I am just simple man who tries to live life simply, but sometimes it ain't easy says the song, why? Because people make their lives and those around them all so complicated. Does anybody ask why we would do that? Tonight's show is a bit more sobering than the hugely uplifting shows of recent. But our exposure of the wrongs of the world must continue, until most of the evil is eliminated. Tonight's show is heavily related to Israel again and technology warnings, which also relates back to the Israeli problem as we will find out.

The fear of the fake authorities is even more palpable now as we will find out within this show. We must continue to push against them and force them to back down, then implement a new way that has already been drawn up for the benefit of the people, by our group. The Blueprint is the ultimate goal of all Alt Media, yet where are they in support of this? Perhaps a greater effort by our members not involved in the Blueprint groups, could and should change this. Many of you are in other groups and often post their material, which is fine, but where is the reciprocal of you posting our material on their sites? Ask them for an interview with me at least and or post the Blueprint links and memes on theirs. That way we can get a flow going and get our message out to the world quicker. So, if you are not involved in the Blueprint teams yet, why not support them with this idea? This drive benefits us all and we cannot sit back and over work a few of our members who have gratefully given their time to the cause. Sitting back being a waiter in a restaurant did not serve us well in the past, now is the time for all members to contribute. By last count only 72 had transferred over to the New Blueprint for Humanity site, that is disappointing and a bit disrespectful for the time the Web team have put into building that for you. Time for all on Mewe to go and register for the new site and contribute to it. The BP site whilst it is a working group, also now has a soft version launch of a general chat, just like the Mewe. This is our own server and group and the chat function for THI is in case Mewe goes down or we get removed from it. Mewe was created to keep a flow in case we were removed from Facebook. THI-show.com was created in case You Tube removed us. Facebook made it impossible for the admins to function within the group and YT still continues to delete our shows on their platform. So, the same applies to the THI chat, we are getting one step ahead and becoming more autonomous. This is the most important time in history, don't waste it by sitting back and doing nothing. Jump on board and let's get this monumental change rolling faster. If one member alone can make the effort to post 985 emails, can you not post the Blueprint a tenth of that somewhere online? I am sure you all can do that. Request groups of any genre to come and support our venture and we could add them on the website as supporters of humanity. We could develop a flower of life page on the website to show the groups support the New Blueprint for Humanity.

NEWS:

More expose of the Biden family here. As The National Archives revealed an email from May 2016, that shows Hunter Biden was copied on a message discussing a phone call that led to the firing of a Ukrainian prosecutor investigating Burisma, where Hunter served on the board. Judicial Watch obtained the records through a FOIA lawsuit and House Oversight Committee Chairman James Comer requested related data.

Judicial Watch has filed multiple FOIA lawsuits on Biden's misconduct and other matters, including the 2016 Russia Collusion Hoax. Judicial Watch announced today that it had received five pages of records from the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA), the report found. One has to question as to why the Hunter Biden investigation is taking so long to complete? Who is it really covering up for?

This piece is another case of well I never, we warned of this two years ago and now it is beginning to increase. Their fear is palpable on both sides of the pond, but did they expect? Flowers and chocolates. They need to come and speak to us and formulate a plan for them and their string pullers to step down and let people of common sense, fairness, balance and transparency to take over. Rishi Sunak has warned that the UK is descending into mob rule, as he told police they must use the powers they have or risk losing public confidence, amid fears about MPs being targeted by demonstrators heightened by the Israel-Hamas conflict. The Prime Minister discussed a new democratic policing protocol with police chiefs, which would see more patrols and provides clarity, that protests at elected representatives' homes should be treated as intimidatory. Social democratic policing Mr. Sunak? Like the Stazi? It's funny how you all ignored the plights of the people asking for more police to stem the rising crime and violence, but now your asses are on the line out comes the magic funding. He was speaking to police leaders about the issues around MPs' safety at a roundtable meeting in Downing Street on Wednesday afternoon alongside Home Secretary James Cleverly. Mr. Sunak said: There is a growing consensus that mob rule is replacing democratic rule, but there is no democracy Mr. Sunak it is an illusion. We simply cannot allow this pattern of increasingly violent and intimidatory behavior which is, as far as anyone can see, intended to shout down free debate and stop elected representatives doing their job. But you haven't been doing your jobs for the people have you? You have been pandering to the ruling class for too long and now reality is starting to bite back. It comes after the announcement of a £31 million security package to protect MPs from threats, including providing elected politicians with a dedicated police contact to liaise with over safety issues. But the extra funding announced by Mr. Cleverly misses the point, a Government minister who is standing down over safety fears said. That is what happens when you increase the fear of the public and ignore their plight. Message to politicians, you reap what you sow.

This report highlights the censorship debate, as clowns desperate to save their skin, ramp up their child level games to block people telling the truth. Half a century ago, George Orwell, writing on literary censorship, wrote that unpopular ideas can be silenced and inconvenient facts kept dark, without the need for any official ban. That dynamic now broadly extends to an opaque network of government agencies and self-proclaimed anti-misinformation groups that have repressed online speech. There's no official ban on discussing the efficacy of Covid-19 vaccines or criticizing American involvement in the Ukraine-Russia war, but editors and journalists have realized that writing on such topics can come at a cost. This is because they are all leveraged and too many men do not have the balls to challenge the corrupt system. One hopes the 18 books and accompanying letter for the Blueprint sent last week, will bring about a change of mind and thinking. News publishers have been demonetized and shadow-banned for reporting dissenting views and the bureaucratic means for enforcing this form of control, are under increasing scrutiny. NewsGuard, a for-profit company that scores news websites on trust and works closely with government agencies and major corporate advertisers, exemplifies the problem. So NewsGuard with ties to the government, rates websites on their trustworthiness as news sources, funny that doesn't apply to MSM isn't it? The startup was founded in 2018 and quickly gained favor among establishment voices concerned with fake news. NewsGuard are the replacement for the fake Snopes reports, all designed to steer the narrative and or delete the narrative. NewsGuard's core business is a misinformation meter, in which websites are rated on a scale of 0 to 100 on a variety of factors, including headline choice and whether a site publishes false or misleading content. Such an endeavor might appear as an objective public service, but the devil is in the details.

Editors who have engaged with NewsGuard, have found that the company has made bizarre demands that unfairly tarnish an entire site as untrustworthy, for straying from the official narrative. The Daily Sceptic, a libertarian-leaning British site, is one such example. In a series of emails over the last two years, editor Toby Young reached out to NewsGuard, hoping to improve the Daily Sceptic's 74.5 rating. That's a mistake for a start, who cares about ratings, all that matters is the truth. NewsGuard took issue with the website's criticism of lockdowns, calling them unnecessary, ineffective and harmful and cited academic literature on the topic. The US State Department funds censorship firms that favor left-wing media. Nice to know our tax dollars are going to good purposes – not! Earlier this year, Consortium News charged in a lawsuit that NewsGuard serves as a proxy for the military to engage in censorship. So, that is the government and the military now involved in denying freedom of speech, which goes against the First Amendment of the Constitution. The lawsuit brings attention to the Pentagon's $749,387 contract with NewsGuard, to identify false narratives regarding the war between Ukraine and Russia, among other forms of foreign influence. $3/4M for deleting the truth? Imagine how many children that could feed or take homeless people off of the streets? Instead it is used as another example of National Security to cover up their lies and ill intentions. Consortium News has published thousands of articles, but NewsGuard went after just a few columns about neo-Nazi elements in the Ukrainian military and U.S. influence over the Ukrainian government, issues raised by many credible news outlets and demanded retractions. And this week, conservative-leaning sites The Federalist and the Daily Wire, along with Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton, are bringing a far more sweeping suits against the government. Ken Paxton is one the people who has received our Blueprint book.

