Ponderings upon attaining the flow, given now there is an extra week between the BP reports and the show due to my absence recently. This gives us time to then iron out, then roll out the next phase. A Structured move time: The migration from Mewe to BP site. First migration will be the new blueprint for humanity group and chat on Mewe, although some the law and youth group has already started to unfold. All reports, notes, agendas to be moved over to BP site by February 29th. This will allow you all a chance to get used to the new site. This will allow the web team to iron out any potential issues arising from the site. Once that is achieved and hopefully by the 29th, the new blueprint for humanity chat, mewe page can be closed down on March 1st. If that all works well, then the women's group page can be migrated quicker, say by March 15th. Then March 16th, we start the process of moving the law Mewe group over to the BP site next. The main Mewe page will remain open including the chat, whilst the teams transferred over are adjusting and the web team have dealt with any or all issues that have arisen. Then we can look at how to eliminate the Mewe chat, but perhaps keep the page open for personal chats and postings. We don't need to have personal chats on the BP site. The BP site is a working group and personal chats will add to the cost of the data used.

There are some major positive pieces and internal processes going on now, that is beyond the scope of most people to connect the dots together. This particular show will go some way to showing that, some serious changes are now underway on a global scale. Take note of Tucker Carlson in Russia, a seismic move and supported by Elon Musk, remember both have received the Blueprint books. Is it connected? I guess time will tell.

NEWS: Further erosion of the so-called superpower country called America. President Biden is facing criticism after a bombshell report revealed that all federal agencies are less than 50 percent occupied, wasting billions in taxpayer dollars, over a year after he declared the Covid-19 pandemic over. According to a Government Accountability Office (GAO) memo to Sen. Joni Ernst, not a single federal agency has over half of its workforce in the office. That's a staggering statistic, since federal agencies spend about $2 billion taxpayer dollars per year to operate and maintain federal office buildings and over $5 billion annually in leases. Criminal wastage and spending for the sake of it has hampered all governments since at least 1871. No one seems to have a single clue how to deal with it. The Blueprint model does address this problem and eliminates it entirely. So money can be spent in better ways serving the people of this country, not shekel makers of this and other countries.

Here is a pondering of mine, based upon observational experiences. You will notice that the internet has slowed down within the past 12 months, pages taking longer to load. But why? The simple answer is advertisements. Given the globalists all make large sums of money doing advertisements of varying kinds. The question then remains is, how much energy would the planet save if we banned adverts all together? Think of the electricity it would save? It would help the global warming and cooling, help the environment, save the trees, enhance the eco-system, free up air-space and magazine for more intelligent and informing based information and remove hundreds of thousands of parasites around the world. What is there not to like about that? Surely the UN and WHO will see the benefits this solution would bring.

A scientist who believed humans would die from the climate crisis has made a U-turn and now believes the issue may have been overblown, well I never. Hannah Ritchie, a data scientist at the University of Oxford, claims that doomsday warnings of floods, widespread famine and deaths from disasters, are overshadowing the progress that has been quietly made in recent years. She pointed out how emissions per person peaked in 2012 and remained the same since, along with the notion that organic food is not more climate-friendly and that the dreaded 2.7F of warming is not a tipping point into oblivion. Ritchie, who published the book Not the End of the World, recently shared the seven key points that led her to change her position on the climate crisis. The over-exaggeration is what seems to have led Ritchie to do a 180 on the issue, finding it has distracted us with small issues. That is the second time this past week I have seen someone reference the term often used here, of doing a 180. THI based collective consciousness still in full flow. Ritchie highlighted a survey in 2021, which found six in 10 people worldwide believed eating a locally produced diet, including meat and dairy products, is a better way to reduce an individual's greenhouse gas emissions. However, the scientist debunked that idea with the fact that, food miles, which is the travelling of the food to get to people's tables, fridges or pantries, accounted for only five percent of global emissions attributed to the food industry. The Global Carbon Project estimated that carbon emissions rose about one percent in 2023, but the amount is much slower compared to the 1990s and early 2000s. Ritchie explained that emissions have been reaching a long plateau in the last five to ten years, suggesting the world is heading to its peak. Many nations have made a historic pledge to limit global warming to 2.7F, but data has suggested that we are sure to pass it as early as 2030. The warming target has been perceived as a threshold and once passed, we enter a time of environmental catastrophe. But this isn't true, Ritchie shared. It isn't true and we will not be reaching the 2.7F by early 2030 either, as true data suggests the planet is cooling, not warming. This was reflected by their own terminology, by replacing global warming with climate change. More and more of their fear-based programs are now breaking down as the truth is beginning to prevail.

I guess reality is starting to bite for the so-called EL-ites, as things we warned of near 8 years ago to some of them, is now coming home to roost. The solution to theirs and our issues, is the Blueprint.

World leaders recently went to Davos this week to pontificate on the planet's most pressing problems. Two major wars, a shipping crisis, cyber-attacks on state institutions and yet more alarming evidence of the climate emergency, means there's no shortage of talking points. But turning ideas into action when governments owe an unprecedented $88.1 trillion, equivalent almost to the world's annual economic output will be hard. Public debt exploded during the pandemic and new borrowing this year is likely to break records in several big economies, leaving governments less able to respond to shocks such as financial meltdowns, pandemics or wars. Even in the absence of a new crisis, soaring debt servicing costs will constrain efforts to tackle climate change and care for aging populations. Public services in many countries are already strained after successive budget cuts. More worryingly still, as debt burdens grow, governments could find themselves unable to borrow more to service existing obligations and fund basic services adequately. A government unable to finance its debt would be forced to implement abrupt and painful spending cuts or tax hikes, said Michael Saunders, a former member of the Bank of England's monetary policy committee. No, we just stop sending stolen money to the likes of the Crown Bank of England and the Federal Reserve scamming system. That then stops the harvesting of the people and the planet and we can spend more money on the people and services. Such a government may lack the fiscal space to respond to future adverse shocks, preventing fiscal support when it is most needed, he told CNN. It is all collapsing around them as we forecasted, they need to stop putting band-aids over the dam and reverse the flow. That takes courage on their part, but essential for us all to move forward.

The real purpose for the fake war in Gaza is now coming to light it seems, again something we at THI revealed some time back. Israel, Egypt and the United States would work together on ways to secure the porous border between Egypt and Gaza, something that would involve solving the problem of tunnels once and for all. But the plan envisages a major role for foreign players, the US, plus European and Arab governments in the creation of a multinational task force with responsibility, for what's euphemistically called the rehabilitation of the Gaza Strip. The rehabilitation needs to happen in Israel, not in other places. Ironically I stated that a UN peacekeeping force should have been in Gaza and the West Bank in the early 1980's. But then the UN are not peacekeepers at all, as we have subsequently found out. Multinational forces needs to be from countries not connected to the whole charade either, so no American, British, Indian or Saudi forces, otherwise it is a control force. Of course Israel will request those as A: they are favorable to them and B: those selected will ultimately have to pay for it, in classic Israeli style. In other words, those countries will be expected to put the whole shattered area back together and pay for it. The US Secretary of State, Antony Blinken is on his latest visit to the region, his fourth since 7 October. As he travels from one Arab capital to another, how much enthusiasm is he likely to encounter from leaders appalled at the scenes of suffering inflicted on Gaza? More to the point is, why should they trust a Zionist operating as a US Secretary of State, it is like dealing with Netanyahu. But writing for the British think tank Chatham House, Dr Sanam Vakil and Dr Neil Quilliam urge Arab governments not to wait. Without serious regional planning and investment in Gaza, they write, a potential outcome that could materialize is, lawlessness and a Palestinian political vacuum alongside the grim reality of famine, disease and death. Ironic, given it is think tanks who create these very situations, now they are concerned of what happens next? Lunatic asylum thinking again, why didn't they think of that before launching these programs? And what of that Palestinian political vacuum? According to media reports, all appointments to local committees would have to be approved by Israel. There's no role for Hamas, but also for now at least for the Palestinian Authority, which is based in the West Bank and its president Mahmoud Abbas. He also said it would be hard for the US to get Arab partners to agree to work with Israel, when some members of Netanyahu's government were openly calling for Palestinians to be resettled outside Gaza. In recent days, those fears have been stoked, by reports that the government has been conducting secret negotiations with African countries to accept migrants from Gaza. Well I never, they are moving all of the Palestinians out of the area altogether, now where have we heard that before? Next stop, moving the Jews themselves on.

