses, and inaccurate conclusions. This precedent can only validate distrust in the same organization conducting the official Lahaina investigation.

Whistleblower Kevin Ryan exposes Underwriter's Laboratory:

Further community concerns about bias influencing investigations include:

- The governor insisting that global warming was the cause. Period.
- The County of Maui is facing 16 lawsuits that require them to keep their investigation and information off the public record.
- Hawaiian Electric and other private entities are also confronted by lawsuits and are committed to proving they are not liable.
- A slew of class action suits involve lawyers looking forward to a huge payday.

This is why local residents have taken responsibility to conduct our own factual, transparent, unbiased public investigation and hearing. We seek to discover what unknown factors contributed to the extreme destruction and loss of life. Answers to questions that can't immediately be accounted for by global warming, Hawaii Electric's failures and widespread incompetence by those tasked with the official response. Below is a list of 30 points of concern our community-led investigation has discovered. Please sign our petition for a public, transparent, objective investigation and public hearing that considers all these points. To show your support, please sign our petition at MauiCommunityInvestigation.com/petition 30 Points to Discuss in a Transparent Investigation and Public Hearing into the August 8th Lahaina Fire. Details at MauiCommunityInvestigation.com

We have identified six weather and climate anomalies, five infrastructure failures, twelve fire anomalies and seven proposed causes. These amount to 30 points worthy of investigation, including:

- I. Six weather and climate anomalies on August 7th and 8th: a) Global Warming? Temperatures cycles on Maui have remained consistent since 1936. b) Wind? Hurricane Dora was nearly 500 miles away. c) Many unusual wind cyclones appeared over the water. d) White haze and particle coating observed in local skies on August 7th e) Recorded atmospheric distortions. f) Strange cloud formations.

II. Five infrastructure failures include: a) Emergency sirens not going off. b) Cell phone service went down before the fire. c) Electrical power was off in the early morning, 3:30 am. d) Lack of water at resident hydrants. e) Police blocking exit roads.

III. Twelve fire anomalies include: a) Trees standing among the ruins with green leaves intact. b) Trees burnt from within. c) Melting of steel (requiring temperatures in excess of those generated in wildfires, even accounting for the “bellows effect” from high winds). d) Melting of glass (requiring temperatures in excess of those generated in wildfires, even accounting for the “bellows effect” from high winds). e) Strange incineration patterns on cars. f) Fire destruction around buildings and areas left otherwise unscathed. g) Untouched objects of a certain blue color found in the rubble. h) China and plastic composition objects remaining intact. i) High levels of white dust incineration. j) Bodies with hair, reduced to a charred heap. k) Other bodies reduced to ash. l) Lack of accurate accounting of fatalities.

IV. Seven proposed causes that could account for all or some of the anomalies: a) Global Warming b) Hurricane Dora c) Geo-Engineered Weather d) Electrical Fires e) High Dry Grass f) Arson g) High Energy Weapons

The Maui Community Investigation - including citizens with respectable standing are pursuing four legal avenues:

- Hawaii Civil Court,
- a Performance Audit of the Maui Police Department,
- a Petition for Grievances using Common Law,
- a Bill in Hawaii’s Legislative Branch.

Our goal is ensure that all the facts and the truth they reveal are considered fairly. For further details or if you wish to be involved in this matter go to; MauiCommunityInvestigation.com Many people will focus on the removal of the residents for the shekel people to move in, just like what happened in Haiti, but there is another component to this, that must not be over looked. The sacrificial component so prevalent and important to the psychopaths amongst us, the latest version is in Gaza.

SOCIETY NEWS: Here is the thinking of the insane people and how people forget that life is not all about money. The question was posed as to how many hours should a person work in a week? That's the question being asked in India over the past few days after software billionaire NR Narayana Murthy, the father-in-law of UK Prime Minister Rishi Sunak said, that young people should be ready to work 70 hours a week to help the country's development. And how many hours of the week does the countries leaders and business people work to help the people or the country? In reality land, the excess working hours imposed on the people is to line greedy people's pockets only. India's work productivity is one of the lowest in the world, he said on a podcast recently. Unless we improve our work productivity, we will not be able to compete with those countries that have made tremendous progress. Well India has some of the highest earners in the world, which is harvesting, but what has India done to improve its infrastructure? Dirt roads and antiquated transport support systems, that rely on people being mules and ferrying people around. He said, so, therefore, my request is that our youngsters must say, this is my country and I'd like to work 70 hours a week. Does anyone ask the question as to why people are expected to work for their country? Who came up with that idea? The idea of work was, to aid the community, not some fakely created lines on a piece of paper called a country. After the comments went viral, Mr. Murthy received both support and criticism as people on social media and the opinion pages of newspapers, that debated toxic work cultures and what employers can expect from the people they hire.

Some of the criticism came from people who pointed out the starting salaries, typically on the low end for engineers in Indian technology companies including Infosys, which Mr. Murthy co-founded. Which proves the earlier comment, the 70 hours are to line obscenely rich people only. Others focused on the physical and mental health issues that could arise from working without a break. No time to socialize, no time to talk to family, no time to exercise, no time for recreation. Not to mention companies expect people to answer emails and calls after work hours also. Then wonder why young people are getting heart attacks? Said Dr Deepak Krishnamurthy, a Bengaluru-based cardiologist. Some pointed out that most women worked much more than 70 hours a week, at both the office and their homes. Indeed as men over there think women are second class people. The topic is a sensitive one in India; the country has strong labor laws but activists say officials need to do more to implement them strictly. Earlier this year, protests from workers and opposition leaders forced the Tamil Nadu state government to withdraw a bill, that would have allowed working time in factories to increase to 12 hours from eight. Mr. Murthy had earlier faced criticism in 2020, when he suggested that Indians work for a minimum of 64 hours a week for two to three years to compensate for the economic slowdown caused by the coronavirus lockdown. Mr. Murthy needs a slap over the head with a 2x4 to smack a dose of reality into him. Politicians and the medical establishment should pay for the short fall of Covid, as it was they who created that fake shutdown. Or they should all sue the WHO. It gets worse though as last year, another Indian CEO was criticized for suggesting that young people work 18 hours a day at the beginning of their careers. But some business leaders in India agree with the advice. Business leaders, in other words slave masters and harvesters. The Kali Ma sacrifice cult lives on in business leaders over in India it seems.