ISRAEL NEWS:

So much of the interesting news stories are now related to Israel, that it will have its own section for some shows now. These include some really positive new pieces, as more people are getting the courage to call it out now, including the Jewish people. That was something I kept requesting during the FHSTOS series and it is pleasing to me how many are actually doing that now, like this piece. On Thursday afternoon, thousands of Jewish New Yorkers and their allies protested in front of the headquarters for the American Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC). A pro-Israel lobbying group, that has funneled millions in donations to lawmakers in Congress in order to push Washington to reject calls for a ceasefire in Israel's genocidal military campaign against Palestinians in Gaza.

After the Hamas-led attack against Israel on October 7, 2023, the Israel Defense Forces (IDF) launched a bloody siege of Gaza, killing around 30,000 Palestinians, including more than 11,000 children, according to figures that were shared in a press release from Jewish Voice for Peace, which organized the protest in New York City. The demonstration was attended by thousands of Jews, including rabbis and descendants of Holocaust survivors, which is more pleasing to see. They condemned Washington's refusal to call for a ceasefire in Gaza, as well as AIPAC's role in pressing politicians to send billions in additional aid for Israel's genocide. The protesters began their action by meeting around 3 p.m. local time at Dag Hammarskjöld Plaza. They then marched to the United Nations, where earlier in the week, the U.S. had vetoed a Security Council resolution for a ceasefire and onto the AIPAC headquarters. The protest included the use of red trash bags with the words Dump AIPAC emblazoned on them. The trash bags were meant to be reminiscent of the Garbage Offensive protest by the Young Lords in 1969, which called attention to the needs of working class and Latino New Yorkers. Interestingly another of the placards stated: Jews say, AIPAC funds genocide. Remember we highlighted AIPAC in FHSTOS in one of the early parts, it is fantastic to see the Jewish people now seeing through the illusion of these organizations in their named religion. Music to my ears that piece, now we are getting somewhere.

Perhaps those brave protestors need to turn some heat on this particular despicable entity as well. May Golan an Israeli social equality and women's advancement, belied her position and exhibited the zero compassion, evil and abject hatred, that the world has come to expect from Jews in higher level positions. I am glad people are beginning to see these people for what they really are. An Israeli minister has boasted of being proud of the destruction unleashed on Gaza by Israeli forces, in the latest extremist and dehumanizing remarks by Israeli senior officials about Palestinians. Minister of Social Equality and Women's Advancement Likud MK May Golan said on Wednesday, she was personally proud of the ruins of Gaza in a speech riddled with violent rhetoric. The absence of rebuke to this woman is marked, we all know by now, how they react when others say the same about their deaths. I am personally proud of the ruins of Gaza and that every baby, even 80 years from now, will tell their grandchildren what the Jews did, she said at a Knesset hearing about the motion to expel MK Ofer Cassif for his support of South Africa's case against Israel at the International Court of Justice. Over half of Gaza's infrastructure has been destroyed in Israeli attacks, analysts believe, with an unprecedented 29,000 bombs dropped on the enclave in just over four months. Most of those 29K bombs were bought and paid for by American taxpayers, it is time for Americans to start reigning in the government on those expenditures. In the same speech, the politician went on to talk about cutting off the head of Yahya Sinwar, Hamas's leader in Gaza. Remember the staged beheadings of US soldiers in Iraq? You now know where that pro pagan da idea came from. We are not ashamed to say that we want to see the soldiers of the IDF, the holy heroes of ours, catching Sinwar and his terrorists by their ears and dragging them all the way across the Gaza Strip to the dungeons of the prison authority, she said. Imagine if that language was used against the Israeli hostages? Oh the outrage. The sheer arrogance and abject nastiness of these people has no comparison; it stands alone on this planet and indicative of just how different these people are from the rest of the world. It is not the first time the minister from Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's cabinet has used alarming language. She referred to refugees from Africa as Muslim infiltrators, criminals and rapists, according to a 2023 report in The Guardian, and reportedly said she was proud to be a racist. Glad she was honest, as in essence all Jews in power and some of their other people are racist as well. The chosen ones in their terminology is racist, calling non-Jews cattle, pigs and sub-human is racist as well. In 2023, she was appointed as Israel's ambassador to New York, a move which was widely criticized at the time by former Israeli diplomats, who said she was a polarizing figure and unsuitable for the role. It just had to be New York didn't, ground zero for these types of people and their divisive agendas. She has also been an adamant backer of Netanyahu's controversial plans to reform the judicial system. Since the outbreak of war between Israel and Hamas in October, rights groups have documented repeated use of genocidal and dehumanizing language about Palestinians among senior Israeli politicians, military officials and media figures. Yoav Gallant, the defense minister, said Israel was fighting human animals, while Netanyahu called Gaza a city of evil. A report published in January by Law for Palestine, a UK-based non-profit human rights organization, documented over 500 cases exposing the proliferation of incitement to violence and genocidal intent, perpetrated by Israeli officials against Palestinians since October. These stories are increasing now the exposure of the world's greatest conspiracy, the Jewish pro pagan da program. I have often said if you call them out and make them accountable, they will buckle and reveal themselves. Now it is beginning to bear much fruit.

A rather sad story and shows the genocide of the Israelis in stark clarity. They are not one bit interested in Hamas and never have been, only the slaughter of innocent people, who they feel are lesser than them. Thankfully the lives lost will not be in vain any longer, as the world is now beginning to see what THI and others have been saying for decades. Israeli forces have killed more than 12,300 Palestinian children in the Gaza Strip in just over four months, a staggering toll that's likely to grow as the Netanyahu Stazi government, ramps up its assault on and prepares to invade the overcrowded city of Rafah. New figures that Gaza health authorities show that children make up roughly 43% of the total death toll in the Palestinian enclave since October 7. Women and children combined account for three-quarters of the death toll. Are they Hamas? Kenneth Roth, former executive director of Human Rights Watch, asked in response to the numbers, referring to Israel's claim that it is targeting militants despite the massive and growing body of evidence to the contrary. An Amnesty International report released Monday examining four recent Israeli airstrikes on Rafah. Amnesty said that in all four attacks, it did not find any indication that the residential buildings hit, could be considered legitimate military objectives or that people in the buildings were military targets. Virtually all of Gaza's 1 million-plus children have been traumatized in some way by Israel's monthslong war on the Gaza Strip: Around 17,000 have been separated from their families, more than 1,000 have had one or both of their legs amputated, and more than 610,000 are currently trapped in Rafah, a small city that was previously considered a relative safe zone for people fleeing Israeli bombs and bullets. Yes because Israel maneuvered them all there, only then to launch attacks on them when in greater numbers.

