This episode's music will have an eclectic feel to it all, following another epic THI members trip to Lone Oak Texas on the 6/7 and 8th of April. We will have more on that later. A shorter news, medical and society section this evening to accommodate what is essentially a FHSTOS piece, broken up into 3 sections.

NEWS:

Here is a further example of the clowns programs failing and so they resort to child level programs to keep us all in line. Guess what? It's not working and won't be working that way ever again. Klaus Schwab's World Economic Forum have ordered world governments, to mass incarcerate officials who are trying to blow the whistle about the crimes of the elite during the pandemic. According to a World Economic Forum insider, there is escalating chaos within the halls of power in Davos. As the elite desperately attempt to shut down public access to damning information, that proves they were involved in planning and executing the pandemic and mass vaccine rollout, which has left humanity on its knees. The globalist elite are becoming increasingly authoritarian in an attempt to hold on to their power. But there is just one problem for them, the people are waking up and rising up against them. We already have all of the evidence we need, to hold them to account for crimes against humanity. Their best bet is to come to us and help us implement the Blueprint, or you can just wait for the pitchforks at your front doors.

Here is a possible change in dynamics as a Jewish shekel maker has actually been found guilty and jailed. Sam Bankman-Fried, co-founder of the failed crypto exchange FTX, has been sentenced to 25 years in prison for defrauding customers and investors of his now-bankrupt firm. He was found to have stolen billions from customers ahead of the failure. FTX was one of the world's largest crypto exchanges before its demise, attracting millions of customers who used the platform to buy and trade cryptocurrency. Rumors of financial trouble sparked a run-on deposits in 2022, precipitating the firm's implosion and exposing Bankman-Fried's crimes. He was convicted by a New York jury last year on charges including wire fraud and conspiracy to commit money laundering, after a trial that detailed how he had taken more than $8bn (£6.3bn) from customers, and used the money to buy property, make political donations and put toward other investments. Before reading the sentence on Thursday, Judge Lewis Kaplan provided a harsh assessment of Bankman-Fried's behavior, saying he had lied during his testimony at trial, when he claimed he was unaware until the last minute, that his companies were taking money entrusted to them for safe-keeping by customers and using it for other purposes. Sam the bank man has been fried, perhaps the next stop could be Janet Yellen and other shekel makers at the Federal Reserve?

This is the way government and corrupt officials operate and why it is gone on so long. Due to threats, coercion, leveraging and blackmail. Despite being ordered to pay crippling fines of $800 per day, a former investigative reporter said that she would still not reveal the confidential sources behind her reporting. Someone with integrity, that I applaud. Catherine Herridge is an award-winning journalist, who served as an investigative reporter for CBS News from 2019 to 2024 and before then at Fox News from 1996 to 2019. She is known for her reporting on Hunter Biden's infamous laptop and for her February termination from CBS News. That resulted in hundreds of her files being seized and her getting locked out of her office. On Thursday, Herridge testified before the House Judiciary Committee about the personal costs she has shouldered to protect her sources and advocated for the PRESS Act, which aims to protect journalists from revealing their sources. The fact that I have been fighting in the courts for two years and that I am now facing potentially crippling fines of $800 a day to protect my reporting sources, underscores the vital importance of the Press Act, she said. When you go through major life events as I have in recent weeks, losing your job, losing your company health insurance, having your reporting and files seized by your former employer and being held in contempt of court, it gives you clarity. The First Amendment with the protection of confidential sources and a free press are my guiding principles. They are my North Star. Interesting she used the term the North star, as the North star is Polaris and everything spins around it, it is in the constellation of Ursa Minor.

Just 16 percent of Americans have confidence in the federal government, which is a big shift in thinking. Looking back at this polling series by the Pew Research Center, we see that public confidence in the federal government peaked at 77 percent back in 1964; as recently as 2001, confidence stood at 54 percent. No need to rehash all the reasons for the decline, but if more than four in five Americans mistrust the federal edifice, the phenomenon is bipartisan and far-reaching. So, what should we do? Asks the author. Simple, implement the Blueprint before the total shit show unfolds in epic proportions. The kernel of an answer comes from a related polling series by Gallup, which finds that Americans have more confidence in local and state government. Which makes more sense in a big country, but they must coordinate in a way where many policies are standard, unlike currently. A central government premised on one size fits all no longer seems like a good fit. But certain issues arising like the driver's license for each state is beyond ridiculous and should have a centralized system which would surely benefit the law enforcement departments. It is beyond ridiculous there is not a national database for drivers licenses and each state has their own and don't know the databases of other states, surely this benefits the criminals? The drawback of individual states is the population levels in the varying states, as less people generates less income and so the taxes and fees rise in those states. The solution to this would be a central fund, that covers all states and some of the more densely populated states would in part subsidize the less populated. This would ensure a more equal distribution of taxpayers funds and encourage perhaps more people to move out of the densely populated areas into the less populated areas.

Situations in Ireland are creating a powder keg that is bubbling fiercely and about to go off. Following on from the riots in Dublin in November, following an immigrant stabbing attack on a woman and three children, further things have since emerged to escalate the anger. The sudden step down by Premier Varadkar has led to intense speculation it is related to child sex offences and possible others being involved in it, including some departed politicians in N. Ireland as well. But the rumors circulating Ireland is that there are mini Muslim armies being transported into Dublin, not immigrants per se, designed to cause trouble within Ireland. The people on blogs in Ireland are getting real angry and it is all about to blow. Expect an increase in attacks, sexual assaults and rapes, as they were the staple for placing these immigrants in other European countries. The Irish people need to understand this is not a Muslim issue, this is the plan of the Jewish Soros Foundation to disrupt all white countries. These are paid mercenaries, some of which have been removed from prisons and trained for this type of operation. Maybe the clowns don't like the new energies in Ireland and they are trying to counteract it, it won't work.

Israel are now desperate as they are backed into a corner, continuing their murderous spree. In the latest example of international terrorism supported by the United States, as this report states. The Islamic Republic of Iran reported to the United Nations yesterday that Israel conducted a terrorist strike against its embassy in Syria, which killed several Iranian diplomats as well as seven officers of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps, including the two generals Mohammad Reza Zahedi and Mohammad Hadi Haji Rahimi. What they are trying to do is, goad Iran into attacking them so they can turn the world's media onto Iran and away from Israel. Thankfully Iran like Russia exercise caution and prevent situations escalating, which only benefits the Israelis. Embassies are protected by the United Nations, agreed to by all countries in the world Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations that outlaws any attacks on them, which is why Moscow strongly condemned this terrorist attack. Israel may claim that such an outlawed attack was justified, because the Iranian embassy in Syria was being used to plot attacks against their country, yet where is the evidence supporting that claim? The Russian Foreign Ministry posted the notice about Israel's attack on the Iranian embassy stating: we consider it necessary for all responsible members of the international community to declare their positions clearly and give their legal assessments of this action. In other words it is time for all countries to stand up as one against terrorism and the most prominent proponent of it, Israel. Since then Iran did fire back and we witnesses a firework show and now the press are up in arms at Iran. Yet curiously never mention what preceded it, funny that.

A video has re-emerged about a general going by the name of Wesley Clark. Who wrote books and was a potential for presidency at one point in 2008, plus a running mate for Obama in 2012. In the video Clark glibly describes of how to eliminate countries like yesterday's trash. In light of the issues between Iran and Israel ongoing right now, perhaps one has to revisit what Wesley Clark revealed. Following writing a book called Winning Modern Wars, published in 2003. He describes his conversation with a military officer in the Pentagon shortly after 9/11 regarding a plan to attack seven countries in five years: As I went back through the Pentagon in November 2001, one of the senior military staff officers had time for a chat. Yes, we were still on track for going against Iraq, he said, but there was more. This was being discussed as part of a five-year campaign plan, he said, and there were a total of seven countries, beginning with Iraq, then Syria, Lebanon, Libya, Somalia, Sudan and finishing off Iran. Spoken like he was ticking off items on his shopping list to the supermarket, ignoring the death and destruction, a true neo-hawk as they say. But later Clark then regards the 2003 invasion of Iraq as a huge mistake. Hindsight is a wonderful thing Mr. Clark is it not? But why was Clark in on these actions, when he wasn't classified to receive this information. Perhaps the next line will tell you. As Wesley Clark is a stage name, his real name is Wesley J. Kanne. His mother remarried and his name changed again to Wesley Kanne Clark. Why the name changes? Because Clark was born to Jewish parents. His paternal grandparents, Jacob Kanne and Ida Goldman, immigrated to the United States from Belarus, then part of the Russian Empire. Wesley Clark rose to prominence not because of his skill sets, but because he was Jewish. Otherwise why hide the names? He just like the others in war cabinets of Jewish descent, always advocated for war, now why is that? The second question people need to ask is, why do they use America to start, run and fund those wars? If Israel and Jews want war with every country, let them fund it and use their own people and then let's see how long that lasts.