This type of article has crept in behind the Covid and Black Lives Matter programs, that literally beggars belief. The sheer ignorance, arrogance and rank stupidity from someone clearly above her pay scale. Remember the piece in New York where the black guys said about we are working for the Jews and denigrated it? Here is another. All of this out of our favorite faulty math program, known as Johns Hopkins school of non-math. Johns Hopkins' medical faculty dean has apologized to staff after a diversity, equity and inclusion officer sent a woke hit list email labeling all white people, Christians, men and English-speakers as privileged. What part of diversity, equity or inclusion does that relate to? How can you eliminate, denigrate or abuse people whilst being called diverse and inclusive? The letter, first posted on Twitter by End Wokeness, was written by Chief Diversity Officer Sherita Hill Golden and was part of the monthly diversity digest. Digest? more like vomit to me. It caused commotion and outrage online, forcing the institution to apologize. Apologies are no good after the fact, who allowed it to be publicized and or even discussed within their departments? Dr. Golden was allowed to keep her job, despite cries for her to be sacked. So, let's get this straight shall we, a black person denigrates numbers of groups and keeps her job. Whilst people are being fired for supporting Palestine and also criticizing Israel. Are people seeing the problem here yet? Now, the dean and president of the medical faculty said that they repudiated her language. If only they had repudiated their faulty math department, we would not have had multiple jabs or lockdowns. The full list of so-called privileged people are as follows: White people, able-bodied people, heterosexuals, cisgender, Christians, men, middle or owning class people, middle-aged people and English-speaking people. Oh my, what a list of pure hatred, ignorance and racism that is. White people are privileged because they are born white? That's racist. Able bodied privileged because they are not disabled? That is body shaming. Being born a man with defined genitals from birth and sleeping with the opposite sex is now classed as a privilege? Working for a living and buying a house or other items is now a privilege? Should we all just live on the streets MS. Golden? Being middle aged because you survived all the bullshit people and the system throw at you, is a heroic achievement, not a privilege. It is almost like saying you had the audacity to live beyond your junior years. Being taught English, which is the official language of this country, is also now a privilege, should we not go to schools? Like I said in a piece last year, the most maligned group on this planet are the white, male and heterosexuals. Yet curiously those three are labeled as privileged? Turn it in. There is no advocating for the levels of stupidity, bitterness and divisive programs it seems. That has to change if we are to advance as a species. Dr. Golden needs to be removed from her post, as that goes way too far than making an off the cuff remark and sent for some correctional training about life and people.

ISRAEL NEWS: As the NYPD raid a Chabad Lubavitch synagogue and find hidden tunnels underneath. Who no one knows who built them, yeah right. One must ask who built them and for what purpose? One must also ask, were those tunnels to be used for a future false flags? Trafficking children again or moving people like Jeffery Epstein to a safe house?

This just about sums up Israel and its attack destruction force, not defense force. On Friday, the Israel Defense Forces announced their troops had mistakenly shot and killed three Israeli hostages after mistaking them for enemy combatants in Gaza. A day later, the IDF said the hostages were shirtless and waving a makeshift white flag to surrender themselves before they were shot. The three were identified as Alon Shamriz, Yotam Haim and Samer Talalka. Just shameful, like I have said these people don't care one iota who they shoot or kill. Time for all Israelis to stand against them before they get killed as well.

Another sign of the youth not tolerating the old-world ways and seeing through the illusion of it all. Roughly half of young Americans say Israel should be ended and given to Hamas and the Palestinians, amid the ongoing war despite continuing support for the Jewish state among older Americans, according to a new poll. While 51 percent of 18–24-year-olds in the U.S. want Israel to lose to Hamas, that sentiment decreases significantly among the higher age brackets in the monthly Harvard CAPS/Harris poll. Monthly poll on people's stance on Israel? What a waste of money that is, it also signifies fear. Thirty-one percent of 25–34-year-olds, 24 percent of 35–44-year-olds, 15 percent of 45–54-year-olds, 13 percent of 55–64-year-olds, and only 4 percent of Americans aged 65 and older say Israel should be wiped out. What that signifies is, the older you are the more programmed you are, because the same statistics applies to religion as well. In comparison, an overall 81 percent of Americans support Israel over Hamas. Stupid script following Christians account for that figure. However, support between the two sides is split evenly among the 18–24 age bracket. Although the slight majority of respondents in that age group support the genocide of Jews, 58 percent of respondents aged 18–24 say Hamas should be removed from running Gaza. The same group further displayed contradicting views, with 66 percent saying Hamas's October 7 attack was genocidal and 60 percent answering that Israel's campaign in Gaza also constitutes genocide. Additionally, 32 percent of young Americans want Israel and Palestine to be recognized in a two-state solution and 17 percent think Arab states should absorb the Palestinians displaced by the conflict. Overall, a two-state solution was the preferred answer to that question, with 60 percent of all respondents favoring it.

This piece is vomit inducing and we have reported on it in the past, but this is the now. As concerns about organ theft by Israel's forces from dead Palestinians were raised by Euro-Med Human Rights Monitor. Israel's army has been accused of stealing organs from the dead in Gaza by an NGO, which called for an independent international investigation. Euro-Med Human Rights Monitor said on Sunday it had concerns about possible organ theft from Palestinian corpses, following reports by medical professionals in Gaza who examined some bodies after they were released by Israel. The NGO claimed it has documented Israeli forces confiscating dozens of dead bodies from the al-Shifa and Indonesian hospitals in northern Gaza, alongside others in the south. Medical professionals reportedly found vital organs, such as livers, kidneys and hearts, alongside cochleas and corneas, were missing, which the Euro-Med Monitor called evidence of potential organ theft. How can that be potential at all, it is complete body harvesting. This is to fund the huge shekel making medical industry, as organs range from $50-120K. You know what this also reminds me of, maybe it is a pointer to who they are? The cattle abductions and/or mutilations. They also claimed Israel exhumed and confiscated corpses from a mass grave that was dug more than 10 days ago in a courtyard at al-Shifa. Israel has previously denied harvesting organs from dead Palestinians without the consent of families, calling such accusations antisemitic.