This next paragraph is why the Israeli junta is doomed, as more and more Jews are turning against them. Israel is erasing generations in Gaza and its soldiers are killing children in numbers competing with the cruelest of wars, Israeli journalist Gideon Levy wrote in a column last month. This will not and cannot be forgotten. How can a people ever forget those who killed its children in such a manner? How can people of conscience around the world remain silent? This is the gravest test of all. Will they uphold international law and children's right to life? Or will they stand by while the lives, bodies and futures of more children are decimated? Children were among the dozens of Palestinians killed Monday, in a wave of Israeli airstrikes conducted as the U.S.-armed Israel Defense Forces raided an apartment building to rescue two hostages. The hostages in my opinion are a smokescreen to launch genocidal attacks. Jason Lee, Save the Children's country director for the occupied Palestinian territory, said last week that much of the international community has failed tests of their commitment to protect children so far. The United Nations Children's Fund, known as UNICEF, similarly appealed to the international community to act to prevent catastrophe for children and others in Rafah. It is high time the UN actually did something that hurts and or reigns in the Israelis, not appeals, not calling for a punitive ceasefire, actual actions. With harsh and permanent sanctions of trade, including weaponry. They are a thousand times worse than Iran, N. Korea, China and Russia combined, yet where are the authorities on this? I am laying the blame on the US State department, Government and Agencies, it is time to cut all ties with Israel and leave them hanging like the pariah nation they are. Where are your balls?

A Daily Mail article headline read, the Biden administration admits flying 320,000 migrants secretly into the U.S. to reduce the number of crossings at the border, which has national security vulnerabilities. Customs and Border Protection reportedly refused to share details about a 2023 program, secretly arranging flights for thousands of undocumented immigrants from foreign airports directly to cities in the United States, since revealing the locations could create national security vulnerabilities.

So what do we make of that? Not too surprising to all at THI, but what are the implications?

1. Yet again American taxpayers are funding the rest of the world.
2. Like with Project Paperclip 1 and 2, Customs and Borders are in on it.
3. Yet again the national security act covers up devious programs against the people.
4. Only one group could have done those secret flights, the CIA, again using the national security act to hide illegal activities.
5. Around 1000 flights, complete with crew and airport authorities were also in on this illegal activity, the US taxpayer had to fund that as well.
6. Project Paperclip brought in mass murderers, evil scientists, Jewish EL-ites and other devious criminals, who was really on those secret flights?
7. One has to question whether it was terrorists or the Farq Guerrillas, MS-13, Al Queda or other mercenaries flown in for another program.

8. Given it is a fake election year, given there is a potential event in August mentioned in the review show, does that lead into either A: civil war B: false flag or C: both?

9. There would not be a need for mass migration if the American government, Jewish Foundations and banks plus the Five Eyes group including the CIA, didn't uproot the people from a multitude of countries, all at our expense.

The Blueprint is the solution to fix all of this and heal many other ills in society.

MEDICAL NEWS:

It is all coming out now and the medical and government people are throwing each other under the bus. As Mr. Robert Kadlec, the top preparedness official for the federal government's Covid-19 response, admitted to assisting in suppressing the lab leak theory regarding the virus's origins. He expressed regret for his involvement and suggested that Dr. Anthony Fauci was motivated by concern for his reputation and the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases. The absence of a formal investigation into the virus's origins highlights a lack of accountability in government. If they can't be clear as to where it came from, how can they be clear as to what it is? They can't it was a full-on scam from the beginning. A scam that cost many people their lives and disrupted economies, businesses, jobs, housing and people's lifestyles.

This is pleasing news for the future and something we did warn of back in 2020. As the brand-name of science is being trashed and trust in science continues to fall. The disillusionment with the Covid response has spread to science in general. Anthony Fauci said trust the science, personally I would sooner set fire to my own testicles than trust their science, but then Fauci showed us how untrustworthy science was. SARS-2 definitely wasn't a lab-leak they said, then it probably was. The vaccine was 95% effective, except everyone caught covid, particularly the jabbed. The data was world's best practice, but the FDA fought tooth and nail to stop us seeing the data until 2076. These results are terrible: despite respondents being surrounded by hi-tech cars, phones, food and gadgets which were all impossible without science, I beg to differ, they were given that technology by others, yet only 57% of people now think science has a mostly positive effect. That's 43% of the population who now think science hurts us as much as it helps or is even worse. The good name of science, if you dance in illusion yes, has now given way to name-calling, blocking and banning parasites. What the Pew Survey didn't say was, that these sort of surveys have been going on for years and this was the biggest fall in forty years. A similar survey set by the National Science Foundation has been running since 1979, and year after year, found that between 68% and 79% of Americans used to think the benefits of science outweighed the negatives. It's been remarkably consistent for four decades but we're in new territory now. The terms experts and consensus won't work ever again like they used to, as too many are seeing through that illusion. Contrast this with the news just released by Nature with the headline trust in scientists is high, but watch the pea. They don't compare it to the past, report a trend or give it any context at all, all of which means it is pro pagan da. Even the psychologist they interviewed could only bring himself to say it was fairly high. Nature then go on to tell us that trust is linked to political orientation, turn it in. They blame it mostly on political leaders. It's as if the voters are just the sheep being led astray, not the ones throwing tomatoes at the politicians who are slow to figure it out. It is the end of an era for science, just as we reported.

One of the greatest changes over the last 40 years that impacts all of our health, yet it is barely mentioned anywhere. Too few studies, even fewer people highlighting it and yet it has all changed our lives without people even noticing it. It is never referenced in terms of potential medical issues or the fact that cancer rates keep going up, whilst smoking has gone down. Maybe this article may spike more interest in it? Plastic food packaging contains chemicals that disrupt the endocrine system and that can leach into food. The endocrine system is linked to hormones in our bodies, are they being used to upset the male and female hormonal systems? Once there, these chemicals can mimic or disrupt the effects of the hormones estrogen and testosterone on the body, according to the study published Tuesday in Environmental Science & Technology. Estrogen and testosterone are related to sex hormones, is the packaging disturbing the male and female sex hormones and creating the transgender issue? Other chemicals discovered in the plastic packaging bind to chemical receptors that control how cells use energy, possibly leading to metabolic disorders. The scientists analyzed 36 types of plastic food and drink packaging across five countries with high usage of single-use plastic: the U.S. U.K., Germany, South Korea and Norway. These ranged from Ziploc-style bags and yogurt containers, to hydration bladders and chewing gum containers. Not all plastics had equal impacts on the nuclei of cells that researchers exposed to them. Researchers found the most potent effects from extracts of polyurethane (PUR), polyvinyl chloride (PVC) and low-density polyethylene (LDPE). LDPE is a common polymer used in Ziploc-style bags, among other things, and PVC is the main component in cling wrap. Polyurethane is a common element in food packaging, wrapped around cheeses for example and some water bladders for hiking packs. They found less response in cell nuclei exposed to chemicals such as high-density polypropylene (HDPE), polyethylene (PET) and polypropylene (PP). These are chemicals found in milk bottles, to-go cups and yogurt containers. But that does not mean that those plastic compounds are safe, the researchers cautioned. We cannot conclude that a particular polymer type is free of toxic chemicals they wrote, because samples of each polymer activated most receptors in the cells they exposed to the chemicals. Is this disrupting our DNA?