MEDICAL SECTION:

The Covid fallout and narrative backing it is quickly falling apart now as we forecasted. The trust of all institutions will disappear rapidly now. Tucker Carlson aired an insightful interview with physician and molecular geneticist Dr. Michael Nehls on Monday. Dr. Nehls, respected author of the book The Indoctrinated Brain, provided a detailed analysis of the unprecedented assault on mental freedom that took place during Covid, a situation Carlson called the worst thing ever done. Tucker asked, after it became clear that the mRNA vaccine could not stop transmission, why did governments continue to impose it on their populations? Nehls replied that it wasn't about health or money, it is about the conquest of the human spirit. And it's even worse than that, the undermining of the ability to think, he continued. So if you stop this production of new nerve cells and force the hippocampus to store all these different stories, these frightening narratives, then those narratives are going to get into the brain. They are stored in the hippocampus, but at the cost of overwriting the memories that already exist. Rewriting your code, DNA and your memories is what that is all stating, all of which was stated in the Expose series 3 and 4 years ago. So what happens, is that with the narratives, with the fear narratives, with the technocratic narratives, you suspend and change your already existing memories, your individuality or your personality. If this is done on purpose, it would be the worst thing ever done, Carlson replied. Absolutely, Nehls agreed. It was done on purpose, it is their new version it seems of memory wipe, all of which reveals the technology they had to implement that, was deleted as stated in shows 7/8 years ago. Why would they wish to wipe people's memories? Because too many were recalling memories and too many were seeing through their programs of control. Tucker asked, After it became clear that the mRNA vaccine could not stop transmission, why did governments continue to impose it on their populations? The answer is simple, they knew. But they are being operated by string pullers hidden in the dark, delivering dark agendas. But that dark agenda was a desperate act by the el-ites and is back firing on them big time.

SOCIETY NEWS:

State Farm will discontinue coverage for 72,000 houses and apartments in California starting this summer, the insurance giant said this week, nine months after announcing it would not issue new home policies in the state. The Illinois-based company, California's largest insurer, cited soaring costs, the increasing risk of catastrophes like wildfires and outdated regulations, as reasons it won't renew the policies on 30,000 houses and 42,000 apartments. State Farm General takes seriously our responsibility to maintain adequate claims-paying capacity for our customers and to comply with applicable financial solvency laws and it is necessary to take these actions now. This Insurance merry go round is beyond a joke, they are fine taking all the money in and increasing the fees, yet paying out is always a problem. Deleting various clauses in the policy the average person does not understand. Adding all kinds of ways to reduce the pay outs when they are required. Delays sending out the payments adding more stress to the consumers. Battles over the phone that rarely are resolved. Then when their brethren increase inflation, they cite it as a reason to not continue the service. One has to raise an eyebrow as to why they are pulling out of California, given previous warnings given on the show. The solution? Insurance to Assurance in the Blueprint document.

Here is a group and indeed a whole county in Florida that is thinking and acting different. It is a feel-good story of a county coming together as a community and striving to improve their environment. When recently meeting with community leaders in DeSoto County, Fla., I got a question I often hear after describing The Harwood Institute's approach to community building: Can this actually work? It's not a surprising question to get in America today, especially in a place like DeSoto. Inequities and disparities in the country are growing, not diminishing. Mistrust is pervasive and hope is in short supply. How does a community like DeSoto County have hope when it ranks 65th of 67 counties in the entire state for reading among third-graders? When it's per capita income ranks at the bottom for Florida counties and inter-generational poverty is common? When it lacks adequate sewer and water lines, constraining growth? I was in DeSoto to launch a new community-led initiative, in partnership with The Patterson Foundation, to catalyze efforts that address what matters to people, while strengthening how the community works together. The initiative reflects the very essence of our nationwide campaign, Enough. Time to Build. Much is said these days about how so many Americans feel discouraged about their individual and our collective future, despite seemingly strong economic indicators. To know the reason why, to feel it, experience it and see it, go to DeSoto County. It's located in the Florida heartland, with a population just over 37,000. Good jobs are hard to come by. The population is changing and is now about evenly split among white, Black and Latino residents, many of whom do not speak English and fear deportation. Like in many rural areas, the local hospital is in constant danger of shuttering. This next section is why the Blueprint was done and why once it reaches a threshold the people will support it heavily. The author said, I met with scores of community leaders, educators, clergy, health care professionals and residents, among others. Here's the thing: We often expect folks in these types of communities to be in despair. Instead, like most places I go, I found fierce resolve, it is progress they want. They want to find new ways to come together and work for it. During one meeting, an educator who had spent decades in the local public schools turned to me and said, Two words describe what you're talking about: small and momentum, this gave her and others hope. What people in DeSoto County told me they want, what so many Americans I meet want, is the following:

1. Build on the good. Too often we start new efforts as if nothing good has taken place, as if we must start over. But in DeSoto the community pooled its resources to renovate an old, abandoned building and turn it into a much-needed Boys and Girls Club. After Hurricane Ian in 2022, people came together to support one another and their efforts continue to this day. Just last October, over 300 people attended The Patterson Foundation's Solutions to Action event, which is part of an ongoing effort to engage the community in taking shared action. We're intentionally building on these and other good efforts.

2. Focus on shared aspirations. So often change efforts obsessively focus on problems or utopian visions. Both stop people in their tracks by generating negativity and blame or unattainable plans. We start with people's shared aspirations, which enable people to articulate what they are for, not against and reflect actionable, doable and achievable goals. This creates an immediate sense of possibility.

3. Start small. One city leader told me she has a shelf of reports from consultants who have come and gone, who laid out fancy, comprehensive plans that went nowhere. They sold people a bill of goods. We take a fundamentally different approach, starting small to go big. It's tangible and real for people.

4. Create a new trajectory of hope. This is what the educator was speaking to. Our approach will unleash a chain reaction of actions and ripples that grow over time, eventually spreading like a positive contagion throughout the county. It's all about building momentum over time. In every community we work, this is how change happens.

5. Marshal shared resources. A place like DeSoto County, like so many American communities, has limited resources. But the reality is that there are a variety of ways in which different groups and individuals can come together to produce shared action. It requires making visible the resources, talents and stories of progress that for most people in most places remain invisible. It's why my institute created a tool called Making the Invisible Visible.

Too many political and civic leaders make promises they know they can't keep. They peddle false hope, which leads to frustration, skepticism and today's widespread cynicism. Under these conditions, it's only natural for so many of us to have lost our civic faith. But it is places like DeSoto County that restore my sense of possibility and hope. The people there are ready to step forward and build together. This will take time, openness to new ideas, humility to listen, vulnerability when engaging new people and perhaps most of all, courage to believe again. Yet it can be done. They are getting in motion. The rest of America should pay attention. It's going to be places like DeSoto, one of the poorest counties in Florida, that proves there's a new path forward. That we are not yet done with this grand American experiment. Rich Harwood is president and founder of The Harwood Institute. A very THI and Blueprint approach. More and more are now starting to see the value of people coming together, that is all it takes. The system has never worked for any of us and it is time we all worked for us. The people are ready now more than ever to come together and clean this country up, piece by piece. I hope this gives the Blueprint teams the extra push, knowing there are people out there awaiting our full launch.