Like night follows day, criticize Israel and out comes the spell casting word of antisemitic, utterly pathetic. Organ theft cannot be proven or disproven by forensic medical examination alone since multiple bodies underwent surgery prior to death, doctors at several Gaza hospitals were cited as saying by Euro-Med. A full examination of the recovered corpses is not possible given the intense Israeli attacks on Gaza, they claimed. This follows comments by Palestinian health officials in Gaza, that they can no longer even count the dead because the enclave's health system has collapsed. Israel has long been accused of harvesting organs: Reports have circulated in recent years that Israel is unlawfully using Palestinian corpses. In her book Over Their Dead Bodies, Israeli doctor Meira Weiss claimed organs were taken from dead Palestinians between 1996 and 2002 and used in medical research at Israeli universities and transplanted into Israeli patients' bodies. Jewish teachings permit organ transplantation and harvesting, with the need to save lives paramount over all other religious commandments. A controversial Israeli television investigation in 2014 included confessions from high-ranking officials that skin was taken from the bodies of dead Palestinians and African workers to treat Israelis, such as soldiers with burn injuries. But surely that goes against the Talmud? Who state to never even shake hands with a non-Jew, yet here they are wearing their skins. We came in the form of the enemy springs to mind. In it, the director of the Israeli Skin Bank revealed the country's reserve of human skin reached 17 square meters, a huge number relative to Israel's population. Israel is thought to be the biggest hub for the illegal global trade in human organs, according to a 2008 investigation by the American CNN network. Euro-Med Monitor claimed Israel is one of the world's biggest hubs for the illegal trade of human organs under the pretext of security deterrence. Ah the legendary security word, that implies safety for the people, but in reality land is a get out of jail free card for criminals. It urged the country to abide by international law and reiterated the necessity of respecting and protecting the bodies of the dead during armed conflicts. Israel does not abide by any laws, at which point will people see that. The 1949 Fourth Geneva Convention, which Israel has not ratified, requires combatants to respect the dignity of the dead, including preventing despoiling, mutilation or any disrespectful treatment of their bodies. They won't recognize it because of the Talmud again, they are above the law and yet no one makes them accountable because of one stupid and fake word, antisemitism. A whole world held to ransom in case they are called a name, do you realize how pathetic that makes us all look? Palestinian bodies reportedly being withheld by Israeli forces: Euro-Med also accused Israel of holding the remains of dozens of Palestinians killed during its military operation in Gaza since 7 October, though some have been handed over to the International Committee of the Red Cross. This is considered by some a punitive practice to deny families the chance of burying their loved ones. Israel has a long history of holding onto the bodies of dead Palestinians, Euro-Med Monitor said. It claimed Israel holds the remains of at least 145 Palestinians in its morgues and approximately 255 in its so-called Numbers Cemetery, a site near the Jordanian border that is off-limits to the public. Refusing to hand over the bodies of the dead to grieving families for burial may amount to collective punishment, which again is forbidden under the Fourth Geneva Convention, Euro-Med monitor pointed out. Burying the dead is considered a fundamental and significant religious duty in Islam, which carries deep cultural and spiritual significance. At which point will people begin to question whether these types of Jews are actually human? I mean do they act human? Do they have any concern for other people not Jews? No. Then ask yourself the question again, who are these "people"? From Cosmic Genetics to Cosmetic Genetics, now do you see?

Recently an advert has been appearing on tv, yet again featuring one sided and fear-based rhetoric for which they are commonly known. The advert was for an internet page called shinealighton.com, burbling about antisemitism and how everyone hates the Jews. Antisemitism is for calling ordinary Jews out for just being Jewish and is wrong. But they label every criticism of Jews as antisemitism, which is also wrong. All people should be held accountable and if you don't wish to be called out, stop doing wrong things against the people, it's that simple. The advert was music to my ears, as they are now terrified of the people who are now finding out about the atrocities committed under the banner of being Jewish. For 80 years they stifled the narrative with their media clowns, now it is just not working and the tide has turned on them.

EXPOSE: This is Part one of this expose, the second part will be in the next THI show. This expose highlights further the clownery just after WW2 and the positioning of the Deep States. Western Europe has only 20 to 30 more years of democracy left in it; after that it will slide, engineless and rudderless, under the surrounding sea of dictatorship, and whether the dictation comes from a politburo or a junta will not make that much difference. - Willy Brandt (German Federal Chancellor, right before he stepped down in 1974) He was right as the ramp up had begun in full by then. Believe it or not, but the dystopic view that democracy is dead is by no measure a new idea. However, what might disturb you is where this design, in its contemporary form, really germinated from. The idea that democracy is in a crisis and needs to be replaced with a new form of governance, did not originate from the outcries of an oppressed people demanding their rights to a decent life. We are not presently seeing an organic, grassroots process in reforming how government, that is, democracy will be improved upon. Rather, what we are seeing is a controlled disintegration of the very thing we think we are trying to uphold, and this destruction has been in the works for over 45 years. The Blueprint changes all of that. It is no coincidence that Samuel P. Huntington is very fond of the Willy Brandt quote prophesying the end of democracy, which was used at the beginning of both his books The Crisis of Democracy and Disaffected Democracies, that is after all his purpose in life, to see to it that, that prophecy comes true.