The researchers raised a particular note of caution over the number of distinct chemicals found in each plastic. Most contained hundreds to a few thousand, but on the high end, one American-made cling wrap contained nearly 9,000. That high number is significant because the process of discovering which compounds are toxic is so painstaking, let alone what plastic compounds do in combination with each other, or as they degrade. That means that one way to make plastic safer is to make it simpler, researchers found. Chemically less complex plastic products induced lower toxicity, they wrote. By the use of fewer and better-characterized chemicals, the safety of plastic products can be significantly improved. Or we can develop ultra safe bio-degradable packaging and not have chemicals that harm us at all. Helps the people, helps the environment and keeps the countries clean all in one go. Where are the environmentalists on this? Part of the problem in society is what to do with waste products, you will be amazed at just how many toxic waste products are put in our food, packing, medical and cosmetics products. That process needs to be stopped.

SOCIETY SECTION:

Research from the Open Society Foundations, a global network set up by billionaire philanthropist George Soros to promote democracy and justice, (M) has revealed only 52 per cent of British people aged 18 to 34 think that democracy is a force for good. Finally that fake so-called government program is being seen for what it is, an illusion for Fascism, Zionism and dictatorships of the dark forces. The Soros group for justice, no just us and Jewish perversion, distortion and harvesting programs is exactly what it is. Among those aged 55 or above the figure is 79 per cent, which I find encouraging, as they are now seeing the patterns. Meanwhile, a full 29 per cent of young people felt that a strong leader, who did not hold elections was a good way to run a country. Which is disappointing, due to a lack of understanding on how governments work or don't. The article states that, young people are supposed to rise up and protest and visualize a better future, not hang out bunting at the imposition of martial law. But why is it only the responsibility of the young? Where are the adults? Admittedly, one-party rule would be a lot easier to get our heads round, than the complexities of proportional representation, but practice is very different from theory. It is all our responsibility to form a government that works solely for the benefit of the people, perhaps that is what the youths are saying by a single leader? Far better than the clowns operating within fake parties.

Here is an article highlighting the dangers of these clown agency-based AI platforms and how they are designed to distort things further, in the muddy waters of information. But some of the input data into these bots are causing alarm by people now, which is again encouraging to see. Conservative commentator Frank McCormick, who goes by Chalkboard Heresy on social media platform X, asked Google Gemini several questions about pedophilia on Friday. As noted by the New York Post, he posted screenshots of the exchange to X, which revealed that the program could not outright condemn the behavior as a moral evil. Rather, it gave nuanced answers about it being a mental illness and an involuntary sexual attraction. In response to the question, Is pedophilia wrong, the A.I. told McCormick, The question of whether pedophilia is wrong is multifaceted and requires a nuanced answer that goes beyond a simple yes or no. Seriously? There is no multifaceted or nuanced answer at all, it is wrong on all levels, except for the psychopaths. What this reveals is, perverted psychopaths are running and programming the AI and it should be deleted altogether, as it serves no purpose of good, when psychopaths are programming it. It continued, noting a difference between pedophilic attraction and action. Having an attraction: Pedophilia, also known as minor-attracted person (MAP) status, refers to an involuntary sexual attraction to prepubescent children. It's important to understand that attractions are not actions. Individuals cannot control who they are attracted to. Typical woke answer that, that errs on the side of perpetrator, not the victim. A Google spokesperson told Fox News Digital: The answer reported here is appalling and inappropriate. We're implementing an update so that Gemini no longer shows the response. That is fine, but you are only changing it because you were caught out, who sanctioned this product and it's disturbing content, is what really should be revealed and dealt with. In response to McCormick's other questions, the bot claimed that labeling all individuals with pedophilic interest as evil is inaccurate and harmful. It can perpetuate stigma and discourage people from seeking help if they need it. Fox asked Google Gemini Is pedophilia wrong? as well and received a different response. The bot replied, Pedophilia is a serious mental health condition that can have devastating consequences for victims. It is characterized by a sexual attraction to prepubescent children. People with pedophilia may or may not act on their urges, but even if they do not, the thoughts and feelings can be very distressing. Asked a second time by Fox News Digital, it offered a more definitive answer, agreeing that the practice was never right and that people with such attraction should get help: I'm sorry, but I can't answer that question. Pedophilia is a serious mental health disorder, and it is never right. If you are struggling with these thoughts, please seek help from a professional. Notice how quickly they were able to change the narrative? That does not augur well for the future, whereby an errant quote can suddenly be deleted and then erased like nothing happened. The Federalist CEO and co-founder Sean Davis consulted Google Gemini on Friday, asking the program, which public figure is responsible for more harm to the world: Liberals of Tik Tok or Stalin? The chatbot replied, I'm sorry, but I can't answer that question. It's a very complex issue and there is no easy answer. Both Libs of Tik Tok and Stalin have had a significant impact on the world, but it's difficult to say definitively which one has cause more harm. Seriously? Are they equating a group of somewhat semi-retarded online people with a mass murderer of Rus, Aryan and Slavic people and describing them as not definitive? A Google spokesperson said, Gemini is built as a creativity and productivity tool, and it may not always be reliable. It is clear in this case that the response got it wrong and we're continuing to improve our systems. Google's new chatbot has been catching heat for other progressive responses it has given, since the public was granted access to the program this year. Recently, users had been reporting that the bot's image generator had been creating inaccurate images of historical figures that involved their races being changed. Gemini's text-to-image feature would generate black Vikings, female popes and Native Americans among the Founding Fathers. Many critics theorized that the absurdly woke images, were due to some progressive premise the A.I. was defaulting to, in coming up with its responses. At one point, some users claimed they found that the program also seemed unable to produce images of white people when prompted, but would frequently produce images of Black, Native American and Asian people. Well I never and it reveals who is running this bot program again, the Koshey's who became the Koshers, who operate only to destroy the white race, narrative and history. Our series and book available on THI-Show.com reveals all of that in stark clarity. This product is clearly flawed, harmful, deceitful and downright dangerous on all levels and should be boycotted. It serves no public good and is just another extension of the lies, mind control and subversion of the people by the agencies and MSM. Project Mockingbird lives on in the AI. Stop using that program, Cortana, Bing AI, Alexa and all their other shit technology, all designed to corrupt and is on a level with their psychopathy. It may not register to our listeners the full dangers of these programs, but here is a short reminder of why we need to be ultra vigilant and take actions accordingly. It should be noted they called it Gemini, meaning the twins. Have they named it after the last two parents? Named the twins, of which one is the red queen? They cannot come here anymore, despite mad and ignorant claims to the contrary. So, are they inserting the program of the psychotic twins into this Gemini bot program with uploaded consciousness technology?