EXPOSE:

In light of the dangerous situation in the Middle East this expose in 3 parts will bring greater clarity and some very explosive pieces. This is said to be the justification for Israel and its followers to attack all and sundry, because of their arrogant belief they are more special than everyone else. This concept was then pushed onto everyone else around the world and garnered sympathy and a license to kill indiscriminately with no kick back whatsoever. That program is now falling apart and all things connected to the Jewish and their fake state is about to come crashing down around them. Amalek is described in the Hebrew Bible as the enemy nation of the Israelites. The name Amalek can refer to the descendants of Amalek, the grandson of Esau, or anyone who lived in their territories in Canaan. Islamic tradition considers Amalek to be an Arabian tribe in pre-Islamic Mecca and Medina or descendants of Ham, the son of Noah.

Esau was also known as Edom, the progenitor of the Edomites who were established to the south of the Israelites. They were an enemy nation of Israel. The minor prophets, such as Obadiah, claim that the Edomites participated in the destruction of the First Temple by Nebuchadnezzar in 587 BC. All of which sounds like faction fighting to me, you see this has been going on a long time. But does anyone ask the question, why is Israel or Israelites the enemy to everybody? Who are the Moabites today? Noble Drew Ali succinctly states in Act 6 of our Divine Constitution and By-Laws of the Moorish Science Temple of America that, the Moorish Americans who are called black people, are descendants of the ancient Moabites who inhabited the Northwestern and Southwestern shores of Africa. Today they are called the Berbers.

Etymology:

In some rabbinical interpretations, Amalek is etymologised as am lak, a people who lick blood. Which means they were vampiric. Typically most scholars regard the origin to be unknown, which means they do know but won't put it out. This reveals that the line of Noah and his 3 sons were all vampires.

Amalek in the Hebrew Bible:

According to the Hebrew Bible, Amalek was the son of Eliphaz himself the son of Esau, ancestor of the Edomites and the brother of Israel and Eliphaz's concubine Timna. Timna was a Horite and sister of Lotan. According to a midrash, Timna was a princess who tried to convert to Judaism. However, she was rejected by Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. She replied she would rather be a handmaiden to the dregs of Israel than be a mistress of another gentile nation. Again the racism is prevalent. To punish the Patriarchs for their attitudes, Timna birthed Amalek, whose descendants would cause Israel much distress. Patriarchs is a control system; these are the beings that got rid of the mothers and is still in force today with the Cat Holic church. Which is why I do not like the term patriots, to me it is another word magic overlay program designed for mind control. Like the Patron Saint, which we know were Draco creations, perhaps Ireland needs to reconsider its worship of St. Patrick or is it Pa-trick, the trick of the father? Amalek was also the product of an incestuous union since Eliphaz was Timna's stepfather, according to 1 Chronicles 1:36, after he committed adultery with the wife of Seir the Horite, who was Timna's biological father. The incestuous union all of which was followed by the bloodline families here to stay in control. First-century Roman-Jewish scholar and historian Flavius Josephus refers to Amalek as a bastard in a derogatory sense. Bastard means illegitimate.

Amalekites:

Amalek is described in Genesis 36:16 as the chief of Amalek among the chiefs of the sons of Esau, from which it is surmised that he ruled a clan or territory named after him. In the oracle of Balaam, Amalek was called the first of the nations, nations remember originally meant races, which suggests these were a different race to others. One modern scholar believes this attests to Amalek's high antiquity, while traditional commentator Rashi states: He came before all of them to make war with Israel. Only one problem with that was, there was no Israel in relation to a country, but there was a House of Israel. What this means is a battle between the nobility Houses, these same Houses of Orange, Nassau, Hapsburgs and many others went on to taking control over Europe and many other places. The Amalekites were claimed to be Amalek's descendants through the genealogy of Esau, claimed but not proven? According to the Hebrew Bible, the Amalekites inhabited the Negev. They appear to have lived a nomadic or seminomadic lifestyle along the fringes of southern Canaan's agricultural zone. This is probably based on the association of this tribal group with the steppe region of ancient Israel and the area of Kadesh (Genesis 14:7). As a people, the Amalekites are identified throughout the Hebrew Bible as a recurrent enemy of the Israelites. In Exodus 17:8–16, during the Exodus from Egypt, the Amalekites attack the Israelites encamped at Rephidim, but are defeated. Moses orders Joshua to lead the Israelites into battle, while Moses, Aaron and Hur watch from a nearby hill. When Moses' hands holding his staff are raised, the Israelites prevail, but when his hands are lowered, the Israelites falter. He sits with his hands held up by Aaron and Hur until sunset, securing the Israelite victory. This I believe was covered in the Cosmic Genetics series, of the battle between the Draco and the Hyksos.

In Deuteronomy 25:17–19, The Israelites are specifically commanded to blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven, erasing history again it seems. Once they have taken possession of the Promised Land, in retribution for what Amalek did to them on the way, as they were coming out of Egypt, a reference to the Amalekite attack on the Israelites at Rephidim. They were coming out of Egypt, which is where the Ra cult and other off world entities were. What this plays out as, in modern days terms is, they were expanding their settlements and areas of control. All of which reveals what we have said in our book, that the Israelites are Egyptians, but the Egyptians were not our type of human. Earlier, in Deuteronomy 7:1–16 and Deuteronomy 25:16–18, they are commanded to utterly destroy all the inhabitants of the idolatrous cities in the promised land and their livestock; scripture purports that King Saul ultimately loses favor with Yahweh, for failing to kill King Agag and the best livestock of the Amalekites in 1 Samuel 15 in defiance of these commandments. Yahweh was Anu overlay to my understanding, which confirms the Draco/Hyksos split.

In Numbers 14:45, the Amalekites and Canaanites kill a group of Israelites that tried to enter Eretz Israel without Moses's permission. Which reveals Moses as a warlord, remember the depiction of Moses in the statue in Europe, has him with horns growing out of his head, again symbolizing that he was not our type of human either.

In Judges 3:13, Amalek, and their Moabite and Ammonite allies, defeat Israel so that the Moabites could oppress them. Judges 10:11–13 confirms Amalek as being one of the many oppressors of Israel. But that does not make the Amalek and allies our friends, this is two sides of the same coin from our perspective.

In Judges 6:1–6, Amalek, and their Midianite allies, destroy Israelite farms as far as Gaza, inducing a famine. They also help the Midianites wage wars against Israel, according to Judges 6:32–34 and Judges 7:11–13.

In 1 Samuel 15:1–9, Samuel identifies Amalek as the enemy of Israelites, saying Thus says the Lord of hosts: I will punish Amalek for what he did to Israel, how he ambushed him on the way when he came up from Egypt, a reference to Exodus. God then commands Saul to destroy the Amalekites, by killing man, woman, infant and suckling. This massacre is believed to be a retelling of the raids in 1 Samuel 14:48 although it additionally specifies that it occurred in the city of Amalek.

In 1 Samuel 15:33, Samuel identifies king Agag of Amalek as an enemy and killer, saying As your sword has made women childless, so shall your mother be childless among women.

In 1 Samuel 27:8–9, David and his men conducts raids against the Amalekites and their Geshurite and Gezirite allies. He killed every man and woman but took sheep, cattle, donkey, camels and clothing. These Amalekites were theorized to be refugees who fled from Saul or a separate Amalekite faction that dwelt to the south of Israel. Gili Kluger believes these narratives were anti-Saul propaganda, designed to make him appear weak compared to David, since no losses were attributed to David. Yes one can never criticize David as he is set up as the idol amongst biblical pro pagan da. According to 1 Samuel 30:1–2, the Amalekites invaded the Negev and Ziklag in the Judean/Philistine border area towards the end of the reign of King Saul, burning Ziklag and taking its citizens away into captivity. David led a successful mission against the Amalekites to recover all that the Amalekites had carried away.

In 2 Samuel 1:5–10, an Amalekite tells David that he found Saul leaning on his spear after the battle of Gilboa. The Amalekite claims he euthanized Saul, at Saul's request and removed his crown. David gives orders to his men to kill the Amalekite for killing the anointed king, believing him to be guilty by admission.