Interesting development taking place in Poland, although one must always be wary of faction games as well. Outside Poland's main evening news studio there's a row of police stationed for protection. The entire building of public broadcaster TVP is surrounded by metal barriers and more police officers. There is a battle over control of the airwaves here, that is dramatic in itself. But it's also part of a much broader power struggle, that began when elections last autumn ended eight years of populist rule. It's quite stressful and crazy! TVP news presenter Zbigniew Luczynski admits as he heads past the police to go on air, a bundle of scripts in one hand. But our mission is very important to us: to tell the truth and be objective.

When Donald Tusk ran for election late last year, his coalition promised to restore balance to the media and stop funding a factory of lies and hatred. We had a plan for that in 2018, but some people would not follow through with it, describing it as too radical. There is nothing more radical than the current system of lies, distraction and distortion of truth here in America. Under the previous, right-wing government, public TV and radio channels had become fiercely partisan, some say dangerously so. So in December, the new culture minister sacked TVP top management and the 24-hour news channel was knocked off air. The backlash was immediate. Senior opposition figures denounced an illegal takeover and laid siege to TVP offices. They overwhelmed security to burst into the lobby and stage a sit-in. A rival management team later entered the main news building in the city center. Many of the chants were crude and fiercely anti-Donald Tusk, portraying the prime minister as a traitor and a supposed German agent, hence the potential for it to be faction based. They're the kind of slurs state TV has been pumping out for years and a reminder of why the government moved so quickly to shut it down. They're also a reminder of how polarized Poland has become. Many protesters carried portraits of two former MPs, imprisoned this month for abuse of power. The men are now paraded as heroic political prisoners by PiS supporters and are openly backed by Poland's president, Andrzej Duda. Poland is in the cross hairs currently, as they are dancing too much to the tune of NATO, against their friends and brethren the Russians and Belarus. One hopes the split with the factions allows the people themselves to step up and take back their country and chart a better path.

Here is another sign of the changing in thinking and also taking actions, that is encouragingly increasing rapidly now. Highlighting the problem, changes the energy field around it and weakens it. U.S. Representative Scott Perry, was joined by Representatives Tom Tiffany, Paul Gosar, Diana Harshbarger, Andy Ogles and Matt Rosendale to introduce the Defund Davos Act. What an extraordinary moment that is. The bill would prohibit the Department of State and the United States Agency for International Development from providing any funding to the World Economic Forum. Now we are talking and getting it, people are beginning to see who the problems are and acting upon it. This is increasing the possibility of the Blueprint becoming acceptable. Forcing American Taxpayers to fund annual ski trips for insular, global elitists is absurd, not to mention reprehensible, said Rep. Perry. The World Economic Forum doesn't deserve one cent of American funding and it's past time we defund Davos. Music to all our ears that is.

Hosted in Davos, Switzerland, the World Economic Forum's annual conference brings together CEOs, world leaders and other officials to discuss elitist, dystopian ideas like global solidarity and eating bugs to solve world hunger. Throughout the years, the U.S. has spent millions to fund the Forum and its anti-American conference. The wealthy WEF globalists should not receive Americans' hard-earned tax dollars, said Rep. Tiffany. The Defund Davos Act would ensure that U.S. tax dollars are not funding the World Economic Forum and their reset on our way of life. I thank Congressman Perry for leading this important effort. The Davos conference allows the global elites and leaders of countries like China and Iran, to argue against the interests of the American People and devise means by which global governance can be implemented. The Forum's objectives include designing and implementing a global financial system, getting countries to enforce electric vehicle purchases and car sharing, using Artificial Intelligence to drive the economy and society and other global public interests. A pity she mentioned China and Iran are part of the problem, eventually all will learn no country is the problem, only psychotic people and or beings running agendas on us all. Yet again the positive signs unfolding and increasing by each show now.

Here is another positive change, this time in Sweden, the home of Abba and the realm of the Rus. Sweden has been doing a lot of right things lately. The new right-wing government is dismantling the work of the previous Socialist government. They have already scrapped the renewable energy plans and have been pushing for more nuclear power. In the new year, Sweden removed climate taxes on fuel, causing diesel prices to collapse by over 4 SEK per liter. In 2022 when the Socialist democrats were in power, the diesel price reached a whopping 28 SEK per liter. After the right-wing government removed climate taxes, prices in the new year reached almost as low as 17 SEK per liter. That is around 39% lower diesel prices. But further steps have been taken. The previous Socialist government included formulations in directives to governmental organizations in Sweden, that they had to work towards achieving the Agenda 2030 goals. The new government has cut the budget to municipalities and regions co-operation for Agenda 2030. During the Christmas holidays, they have removed the Agenda 2030 goals from the directives to government organizations, such as the Swedish Energy Agency, the Swedish Chemicals Agency, the Swedish Agency for Marine and Water Management and the Swedish Food Agency among others. Another huge surge in people seeing through these agendas and programs agencies. Bill Gates has donated a whopping $1.27 billion towards funding the UN Agenda 2030 global goals and a large amount of that money is going towards global digital ID. What a waste of money that will turn out to be. This is a major win for the right-wing Swedish Democrats who are very happy about this move. Generally, we don't see any added value with the Agenda 2030 work and welcome the development. During the reign of the Social Democrats and the Green Party, Agenda 2030 and gender equality have been put in place everywhere. We do not think that is one of the most important tasks for authorities said Martin Kinnunen, environment and climate spokesperson for the Swedish Democrats. So there we have it. Sweden has begun to go against the Agenda 2030 global goals. Will anyone else follow, do you support this move by the Swedish right-wing government? All sane people and governments should support it. What we are seeing here now is, a seismic shift happening around the world on an unprecedented scale. That is the power of speaking out against these organizations and exposing them. THI has planted many of the seeds, what we are witnessing now is, others are growing them.

Here is another seismic shift unfolding, these types of bills always passed without question, well not no more it seems. The House failed to pass over $17.6 billion in assistance to Israel on Tuesday. It's a blow to House Speaker Mike Johnson's attempts to kill the Senate's sweeping, bipartisan deal that would tie foreign aid to changes in border and migrant policy. The bill failed by a vote of 250-180. The legislation faced fierce opposition from multiple corners of the lower chamber and required significant bipartisan support as Republican leaders put the bill under suspension, a procedural tactic that fast-tracks a bill for a vote but requires two-thirds support to pass. Lawmakers on both sides of the aisle have long called for additional aid to Israel, as its war with Hamas rages on in the Middle East. But some House Republicans and Democrats plus some Senate lawmakers still raised concerns about the latest push. Lawmakers is an interesting term to use is it not? Where are the policy makers, the solution makers and the people and country makers? Law is Talmudic and we no longer need that iron fisted rule of non-law or justice. The bill may still pass at a later date, but the questioning of it now is encouraging and more will have the courage to question the narrative surrounding Israel.