This piece documents how the Henry Kissinger crew, successfully purged the last significant remnants of decency within the CIA and reshaped the government structure into the Deep State, that we see it grotesquely throbbing as today. We will see how those prominent figureheads who prophesied the end of democracy, have been the very orchestrators of its destruction. The First Purge of American Intelligence: The Dismantling of the OSS. On Sept 20th 1945, Truman ordered the shutdown of the OSS, referring to it as a potential Gestapo, however, not with the intention to disband all foreign intelligence capabilities. The OSS would be replaced under the new banner of CIA, on Sept 18th 1947, and more importantly as a contingent to the National Security Council which was created on the same day. Many respectable and patriotic intelligence officers of repute, who were loyal to FDR's vision, were also thrown out of the intelligence community with the disbanding of the OSS. The wording of that I don't agree with, unbeknown to most researchers the OSS was not disbanded, but launched in America with greater powers, is the true version.

In August 1949, the Soviet Union tested its first atomic bomb, several years before the 1953 date forecast by the CIA. As a response, the Joint Intelligence Committee submitted an estimate of the nature of the nuclear threat from the Soviets. JIC-502 claimed that once the Soviets had 200 atomic bombs, they could launch a surprise attack and defeat the U.S. These assertions were made without analysis of Soviet capabilities to actually deliver the weapons, let alone produce them at that rate. The estimates did not even attempt to analyze Soviet strategic intentions. The start of the Mockingbird media assault on the American people, to create Russia as the boogeyman which then puts American's in fear, who then demand the counterattack on the Russians and the shekel making war machine has their solution. Problem, reaction and solution in full flow. JIC-502, titled: Implications of Soviet Possession of Atomic Weapons and drafted Jan 20th 1950, turned out not to be an intelligence report at all but rather a sales pitch, claiming that a nuclear-armed Soviet Union had introduced the notion that, a tremendous military advantage would be gained by the power that struck first and succeeded in carrying through an effective surprise attack. It was JIC-502 which would be the first to put forward a justification for the preventive first strike concept, supported by a massive military buildup under the pretense of pre-emptive war. NSC-68 would be drafted the same year, declaring that the U.S. was in the moral equivalent of war with the Soviet Union and called for a massive military buildup to be completed by 1954 dubbed the year of maximum danger, the year JIC-502 claimed the Soviets would achieve military superiority and be able to launch war against the U.S. This proposed military buildup would increase the defense budget from $10 billion to $40 billion from 1950-53. The shekel program for war always goes up and the budget for the people always goes down, yet 300M Americans failed to see it. During this same period another security doctrine was drafted, titled; NSC-75: A Report to the NSC by the Executive Secretary on British Military Commitments. The report concluded that if the British Empire collapsed, and Britain could no longer carry out these deployments, in defending the free world against the Soviets, the U.S. would not be able to carry out its current foreign policy, including NSC-68. Do you know what free world really means? A: elimination of the whites and B: the people carrying out these policies, wars, death and sacrifice games don't actually pay for it, hence they get to take over the world for free. Now do you understand it?

It was thus concluded in the report that it would be more cost-effective to aid Britain in saving its Empire! If you were ever wondering why the CIA was constantly found paired with British Intelligence, starting from its very inception, in a series of coups in countries they had no reason to be in, now you know why, the article said. We at THI know that all too well due to the FHSTOS series. The U.S. had gone from an explicit mission to end imperialism worldwide under Roosevelt, to actively supporting and upholding British colonies and vassal states under Truman! Because the "Empire" never ended is why. The Rome Empire was the Draco, they then installed themselves with their Israelites brethren in Britain, then they moved operations to America from the Empire State, New York. This was all done under the pretense of protecting the free world from the evil boogymen Soviets, whom Churchill decided to be labelled such in his Iron Curtain Speech. Thus, the interests of the British Empire were safeguarded by an abiding American stooge, as long as the narrative that all Russians were villains was believed.

Interestingly, the CIA was not on board with the pre-emptive war strategy, as defined by JIC-502. In February 1950 the CIA responded in ORE 91-49, stating: It is always possible, that the USSR would initiate a war, if it should estimate that a Western attack was impending. Yet there was no evidence of such then or now, yet more statements provided with zero proof. However, it is not yet possible to estimate with any precision the effects of Soviet possession of the atomic bomb upon the probability of war. The implications of atomic warfare, either militarily or psychologically, have not yet been fully appraised. But remember at this time 1950, the CIA was working with and alongside the KGB. In other words, the CIA was stating that JIC-502's frantic lunacy in demanding a military buildup and first strike capability against the Soviets was groundless. That there was no data to support such a claim and thus such a response would be a reckless and dangerous one. It became evident to those who wished to push through these permanent war policies, that the CIA was going to need stronger leadership. That is a delusional notion, the CIA had the leadership they wanted to foment their takeovers of many regions. It is an illusion to think the CIA was created to be any other way than they have turned out. They instigate war and destabilize countries, go to a docile Congress and demand money under fake threats and the national security risk, all to obtain more shekels to build their own empire in essence.