In 1 Chronicles 4:43, the Simeonites kill the remaining survivors of Amalek and live in their settlements.

In Psalm 83:7, Amalek joins Israel's other historic enemies in annihilating Israel. Their attempts are thwarted by God, the question is, which one? Although most scholars believe the passage refers to a real historical event, they are unsure which event it should be identified with. One likely answer is that it occurred during the rise of the Neo-Assyrian Empire, the 9th to 7th centuries BC. Which ties into the Hyksos and Draco battles. This is the problem with these beings, all about war and conquest and destroy everything in sight. Whether food, businesses, people or history. What is worse is, the people that follow these scripts never see anything wrong with it, never question it or show any regard for the extensive loss of life. They say the religious are more compassionate in their behavior, that is a complete fallacy and is a dereliction of duty to man – our man HUMAN, not serpent man.

Judaism:

In the Mishneh Torah, Rambam derives three commandments, two positive and one negative, related to references to Amalek in the Torah:

- Type - Commandment - Source

59 – Negative - Not to forget the wicked deeds which Amalek perpetrated against us<sup>[29]</sup> - "Do not forget" (Deut. 25:19)

188 – Positive - To exterminate the seed of Amalek<sup>[30]</sup> - "You shall blot out the memory of Amalek" (Deut. 25:19)

189 – Positive - To constantly remember what Amalek did to us<sup>[31]</sup> - "Remember what Amalek did to you" (Deut. 25:17)

But why would you always have to remember bad or evil events? What happened to turn the other cheek? These wars are still being remembered now and create or generate fear and hatred. Does anyone ask, why would you hate all people based upon wars 2-7K years ago? Those asking you to do that now are deliberately mind controlling people into a lower vibration. Many rabbinic authorities such as Maimonides, ruled that the commandment only applies to a Jewish king or an organized community and cannot be performed by an individual. According to Rashi, the Amalekites were sorcerers who could transform themselves to resemble animals, in order to avoid capture. How interesting, they were chimeric, hence the vampirism. This also reveals they were not humans. Thus, in 1 Samuel 15:3, it was considered necessary to destroy the livestock when destroying Amalek. According to Haggahot Maimuniyyot, the commandment only applies to the future messianic era and not in present times; this limitation is widely supported by medieval authorities. Maimonides elaborates that when the Jewish people wage war against Amalek, they must request the Amalekites to accept the Seven Laws of Noah and pay a tax to the Jewish kingdom. If they refuse, they are to be executed. Why would they obey the Seven Laws of Noah, when Noah was part of the Amalek's? Pay tax to the Jewish Kingdom? Which is a tribute, just like the American income tax is a tribute to the Crown. You see these types of beings have been imposing tributes spoken of in terms of taxes for at least 10K years. Here comes the cover ups typically affiliated with Judaism Other Talmudic commentators argued that the calls to spare no Amalekite or blot out their memory were metaphorical and did not require the actual killing of Amalekites. Typical Talmudic response of covering their tracks and their permanent Day of Atonement. Rabbi Samson Raphael Hirsch said that the command was to destroy the remembrance of Amalek rather than actual Amalekites. All echoes of the book burning in Germany and the Alexandria Library. The Sfat Emet interpreted the command as fully hating Amalek, without performing any physical action. The Chofetz Chaim said that God would perform the elimination of Amalek and that Jews only need to remember what Amalek did to them. Isaac S.D. Sassoon believes that the cherem commands existed to prevent the Jewish community from being endangered, but believes people should think twice before literally following them. Nathan Lopes Cardozo argues that the Torah's ethically questionable laws were intentional, since they were a result of God working with an underdeveloped world. He believes that God appointed the Sages to help humanity evolve in their understanding of the Torah. The sages where the Cohens, designed to deliberately erase history and overlay with their story. The Torah, which is a watered down version of the Talmud, is riddled with racism and violence, why should anyone follow that script? This moon cult needs to be stopped.

Christianity:

Theologian Charles Ellicott explains that the Amalekites were subject to cherem in the Book of Samuel for the purposes of incapacitation, due to their 'accursed' nature and the threat they posed to the commonwealth of surrounding nations. But who are these commonwealth nations or races? What is cherem? Declaring cherem in the ancient world was serious business. Any person or living thing subject to cherem was irredeemably doomed to utter annihilation. Any object declared cherem was the property of God and could never be redeemed. So if god decides he doesn't like you, he deletes you and steals your property? What type of evolved being is that? Matthew Henry considers the cherem to be defensive warfare since the Amalekites were invaders. John Gill describes the cherem as the law of retaliation being carried out. According to Christian Hofreiter, almost all Christian authorities and theologians have historically interpreted the cherem passages literally. He states that there is practically no historical evidence that anyone in the Great Church viewed them as being purely an allegory. In particular, Augustine, Thomas Aquinas and John Calvin have defended a literal reading of these passages at length. Origen of Alexandria is sometimes cited as having viewed the cherem passages allegorically; Hofreiter argues that although Origen prioritized a spiritual interpretation of the Bible, he did not deny that the herem passages described historical events. Paul Copan argues that the cherem commands were hyperbolic since the passages contain merisms, such as man and woman and Near Easterners valued bravado and exaggeration when reporting warfare. Notice all the excuses to cover things up? But Kluger believes this is an earnest attempt to absolve the Israelites and their God, of moral responsibility. Nonetheless, she argues Copan's interpretation still normalizes mass violence and hostility towards targeted groups. Exactly and is still going on to this day.

Islam:

Ibn Khaldūn affirms that God ordered Saul, the king of Israel, to depose the Amalekites, which caused Haman's hostility to the Jews in the Book of Esther.

Modern academia:

Some commentators have discussed the ethics of the commandment to exterminate all the Amalekites, including children, and the presumption of collective punishment. It has also been described as genocidal, according to scholars like Norman Naimark. Amalekites then, Gazans now, same genocidal program by the same entities. Kluger believes that the extermination verses can be explained by the Israelites seeing the Amalekites as their unwelcome reflection in the mirror, possessing all the negative qualities that the Israelites inherently saw within themselves, which Kluger sees as a form of self-hatred. However, she notes that the Hebrew Bible is surprisingly neutral when describing the Amalekites and that the texts do not provide an adequate explanation on why they were singled out for complete annihilation, compared to the Egyptians and Canaanites for example. Ada Taggar-Cohen observes that cherem commands were not uncommon in the ancient Near East. Their purpose was to show that the deity was on the aggressor's side and that the enemy deserved said deity's wrath for their sins. It also allowed kings to pursue militarist policies without taking moral responsibility, no change there then. Kings or Monarchs now transferred over to the Nobility and Bloodline families. C.L. Crouch considers the cherem commands to be an exceptional component to Israelite and Judahite warfare since they were erratically applied, even in the early stages of national and ethnic identity formation. They were an extreme means to eradicate the threat of chaos. Similar attitudes were held by Assyrian rulers such as Esarhaddon and Assurbanipal.

Historicity:

No reference to Amalek or the Amalekites has been found in surviving Egyptian and Assyrian monumental inscriptions and records, even though both groups recorded various tribes and peoples of the Levant in the relevant time period(s). They are part of the cover up is why. Therefore, Hugo Winckler concluded that there were no Amalekites and that the Biblical stories concerning them were entirely ahistorical and mythological. Oh dear and people get paid to write that nonsense? Although archaeological research has improved knowledge about nomadic Arabs, no specific artifact or site has been linked to Amalek with certainty. Then why was it extensively written about then? It is possible that some of the fortified settlements in the Negev highlands and Tel Masos, which is near Beer-sheba and possibly equivalent to Hormah, have Amalekite connections. If this hypothesis is correct, it is likely that Saul's anti-Amalekite campaigns were motivated by a strategic desire to wrest control of copper production at Tel Masos. Copper was valuable to the early Israelites and their theology and ritual. Copper was the most sought-after element by the off-world invaders here also, so no surprise these "Jews" were involved in it. Archaeological evidence from the Tell el-Qudeirat fortress and Horvat Haluqim in the Negev, dated to the late 11th to early 10th century BC, could corroborate with the Biblical Israelite-Amalekite confrontations, during the reigns of Saul and David. Bruins discovered that their inhabitants were semi-nomadic agro-pastoralists. They lived in tents, rode camels, participated in the copper trade and worshipped gods at masseboth shrines. Oval fortresses were built during the same time period of the aforementioned confrontations. However, other scholars argue that these settlements were inhabited by Edomites or Simeonites. Yes throw in the extra names, who are more likely name changes all too familiar in his story of this group, to confuse and deflect.