MEDICAL SECTION: It is now coming to light what we revealed in the Expose series and also the Cosmic Genetics series, following a report by Tucker Carlson and Florida surgeon general Joseph Lapado. Joseph has stated and raised concerns to the FDA and the CDC, which predictably was met with silence. That the jabs contain foreign DNA and other contaminants harmful to the receiver. This is in overview is what I have said all along, is the Jewish EL-ite group trying to eliminate and or infect the white race with their malfeasance. Just like the Black Plague, Aids, H1N1, Ebola and many others, all came from these doctors of death. Be interesting to confirm whose DNA they are using? I suspect it will be from the sub-grey race. People may ask why I would say just the white race infection, because those where the countries targeted with the Covid, in the main. What the outcome of this is anyone's guess, but remember people made their own free will choice. What it also reveals is their desperation to turn the tide back in their favor, that they would go to such ridiculous lengths to implement this. It shows they are losing and losing badly. I did state Covid would have a silver lining to it, now it is coming to pass.

If you are one of those people who love to wake up early and go to bed early. In that case, you may have inherited this trait from your Neanderthal ancestors, according to a new study published in the journal Genome Biology and Evolution. The study, conducted by researchers from Oxford University Press, reveals that some genetic variants from Neanderthals may have influenced the circadian rhythms of modern humans, making them more adapted to the high-latitude environments of Eurasia. The key is develop your own body clock, particularly for those who are retired or working from home. Sleeping or napping when tired is essential to our own growth, but that is dictated by your own body, not their c-lock system.

The greed of the medical industry is laid bare in this piece. The group known as Pfizer or Luci-Pfizer has posted a reported net loss of $2.38bn in the third quarter of 2023, compared to a net income of $8.61bn during the same period last year. For the quarter ended 1 October 2023, the company reported a diluted loss per share of $0.42. Revenues also saw a decline of 42% to $13.23bn from $22.63bn in the same quarter of the previous year. Pfizer attributed the fall in revenues to the expected decline in global revenue generated by the Covid-19 products, Paxlovid and Comirnaty. Paxlovid and Comirnaty revenues saw a 97% and 70% drop respectively against the same quarter of 2022. Excluding Comirnaty and Paxlovid contributions, Pfizer's revenues rose by 10%, or $1.1bn on an operational basis. Despite the decline they still recorded $13.23B in sales in a quarter, that is high for a multi-year never mind a quarter. The profits of doom making vast profits of people's sickness is a blight upon society in general. Our BP solution reduces those profits to a maximum of 10-15%, because everything else is just sheer greed.

SOCIETY SECTION: More ridiculous woke ideology coming out of schools. As a Seattle high school teacher has been accused of berating a student for describing himself as straight, saying it's offensive because it suggests LGBTQ people must be crooked. The only thing that is crooked is their stupid ass thinking patterns. The unidentified pupil's mom filed a formal complaint about Ian Golash, the chair of the social studies department at Chief Sealth International High School. She claimed that in the beginning of the school year, Golash provided students with a Social Identity Wheel worksheet, asking them to reflect on various identities including race, ethnicity, gender and sexual orientation. Does anyone ask why that is relevant in schools? Can people not see what race, ethnicity and gender are anymore? Why should children have to state it? Is it saying the teachers are too stupid to see it for themselves? As for sexual orientation, that is a complete invasion of privacy. The class should have given the teachers a social identity wheel as well, so how they would like that. After her son labeled himself as straight, Golash allegedly told the boy the term is offensive. It is completely inappropriate to dictate what terms a student can and cannot use to identify themselves with, she wrote. Golash denied singling out her son, but confirmed saying he prefers not to use the term straight, because it implies that to not be straight is to be crooked, which could have a negative connotation. Everything has a negative connotation with these people, who clearly have far too much time on their hands to come up with this shit, instead of doing what they are paid to do and teach the children.

The rise of politics and social engineering in sports is getting beyond a joke now. Modeled on the American schooling system it seems, where no longer a person's talent or skills are the pre-requisite, but what color or gender you are. This is called the Diversity code and is being applied by the UK soccer association. In signing up, the clubs agree that: 15% of new executive appointments and team operations appointments will be from a black, Asian or of mixed heritage background, with 30% female. 25% of new coaching appointments will be black, Asian or of mixed heritage and 10% of senior coaching appointments. 50% of new coaching appointments at women's football clubs will be female, with 15% black, Asian or of mixed heritage. Shortlists for interview will have at least one male and one female candidate of black, Asian or of mixed heritage, provided applicants meeting the job specifications apply. Between 1 August 2022 and 31 July 2023 the clubs collectively failed to meet any of those recruitment targets, though some individual clubs did. When combined with the FA, Premier League and EFL only one target was fully met, with more than 30% of new team operations appointments female. What the majority of colored and gender people don't get is, by being apportioned a position purely based upon their color, is devaluing them as a person. That is the overview of that program, people will look at you and think, you only got that position based upon color or gender. Do you not realize how devaluing that is? The reason I say people think that and not say it is, due to another program design to lead to division, political correctness. If only politics and politicians operated with correctness, the world would be a better place.

People are now seeing through the indoctrination program called social media. As hundreds of families are suing some of the world's biggest technology companies, who they say, knowingly expose children to harmful products. One plaintiff explains why they are taking on the might of Silicon Valley. I literally was trapped by addiction at age 12 and I did not get my life back for all of my teenage years. Taylor Little's addiction was social media, an addiction that led to suicide attempts and years of depression. Taylor, who's now 21 and uses the pronoun they, describes the tech companies as big, bad monsters. Most people will not recognize this as an addiction, because they relate it only to drinks, food or drugs. But like fear it is a more subtle or hidden addiction. How can everyone stare at a phone wherever they go or are and it not be an addiction? All about the observation. The companies, Taylor believes, knowingly put into children's hands highly addictive and damaging products. Which is why Taylor and hundreds of other American families are suing four of the biggest tech companies in the world. It encourages competitive and comparative traits, uses glitzy graphics and surveys to profile you as a person and goes into the vast datamining databases of people who use it to manipulate you. It encourages people to focus on what other people do, say or think, instead of themselves. It encourages people to spy on each other, create drama and gossip that is so toxic to us all. Very few use social media for the right purposes, which becomes indicative. In overview we originally had Facebook and then Mewe to bring down their tools of addiction, control and subjugation of the people. Remember the social media platforms were developed by DARPA, an insidious group that has never produced anything that was beneficial to the people. Predictably they gave it to a Jewish person to operate, Zuckerberg with a silent f.