At least, this was the argument made by the Dulles-Jackson-Correa Report which called for a strong CIA Director in the wake of the Cold War. Not surprisingly it would ultimately be Allen Dulles himself who would take the CIA throne. It should not come as a surprise that Dulles had himself in mind the whole time, when he was talking about the stuff that was needed for a strong CIA Director, however, he was not referring to a strong mind, but rather a strong stomach. Dulles was an OSS puppet and clown as we know from our FHSTOS series, strong leader in their world is a corrupt leader. Dulles would act as Director of the CIA from 1953-61, until he was fired by President Kennedy, along with the Deputy Director and Deputy Director for Plans, all three were caught essentially committing treason during the Bay of Pigs fiasco. During Dulles' term as CIA Director, he did nothing less than entrench America's role in exacting permanent warfare across the world against fake communist insurgents, with the never-ending Indochina wars lasting for over 35 years. Though Bedell Smith would only be CIA Director for three years, he would succeed, along with Donovan who was the founder of the OSS, to create the most strategically important departments within the CIA: the Office of National Estimates (ONE). Smith had his problems, but Smith had warned Eisenhower not to appoint Dulles as the CIA Director after his leave. Smith viewed Dulles as a renegade that would abuse the power he would be handed. But Eisenhower had already been drawn in. Smith sought potential candidates for this new branch, from those who had been thrown out of the intelligence community when Truman disbanded the OSS. Many of these "retired" intelligence officers had served in the OSS's original Research and Analysis Branch; including William Langer and Sherman Kent who both played crucial roles in the running of ONE. Both Langer and Kent were reputable historians. It was recognized that there was a crisis in competent intelligence gathering, no change there then and analysis that would in turn be used to shape reckless war mongering policies such as JIC-502, NSC-68 and NSC-75. As Kent would state, there were those in the CIA who were seeking power through sacrificing the truth. They sacrificed the truth from the very day they came into existence. It is pure folly at this point and with the levels of exposure of criminal acts done under the name of intelligence agencies, that they have ever operated within the truth. Every single war has been started with them reporting lies at a huge cost to people's lives and bank balances. In summary, since the death of FDR there was a somewhat open battle between members of the intelligence community, which could be categorized as FDR loyalists vs Churchill loyalists. Although there was an attempt to expunge the most notable intelligence officers who remained anti-imperial, Bedell Smith was successful in bringing these men back in, under the reorganized department ONE, who would in turn be a form of sane leadership within the CIA. Turn it in, sane – really? Where is the evidence of such sanity? In reality, FDR V. Churchill was the illusion of America V. Britain, but remember Jefferson and Washington ran a similar scenario during the 1800's war, one was fighting for the British establishment and one was fighting for the French establishment, with both Britain and France being operated like puppets by the Jewish EL-ites and bankers. Unfortunately, the NSC did not share these views and there would be a second purge of the last remnants of true American patriots. This patriot thing is another illusion, American patriots in higher circles is a complete fallacy. Remember Congress sold the American Government out for a corporation in 1871, then the same fake patriots sold all the banks out in 1913 under the Federal Reserve Act.

So spare me this American patriot illusion, the country has been ran by clowns right from the Declaration of Independence. America's independence is thought of as separate, no, it is America is in dependence of and by the Crown. America is dependent upon the Crown in overview, all of which means it is controlled by such entities. The formation of ONE was to be a major pushback on this type of groupthink within the intelligence community. Kent would comment on the issue of the agency's security screening and McCarthyism was in full swing at the time, stating: When an intelligence staff has been screened through too finely, its members will be as alike as tiles on a bathroom floor and about as capable of meaningful and original thought. Hence the term unintelligent agents, anyone can be intelligent, but will they operate in the right way? Have morals and principles? Protect life at all costs? Operate under the golden rule? The answer to all those questions in relation to the agencies are, an emphatic no! They were not set up to be that way, they operate the way their handlers tell them to be. But at this point in our story it doesn't have to be that way. Things can change for the better of us all, if we only come together with a will to fix things. The Blueprint provides us all with that opportunity.

FHSTOS SECTION: Remember when we said that Indians in America came from India? Perhaps this piece adds more to it. For more than 50 years, dental anthropologists have studied variations in the shape of human teeth, to study the patterns of migration that people took, as they populated the world. The last major continental migration event took place about 16,000 years ago, when humans first moved into North and South America. Where exactly did these people come from? How did they get there? Were there multiple waves of migration? Leslea Hlusko, a researcher who is a member of the Dental Anthropology Group, belongs to the international team that has published a paper in the American Journal of Biological Anthropology, that attempts to answer these questions using new approaches to the study of human dental variation. The CENIEH researcher, together with the lead author of the paper Richard Scott (University of Nevada) and the rest of the team, used a program that was designed for use in forensic analyses, to identify the population ancestry of unidentified human victims (rASUDAS2) to predict the ancestry of 1,418 ancient individuals, from six geographical regions across Asia and the Americas. They discovered that Native American individuals have a similar degree of affinity to East Asia, and are classified as East Asians between 10% and 15% of the time.

This result suggests that all Native Americans derive from one population that split from East Asian populations at the same time, a result that echoes previous studies based on other data. The population is thought to have lived in the region of Beringia for 5,000–10,000 years prior to the migration into the Americas, during the last ice age and experienced intense environmental selection. The research team also found that Native Americans have affinity with Arctic populations, but this similarity diminishes the further away the person lived from the Arctic. That would be the original red people who in the past were closer to and or a part of the white race. This pattern suggests that the Arctic population migrated into the area later, and that the similarity in the shape of teeth is the result of populations intermixing, which would decrease as the geographic distance increases. Fairly comprehensive if you ask me. But notice not one of these studies places people in or from Russia.

As Science still struggles to catch up with knowledge dispersed around the world, all due to keeping our story from coming to light. While Guinness World Records officially lists the Djoser Step pyramid in Egypt as the world's oldest pyramid at around 2,630 BC. The Cosmic Genetics series proved all that to be of pure folly. One paper published in October claimed a layer of the Gunung Padang pyramid in Indonesia was constructed as far back as 25,000 BC, though there has since been doubts as to whether the structure was ever man-made at all. If not man made, then who? Research led by Danny Hilman Natawidjaja of the Indonesian Institute of Sciences, the academics write that the pyramid's core consists of meticulously sculpted massive andesite lava and that the oldest construction element of the pyramid, likely originated as a natural lava hill, before being sculpted and then architecturally enveloped. They write: This study sheds light on advanced masonry skills dating back to the last glacial period. This finding, challenges the conventional belief that human civilization and the development of advanced construction techniques emerged only with, the advent of agriculture approximately 11,000 years ago. How do they come to that conclusion? What has agriculture and masonry in combination got to do with dating civilizations? Evidence from Gunung Padang and other sites, such as Gobekli Tepe, suggests that advanced construction practices were already present when agriculture had, perhaps, not yet been invented. Meanwhile, Bill Farley, an archaeologist at Southern Connecticut State University, is credited as saying the 27,000-year-old soil samples from Gunung Padang, although accurately dated, do not carry hallmarks of human activity, such as charcoal or bone fragments. Because other sites at a later date had charcoal and bones, does not mean the builders did not build there. Maybe the builders built much further back and so no evidence of man in more modern techniques following the flood. Do Archeologists consider maybe there is no charcoal or bones because of the flood?