Alternative theories of origin:

In Genesis 14:7, the field of the Amalekites is mentioned, but the person who is named Amalek was not born yet. Some commentators claim that this passage is a reference to the territory which was later inhabited by the Amalekites. Alternatively, during the Islamic Golden Age, certain Arabic writings claimed that the Amalekites existed long before Abraham. One of the problems scholars have is, fitting in the date stamps to match with the Bible, except you can't, as most of it is a rewrite and overlay. Some Muslim historians claimed that the Amalekites who fought against Joshua were the descendants of the inhabitants of North Africa. Ibn-Arabshâh claimed that Amalek was a descendant of Ham, son of Noah. However, the name Amalek may have been given to two different nations. The Arabians mention Imlik, Amalik or Ameleka among the aborigines of Arabia, the remains of which were mingled with the descendants of Qahtan (Joktan) and Adnan and became Mostarabs or Mocarabes, that is, Arabians were mixed with foreigners. John Gill believes the Amalekites of Genesis 14:7 were equivalent to the Hamite-Arabian Amalekites described by Muslim scholars. He argues the Amalekites were always allied with the Canaanites who descended from Ham, were conquered by the Shemite Chedorlaomer, existed before the Edomite Amalekites, thus affirming Numbers 24:20, and that the Edomites never rescued these Amalekites from Saul's campaigns due to inter-tribal feuds. By the 19th century, many Western theologians believed that the nation of Amalek could have flourished before the time of Abraham. Matthew George Easton theorized that the Amalekites were not the descendants of Amalek by taking a literal approach to Genesis 14:7. However, the modern biblical scholar Gerald L. Mattingly uses textual analysis to glean that the use of Amalekite in Genesis 14:7 is actually an anachronism. In the early 19th century, Richard Watson enumerated several speculative reasons for the existence of a more ancient Amalek than Abraham. In his exegesis of Numbers 24:20, concerning Balaam's utterance: Amalek was the first one of the nations, but his end afterward, will be, even his perishing. Richard Watson attempts to associate this passage to the first one of the nations that developed post-Flood. Which is interesting and why the relation to Noah and subsequently the Ark. But what if the Ark was a spacecraft? According to Samuel Cox, the Amalekites were the first in their hostility toward the Israelites. But they were certainly not the last due to the actions of the Israelites.

Jewish traditions:

Amalek is the archetypal enemy of the Jews and the symbol of evil in Jewish religion and folklore. Nur Masalha, Elliot Horowitz and Josef Stern suggest, that the Amalekites represent an eternally irreconcilable enemy that wants to murder Jews. In post-biblical times, Jews associated contemporary enemies with Amalek or Haman and occasionally, believed pre-emptive violence is acceptable against such enemies. This has been the history of the Jews, it seems they would create war in an empty house, such is the propensity for violence. Groups identified with Amalek include the Romans, who were the Draco, Nazis, who were the Zionists, Stalinists, who was a Zionist, ISIS who were the Israeli Secret Intelligence Services and bellicose Iranian leaders such as Mahmoud Ahmadinejad. More metaphorically, to some Hasidic rabbis particularly the Baal Shem Tov, Amalek represents atheism or the cynical rejection of God, which leads to unethical hedonism. This is sometimes known as the Amalekite doctrine. In contemporary times, religious Jews associate Amalek with violent antisemites, nihilism and Jewish doubt in God. A case of follow our god or die.

During the Purim festival, the Book of Esther is read in commemoration of the salvation of Jewish people from Haman, who plotted to kill all Jews in Persian Empire. It is customary for the audience to make noise and shout whenever Haman is mentioned, in order to desecrate his name, based on Exodus 17:14. It is also customary to recite Deuteronomy 25:17–18 on the Shabbat before Purim. This was because Haman was considered to be an Amalekite, although this label is more likely to be symbolic rather than literal. Some Iranophilic Jews interpreted Haman's Amalekite background as being anathema to both Jews and pure-blooded Iranians. So much hatred based upon an interpretation of a book, no one can prove its validity or who wrote it. Even scholars based upon this piece can't seem to agree on anything, yet so many believe what they are told and blindly follow it. It is indicative of the teachers of this material who promote hatred, division and violence.

Christian traditions:

Early Church fathers such as Justin Martyr, Irenaeus and Cyprian consider the defeat of Amalek in Exodus 17:8–13 to be reminiscent of Jesus defeating the powers of the devil at the cross. How is it reminiscent, when he allegedly died on the cross? Mind boggling concept, but it re-affirms the script you see. Origen sees the battle as an allegory of the Law mysteriously invoking Christ, who recruits strong people (i.e. Christians) to defeat the demonic Strong Man, as described in Ephesians 6:12. Interesting he brought that up, as the strong man is about buggery of small children and the Greek version of the Bible cites “Jesus” as one of them. John Gill believes that Amalek is a type of antichrist that raises his hand against the throne of God, his tabernacle and his saints. He believes the phrase from generation to generation in Exodus 17:16 specifically refers to the Messianic Age, where Amalek and other antichristian states are exterminated by the Lamb. Except Christianity was not invented at the period they are describing, because Christianity was created 300 years after the alleged death of “Jesus”. His story revision on steroids. Likewise, Charles Ellicott notes that the Amalekites were collectively called the sinners in 1 Samuel 15:18, which was only used elsewhere for the Sodomites in Genesis 13:13.

Sodomites equals the strong man concept. Carl Friedrich Keil and Franz Delitzsch state that the Amalekites were extinct by the second half of Hezekiah's reign. Hezekiah's reign was around 700BC, so how can they be antichristian? Professor Philip Jenkins notes that Christian extremists have historically labelled enemies such as Native Americans, Protestants, Catholics and Tutsis as Amalekites to justify their genocides. Jews and victims of the Crusades were also called Amalekites. Because of this, modern Christian scholars have re-examined the Biblical narratives that inspired these atrocities using philology, literary analysis, archaeology and historical evidence. But will they tell the true story? Our story? Or continue to peddle the utter lies and false his story?

Islamic traditions:

Islamic commentators believe the Amalekites were an ancient Arabian tribe. The monotheistic Ishmaelites evangelized to them in Mecca and later, supplanted their population. However, the paganism of the Amalekites and other Arabian tribes negatively influenced the Ishmaelites, including their approach to the Kaaba. Adam J. Silverstein observes that most of the medieval Muslim world ignored the Book of Esther or modified its details, despite their familiarity with the Persian Jewish community. The Persian Jewish were the Donmeh, infiltrators hiding in wait for takeover orders by the Sanhedrin or other controllers. This was caused by their attempt to reconcile the Biblical Esther with the Quranic Haman, who was the antagonist of the Exodus narrative and Persian mythological historical traditions. Notable exceptions include Ibn Khaldūn, who affirmed the Amalekite origins of Haman and his antisemitic vendetta. Except the term antisemitic did not start until 1881.