Here is another program exploding in their faces, as Texas gets tough and lays down their law in a big f you to Washington. While facing one of the most pernicious ever threats to American security, recently saw Texas Governor Greg Abbott invoking Article 1 Section 10 of the United States Constitution, to protect his State against the invasion unleashed by Socialist Leader Biden. It is an invasion of military-aged male foreigners causing 51 counties in Texas to issue emergency disaster declarations. Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton declared his State won't comply with any orders issued by the socialist Biden Regime, a declaration of defiance socialist Democrats responded to, by demanding Socialist Leader Biden seize the Texas National Guard. The Texas National Guard is part of the Texas Militia, which also contains the much more powerful Texas State Guard, about which is known: The Governor of Texas has sole control over the Texas State Guard, because it is not subject to federal activation. The just released legal analysis article Gov. Abbott Is Right: Texas Has The Right To Defend Itself And Secure Its Border assessed: The constitutional crisis that's been building at the southern border reached a sharp point last Wednesday, when Texas Gov. Greg Abbott asserted his state's right to defend itself against invasion, arguing the Biden administration has broken the compact between the United States and the States. It's not an overstatement to say this is the worst constitutional crisis since the Civil War and that we're in uncharted waters now. There have been times in our history when a state has defied the enforcement of federal laws, but we've never faced a situation where the federal government has refused to enforce its laws and even violated them. Because the border crisis involves the question of security, Abbott's assertion of state authority cuts right to the heart of the question at hand, which is one of first principles: Does a polity have the right to defend itself, to preserve its existence in the face of invasion? The answer is, of course, yes. The preservation of the polity must come before process arguments about whose job it is to enforce federal immigration laws. The State of Texas, in this case, has an authority that transcends that of President Biden and the Supreme Court. That's precisely why the U.S. Constitution includes a clause explicitly recognizing a state's right to act in self-defense when faced with invasion. Following America's most trusted and popular newsman Tucker Carlson posting the message: So it's unanimous: everyone in power, from the White House, to the hedge fund managers, to the Supreme Court of the United States has decided to destroy the country by allowing it to be invaded. That leaves the population to defend itself, where are the men of Texas? Why aren't they protecting their state and the nation? The report concludes, Independent presidential candidate Robert Kennedy Jr., whose uncle President John Kennedy and father Robert Kennedy Sr. were assassinated by the American government, posted the message: Texas is right, Biden's failure to secure the border leaves states no choice but to take matters into their own hands. President Donald Trump then issued the rallying proclamation: We encourage all willing States to deploy their guards to Texas to prevent the entry of illegals and to remove them back across the border. A rallying cry that was heeded by half of the American States issuing proclamations to defend the State of Texas. The Texas Lieutenant Governor Dan Patrick threateningly declared : Sending federal agents to confront the Texas National Guard on the Mexican border would be the biggest mistake the Biden administration could make. Will Texas eventually secede? Time will tell. In overview all states should secede as none appear to really know what they are connected to. We need American states, not US or U.S. States as they are the connection to the Crown and the EL-ites ownership of the country. It's all unfolding now.

EXPOSE: This is part two of the expose from the last THI show, all about the machinations and politics of the military, government and agencies here, none of which took into account the benefits of it all for the people. Why? Because none of it was for the people, they were mere pawns and batteries within the non-thinking psychopathic clowns who operated within this system of total control. The Second Purge of American Intelligence: The Deep State is Born. From the moment Kissinger assumed the post of National Security Advisor to Nixon, he set out to centralize all intelligence estimates, diplomatic initiatives and covert operations over figuratively and sometimes, literal dead bodies of members of the CIA, Joint Chiefs of Staff, State Department and Congress. Is that not an actual coup of America? Yet were was the dissent against it? None came, as those in those positions were leveraged with poor behavior and the people themselves lack personal responsibility. According to John Ranelagh in his book The Agency: The Rise and Decline of the CIA: Very early in the Nixon administration, it became clear that the President wanted Henry Kissinger to run intelligence for him and that the NSC staff in the White House under Kissinger would control the intelligence community. Alongside the clown who had been running the agency for over decade by then, Bush Snr. This was the beginning of a shift of power away from the CIA to a new center: the growing NSC staff. Kissinger would use the Watergate scandal, where the CIA was caught by Congress of directly being implicated in treasonous activities, as the impetus needed to form a new CIA, a secret branch away from the scrutiny of Congress. How was that even allowed? It is an overthrow of the government in essence. In 1978, Kissinger would launch the Intelligence Reorganization and Reform Act, which essentially worked to clean house of the intelligence community. Their version of clean house is not our version. Think of it in terms of faction fighting and you begin to understand it. And in 1982, under the direction of Kissinger, President Reagan would sign NSDD 77 under Cold War duress, which would launch Project Democracy, a sardonic name for a Trojan Horse. A Trojan horse is any malware that misleads users of its true intent by disguising itself as a standard program, perfect description. NSDD 77 allowed Project Democracy the reins over covert action on a broad scale, as well as overt public actions later to be associated with the National Endowment for Democracy (NED). The directive ordered the CIA to stay out of both the overt and covert part of Project Democracy, thus giving free reign to the Kissinger NSC apparatus.

Almost one year later, the uninformed and naïve Congress passed the NED Act in Oct 1983 and effectively signed off on wrapping duct tape around their heads. The structure of the NED essentially functions as a private CIA political operations arm of an invisible, secret government beyond accountability and beyond the reach of the law. Exactly as we have described it and why it needs to be shut down along with all the other agencies. Then reboot it with carefully selected members into three agencies, domestic, foreign and cyber. Those who still had a degree of humanity as members of the intelligence community and had survived the Kissinger purge, were simply kept in the dark about the cloak and dagger operations of the secret government branch. As for the department ONE, they would be disbanded in 1973, the year Kissinger became Secretary of State and replaced with a group of experts that would later form the National Intelligence Council in 1979. The word experts was more of an assumption back then, now we are seeing experts for what they are, jackasses. This would be the last purge of sane patriotic leadership within the intelligence community, left to the hyenas and jackals to run from thenceforth. David Ignatius, reliable representative voice of the U.S. intelligence apparatus in the Kissinger era, would in September 1991, the year of the dissolution of the Soviet Union, would write in the Washington Post in an article titled: Innocence Abroad - A New World of Spyleless Coups. The great democratic revolution that has swept the globe over the past few years has been a triumph of overt action. The CIA old boys spent a generation fantasizing about this sort of global anti-communist putsch. But when it finally happened, it was in the open. Working in broad daylight, the United States and its allies were able to do things that would have been unthinkably dangerous had they been done in the shadows. Preparing the ground for last month's triumph of overt action was a network of overt operatives who during the last 10 years have quietly been changing the rules of international politics. They have been doing in public what the CIA used to do in private. The old concept of covert action, which has gotten the agency into such trouble during the past 40 years, may be obsolete. Why are they now in the open and not hidden is the great pondering for listeners, I have no doubt some of you will get it straight away. Are they in the open now because they think nobody will do anything about it? Which is a safe assumption based upon people's inability to make these organizations personally responsible or is it something else? Or could it be because of the Day of the Svarog reveals the all in the light of day? Nowadays, sensible activities to support America's friends abroad or undermine its enemies, are probably best done openly. That includes paramilitary operations such as supporting freedom fighters, which can be managed overtly by the Pentagon. Pentagon and freedom are not two dancing partners that have ever come to the fore, they only dance in theaters of war and oppression. It includes political-support operations for pro-democracy activists, which may be best left to the new network of overt operators. The covert-action boys were known back then as the Office of Policy Coordination. It may be time, at last, to bid them adieu, they're obsolete, they've been privatized, largely with technology and mercenary types. That's especially true in the realm of what used to be called propaganda and can now simply be called information. Funny that pro pagan da is now becoming obsolete as well, why? The people exposed it too much. Frank Wisner, the head of CIA covert operations during the mid-1950s, once remarked that he could play the media assets like a mighty Wurlitzer. Today the mighty Wurlitzer actually exists, it's called CNN. Now isn't that interesting reveal, Clown News Network, the blight on all true Americans. Wisner died by "suicide" in 1965, a classic CIA tactic. Allen Weinstein is probably the dean of the new overt operatives, of course, because he is Jewish. Like many of the people running the new nations of Eastern Europe, he's an ex-professor and even worked for several months writing editorials for The Washington Post. University and media, FHSTOS series linked them two bodies together. Now, with the KGB in retreat from Prague to Vladivostok. Weinstein has scheduled a conference in Sofia, Bulgaria on the topic: The Proper Role of Intelligence Agencies in a Democracy. There is no democracy, only the iron fist rule under these agencies of doom and death. A lot of what we do today was done covertly 25 years ago by the CIA, agrees Weinstein. The biggest difference is that when such activities are done overtly, the flap potential is close to zero. Openness is its own protection. They can delude themselves with that thinking, don't let it or them delude you. The dark prospers more easily in the dark and the hidden hand. Now they are being forced to operate within the light and that leads to more exposures, plus more people's awareness and subsequently it all collapses from within. Allen Weinstein is just one of many overt operatives who helped prepare the way for the political miracles of the past two years. It's worth naming a few more of them, to show the breadth of this movement for democracy: William Miller of the American Committee on U.S.-Soviet Relations; financier George Soros of the Soros Foundation; John Mroz of the Center for East-West Security Studies; John Baker of the Atlantic Council; and Harriett Crosby of the Institute for Soviet-American Relations. This has truly been a revolution by committee. The AFL-CIO also deserves a healthy pat on the back. No, they deserve a slap upside the head with a 2x4. This is what is wrong with this world, we praise psychopathy, because this world is truly a lunatic asylum. Working mostly in the open, it helped keep the Polish trade union Solidarity alive in the dark days of martial law during the early 1980s. As the AFL-CIO's Adrian Karatnycky wrote two years ago, American trade unions and the U.S. Congress provided millions of dollars to the Solidarity underground.