Another aspect we covered in part 9 of FHSTOS was the birth rates within mainly the white race countries, not being anywhere near the levels required for sustainability. It appears now that is also filtering out into the consciousness as well, as this report states. The biggest problem the world will face in 20 years, according to Elon Musk, is population collapse. It is not 20 years, it has already started. In Japan, he says, nappies or diapers for adults now outsell those for children and he sees the same trend threatening the rest of the world. He's hardly alone: fears of demographic decline are growing across Europe. The author of this piece then underwent the conspiracy theory phase, as the Jewish mind memes of white supremacy ring out like an echo chamber. He said, what should be a dry, statistical topic is being treated as a dangerous conspiracy theory of the far-Right, as I found out a few weeks ago. I was invited to chair a discussion in Westminster about the birth gap on a cross-party panel. That is the third known higher level meeting discussing key topics brought up within our book, FHSTOS. The speakers included Miriam Cates, a Tory MP, and Labour's Rosie Duffield. Just before the debate started, we were told that Duffield had received so many online threats for even agreeing to appear on the panel, that she had to pull out.

Now isn't that interesting? The Jewish have an army of agitators to disrupt the narrative being heard. Freedom of speech, you must be joking, you only have freedom of speech if you agree with their ways, beliefs and systems. The Covid debacle told you all that. This gave a certain samizdat feel to the debate. Samizdat means, the clandestine copying and distribution of literature banned by the state, especially formerly in the communist countries of eastern Europe. Well we all know now who run the communist states as they were called. People may question my stance of blaming the Jews for it, but how can that be wrong, if it is they who are doing it? And why is it of Jewish interest to stifle the debate on declining western birth rates, unless off course they have an agenda. We had come to discuss whether the low birth rate is a problem and what, if anything, the government should do about it. A debate which, it seems, some people believed should not be allowed to take place. There were no radicals or skinheads in the room. The panel included an actuary and a filmmaker, Stephen Shaw, who ran through his argument. The audience was young, by Westminster standards: perhaps more religious than average, but everyone there had come to hear a debate now being held world over.

Italy's birth figures were out this week: yet again, the lowest in its history. For every child under six years old, there are over five elderly people, reports La Stampa. In 1971, this ratio was one to one. Right now, there are three workers supporting every pensioner but this ratio is projected to fall closer to 1:1 by 2050. At which point the welfare state collapses. Japan was churning out two million babies a year in the 1970s: now, it's fewer than 800,000. Studies suggest that a third of its women may never have children. Its prime minister describes this as an existential threat. Emmanuel Macron's attempts to get ahead of all this by cutting pension allowances, brought such protests that the streets of Paris ended up aflame. Norway's children's minister has been begging families to have a third child, she herself has six, so why the silence in Britain? Are we running scared from the topic? and from asking what can be done? Most people now live in countries with a fertility rate lower than that required to sustain the population without immigration: 2.1 per woman. The UK's ratio is 1.55 and it already shows. School rolls, for example, are now understood to be in terminal decline. But this trend is barely discussed in Westminster. Frightened to upset the Israeli paymasters is why. An extinction level event for one or more of the races here and it is barely mentioned, should raise alarm bells to all people's. Pleasing to see it is now coming out into the open though.

MYSTERY SECTION: We mentioned in FHSTOS Plus 23 about the word tribe, how it is not the original word for a group of the early people on this planet. This section will show who overlaid the word clan with tribe and also it's connotations. Tribe: mid-13c., one of the twelve divisions of the ancient Hebrews, from Old French tribu or directly from Latin tribus one of the three political/ethnic divisions of the original Roman state. Which confirms their links to the Draco, as it was they who were the Rome Empire. Tites, Ramnes and Luceres, corresponding perhaps to the Latins, Sabines, and Etruscans. Later, one of the 30 political divisions instituted by Servius Tullius, which was increased to 35 in 241 B.C.E., of unknown origin. Funny how many times that comes up when you begin to dig into their story, of unknown origin indeed. Perhaps from tri meaning three plus *bheue which is the root of the verb be. Be three? Is that their holy trinity? Is it Osiris, Isis and Horus? Or Jesus, Mary and Joseph? Are they one and the same? Others connect the word with the PIE root *treb meaning a dwelling, which has interesting connections with the mortgage agreement. Is it stating a dwelling can only belong to the tribe? Of course the tribes are of Jewish origin.

That may be not as farfetched as you would think, given they own all the major financial centers and the legal system to bind it. The word tavern meaning a pub or bar, is also connected to the word tribe, which is ironic as it was said to be Osiris who introduced alcohol here. In the Biblical sense, which was the original one in English, the Latin word translates Greek phyle race or tribe of men, body of men united by ties of blood and descent, a clan. Here comes the Jewish and church version. Extension to modern ethnic groups or races of people is from 1590s, specifically a division of a barbarous race of people, usually distinguishable in some way from their congeners, united into a community under a recognized head or chief. But colloquially of any aggregate of individuals of a kind.