Modern usage:

Rabbis generally agree that Amalekites no longer exist, based on the argument that Sennacherib deported and mixed the nations, so it is no longer possible to determine who is an Amalekite. No change there then is there. If they cannot determine who is an Amalekite in their own book, why should we believe the rest of it? Thus, the commandment to kill Amalekites is not practiced by contemporary Jews. Except it is, you just change the name from Amalekite to Iraqi, Iranian, Lebanese, Syrian, Jordanian, Yemen's and Palestinians. Since the Holocaust, the phrase as it appears in Deuteronomy 25:17 is used as a call to witness. Yad Vashem, Israel's memorial to the Holocaust, features the phrase on a banner and in letters between European Jews during the Holocaust, they plead with each other to bear witness. All of which just perpetuates the hatred, division and violence, which when you add the word Holocaust to it, just adds to the genetic memory code of conflict between all the races. It is time the Israelis stopped dancing back in time and started life anew. In the Israel-Palestine conflict, some Israeli politicians and extremists have compared Palestinians to Amalek, stated that the Palestinians are the Amalekites, or accuse Arabs of exhibiting behavior that is typical of Amalekites. Yasser Arafat was called the Amalek and Hitler of our generation by 200 rabbis. So they are fine name calling and labeling people as Amalekites, yet when in relation to the violence they committed, they don't exist or it is misinterpreted. It is alarming the vast gaps in the narrative and interpretation between all the commenters upon this subject. Many in the Gush Emunim movement see Arabs as the Amalek of today. One reason includes the belief that Amalek is any nation that prevents Jews from settling in the Land of Israel, which includes the Palestinians. Except there is zero evidence of any land called Israel, until the Crown Agent King James wrote his own script in the 1600's and called it the Bible. During the 2014 Gaza war, a leading yeshiva identified Palestinians as the descendants of the ancient Amalekites and Philistines. Genealogically, Arabs are not related to Amalekites and prior to the Arab–Israeli conflict, some Jews associated Amalek with the Roman Empire and medieval Christians. Conversely, some ultra-Orthodox groups consider Zionists to be Amalekites due to Zionist antisemitism.

During the 2024 Israel–Hamis war, Benjamin Netanyahu said that the Israeli government was committed to completely eliminating this evil from the world, but his interpretation of evil is totally and perversely subjective. He also stated: You must remember what Amalek has done to you, says our Holy Bible and we do remember. Yet again all about remember the atrocities of the past, although based upon the many comments within this piece, none can confirm its validity. At an argument to the International Court of Justice about possible genocide by Israeli forces in Gaza, South Africa presented the comments as inciting genocide against the Palestinian people; Netanyahu denied that was his intention, stating the South African accusation reflected a deep historical ignorance since he was referring to Hamas, not Palestinians as a whole. Except he and his ilk have obliterated 13k children and over 30K people overall, surely they were not all Hamas? Surely the average Jewish person can see through the lies by now, or are they too brainwashed by a fake book that is riddled with hatred and violent tendencies. Plus being mind controlled into believing everyone on Earth should pay for alleged events from 80 years ago to 2000 years ago and even 9-10K years ago These people or beings are a blight upon this planet and have been for a very long time, including to their own alleged people. I am not asking or inferring they should be obliterated, but they should be stopped from participating in war, division, cruelty, perversion, subversion, torture, slavery, settlements and trafficking immediately. That requires all people including the Jewish to see through the lies and programming and learn to come together as people's as one, as equals and in peace.

FHSTOS SECTION:

Following on from the Expose, this part was tied in with the Expose but I separated it for greater understanding and impact. It said, who are the Moabites today?

Noble Drew Ali succinctly states in Act 6 of our Divine Constitution and By-Laws of the Moorish Science Temple of America that, the Moorish Americans who are called black people, are descendants of the ancient Moabites who inhabited the Northwestern and Southwestern shores of Africa. Today they are called the Berbers. Here comes some astonishing dot connectors and also a major revelation that confirms something I pondered on in Utah last August. What applies here is, and you know sometimes words have two meanings, or in this case several. As the pronunciation of several words all sound the same, yet have many different meanings. Moor (n.) North African, Berber, one of the race dwelling in Barbary, late 14c., from Old French More. From Medieval Latin Morus, from Latin Maurus inhabitant of Mauretania, Roman northwest Africa, a region now corresponding to northern Algeria and Morocco. Is this why Jerusalem has a Moroccan quarter? From Greek Mauros, perhaps a native name, or else cognate with mauros meaning black. Also applied to the Arabic conquerors of Spain. Being a dark people in relation to Europeans, their name in the Middle Ages was a synonym for Negro; later (16c.-17c.); being the nearest Muslims to Western Europe, it was used indiscriminately of Muslims (Persians, Arabs, etc.) but especially those in India. In our book it wasn't the Arabs who conquered Spain, but the Sephardic Jews. The term, which is derived from the Hebrew Sepharad, which means Spanish or Hispanic, can also refer to the Jews of the Middle East and North Africa, who were also heavily influenced by Sephardic law and customs. So the term Hispanic is not a reference to Spanish language peoples, but Jews. These were the jet black race, hence the link to India. Cognate with Dutch Moor, German Mohr, Danish Maurer, Spanish Moro and Italian Moro. One of the Sephardic names of a tribe is called The Sephardic Bnei Anusim. Anu? Ism. Anu is the Lord of the bible and the Draco reptilian king or was. Another dot connector, hence our term for calling them the Hebrew Anunnaki. Sephardic Bnei Anusim are broadly categorized as Zera Yisrael meaning the Seed of Israel. But you also have the Bnei B'rith which was formed in New York by German Jews and went onto becoming a 501C charity. It means children of the covenant, but is also the Seed of Britain as the Bnei B'rithish. One does have to ask is that demon seeding? These are the sub gray race people from our book, deliberate seeding amongst the native populaces in order to fit in here and then takeover the planet. Historically they are not native to this planet. Bnei B'Rith also created the Jewish based Anti-Defamation League and they were given an NGO seat in the United Nations. A Presidential Gold Medal is awarded by B'nai B'rith every few years to honor the recipient's commitment to the Jewish people and the State of Israel. Those who received it become indicative, John F Kennedy, GHW Bush, Gerald Ford, Harry Trumann and Dwight Eisenhower. Zera Yisrael are the Halakhically non-Jewish descendants of Jews who, for practical purposes, are neither completely Jewish nor completely gentile. How racist does that sound? But it also means they are not from this planet.

Where is Edom and Moab today?

Moab, kingdom, ancient Palestine. Located east of the Dead Sea in what is now west-central Jordan, it was bounded by Edom and the land of the Amorites. The Moabites were closely related to the Israelites and the two were frequently in conflict. Zephaniah. 2:9 Therefore, as surely as I live, declares the LORD Almighty, the God of Israel. The Lord the god of Israel? More Anuism. Surely Moab will become like Sodom, the Ammonites like Gomorrah - a place of weeds and salt pits, a wasteland forever. The remnant of my people will plunder them; the survivors of my nation will inherit their land. Conquering lands and creating settlements has gone on a long time, it seems. But it really says my race will inherit their land, as nation originally meant race. Zephaniah is the son of Maaseiah, the second priest in the reign of Zedekiah. Two things comes from the Maaseiah sounds eerily like the Messiah. The iah is an addition to names which leaves Maase and Zedek, put Melchi in front of Zedek and you have the Melchizedek's. Seeing the picture now? Moab also brings in a place in Utah and ties nicely into the next section. "Moab will become a place of weeds and salt pits, a wasteland" all a bit like Moab, Utah is now. But is that why they named the capital Salt Lake as well? Perhaps we will find out. Mormon (n.) adherent of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 1830, introduced by the religion's founder, Joseph Smith (1805-1844), in Seneca County, N.Y.