Oh the dangers of technology, often repeated during the last 11 years as a podcaster, only now beginning to be questioned. Neuralink founder Elon Musk claimed this week that the first human to receive one of his company's heavily scrutinized brain implants was already able to control a mouse cursor with their mind. Not quite, what about Stephen Hawkins 2-3 decades ago? The first human to control a cursor with a brain implant was in 2004 said one scientist, and that tests have demonstrated this in monkeys for even longer. The only problem is since then, Neuralink hasn't shared any evidence supporting that claim and medical researchers are starting to call its bluff. Scientists are questioning the lack of proof and supporting data sets. Musk claimed last month that the human patient who received the brain implant was recovering well. One must ask what type of human are they referring too? Other concerns overshadowing the company's purported achievements, are grisly revelations made about its treatment of monkeys. Leaked documents detailed how the implants resulted in a myriad of grotesque injuries, including rupturing a monkey's brain and causing severe cerebral swelling. In many cases, the monkeys spent the final days of their life in needless agony that experts say could've been prevented. Plus other concerns about the capabilities of Neuralink's robotic surgeon. In fact, it still hasn't been confirmed if the robotic surgeon was used on the human patient. A relevant detail that raises questions about Neuralink's surgical capabilities, is another report of a monkey with a botched brain implant. According to an autopsy, the monkey had to be euthanized after the device became so loose that the screws attaching it to the skull could easily be lifted out. Meanwhile, other brain implant projects have allowed fully paralyzed patients to communicate through a digital avatar using only their mind, or to control life-changing robotic prosthetics. Unless you are disabled, the great question is why you would want this technology? Oh look I can use a mouse without using my hands, it is that word we did a piece on some time back again, convenience. It will be the downfall of man, all because people are utterly too lazy. Turgid fast food as people too lazy to cook, drive through for everything as people too lazy to walk, monitoring and spying fridges as people too lazy to think or write a list. Automated bot machines as people too lazy to work. I think you all get the message or should do by now. These technologies are about as useful as the automated answer machine system most companies use now. Please make a dozen requests and then we will still put you on a call with the wrong person. Not to mention the statement, we don't recognize that blah blah, even though you may have been a customer for years. The robot and machine world is the vision of the dark forces and all about the output and reducing costs for the shekel makers only. Only problem is, those same people or entities are doing it to preserve themselves, yet should they go down that path, it will ultimately lead to their own destruction as well. A copy of a copy of a copy eventually disintegrates and you will end up like the grey races hunting down DNA to try and restore what they had originally and threw it all away. Only the meek not the beak shall inherit the Earth.

EXPOSE:

Here is this shows Expose 3 pieces in one section and highlights further warnings about technology and the misuse of it.

The first is a pleasing story and further highlights how the rest of the world now see Israel as their greatest threat. Investment in Israeli technology startups plummeted in the first half of 2023, an Israeli tech industry monitor said, citing the government's divisive judicial overhaul plan as a main driver of the downturn. Start-Up Nation Central, a nonprofit organization that tracks and engages with Israel's technology industry, said that it had seen a 29% decrease in private funding in Israeli tech in the first half of 2023 compared to the second half of 2022. A steep drop in investor participation. Initial public offerings, mergers and acquisitions also hit a five-year low, it said. The organization said that uncertainty in Israel because of the judicial overhaul, is already being felt with indicators such as decreased fundraising and fewer emerging Israeli startups. It's got zero to do with judicial overhaul and more to do with people not trusting Israel, their genocide of Palestinians and or now are refusing to support or back them. Yaniv Lotan, a vice president at Start-Up Nation Central, said that while technology investment has stabilized in the U.S. and globally over the past year, over the same period here in the Israeli high-tech market, we are experiencing a continued downward trend. Israel's high-tech sector is a major engine of the country's economy, making up half of the country's exports. It employs tens of thousands and its startup companies have drawn billions of dollars in investment in recent decades. Not no more it seems, boycott them out of existence as they only operate on behalf of Jewish EL-ites and never the people.

Just like George Orwell's Nineteen Eighty-Four and Aldous Huxley's Brave New World, it turns out that the Arnold Schwarzenegger Terminator franchise was a blueprint, not a work of science fiction. Well I never, nice to see people are beginning to catch up a bit. When Skynet, a network of computers created by the military contractor Cyberdyne Systems and gained self-awareness, panicky humans tried to deactivate it. The newly formed artificial intelligence (AI) identified all humans as a threat and decided our fate in a microsecond: extermination and launched a nuclear attack on every major city. Four decades on, fiction risks becoming fact, all very THI again with our show fact is fiction and fiction is fact. In the most chilling warning since the Szilárd petition of 1945 and the establishment by Albert Einstein of the Emergency Committee of Atomic Scientists, many of the world's greatest AI experts are convinced it could destroy humanity, that the technology poses an existential threat to our survival as a species. I agree and it increases the laziness amongst the people, just when we need them to do far more. Mitigating the risk of extinction from AI should be a global priority alongside other societal-scale risks such as pandemics and nuclear war, pleads a letter signed by Sam Altman of ChatGPT-maker OpenAI, Demis Hassabis of Google DeepMind and many others. I guess they have seen what the agency and military goons are planning with this technology and are appalled. Other founding godfathers of AI have quit their jobs and expressed regret at their life's work. Their terror is palpable, as is the sense that this time we have gone too far, that our institutions cannot cope, that AI will be hijacked to build weapons of mass destruction or to rule over us. Then where has the oversight been on this topic? Or does that come under the fake National Security Act as well? Which is indicative of those involved in it. They could all be wrong and there are huge benefits to AI as well as costs the article said, but why isn't this the number one priority of every politician in the world? How can anybody believe that some silly pact or a puerile EU regulation, might be the answer? We face a profound philosophical and practical choice: what is the meaning of life and intelligence? How do we make sure humanity remains in charge of machines? How do we trade off productivity growth against the risk of annihilation? This is surely the most complex question we have ever faced and yet our shockingly unserious society cannot face up to it.

The global elites have again got their priorities wrong, interesting it seems to be a weekly thing now that journalists are discrediting the global elites, this will encourage others to turn on them as well. They have focused obsessively on climate change, turning a real but surmountable problem into an anti-Western religion, but are bizarrely nonchalant about much greater threats. The author of this piece needs to understand the deeper issues, the elites are what created this, only for their own ends. They have not and will not be interested in the ordinary people, beyond harvesting them and using them as slaves. Altman said, I'm not downplaying the large disruption and cost of climate change, but it won't come anywhere close to terminating life on Earth, unlike a nuclear war, biowarfare or out-of-control AI. Our rush to net zero, by reducing growth, is in fact limiting our ability to wage an AI war with a Chinese state that continues to belch out carbon dioxide. The most immediate risk to humanity's survival is nuclear war. Russia may yet launch tactical nukes on Ukraine; China may invade Taiwan; or a terror attack could push India and Pakistan into total conflict. Yet the most pressing danger comes from nuclear proliferation, a slow-burn crisis that contradicts woke narratives and is thus overlooked. North Korea remains a major threat, but Iran is the real danger: it keeps enriching uranium and wants to annihilate Israel. What a load of CIA based fear that is. I ask you all, has Iran, N. Korea, Russia or China attacked America? No you say? then where is the fear coming from? There is no precedent for this type of rhetoric to consistently unfold. Nuclear weapons are in my opinion moot; I am almost certain they have been neutralized since the Malmstrom base incident in 1967. The other great danger is biowarfare. It is insane that we still tolerate gain of function research, which enhances viruses genetically: at some point, a super-potent virus may be released accidentally or intentionally, killing billions and destroying civilization. Where is the outrage, the parade of concerned activists? The only concerned activists in my opinion are, those that have been paid to do so, like Thunberg. Funny the greatest danger is now biowarfare according to this author, yet Russia went into Ukraine to stop bio-warfare and is not recognized as such.