But the word tribe then morphed into another word that brought in the commerce, tithes and shekel games. Distribute: Early 15c., distributen, to deal out or apportion, bestow in parts or in due proportion, from Latin distributes. Past participle of distribuere to divide, deal out in portions, from dis meaning individually plus tribuere to pay, assign, grant, also allot among the tribes or to a tribe, from tribus. So it went from to deal out in portions, to pay to individuals, sound familiar? Then it changed again meaning, to separate and put, or place in order is from 1550s. The separation was from the sharing with the clans into sharing and dividing up unto the tribes of Israel. In came the Talmudic court jesters next. Late 14c., title of an official in ancient Rome, from Latin tribunus meaning magistrate, specifically one of the officers appointed to protect the rights and interests of the plebeians from the patricians, originally head of a tribe in the Roman sense, from tribus. Does that also reveal another connection between the Rome or Roman empire and the Jewish EL-ite program? Also a raised platform from 1762, from Italian and Medieval Latin tribuna, from Latin tribunal in its classical sense, a platform for the seats of magistrates in ancient Rome. Tribune: mid-14c., stated sum of money or other valuable consideration paid by one ruler or country to another in acknowledgment of submission, or as the price of peace or protection. Which is mafia-style racketeering. From Anglo-French tribute, Old French tribut and directly from Latin tributum, a tribute, a stated payment, a thing contributed or paid, noun use of neuter of tributus, past participle of tribuere to pay, assign, grant. Also allot among the tribes or to a tribe, from tribus. That is tithing, something the Mormon Cohen cult does to its bizarre followers. Sense of offering, gift, token is first recorded 1580s. Tribune became tribunal, which then decided the amount of tribute to the tribes or cohens. A court fine is a tribute to the Cohens, just like the American income tax is not a tax, but a tribute to the Crown, owned by these same Cohens. So from the word tribe we have Hebrew, Rome, mafia racketeering, tributes, which is an offering sacrificial or otherwise, law and distribution of the goods only to the tribes. Sound familiar? It should do. All very Hebrew Anunnaki to me.

The Bashkirs, Nogais, Kalmyks, Kazakhs were not Turks, they originally belonged to the so-called pure yellows, they were natives of Arimia, now China. They began to move from there when all the trees were cut down. But Kazakhs, they began to be called so only in 1936, and earlier they were called Kalmyks-Kaisaks. The Kazakhs were clearly from Kazakhstan and originally was part of the Russia lands, until the Jewish takeover of their lands as this piece reveals. The Russians nominally ruled all of Kazakhstan as part of the Russian Empire and liberated the slaves of the Kazakhs in 1859. They liberated the slaves, does that not sound like a good thing to do? Just like helping Americans in the two wars of the 1800's as well. His story has never revealed that to be the case though, has it? Following the 1917 Russian Revolution and subsequent Russian Civil War, the territory was reorganized several times. In 1936, it was established as the Kazakh Soviet Socialist Republic within the Soviet Union. A: It wasn't a Russian revolution, it was a Jewish Bolshevik revolution. B: Soviet Union is not Russia, just the Jewish takeover of it. The Kazakhs asked for asylum from Catherine II, so that their Dzungars would not be completely massacred, Dzungaria is a northern province of China, it still exists. They lived in the place that is now called the Gobi Desert, but there used to be forests there, until the yellow ones cut them down to plow, thereby disrupting the climate, the moisture-absorbing system and everything turned into a desert. In other words, the barbaric attitude led to the formation of a desert. Unfortunately, this happened not only in ancient times, but even today forests are destroyed, coal is dug up, canals are built, which then bloom, they are abandoned and everything gradually turns into a desert.

The only thing that Catherine II had to do was not to give them our culture, that's how they followed the herd of sheep, so they would have walked. But for humane reasons, they began to give them culture and development, not understanding that different systems of perception of peoples lead to the fact that we, in the end, teach enemy number one. In other words, the one who saved them from annihilation turned into the worst enemy. As V.S. Chernomyrdin said: We wanted the best, but it turned out as usual. Just like the Russians helping the Americans then, they turned on them as well. I can empathize with that, as the ones I have helped personally the most, all seem to turn nasty against you. It is not a good look for humanity. Why do we do that to each other? Who said that was a valid exercise to undertake? They did and we adopted it like sheep.

As more and more members look deeper into the narrative now, more information is being revealed. Odin left from the Asur region, Azov at the Don river, which is east of the Caucasus and east of the Black Sea, when he went to Sweden. Romans were a threat to Azov, Odin had to leave in around year 60 BC. A migration of the elite, but many stayed. Many waves of Odins followers had gone before him when he went to Sweden, clearing his way. Odin travelled from Azov to Gardarike Russia, to Sachsen North Germany, to the Island FYN Denmark, then to Gotland and then up through Swedish land to Sigtuna and Uppsala. A map of Odin on his way to Sweden in year 125 AD. On this Map he is at Suebi and is in today's eastern Germany :

Suebi went north, followed by Gothones and Venedi followed up to the shores of the Baltic Sea. Odin later lived many years in the south of Sweden, in Husaby.

Husa-By, Husa = House + by = Village. The village of the House or the House of Odin? Husaby is in Västergötland the West Goths. The same type of landscape as in Azov. Odin is buried in Sigtuna and his body was burned. Odin was a Priest-King, more of a Priest than a King. Odin was a man. Gustav Eriksson Wasa burned all books after 1523 when he became King in Sweden, thus making an overlay about Odin and his origins. Odin became a legend and a source of human sacrifice, wrong! Odin had the legacy from the sunken Continent Da'arya that now has been developed to our New Blueprint for Humanity. First Christian King was Olof Skötkonung, who was christened around the year 1000 in Husaby. The end of the Silk Road was at Azov. Thor Heyerdahl a Norwegian, started excavations in Azov since Snorri Sturlasson, Icelandic, had written that Odin had started his escape from the Romans from this exact position. The Silk Road is very, very old, potentially 100,000 years old or more. 4,000 years old mummies, Odin-like persons were buried in the Tarim Basin in north-west China along this very important trade route. Tarim Basin: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Tarim_Basin Byzantine Monks that came to Ireland brought with them the knowledge about King Odin's home at the Asian side of the Don river in Azov. Knowledge that reached Snorri Sturlasson in Iceland. Snorri got direct and indirect knowledge on China, India, Ghana and many other regimes. Snorre knew the Rus geography, at this time Azov by the river Don was Tanais by the river Tana.