So are the Mormons connected to the Moors? From Mormon, supposed prophet and author of The Book of Mormon, explained by Smith as meaning more mon, from English more and Egyptian mon good. As an adjective by 1842. More is spelt with an e on the end, so is it mor, more or moor? The Egyptian mon gave it all away and so does this picture. See image "2024-04-18 image 1.jpg" in Downloads section on the show page. It says Mormons keepers of the Moorish creed, replete with a picture of the symbol of Ra and the symbiote from the eye. One of the videos about the Moors Mormons states quite clearly, that the original Joseph Smith who was black in the picture is a Hebrew Israelite. See image “2024-04-18 image 2.jpg” in Downloads section on the show page. What this all confirms is, is that Joseph Smith knew the Temple at Salt Lake was already there. He knew most of the lands West of the Mississippi were barren and was chartered to claim that land mass north of what was Mexican lands, which just happened to be claimed in the 1830’s courtesy of the Battle of the Alamo. Was this reclamation in concert with claiming the lands south of Utah and Northern Arizona, plus whole swathes of California, a two pronged attack to create more settlements? More than likely when you consider Utah was acquired from Mexico in 1848 and established as a territory in September 1850. Because now we have Joseph Smith as an Israelite, the Mormons as we have stated before follow the serpent god Ra. Which was a fake solar cult and hijacking of our solar system by many extra-terrestrial races here, most notably the Draco, Anunnaki, Marduk and his cult and the Hebrew Anunnaki. So now, you have the Sephardic Jews called the Spanish Conquistadors, reclaim the whole of central America and then the Hebrew Israelites reclaiming everything above Mexico on the West side of America. All of which unfolded 100 years or so before the Project Paperclip event. Is it a coincidence that the same Jewish scientists in the Manhattan Project used New Mexico as it’s testing ground? Seems like Smith was an agent of the Ra and Hebrew cult, all very Matrix based that, Agent Smith. As one member pointed out, the leading institute for ancient artifacts is also Matrix based, the Smith-sonian.

Is there more proof that the Salt Lake Temple was built prior to Agent Smith? A reminder from earlier, “Moab will become a place of weeds and salt pits, a wasteland”, hence the Salt Lake capital. One has to ask, whether it was their paymasters who used weapons in the whole of the four corners area back in time? And Moab in the Middle East is another overlay, just like we found many overlays in the biblical narrative in the FHSTOS Plus 24 show. The symbols in this next picture of the Salt Lake temple becomes indicative. Remember the URs was a solar cult as they called it and there is a picture of the sun with the all seeing eye. A picture of what looks like a Vitmana, an URs spacecraft inside a wheel which could well be the Vitmara, which held 144 Vitmanas. A picture of uniting hands, which is all very URs and other objects like a 5 pointed star and discs of suns or planets. But the main proof of who built it is in one of the carvings on the Temple, it is the constellation of Ursa Major. To me that proves it was built by the URs, why would Joseph Smith and company place that on the temple, when Ra and his serpents were enemies of the URs? They wouldn’t and this confirms my hypothesis that the URs built that temple and the cult of Ra sent to Joseph Smith to take over it and overlay it in terms of history and who and when it was built. See image “2024-04-18 image 3.jpg” in Downloads section on the show page. The 3 columns with spires at the top of them all have 3 layers, equaling 9. Below the 3 spires level is also 3 levels times 3 columns, also equals a 9. There are 13 window openings on the 3 columns, 5 on the left and 5 on the right. The middle columns has 3, but the top opening does not have a window, making it 12+1. I believe the beehive in a lower window was added later. Utah is known as the Beehive State, why? It is said to be a symbol of Ra. It is ironic that Utah with a high percentage of white population compared to many other states, houses the Cult of Ra and the Hebrew Anunnaki cult to lord over their populace.

Utah Demographics:

According to the most recent ACS, the racial composition of Utah was: White: 83.7% Two or more races: 5.64% Other race: 5.2% One has to ask given the tunnels underneath Salt Lake City, just who are the 5.2%

“other race”. What does other race mean? Is it alien? Asian: 2.34% Black or African American: 1.19% Native American: 1.03% Native Hawaiian or Pacific Islander: 0.9%

In terms of religious preferences among the current residents of the state, 73% are affiliated with a Christian based faith, 4% are affiliated with non-Christian based faiths and 18% are not affiliated with any religion in particular. Salt Lake City, Utah, is the world headquarters of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (LDS Church). However, almost half of Utah's counties are seeing significant declines in Mormon membership in recent years. About 60.68% of Utahans are members of the church.

As mentioned earlier about the Jewish imposing taxes or tributes on people as far back as 10K years ago, this Mormon church does the exact same with their tithing program. Often that program involves coercion, blackmail and threats by the church to deliver the tithing. The church also has access to the incomes of all people in Utah, how have they received that much power over the people? Another link to the aforementioned groups is the propensity in the church community to commit numerous sexual offenses, often against children and a high percentage rate of incestuous sexual relationships in Utah as well. The temple was said to be built straight after Smith and Brigham Young arrived after a 2000 miles plus trek across America on horse and carts. The temple's location was first marked by Brigham Young, the church's second president, on July 28, 1847, just four days after he arrived in the Salt Lake Valley. Does that make any sense? They arrive in an unpopulated area in 1847 and declare to build the temple before any houses, gardens or collect resources? The temple was completed they say in 1892, yet there are old pictures of Utah showing the building complete in 1851 replete with scaffolding. It is said to have taken 40 years, another of the repeat biblical numbers that, 40. It is my belief that, the residents of Utah are part of the white race and were maybe even hand selected to move there, without knowing the agenda of Smith and Young. Given the off world entities underneath the Temple and various tunnels going to Dugway, one wonders whether the LDS is another plot against the white race here. What is worse is, they are worshipping the very entities who are our enemies and have been for over a hundred thousand years. Whilst it is nice to see the decline in church followers there, it needs a mass walk out and leave them to rot. All that tithing has led to this church being like a modern day Vatican, with vast amounts of wealth. Yet again it is not shared with the people, whilst they sit on the largest gold reserves in America. There is lots to admire about Utah, but that church and it's practices is a stain on the region and the people following it. The people of the white race in Utah needs to reject their oppressors and restore that state back to its original format, in accordance with their true gods, the URs.

MYSTERY SECTION:

This was written by a member and shows how many of you now, are thinking and acting different and in a much deeper way. This was in response to the Trump 9/11 President piece done in the last show. A few ponderings came up and a few more confirmations on the 9/11 piece. Statements by the Clowns in the recent past. Ukraine Defense Minister saying Russian invasion is their 9/11. Multiple news outlets saying the Hamas attack on Israel was their 9/11. Elon Musk saying: The groundwork is being laid for an event far worse than 9/11. So I asked why, because they are trying loop back to the power they had in 2001. Next year will be 24 years since 9/11.  $3 \times 8(\text{loop}) = 24$ . With the piece you had about Fulford, does the  $3 \times 8(\text{loop})$  mean 3 loops back? Good question and yes they are trying to loop everyone back in time, like the vaccine memory wipe piece earlier, it won't work though. Which also brings in other confirmations of attempts at attempting to loop back. Israel/Hamas incident 10/7/2024  $10+7 = 8$ ,  $2024=8$ . Elon Musk saying yesterday Robo-Taxis will be unveiled on 8/8/2024(8). Which is the Lion's Gate portal, or the correct name of The Lion of Judah Gate, of which they have been trying to instigate that for a number of years as well, that has failed also. Interesting correlation as well with the Fulford piece with Musk, Mr. I-Put-Chips-In-People's-Heads and the Trustee, Ms. I-Have-A-Chip-In-My-Head. Seems like the operating system upgrade vaccine isn't working too well, they have to put chips in people's heads now. Utter stupidity! Agreed and utter desperation also, the world is closing in on them now and it is squeaky bottoms time for them.

A NASA based craft called Odyssey has supposed landed on the moon for the first time since the Apollo launches. The craft landed it said last Thursday, but it seems its trajectory was all wrong as it has landed on its side. They are expected to lose contact with the craft by Tuesday this week. I wonder why it went wrong? Perhaps things are just not the same anymore? After all the alt media hullabaloo over the Apophis rockets being launched during the eclipse. NASA's Atmospheric Perturbations around Eclipse Path (APEP) mission, named for the Egyptian god of darkness and enemy of the sun god, Ra. Trying to symbolically replace the outgoing Ra with Apophis, failed. The goal is to study potential disturbances in the ionosphere during a solar eclipse. Except only the first one launched around the eclipse time, the other two were 1-2 hours after it. According to them anyway they launched at 2.40EST, 3.25 and 4.28ET. As per usual with these events, nothing worked as they said they would and the fear again was unnecessary.