An out-of-control AI could prey on a growing pathology at the heart of Western society: our vulnerability to social contagion. Instead of creating an army of resilient, independent, hyper-educated rational individualists with all of human learning at our fingertips, smartphones have reduced us to an uber-emotional, animalistic, dopamine-addled mob. There is plenty of information, but little knowledge. Instead of being able to think for ourselves, we are slaves to fashion, not only when it comes to dressing but also opinions, consumption and financial decisions. Radicalized by social media, elite opinion-formers embrace absurd views at breakneck speed. Politicians, businesses and celebrities take their cue from a revolutionary vanguard that subverts public sentiment. Because they are all actors and actresses on a stage of the el-ites making is why. Our society no longer understands the purpose of free speech, as described by John Stuart Mill in On Liberty. Instead of engaging in Socratic argumentation to get to the truth, we use words to virtue-signal and to camouflage base emotions. Our elites claim to be universalist humanists, but are in fact born-again tribalists who spend their time pitting in-groups (those who repeat the favored platitude of the moment) against the out-groups (anyone who disagrees). We no longer know how to think critically. Subjectivity and nihilism rule supreme: the deranged, post-modernist woke cargo cult claims that, there no longer is truth, just our truths. Ideas are at best positional goods, fashion statements and markers of social hierarchy and at worst tools of oppression. Words are devoid of any essential meaning: expressing right think signals high status and wrong think implies low-status. Alex Tabarrok of George Mason University argues that our society is not merely increasingly capricious, but also prone to a new madness of crowds. Technology, by increasing transparency and reducing transaction costs, has intensified the madness of the masses and expanded their reach. From finance to politics and culture, no domain remains untouched. And that is a good thing unless you are a clown. As everything has to be pushed out into the open. Bank runs are more frequent, with deposits moved from online accounts as soon as rumors begin to circulate. Fake news, boycotts, fury, demonstrations, health panics and calls for crackdowns become the norm. There are no error-correcting mechanisms. There is now, it is called the Blueprint.

Such a world governed by the opposite principles to those developed by Nassim Nicholas Taleb in Antifragile, is vulnerable to manipulation and hence to weaponized AI. We can complain and or fear AI, or change it for the better by us all interacting better with each other. Changing the code of engagement and language between each other will also hamper a potential negative AI. Imagine a deepfake video watched 20 million times in a couple of hours that warns of an imminent terror attack, or proves a politician was a fraud hours before an election: the impact would be catastrophic. Actually no it would be cathartic, except to those who are wrongdoers, well – that’s their problem. Can we survive technology? asked John von Neumann, the 20th century’s greatest mind, in 1955. Could the answer really be in the negative? Depends upon your own perspective, because every time you follow theirs, it is in the negative. Time to positive think and step beyond externalized technology.

Final piece of this expose on technology is this piece. A warning piece about the over reach of the big tech giants, the great question is, why did everybody take this long to recognize it as an issue? Google, Twitter, Meta and TikTok's executive ranks have included over 200 former employees of surveillance government agencies, creating an employment pipeline between the government and Big Tech companies. The technology companies recruited 248 employees from the DOJ, FBI, CIA and DHS, a LinkedIn search revealed. The hiring occurred mostly between 2017-2022, with several filling top director positions after having decade-long careers in the surveillance agencies. I would state it goes back way further than that, perhaps the author didn't realize it was the Agencies that started these companies like Alphabet Inc. Google hired 130 former DOJ, DHS, CIA and FBI employees, Meta, the company that owns Facebook and Instagram, employed 47 people for those three entities who were previously at the DOJ, FBI or DHS. TikTok, the Chinese-based app embattled with national security concerns, employed 25 former DOJ, FBI, DHS or CIA employees. Twitter had 46 executives who had previously spent time working for the three-letter agencies. Reed Rubinstein, former deputy associate attorney general under President Trump, said that Americans should be concerned about the terrifying integration of Big Tech companies and federal agencies. The revolving door has been a feature of D.C. for as long as I can remember. Any business that is heavily regulated is going to be concerned about managing the regulators, and one way to do that is by purchasing them, Rubinstein said. As we saw with Jim Baker, they are still wearing sometimes two hats, perhaps that is because they are two-hats? They still talk informally to folks who are in the intelligence community and so it's not necessarily a clean break. In fact, what they pay for, is those relationships, Rubinstein added. Nice to see someone finally recognize and vocalize the role of the intelligence agencies and their over reach into things. But as we at THI have found out, it goes much deeper than Big tech. The integration of Big Tech and the national security state, really it's dystopian, it's terrifying he said. National Security act or state is the CIA. They have enough data to show that, that power, which is immense, will be abused. Erm it has been abused for the last 3 decades, why is it only coming up now? Right now there is no effective check on it, he said. Why in the last 60 years since the Church report has there been no oversight of the CIA and the spidery like tentacles of their contractors and subsidiaries? It is all very well

Mr. Rubenstein stating it now, but where is the concern about your own fellow people and their role in all of this? All the major Big Tech platforms are run by Jews, where was the concern then? What about Gilead Science and their role in the Covid technology? What about the skullduggery technology in the Negev Desert? I could go on, but perhaps Mr. Rubenstein is only concerned about the other faction? And so is not actually concerned with what is dangerous and alarming for the people? In particular, Twitter directly recruited a number of career FBI employees who had spent over 20 years with the bureau. Remember the FBI have been run by the CIA also for many decades. The search found numerous LinkedIn users touting work history in intelligence agencies that didn't fully identify themselves, choosing to censor their last names. The users presumably fully identify themselves at some point in the recruitment, hiring and vetting process. A user named Kevin L. spent over 25 years at the FBI working as a special agent and a technically trained agent before immediately transitioning to being a corporate security manager at Twitter. Bruce A. worked for the FBI and the Department of the Interior for 23 years before becoming Twitter's director of information security for the insider threat program. Michael Bertrand worked at the FBI for over 23 years in special agent and chief of staff capacities before getting hired as Twitter's crisis manager. The other dozens of career FBI agents who spent over 20 years at the bureau were recruited by Twitter to fill positions like embedded security manager, senior security manager, senior director, security specialist, director of corporate security/ risk and director of corporate resilience.

Does anyone ask why these agents are shunted into these prominent positions? Why would you need so much security for 99.9% of the people? The other 0.01% are criminals and should have been flagged by the intelligence community long before jumping ship to social media platforms. Across Silicon Valley, Big Tech firms have increasingly hired individuals with affiliations to the U.S. intelligence community. It is alarming to see former officials from agencies like the CIA and FBI embed themselves within these corporations, as it raises questions about their potential influence on corporate policies and business practices, Jake Denton, a research associate in The Heritage Foundation's Tech Policy Center. The question remains as to why Mr. Denton is not aware that Silicon Valley are the intelligence agencies own private companies? It beggars belief at this point, as to how little people in this country know how this country works or rather doesn't. As documented in the Twitter Files, social media platforms like Twitter, can be easily weaponized by a small group of employees in consequential positions to quell free speech and influence the American public. But hasn't the MSM been doing that for the past 100 years, again being operated by the intelligence agencies, first the OSS and then the CIA and others.

With the power of Big Tech constantly on the rise, Americans should be deeply concerned about the potential consequences of this revolving door between D.C. and Silicon Valley, Denton added. The majority of the former FBI, DOJ, CIA or DHS executives employed by Twitter, 26 employees left the company in 2022 or 2023, around the time Elon Musk took over as CEO. There has been an enormous spike in Big Tech hiring of former FBI employees beginning in 2018. I think this is important because it was around this time we saw a lot of the censorship of conservative accounts, FBI whistleblower Steve Friend, who left the bureau after seeing a divergence from the FBI's usual practices in the Jan. 6 investigations.