The sugar daddy of overt operations has been The National Endowment for Democracy, a quasi-private group headed by Carl Gershman, plus Weinstein that is funded by the U.S. Congress. Carl Gershman it will come as no surprise is Jewish and born in New York. Always Jews at the head of every organization that is working against the people. People can complain about that fact, I don't care as it is the truth. Through the late 1980s, it did openly what had once been unspeakably covert. The endowment has also been active inside the Soviet Union. It has given money to Soviet trade unions; to the liberal Interregional Group in the Congress of People's Deputies; to a foundation headed by Russian activist Ilya Zaslavsky, Zaslavsky is not Russian, he is Jewish. To an Oral History Project headed by Soviet historian Yuri Afanasyev, also Jewish. Also to the Ukrainian independence movement known as Rukh and to many other projects. Covert funding for these groups would have been the kiss of death, if discovered. Overt funding, it would seem, has been a kiss of life. No it is not, that applied prior to 2020, when all could be hidden in plain sight, but people are researching more since then and finding this stuff out. Look at the details of the research on Covid alone, people digging into people, organizations and files everywhere and connecting the dots. This puts a new spin on Washington Post's slogan: Democracy dies in darkness, overt darkness that is. Allen Weinstein, a former Trotskyist, is the founder of the National Endowment for Democracy along with Carl Gershman. The Real Crisis of Democracy: The Trilateral Commission was founded in the wake of Watergate and oil crisis of 1973. It was formed under the pretense of addressing the crisis of democracy and calling for a reshaping of political systems, in order to form a more stable international order and cooperative relations among regions.

See how they use other crisis's in order to formulate a new plan and or agenda? This is problem, reaction and solution in full flow, a Hegelian dialect based upon confusion and distraction to formulate their pre-conceived plans. To form an international order was the key component and since when have these clowns ever tried to have cooperative relations with anything or anyone? Its formation would be organized by Britain's hand in America, the Council on Foreign Relations, which is the offspring of the Royal Institute for International Affairs, the leading think tank for the British Crown. Project Democracy would originate out of a Trilateral Commission meeting on May 31st, 1975 in Kyoto Japan, where the Trilateral Commission's Task Force on the Governability of Democracies findings were delivered. The project was overseen by Trilateral Commission Director Zbigniew Brzezinski and its members James Schlesinger (former CIA Director) and Samuel P. Huntington. Brzezinski Jewish, James Schlesinger born in New York and born to Jewish parents, Huntington born in New York of unknown parentage, but has the distinct Jewish look. They are always involved in everything that is wrong on this planet, masters of deceit, parasitic in nature and total control freaks. It would mark the beginning of the end, introducing the policy or more aptly ideology, for the need to instigate a controlled disintegration of society. The Trilateral Commission is a non-governmental body, its members include elected and non-elected officials scattered throughout the world, ironically coming together to discuss how to address the crisis of democracy in the most undemocratic process possible. It is an organization meant to uphold the interests of its members, regardless of who the people voted in. You see, by the 1970s democracy was obviously broken and someone had to put things back in order, right? Order out of chaos again you see, with the Jewish EL-ites always running the show. This elite grouping of people decided that this approach would be the best for all democracies and just like that, it was brought into official policy across the western hemisphere. On Nov 9th, 1978, Trilateral Commission member Paul Volcker (Federal Reserve Chairman from 1979-1987) would affirm at a lecture delivered at Warwick University in England: A controlled disintegration in the world economy is a legitimate object for the 1980s. Volcker is also Jewish. It also confirms the Federal Reserve deliberately crashes and burns countries' economies with their greedy and self-serving policies. This is also the ideology that has shaped Milton Friedman's Shock Therapy. Friedman, born in New York, born to Jewish parents, how obvious can this get before people see who is the problem here? By the time of Jimmy Carter's Administration, the majority of the government was being run by members of the Trilateral Commission. But who runs the Trilateral Commission? Well, keeping in mind that this whole operation is run as an open conspiracy, in May 1981, Henry Kissinger who replaced Brzezinski as the head of the Trilateral Commission gave a speech at Chatham House describing his term as Secretary of State: The British became a participant in internal American deliberations, to a degree probably never practiced between sovereign nations. To bring clarity to that statement, it was not the British per se, but the British Israelites who participated in controlling America. In my White House incarnation then, Kissinger said, I kept the British Foreign Office better informed and more closely engaged than I did the American Department, it was symptomatic. America has been kept in the dark about things since 1776 in reality, how Americans haven't worked that out yet is beyond comprehension. In his speech, Kissinger outlined the conflicting ideologies between Churchill and Roosevelt, and concluded with his support for the British worldview as the more superior of the two. Looks like the Churchill loyalists have won. Controlled Disintegration: And We All Fall Down In 1975 the CFR launched a public study of global policy titled the 1980's Project. The general theme was controlled disintegration of the world economy and the report did not attempt to hide the famine, social chaos and death its policy would bring, upon most of the world's population. Yet the world ignored it, including all the politicians. The only thing that needs de-populating on this planet is psychopaths, whether Jewish or otherwise. The sheer arrogance of these people or beings is off the charts of known levels. Essentially these clowns are playing god with people, deciding their fates and paths. Predictably it is the anger management type of god, that destroys everything in its path, as revealed within their psychotic book called the bible. The study explained that the world financial and economic system needed a complete overhaul according to which key sectors such as energy, credit allocation and food would be placed under the direction of a single global administration. The objective of this reorganization would be the replacement of nation states. However, before this could occur, nation states would have to falter, or at least give off the impression of faltering. The failure of the nation state is not a natural phenomenon but rather is the outcome of a fascist coup; involving a banker's dictatorship, economic looting and permanent warfare (the Cold War never ended) to hinder national industrial growth. The author stated the Cold War never ended, but misses the fact in never started to begin with, just another fake program to create fear, bring in policies of a psychotic nature and loot countries of their funds. Among the most effective strategies towards this end has been color revolutions, which just so happens to be the NED's specialty practice and has included, to name but a few, the nations of Yugoslavia, Georgia, Iraq, Lebanon, Burma, Iran, Egypt, Yemen, Ukraine and the ongoing Hong Kong protests. Wherever this strategy has unfolded, the target state is told by the international community that it has no right to intervene and is told to stand by, as its nation is ransacked by locusts and its government reorganized. With the final purge of American intelligence and the formation of a secret government, rendering anything resembling a democratic process obsolete, unless someone can restart the engine fast, we will soon be confronted by Willy Brandt's prophecy of finding ourselves rudderless, under a surrounding sea of dictatorship. That has already unfolded and the Blueprint can fix that here and now. Isn't it interesting the amount of these reports of the collapsing nature of many of the big organizations, that were designed for control purposes, not to function as vehicles for the benefit of the people. About the Author: Cynthia Chung is the President of the Rising Tide Foundation and author of the book The Empire on Which the Black Sun Never Set. What an interesting title that is, we hardly ever hear outside of THI the mention of the Black Sun. The book was written in 2022 and so was after the 8C episode of FHSTOS and also after the takeover of the Fed by Black Rock, which is Black Sun, ably supported by Trump and the money from the Trustee. The Russians are coming the intelligence and military agencies said from 1950 onwards. Like most of their intelligence reports, it never comes to fruition does it. 74 years on, the Russians never came, but still the child level goons in those agencies push the same narrative. Why? Because Britain and America in particular are run by the Jewish EL-ites determined to cause the destruction of us both. Remember this piece started off with the darkened old soul of Kissinger, who is Jewish. All of our policies are for the benefit of Jewish EL-ites and not for the people and that has to change.