Here is a pondering for you all, something often said within this show and yet perhaps we didn't look into it enough. This maybe a bit of a holy shit moment. The sentence of it all hidden in plain sight, which should be obvious, yet people all too often miss the obvious, captain or otherwise. Plain means simple, not remarkable or easy to understand. But it hasn't been easy to understand has it? Otherwise people would “see” it. So, why has it been missed? Because maybe you didn't think enough about the words. Maybe the words had two or more meanings, maybe the words said had a different spelling, cast down upon us to cause confusion. But what if you changed the spelling but still pronounced it the same way, would that change and allow you to see? Is it plain or is it plane, does that change the dynamics of the word and meaning? What if it is plane, is that dimensional sight? If so what Dimension are we looking for or at? Is that why people don't see, as it is coming from a different dimension? How do you overcome that blindness? By developing yourself and thinking outside of the 3D self-limitation program. Part of the problem here and it has come up when discussing things of a mystery school variety is, people's thinking patterns are too low in the dimensions. This in part is because of the 2D overlay program, which puts you in a box, so to speak. So, then the world is about that box only and nothing exists whether living or otherwise outside of it. In vision, bi location and dream travel mode, you cannot think 3D it is too limiting, you have to be able to think higher. In those realms you have greater manifest skills, it is more instant. As above so below again applies, what are you going to create, what are you going to manifest? In those realms everything is stacked upon each other, which is why there is a theory of flat earth. No, the plane is flat, everything in it has the shapes you see. So in essence the plane you reside on, becomes the box. To develop yourself you have to step outside of it, embrace the higher Dimensional thinking and then bring it back into the 3D and implement it. So the key for plain sight is, thinking in and of higher dimensional plane patterns, embracing them and then integrating them back into the physical reality world we exist on. But, we do not exist on it at all times, you are not in and of this world, you are merely visiting here as you go about your daily lives. Multi-dimensionality allows you to be in more than one place at any given time, and you do, but you don't "see" it. You don't see it because you created a box for yourself and stayed within it. You have to take the leap of faith, you have to commit to it and you decide which part of you is here or there. The leap of faith or the threshold of it, is but just one word, fear. Those who won't change, experience new things, new adventures, new surroundings, love or life, will always remain in the box, because you made it up in your own mind, that you would retain the status quo.

The wind of change echoes through the valley of life, changing life, scenery and within. Learning to ride the undulating hills and not make them into mountains, charts the path. Learning that it is all about the climb, not the fall, determines the course. The hill, life and change is never as steep as you make it out to be. That was only because you made your mind up - hence you presented yourself with illusions. Be you, not others. Embrace you and look up to your achievements, not look up or bow down to others. Remember all the world is a stage, who, what or how will you perform? what role will you play in it? Are you an actor, actress, director or just an extra in the scene? Or just a part of the background? Life in the background has its benefits and drawbacks, depending upon your perspective. But being in and of the background never means to dim your light. Without the light to shine, you become a mere particle of the dark and darkness. One candle even in the wind, always shines the brightest. Life is a marketplace filled with shekel whores, make sure you are not the next to be consumed. The consumer becomes the consumed as you drown in the sea of debt. Keep your life force flowing but never take more than you need. Live to learn and learn to live.

ENDING PIECE: A couple of pointers before the final piece. I keep getting asked where to buy the books we have, the New blueprint for Humanity and FHSTOS Parts 1, 2 & 3 are all available on Lulu.com. They are also available from our bookstore at THI-show.com. We also have the two free inspirational pdfs available there as well, the Divine masculine and feminine and also the consent book for you all to share. Both of them are to be shared, but not to be used for monetary purposes as both were Copyrighted upon publication last summer. There will be no show next week as I am taking a personal break, don't miss me too much. Many members are going through inner struggles currently, is it because 2023 was the end of the normal years? A realization that you are of value, importance and loved? A recognition that you haven't listened or done enough? Are you finding yourself again? after you invented and or developed a humpty dumpty and broke yourself apart?

The object of THI is for you all to find the real you, not the mask of illusion you have created and presented. The fake image served no one, least of all the self. What is going on around the world is a base level transition. Yes many are undergoing the same process currently, which suggests there is a higher shift and or purpose playing out now. Purging, stomach issues, cold or flus, head fog, dark thoughts and energies, friends and family trying to pull you back in. But they are times and lessons for you to think and plot your next moves and path.

Many people are up to their necks in shit, their own shit mostly and they think it is a coat. Yet curiously people can't smell it, just like they don't see or listen. One wonders why we have 5 senses at all, no senses and no sense applies all too often here. The object is to return to the 12 senses plus one, the plus one is common sense. The importance of soul development work is, it is dependent upon you, not others. Other people will always attempt to drag you back into the pit. Remember where you are concerned, it is only YOU who are going through changes, not them, ignore their ramblings. For they are but imposters of life, when it comes to you and your changes/development and path. The next stage is about how you think, when you think and where you think. As thinking with a 2D or 3D mind is within the box/boundaries or parameters. Wisdom THInking comes from the higher dimensions and so it is THInking beyond the box. The dream time tells you that, yet curiously people don't think or see it. Remember in the dream time something I said a long time back, you cannot imagine something that doesn't already exist. Seeing is believing, but it is not in many cases, as you apply the 3D thinking mind to it, of duality and dueling hemispheres. There is nothing new under the sun it is said, but which sun are you viewing? You cannot manifest as easily in 3D like you can in the higher dimensions. One ponders over whether the vessel is a limitation program within itself, as the spirit has no problem manifesting in the higher realms during dream time.

Life is but a dream they say, so what are you dreaming? But I can't control my dreams you will say, then the great question is, who have you allowed to control your own dreams? Is that not like making up your own mind, but other people as we have found out, are largely what makes up your own mind. Where is the triality in those two circumstances? Where is the you?

Let's overview this shall we. You have been given a precious life vessel to experience things for yourself, yet allow others to run your dreams, manifestations and your mind for you. Is it any wonder your life is not how you feel it should be? You do realize, only you created that scenario by not defining the you, not controlling the you and not paying attention to the real you, which is the soul/spirit package. The great question next is, why did you do that to yourself? The final question remains, what are you going to do to change it? That all comes down to whether you have a love of life or a fear of it. The greatest losses in life are not based upon shekels, but losing love and yourself. When all hope appears lost, find the light in the sky, embrace and integrate it and just smile.