THI members took another trip away recently, this time to Texas for the solar eclipse. The location was based upon the trajectories of the last 3 eclipses in America in 2016, 2023 and 2024. The place selected was a small town outside of Dallas called Lone Oak. This had another significance to it, as the Oak, Ash, Birch and Elm trees played into the Santies and Vedas pieces. But upon arrival another sign we were in the right place greeted us all. A giant billboard less than 100 yards away from where we gathered on the 33' degree line, it said Tommy Williams pipe and steel. I guess there are no coincidences anymore. The day started off very cloudy and I was concerned that we would miss the full show per se. Yes you get all the effects, but with clouds blocking the sky everywhere, the feeling was we may not get an unobstructed view. Work was undertaken to correct that and we hoped all would be well. This was my third full solar eclipse and the other two were obstructed by clouds and deliberate chemtrailing, particularly in Charleston 2016. The chemtrails were heavy before and during the event as well, I guess they were concerned about something! As time ticked away, the moon made its first gambit towards blocking out of the sun and interesting observations were being made. Firstly, right above us and between the sun was a large vortex and 12+1 golden eagles appeared, circling around the vortex at an enormous height. Residents of Texas do not recall seeing that many eagles in Texas, but today they were here. The golden eagle appearance has mystery school significance, as the bald eagle in those terms, is an overlay of America. America's national bird and that of Russia, is the golden eagle, not the bald eagle, even though that is my favorite bird. It is majestic in flight and we had a pair of nesting bald eagles on our road when I was in Florida. The energies experienced began to ramp up for the group, for me personally it started a few weeks earlier. Irritable legs, tingling feet and body was all on display. The day before I wrote something for the members and before the event I read it out to them all. This is what I wrote, I hope you like it as it got all our members including me, very emotional.

Darkness will briefly extinguish our light today, but remember it is always the darkest before the dawn. But our light is never extinguished, only dimmed. As behind the false shadow of the fake satellite, the sun, our star still burns as bright as ever. The sun and the light always prevails and the illusion of the sun rise and sunset plagues the 3D thinking mind. The higher D thinking heart knows it's true value as the life giver and bringer. Reflect today on your own inner sun, darkened by shadows and traumas like your own permanent eclipse. Plagued by lower level thinking and limitation patterns. Why would you dim yourself to those levels? A permanent eclipse of the heart? Maybe this can be your day, that you all here remove your self-created eclipses and truly shine like a beacon.

I then showed the members a picture of the celestial sky, should we get to see the full unobstructed view and the night sky comes into viewing. To the left of the sun, was Jupiter and Mercury, plus the comet of fear in between, that was proposed by the fear and doom merchants of the alt media and mainstream alike. Do you now see there is no difference between them? Why? Ran by the same groups and religious fanatics who only portray doom and gloom. They are the, we are all going to die brigade, but events like this day and others signals, they are going to metaphorically die with their fake predictions and like the sun briefly from our viewing point, they will be extinguished. One of the curious things in observance is, the eclipse took place in April which is Aries and yet we were pointing towards Pisces when the eclipse took place. Which could be another pointer to the Common Sense Zoom presentation last year, about the planet is turning south west and back on its axis, which is the sky direction for Pisces. With the night sky darkened the stars and planets came out, unlike what happened in the Rahu eclipse event last October. Greeting us in the sky was Jupiter and Mercury to the left and between them the fear laden doom Comet of the alt and MSM people. The comet was not observed by the naked eye, but was picked up by my camera. To the right of the sun was Venus, Mars and Saturn. As time passed so did the clouds, like a peeling back of the curtain for the main event, the totality. Energies at this point for our group were going through the roof and many of them were lying down, probably just as well as many would have got dizzy. We were joined in the background by one of the staff of the Dollar tree store, as she felt the energies of the event and also from our group. With preparation now complete, we went onto the main event and things really started to unfold. Various crafts, dimensional rifts, portals, possibly two oversouls witnessing the event and possibly a glimpse at the solar being all on display. The craft were particularly clear on the camera, as two lights were observed dancing around the sun in various positions. I asked in the last show, that the light will shine through, but shine through what? And will we see the blue swathes I mentioned also. Well the light shone through the moon in a spectacular way and the blue swathes were visible in nearly all camera shots. Drifting out for millions of miles as the sun dimmed from our perspective, so did everything else. For those brief few minutes of darkness, everything went eerily still and calm. No longer where the birds chirping, the dogs barking or the cows close by mooing, just the sound of silence. All in the group were in total silence and awe at this point as well. So the town of Lone Oak Texas now appears on the THI map of events, that have played out in a few states and a few countries now. The Lone Oak in the Lone Star state was all very fitting to observe, yet I pondered the Lone Oak from a single tree a forest can grow. From our perspective it is a lone star, but all stars are interconnected and so is your own inner sun, something most people fail to grasp. The members were warned the frequencies were expected to be high, embrace and integrate them as quickly as possible they were told. They were warned of dizziness, light headed and heart racing during the event and that was certainly felt by our members. A sense of wonderment, a sense of awe was about to unfold, but I reminded them we are all one. That nothing is outside of us, that is not replicated within. Observe your own inner eclipse and let the light within you, shine through. I asked them do you wish to be the dark clouds that manifested above us, that is masking your own sunlight? No? then change it and suddenly within 5-10 minutes all the clouds disappeared and we had an unobstructed view of the heavens. Do you manifest or do you Man I Fester? During the event I felt totally out of body, unaware of where I was or any awareness of anything around me. Yet I felt total bliss within that time frame, of which I have no idea as to how long I was standing there. Alone, yet the all around me. Then the diamond ring appeared and loud cheering could be heard around the town, as the sun wins the duel of the heavens and begins to shine brightly again. None of us had the fake solar glasses for the event, most had sun glasses only and some could see it directly. As the moon went on its way and the full glare of sun blazed down upon us all an inner peace fell over all of us. The storekeeper came up to us and told us of her struggles in life and how overwhelmed she felt being around our group and our frequencies, she was tearing up and almost speechless. She was then given some healing energies and our members began to tell her who we are and all about the Blueprint. Yesterday she joined our Mewe group, a THI welcome for Alisha Smith. I suspect April 8th was a day she will never forget and hopefully a day that will change her life for the better. A sense of disbelief overcome our group as we all came together after the moon departed and all tried to ponder on just what they had witnessed, but more so the sense of feeling of the all, the event brought us. We should all rejoice as the light once again overcame the dark and prevailed. The sun neither rises nor sets it just is. Which is a balance lesson for us all. The eclipse was 18 days after the Day of the Svarog, 18 equals another 9, coincidence? We think not. On April 8th, 2024, was the official day the sun came home. The day the Cult of Ra were dreading has now unfolded and has returned back to its original being and format. The harp or the lyre plays on and we should all dance to its melodic tune.

Final piece tonight of what has been an epic and revealing show. I hope the THI eclipse piece gave all who couldn't witness it, a sense of being there as it was a magical experience. These are special times for THI with much of our story now getting repeated everywhere and also the Blueprint is circling the globe nicely as well. Over the past few weeks I have had two important calls with a prominent person interested in our Blueprint and how we can all come together. I have another prominent person lined up to speak to as well, who was too ill to attend this Tuesday's meeting. This is only the first wave as I see it and many more will eventually approach us and engage with us in talks of how to formulate it. I made it clear that the Blueprint is a foundation and many deeper talks and perhaps even better solutions can be garnered by engaging with more people in each field or solution. I didn't announce who the prominent people were out of respect for their privacy, which is something we uphold at THI as a matter of principle. We at THI will always endeavor to operate in truth, with honor and integrity, it is the only way to be and act if we wish to restore this planet to its former glory. We will announce it in due time after further talks which have been planned before the end of the month. Much work has to be undertaken and many discussions going forward and I and we look forward to those with excitement. It has been stated by some, that our Blueprint is too radical, yet with the knowledge of all that has gone before that most of you have learned over the near past 8 years of THI, it cannot be anything but radical. There is no band aid fix for this planet, as the depth and scope of the hostile takeover of this planet by dark forces is now becoming self-evident. It was they who created the systems that has never worked for the people and the only way we can change that fact is, to rip it all up and to start again. With fresh ideas, with new people operating only for the benefit of all the people. Operating in full transparency, truth and the need to all come together and share this planet.