FHSTOS SECTION: This piece is interesting from our series FHSTOS perspective and a further sign of the impact the book and THI is having upon the collective consciousness. It also shows how the spin masters of lies operate to distort the truth and create agendas surrounding the narrative. Donald Trump said recently that undocumented immigrants were poisoning the blood of our country, repeating language that has previously drawn criticism as xenophobic and echoing of Nazi rhetoric. Mention anything white related and out comes the negative labels. Criticize anything Jewish and out comes the antisemitic label, all so predictable. Trump made the comments during a campaign event in New Hampshire, where he railed against the record number of migrants attempting to cross the U.S. border illegally. Trump has promised to crack down on illegal immigration and restrict legal immigration if elected to a second four-year term in office. They're poisoning the blood of our country; Trump told a rally in the city of Durham. Adding that immigrants were coming to the U.S. from Asia and Africa in addition to South America, all over the world they are pouring into our country. Trump used the same poisoning the blood language during an interview with The National Pulse, a right-leaning website, that was published in late September. It prompted a rebuke from the Anti-Defamation League, whose leader, Jonathan Greenblatt, called the language racist, xenophobic and despicable. Why would the Jewish feel they have to pass comment on it at all? They were not included in the speech. The reason being is, it is they who told him to say it, so they can then carry on their white supremacist rhetoric and discourage others in questioning the immigrants coming in motive. Jason Stanley, a Yale professor and author of a book on fascism, said Trump's repeated use of that language was dangerous. He said Trump's words echoed the rhetoric of Nazi leader Adolf Hitler, who warned against German blood being poisoned by Jews in his political treatise Mein Kampf. All too predictable, follow or support a pre-dominantly white people country, get labeled as Hitler. Multiculturalism means to trample all over the whites, as no other traditional nonwhite country has to put up with this. But it is of interest it is being covered in the MSM.

The topics brought up in the book and series continues to permeate the airwaves, like this story as well. French President Emmanuel Macron has come off the fence and opened the way for policies that are unmistakably on the political right. That is the unanimous verdict after he gave a long, televised press conference on recently. He promoted uniforms in schools, a crackdown on drugs gangs and steps to boost France's declining birth rate. Another country realizing their previous policies failed and now trying to address the imbalance before the country's economy collapses. Completely ouroboros policies again. Left-wing commentators deplored his apparent shift from the crafted political balance of recent years. But they said they suspected all along the right was where his heart lay. It is sheer lunacy this left and right Thothian bird-based political thinking. It is an opinion, why does it have to be a stupid label? Lunatic asylum anyone? But the president's most overt lift from the conservative playbook was, a promise of more natalist policies to counter France's falling birth rate. In 2023 fewer than 700,000 babies were born for the first time since World War Two. Funny it was all working fine when the Trust was open, then when M pulled it, reality has dawned the main countries will not be sustainable. Just as the Jewish EL-ites planned it, except it is backfiring on them as well now.

This came up recently and we are not sure of its authenticity, but the message itself certainly resonates with THI and FHSTOS themes and in particular the URs and the Santies. Vladimir Putin's letter to the world: Dear inhabitants of our beautiful planet Earth, I, the President of the Russian Federation, Vladimir Putin, decided to address all of you directly, bypassing diplomats, your leaders and journalists. In Russia, there is a so-called Ural exchange, where it is forbidden to lie, deceive and exaggerate. UR al is a tip to the URs. Therefore, I will speak very honestly so that everyone will be convinced of the truth of my words. Russia is a big and rich country; its most important value is more than 150 million people who live in a territory where justice is above all. We don't need new territories. We have energy and all other resources are abundant. That is correct, as Russia is by and large self-sufficient, something the globalists and agency goons don't particularly like. Since the time of the Great Tartar and the Great Mughals, the peoples of Northern Eurasia have not developed because of the onslaught of the Crusades and the colonization of America, Africa, India, or the drug addiction of China, but because of their hard work and pacifism. Anyone who knows Russian understands that Russian is an adjective that refers to all the peoples of our country. Russian Slavs, Russian Tatars, Russian Jews, Russian Evens, etc. Evens or Evens are nomadic peoples in the Far East region of Russia. All Russian at heart, even if their culture, language and way of life differ, we honor this diversity of unity. The Russian people are once again forced to sacrifice their lives to protect the world from Nazism and fascism. We exchanged 50 of our prisoners of war for 50 Ukrainian soldiers. Ukrainian soldiers were treated in our hospitals, given three full meals a day and returned home. We received Russian soldiers who had their fingers and genitals cut off, not even the Nazis did that in the last war. That is a common CIA tactic. We will present this evidence in a future process, shame on everyone who supports these scumbags now. Your leaders in the US, Europe, Japan, Australia and elsewhere have sided with these sub humans who put civilians, pregnant women and children above themselves in combat and deliberately want POWs. Sub-human is an interesting term he used there. I can't imagine any sane person supporting these monsters and your Bidens, Scholz, Macron and other dark democrats, not only protect criminals, but actively arm them, provide them with money that is not enough to lower prices in your countries. Prices are rising, the world is collapsing, but not because the Russians are cleansing Europe of Nazi evil spirits, but because you are silent and even support the new wave of Nazism. This time we will not go to Berlin, we will stop at our historical borders and all the Nazi evil spirits that your leaders open the door to, will give you a new "crystal" life, as the Nazis did, adding circumcision of the reproductive organs to it. A new crystal life, has deep significance also. I appeal to all who want to live and work in the world, raise children and socialize with people all over the world. Help Russia fight the new cancer - Ukrainian Nazism. Not Ukraine, where peaceful and hardworking people live, but Nazism, fueled by your US taxes and NATO hawks. If your leaders support Nazism, push them over the edge, take power into your hands. Ukrainian Nazis are protected from bullets by civilians, your rulers also decided to transfer the burden of high prices and future troubles to the population under the pretext of terrible Russia. In Ukraine, just like you, the Nazis live well behind the backs of ordinary citizens and ordinary citizens have to suffer, these are the same crimes in Ukraine as in the West. We have not broken any of our promises and your leaders have stolen 300 billion dollars and Euros from the Russian people. They steal the property of our country's citizens all over the world, you deliberately want our soldiers, ban the Russian language, attack the Church of God. I see that in countries where leaders are tightening sanctions against Russia, there is a growing awareness of what is happening and a wave of protests is spreading. Interesting piece, one hopes the telling of our story which is also their story, will ease their pain, concerns and malignment. To then come together as one and take back this world from the dark forces, once and for all.