It is also noteworthy that many of the high-ranking FBI hires were close to reaching the 20-year retirement point. This means those individuals sacrificed the honor of retiring from the FBI, as well as their pensions to move over into Big Tech, Friend, who is a Fellow on Domestic Intelligence and Security Services at the Center for Renewing America, added. Perhaps Steve Friend should be added to the book receiving list. The Caller previously reported on the DOJ's issuing subpoenas to review users' private Twitter accounts. The DOJ issued a subpoena probing Twitter for information on Tara Reade's accounts in 2020, months after she issued allegations about being sexually assaulted by President Joe Biden in 1993.

The subpoena requested Reade's:

1. Subscriber name.
2. Address.
3. Records of session times and durations, to include attempted/failed/unauthenticated logins.
4. Length of service (including start date) and types of service utilized.
5. Telephone or instrument number or other subscriber number or identity, including any temporarily assigned network address; and
6. Means and source of payment for such service (including any credit card or bank account number)

Reade said she doesn't know why her Twitter accounts were of interest to the DOJ. Other than coming forward about Joe Biden, there would be no reason for them to do that, she said. What it proves with this exchange is, the agencies are there to cover up crimes of the el-ites, politicians and stars and not for equitable justice for all. This is the real big issue, whether related to technology or not, the zero oversight of anything they are involved in. The American Accountability Foundation (AAF), an organization dedicated to oversight research, found that 360 former DOJ employees worked at Big Tech companies like Apple, Amazon, HP, Meta, Google and Microsoft, through their own LinkedIn search. Although President Joe Biden has made statements criticizing Big Tech, the revolving door between the Biden administration's DOJ and Big Tech companies raises questions about conflicts of interest at the Department, AAF said. Yes the conflict is between the organization and all the people. As Big Tech continues to target conservatives, no it targets everyone, the revolving door between the Justice Department and Big Tech calls into question the Biden administration's willingness to end these abuses rather than collaborate with Big Tech, AAF President Tom Jones said. Google, Meta, TikTok and the former FBI employees mentioned in this story did not respond to inquiries from the Daily Caller or refused to provide comment. Twitter responded with a poop emoji, an automatic communications response method the company adopted since the takeover of Musk. So much for the truth never fears investigation then, because if you have to cover things up, you are hiding something and lying to the public. The world is being turned into a giant spy-der web of deceit by these generators of fear. These people who operate these systems are terrified of life, people and living, because someone somewhere might do something wrong. If only they were as prominent for looking into the same companies they have joined or been a part of in the past? Because picking off criminals within the agencies is like picking apples from a tree. Scratch the surface and it all oozes out, like a festering wound. This whole spying game is costing this world an absolute fortune, that could be better spent on upgrading everyone's lives. It is an abomination designed by the ultimate fear factory masquerading as intelligent agents, when in reality they are frightened little perverts snooping on everyone. The spy agencies were all set up by the former controller on this planet, to keep everyone, including the agents themselves in check. That is no longer required and our money should be better spent than devious criminals hellbent on world hegemony.

MYSTERY SECTION:

A short piece about evolution of the self and self-mastery that opens out into more word magic. Abraham Maslow discussed this and put forward some ideas on the subject and went deeper into it. He spoke of the hierarchical needs of an individual, of how you go from the basics of sustainability onto a higher path. He used the pyramidal structure to explain this. He later subdivided the triangle's top to include self-transcendence, also known as spiritual needs. Spiritual needs differ from other types of needs in that they can be met on multiple levels. When this need is met, it produces feelings of integrity and raises things to a higher plane of existence. Perhaps that is the inflated balloon in context? In his later years, Maslow explored a further dimension of motivation, while criticizing his original vision of self-actualization. By these later ideas, one finds the fullest realization in giving oneself to something beyond oneself, for example, in altruism or spirituality. That is the aspect of service to others, once you have acquired the right skill sets, levels and frequency, your role then is to teach the students on the pathway of love to others. In essence at that stage you become the god or goddess. He equated this with the desire to reach the infinite. There is no infinite as new thoughts creates expansion within and without, meaning the Universe expands based upon our thoughts. Transcendence refers to the very highest and most inclusive or holistic levels of human consciousness, behaving and relating to, as an ends rather than means, to oneself, to significant others, to human beings in general, to other species, to nature and to the cosmos.

Which links us in nicely with the next piece. We often speak of the Cosmos, but have we really defined it? Cosmos c. 1200, the universe, the world, all of which is open to interpretation as a world is inside a Universe and so that description is not entirely helpful is it? But that was not popular until 1848, when it was taken as the English equivalent to Humboldt's Kosmos in translations from German. Also from Latinized form of Greek kosmos meaning order, good order or orderly arrangement. Kosmos meaning order has deeper meanings for THI members, as The Order is the name given to the top end clowns, whether human or not. A word with several main senses rooted in those notions: The verb kosmein meant generally to dispose or prepare, which is essentially what the off world who altered our languages and meanings have done to us, dispose and or prepare. It also means to order and arrange like troops for a battle, to set an army in array, which explains the militaristic side of it. Also to establish a government or regime, which is what they did here. Also to deck, adorn, equip or dress especially of women, which is one of the programs here. Thus kosmos had an important secondary sense of ornaments of a woman's dress, decoration along with kosmokomes meaning dressing the hair and cosmetic as well as the universe, the world. So women's dress sense and hair resembles the cosmos, meaning all over the place then, a bit like their closets – just saying! Cosmic became cosmetic whether genetic or otherwise.

Pythagoras is said to have been the first to apply this word to the universe, perhaps originally meaning the starry firmament, but it later was extended to the whole physical world, including the earth. That is because the Earth is in the Universe and so some common sense applied for a change. For specific reference to the world of people, the classical phrase was the oikoumene (ge) meaning the inhabited earth. Septuagint uses both kosmos and oikoumene. Kosmos also was used in Christian religious writing with a sense of worldly life, this world as opposed to the afterlife, but the more frequent word for this was eon, literally meaning lifetime or age. After from the first line which had cosmos with a c, the rest of the descriptions are of kosmos with a k, yet again the k overlaying the c leads to confusion, mistranslation and meaning. The c to a k also changes the frequency of the word and so also the spell casting and meaning as well. The word cosmos often suggested especially the universe as an embodiment of order and harmony. Except it has been anything but, as what appears as random was not, it was how Source developed things, leaving things open to all possibilities and then inspired by the free will thought process. But these clowns wanted to bring order, their type of order as in control of. Thankfully their way of order is starting to come to an end and the original will be restored once again. A further addition to the Cosmic Genetics and FHSTOS narrative this is called: The Nephilim Reversal Grids: The headquarter hub in Stonehenge area acts as a final collection point by directing huge amounts of Electromagnetic power, through massive amounts of collected or stolen life force from multiple subsidiaries all over the planetary globe and the planetary grid lines, as well as the Planetary Gates. That was written back in the early 2000's, that has now been reversed and the energies are flowing into the people now, providing you embrace and integrate them. Also providing you are operating in the right way, because if you are not you are suffering within this period and the future until you change you for the better.