MYSTERY SECTION: Last week we asked is this planet a lunatic asylum? The first topic was religion and for good reason. As when done in overview it makes no sense whatsoever. I asked the question of, Why do people go to church, but never develop themselves? The answer is they don't, as there is zero evidence globally of being attached to a religion makes you into a better person. It's like when I said 5 years ago on a show, there is not enough nice people. Predictably some were triggered by that, but they were triggered because they know it was true, but were not ready to face that harsh reality yet. There have been many examples of statements from this show, that you all have had to swallow the uncomfortable truth pill. This is a reality show, not an illusionary roadshow. But this was written by a religious person and is yet again another example of non-thinking before speaking or writing. A completely delusional thought process that is highly prevalent in religious settings. He said: The moon has been given a huge importance and significance in our religion, because the moon shines the light at night when we need it. Not like the sun which shines at the day, who needs the light at daytime? Once again it is proved that our religion is the most intelligent one. Moulana Khan a Muslim. Who needs light at daytime? Seriously? Mindboggling and furthers the notion of the lunatic asylum here. This is why the what is series we did at the end of the Blueprint shows is so important going forward. People have to learn to understand what they are actually saying and thinking and more importantly understand what is life, love and living.

This was written by a member and a poignant reminder to us all. To learn to embrace life with nature not just as an observer. Imagine a seed that can grow into a beautiful flower. Some may watch, lack or be not familiar with this kind of radiance. As the gardener went missing, trials arose to tear, give commands or promises, but even with flower's will, the light started to dim. The cycle repeats, with jealousy, resentment and endless disputes as to who it would belong to; with the floral family, forced to pretend and compete. Maybe as the first part is told, hope will recollect, a nurtured flower blooming, enriching the face of its friend within whom it grows. And along with the newly created species, restore the counterweight path once trodden. I hope that got you all pondering on a deeper level. Life is way deeper than just scratching the surface, once you dare to look.

The old adage of you can't teach the stupid, you can't teach the desperate either, following this hilarious piece. Scientists have submitted proposals for a new £17billion atom-smasher to help solve the mysteries of the universe. The Future Circular Collider (FCC) will be a 56.5-mile circular tunnel buried deep underground at the Swiss French border. FCC stands for F'ing Circus Clowns – just saying. It will be capable of accelerating particles to almost the speed of light before crashing them into each other, possibly shedding light on the mysterious dark matter and dark energy that make up 95 per cent of the universe. The FCC, proposed by the European Organization for Nuclear Research (CERN), will be triple the size of the 16.6-mile Large Hadron Collider at the same site. The Higgs Boson, also known as the God Particle, was first detected there in 2012. Erm, the god particle is us, not the Higgs Boson, but keep going. Unlike that machine, which is buried 260ft deep, the new one will have to go 650ft underground to prevent harmful radiation from reaching the surface. All of which means these clown-based machines leak radiation into the sub-soil, why aren't the people of Switzerland and France complaining about this ecological disaster?

Professor Fabiola Gianotti, director general of CERN, said: We need a larger collider because there are so many outstanding questions in fundamental physics today and in our knowledge of the universe. The professor needs a large collider in her brain, to smash the two brain cells she has together and see if it can produce some common sense. There are only so many outstanding questions because you miss the captain obvious within science and also the programs of lies. Fabiola Gianotti, director general of CERN is Jewish, what a particle smashing surprise that is. Particle accelerators have also played a role in cancer research. (M) They generate high-energy protons that precisely target cancer cells without damaging surrounding tissue, help researchers test new drugs and break down DNA to investigate the causes of cancer. To break down DNA was the key part, not the distraction of cancer curing. The new collider would not be up and running until the 2040s at the earliest, no it won't. It would be funded by CERN's 23 member states, including the UK. What this all reveals is, despite our claims that it no longer worked since August 2014-15 and theirs that it was all still working. Guess what? It wasn't. So the jackasses will try to build a new one and guess what? That will fail as well. CERN is a con, but don't be con -CERNed about it. Message to the clowns, how are you going to replace the non-corporeal ninjas? When this doesn't work will you build a newer one? because then you will have your own private, non-working, three ring circus.

Here is another example of their desperation and attempting to use technology to stop the flow, guess what? This won't work either. Climate scientists are developing an umbrella-like shade the size of Argentina, that would block the sun's rays to mitigate the effects of global warming on Earth. Is it climate or primate scientists, because they certainly lacking the thinking skills of HU-mans. Guess who wants to implement this hair-brained idea? The wild idea comes from Israeli researchers who believe the one-million-square-mile shade could reduce the Earth's temperature by 2.7 degrees Fahrenheit within two years. What does that tell you again? Have the Israelis ever done anything for anyone's benefit? Are they trying to terraform the planet for their species? The team at Technion-Israel Institute of Technology is seeking up to $20 million for a prototype of 100 square feet, which they said could be achieved by 2027. You couldn't dim the sun with your Rahu eclipse, what makes you think this will work? Lunacy from the moon cult strikes again. Just give up, you have lost.

Some poetic ponderings with song lines coming up now, born out of my break time, hope you enjoy them. Life has become about parroting on this planet, which in overview is an echo. It's an echo, echo, echo. Like the sound of a windmill going round, it bristles within the breeze. Like a laugh in the wind, it carries on the breeze and permeates those that touch it. But the breeze is at first the energy, the vibration then comes in to oscillate it and the energy or motion of the wind creates the sound or frequency. All of which was created by the thought. The stairway may lie on the whispering wind, but it is the thought that counts. But if thoughts are not your own, you become the parrot, vacuum and echo chamber. But an echo then brings in the vacuum and the chamber. A vacuum sucks up life and energy, until your last dying breathe. Is not the vacuum your own tomb? Is not the vacuum your own box? Is not the vacuum your energy drainer? Is not the vacuum your own creation? Is that all you can create? People have become their own vacuums sucking up the life force of others, in the non-soul advancement dance of service to self. Like a seaside trader you sel-fish, but the fish rots from the head down, does it not. The selfish rots from within, thinking only their lives matter. But it becomes a tomb, a tomb that loops within the simulated astral realm. The astral realm is the tomb, vacuum and echo chamber, sucking the life out of everything and never giving back. The real harvesters of sorrow. Why are they harvesters of sorrow? Because they did it to themselves. Cocooned in the vacuum of the self only, consumed by the arrogance of only they are important, forgetting that life is a spiral cycle and what goes around comes around. But isn't what goes around comes around, a loop? Which means you are not on the spiral cycle of rebirth, growth and expansion. The mobius loop is also a vacuum remember, it has no opening, gate or expansion. And eventually like the vacuum it closes in on itself. That is what service to self has, is and always will be, a vacuum of harvesting. But in harvesting you reap what you sow. Do you sow the seeds for us all to grow, or is sow a sow, a pig that consumes everything in front of it. The question then becomes, are you the greedy little piglet Cassandra accused us of? The chamber of the echo rippling within its confined spaces, in overview is the world's media. They are the echo chamber, parroting away the same words and sentences. A sentence is also a prison term is it not, why jail yourselves within the echo chamber? Everything they say is in the vacuum of life, but the vacuum consumes and ultimately consumes life itself. The vacuum of space they say, there is nothing there, Why? Because you forgot to create something? Forgot to see something? Forgot to hear something? Who did you forget to hear? YOU. Where is your vision? Is it mired in their vision for you in another vacuum, the television? You become boxed into the vacuum of their life, opinions and plans for you. They are telling you a vision of their making, if you follow it you then become their echo chamber. Lost in a sea of illusion, scrabbling around for the crumbs of life they present to you and you gladly tolerate it.

Final piece tonight. This is a poetic piece laced with lines from various songs that sing to us, yet all too often we ignore. This is a selection of my ponderings on my trips away recently, I labeled it the tour of destiny. As I stood at the precipice of life, rhyme and reasoning, looking down upon the valley of life. I was greeted with some sense of familiarity as the sun peered over the hills and breathed fire and new life into the morning air. Its radiance kissing away the morning dew and mist, almost like a recording of time. Flashbacks into an earlier time and space began to unfold, permeating the thoughts, heart and being. As a blaze of light caressed the new day and the feeling of the light overcoming the dark yet again. A mere candle in the vastness of space, blazing it's trail amongst the backdrop of the solar wind. Curiously, that wind never dims or blows the candle out, it doesn't even flicker. It is a reminder of life and its daily machinations we all face. Like the sun we are reminded that, you don't dance within the dark, you shine and ride the wave in a never ending flow. As time ultimately stands still in the moment, I look back on the horizon and realize I'm coming home. The home is a distant familiarity like the roar when my team has scored, the roar of the space shuttle, Da' Arya, a cave on a distant planet or being amongst the stars. Home is where the heart is they say, that much is true, but like heaven, it is also a state of being. Being in the moment, being in the all that ever was, as contentment and raw emotions take center stage. But on the ultimate stage of life, what role are you playing? Do the stage lights blind you and allow stage fright to overcome you? Or do you embrace those lights and become one with or within it? The choices of life and living are often overlooked within our busy daily lives. A great deflection as you self-contain yourself in an embryonic coat of uncertainty, illusion and accepted reality. But it's not real, it's someone else movie and part created for you, where is you? Who are you? Are you in the now or tied to some outpost like a tethered horse and echoing the distant past? Are you past or passed? If you have passed on, why is the past familiar? Death does not kiss away the echoes of the past, as it sings familiar songs to you as a reminder into the now. The sun rises like the rainbow and its coming home to your time, your space and your existence and will do so until my and its dying day. I don't want to spend my whole life in this town, I can feel it driving me away, maybe it's time to reach for higher ground, you've got to steal away? But how can you steal away on your own planet? As walking the valley can become like the shadow of death or it can breathe new life as the valley of kings. But kings and queens can blind your eyes and steal your dreams it is said, only if you allow it to. Standing tall and not immersing in the vast ocean of unsanity, retains the essence of you, providing you hold onto it. But what are you holding onto instead? Why does life ultimately tie me and bind, the proverbial gordian knot of my and our own making. As the sun came out of the black and into the blue, the clouds like an echo of the mist of time, danced all around it. Swirling and dancing in front of the light bearer, the torch, the beacon. The beacon is like a lighthouse sitting on the dock of a bay, watching the tide rolling away. Is the tide incoming or outgoing, the question really is, are you incoming or outgoing? Will the tide, tide you over? or create a new sequence of life to wash away the tears and previous moments of erosion at the beach head of life. Time is but a mere illusion making you sick of life itself, but a positive thought, memory or appearance erodes that sickness and illusion. Time is always a medical emergency, unless you control it and you. I have no time people say, yet why can't you fill that no time with something better, than what went before? Because you became the tide, rolling in and out whilst eroding yourself away by creating chaos. Chaos becomes a random event they say, not if it is the same movie reel playing over and over again it's not. Life then becomes grave, bogged down by the mud, hampered by the prickly thickets, as the river flows beneath your feet. But ambling through that wooded valley, gave rise to hope and the chance to reach for higher ground and the overview vantage point. From there you can feel the vibration around you, oscillating and reaching a crescendo. A realization then dawns upon you, you can become one of the sheep meandering through the valley of mud or reach for higher ground and be touched by the rays of the sun. Life then becomes the weather barometer, cold, damp and lonely or you can be touching the warmth of the sun, that echoes within us all. Life is all about choices, life is what you make it, but if you choose to make it death, then rest your soul. Life can be wearing in vocal terms, but which wear are we saying or referring to, as there are 4 variants of wear (where, were, wear and ware). Is it a place, a house, something to put on or a past or future statement? Were always unsure of where we are, as the weather within decides what we wear in or out of the house. Life is but a dream, but who is creating it? Them or you? Who is them you may ask, who is you is the reply. Do you fulfill your dreams? Do the dreams fulfill you? Or do your dreams wash away on the tide of life, like another missed opportunity? Will you ebb or flow? Will your flower bloom or wilt? Will you embrace the light or disintegrate within the dark and become a void. An endless empty vessel navigating the River Styx, like riding an endless caravan as you were bonded and sold or souled as a slave. How did or can you become lost, when you never found yourself to begin with? As I snap out of this dream within a dream, within a dream whilst fulfilling the dream. I am reminded of that misty morning on the edge of time, we lost the rising sun, the final sign. But the final sign of what? Your choice as always, your responsibility as well, to create and be something new. Or the shadow of the valley of death embraces you like the lost children of the sea. But in that moment of pain and suffering, the wind of change came tumbling down and washed that desperation and sadness away. All was not lost, it just required a rescue mission of sorts. But who or what was being rescued is always lost by immersion, but not from the panoramic overview hilltop that became home for a day or two, but will last an eternity. I again returned to thoughts of my dream, with tears in my eyes and emotions sitting heavy upon my soul, I remembered something that plagued my past and will one day take a place in my future of: I can hear the sound of a windmill going round, it will always go around, providing you don't stop it or you. Anyone can have a heart one song says, but not if you have made up your own mind, you won't. Tomorrow may belong to me, but it also belongs to us all if and when we all learn to get out of our own way. When we learn to fly, flourish, prosper and love to the best of our abilities. All whilst remembering to support each other, the neglect of each other is also a neglect of the self. Life is a bitter sweet symphony, but who is playing and who's conducting the orchestra? You or them? My name is human we may sing, but have we proven it to ourselves and each other? What we have here is a failure to communicate, we don't need your civil war, yet do we not have civil war between our own two hemispheres? War? What is it good for? Absolutely nothing, but then why do we dance IN its field within ourselves? Whose got my back now, when all I have left is deceptive, so disconnected, what is the truth now? I then ponder what is this life for? Can I take myself higher, that I have always done. We all ask I wanna know what love is, yet do we embrace it when it unfolds or does it become a rhetorical question? You give love a bad name the song says, the question is who does that? The answer is we all do, until we change us, the change is not gonna come within or without. It's the final countdown, but countdown to what? Only you decide that destiny and path. Until we all learn to I will fix you, we will remain like the lost children of the sea. But the light will always guide you home, ignite your souls and provide the courage to fix you, yourself. The love of life will always light your beacons and keep the darkness at bay. Spread your wings and you will see, you control your destiny, when all is said and done. Time to set your sails and path.