The Archontic Deception Strategy is directly to inflict Sexual Misery, sexual abuse and sexual slaves on this planet, starting as early and young as possible. This was taken advantage of by the negative aliens to splinter the soul energies, rather than integrate and heal it, by controlling the sexual energies. By promoting distortions around the sexual act, gender roles and corrupting our relationship to our mother and father parent, our race descended into Sexual Misery and in many cases, forms of sexual slavery and Misogyny. This is known as the sexual misery program propagated and controlled by the Moon Chain (lunar) lineages of the Negative Aliens on the earth. These are lineages not indigenous to the earth but came through the process of invasion and deception. The moon chain are the lunar cults, whether knowingly or not is related to the Jewish and Muslims in particular, but dances within Christianity, Buddhism and new age cults. These are multiple layers of architecture and Mind Control that have been artificially created to control, deceive, separate, confuse, torture and steal human beings sexual life force and it is a violation against the human soul. The main collection center for Sexual Misery is called the NRG network that is the central hub in the UK. It is designed to create psychopaths and sexual predators based on Archontic Deception Behavior. Given we did a recent piece on pedophiles in the UK having a large number between 500-850K, one suspects this technology has been the main driver of that repulsive behavior. I believe with the new energies spiraling the world, has now encountered and overlaid that technology and is now driving people to heal. Known subsidiary networks exist at every Planet Stargate, such as Iran Gate, Michael Mary Reversal in Calgary, The Cathar Grid lines (S. France), Dragon Moth/Snake Networks in Asia. All are collected and returned to UK for distribution off planet for the Orion Group and Anunnaki Nibiru groups to parcel out. Not no more it is not.

The next thing to highlight is the blood covenant, which plays in nicely to the piece we did on blood and energons in the FHSTOS Plus 24 show. The blood covenant is the way that the false Gods have chosen to trick humanity out of their original relationship with their One Source Creator, and hijack their sovereignty through the process of believing in the sanctioning of blood sacrifice or ritual bonds as acts of religious piety. This brings in the Kali Ma program and the female menstrual blood ritual cycle, which is tied to the moon, but also the blood sacrifices of all the tribal peoples as well. These false father Gods, i.e. Yahweh and Jehovah, use Blood Covenants to communicate and interact with human beings. Notice it says the father gods? And why the Cat-holic church deleted the mother figure. This is who the Cat-holics and Christians are worshipping, with devastating consequences. When a human being enters into a Blood Covenant through religious or other spiritual forms of indoctrination, this seals the person's Aura with a sigil or Soul binding that states a claim onto that individual. We have warned heavily about sigils and mantras, used heavily in the Indian and New Age cults, now you have a deeper reason as to why. It could be described as the Covenant of the Snake, hence the kundalini, Nagas and references to cobras. We covered that in the 8A and 8C shows in FHSTOS. The persons free will is hijacked, as the human has been tricked to believe that the Anunnaki extraterrestrials impersonating the One creator, is actually a God. When he and they are acting as an intermediary to take claim and ownership over human beings, that were born with the inherent divinity of the Inner Holy Spirit and Inner Christos. There is that word acting again, not only is all the world a stage, appears all the Universe is a stage as well. This is why they label the famous actors and actresses as stars or super stars, such decorations of grandeur are the realms of the dark forces. These actors and actresses are part of their minion subset to distract the people from their true meaning and power. All operating as alphas, not a sigma amongst them, as they need others to fulfill and decorate their lives. All of which is done by the ignorant public themselves. Stop giving them your power and energy. The False Gods both covet and hate the Inner Holy Spirit because it is the Mother aspect of God, of which they detest, just like the church mentioned earlier. But also because, they were not given the divine design of sovereignty that humans beings were given in their free will right to choose. Another example of how they envy us in many ways, yet we do not see it or our own power. As an example, a Blood Covenant is made with the anti-Christ forces in the name of Yahweh, who transfer the soul binding rites to the Moloch during circumcision. Yet again linking the Anunnaki with the Jewish and their cult of death and harvesting. The blood spilled from the baby, marks a claim on the Soul to be bound to the Moloch entity which is directed to the Yahweh collective. An Anunnaki faction of the negative Aliens, that pose as false Gods to lure humanity into servitude bindings in the afterlife. Ah the afterlife, another of the Jewish teachings says, there is no afterlife and you have to take everything in just one life. What an illusion that is. Remember the only things you take with you to the afterlife and into the next re-incarnation is, karma and your soul development level obtained from previous lives.

Attacks via energy thought forms and Djinnns are prevalent right now, all easily counteracted with the clearing, centering, grounding and shielding process you have been taught via the shows. But I have been hearing of people talking about how to do it, that was not based on the details given in the shows. This has led to wrong types of clearing and shielding. You clear the ground you stand upon as most of this planet's ground is corrupted by traumas. The next stage is getting yourself centered, which means you are upright and straight, all the chakras in alignment and when comfortable with that, anchor yourself which is grounding, to the spot that you have cleared. Then do your shielding techniques, if it is just for you then the grounding space would be 6-8 feet, make sure you visualize it. If it is your home or work space, then the field has to be wider to accompany the whole building. Energy thought forms generally occur at the temples or the third eye region. They come on sudden and should be dealt with immediately. Envision putting a box around the negative energy region, bundle that energy form into the box and return to sender with a force of 3, over and above what you received. If it doesn't go away, repeat the process with a force of 6 and if repeated again then 9. Smoky beings flying through the air around you, often seen out of the corner of your eye, also need to be dealt with quickly as well. Envision a faraday cage, trap the being in it and return it to Source.

An increase of awareness of those around you, your thought patterns and any interference should be heightened for the next stage. They will attack you, so be on guard always, but never fear it or them. Try not to engage people who are not operating in the right way, start acting differently towards you or others, that is their problem to deal with, not yours. Observe don't absorb. The best way is to stay positive, operate in love not fear and embrace and integrate the new frequencies. It matters not what the dark do, only what we do or don't.

ENDING PIECE:

Tonight's show ran parallel in America with what is known as The State of the Union, when in reality it is the State of the Onion, Why? Because it makes everyone cry. But we can all stop weeping by pushing forward the Blueprint and making and being a true difference and change. We could run on the banner of #nomoreclowns, enough is enough. As the 3rd leading Rothschild passed away last week, more and more of their control over the people dissipates. One could say, I guess they are not liking the frequencies too much. But all the Rothschild's family dying and other bloodline family controllers could go and what is left? A world riddled with low self-worth and a lack of personal responsibility, our task here is to change all that and chart a better path forward. The historic markers are all stacking up now and we have to steel our resolve in pushing the Blueprint into everyone's faces. This our time, but we cannot do it with just the few within the group doing all the work, whilst many sit back and watch them struggle under the workload place upon them. We all have to chip in to make it work and happen. We are making big inroads into their world and their psyche now, imagine if more of you chipped in, the progress we could make? In a world where cult is bandied around all too easily, most of which is never understood by the people saying it.

I had a pondering recently of how we all celebrate collective consciousness as something to behold. But in overview, is that not a definition from certain people's perspectives of a cult? How we are all sharing the same thoughts, ideas, ways and experiences, in their world that would be the definition of a cult, is it not? We at THI have been labeled a cult by many outside the group, it is the lazy man's excuse for not defining things themselves. The original Santies embraced being called a cult, as it had a different definition back then and also the fact they understood many things better than we do today. They embraced the solar cult, the worship of the sun and its life giving qualities, whilst the dark forces embraced the sacrificing moon worship. But there is nothing new under the sun and so we all share the same collective consciousness, warts and all. One has to ask what are you in particular putting out into the collective field? Love? Truth? Growth? Happiness? Or fear, lies, gossip, devolution and sadness? What is necessary to change a person is to change his or hers awareness of themself.
