

THI-SHOW TRANSCRIPT 2024-08-28

The Blueprint Episode 29 Teams Report week ending 25th August 2024.

The Agenda:

We started the meeting proper by stating our intention to spread and manifest the Blueprint throughout the planet and beyond. First up for discussion was a request for the agenda portion of the Blueprint Show to be passed to a new volunteer. Though it has not yet been assigned on a permanent basis, for the time being the person taking the notes has taken on the task. Several follow-up items were then addressed.

An influencer who had received the Blueprint and subsequently contacted us to ask questions, has since been asked by one of our members to consider an interview with Thomas Williams. As no reply has been received yet, it was suggested the person was merely curious about the Blueprint and what information it covers. So, the member originally contacted by the influencer will follow up to discover the scope of interest. One enthusiastic member who has been working on his own to spread the word of the Blueprint, has now joined one of our teams and is learning to work within a group. We welcome Billy and hope he will enjoy operating in this new environment.

Housekeeping items included correction of a hyperlink and a decision on the best use of a contact template, as well as establishing the priority of another contact proposal to a lower status as a future project rather than a current one. That prompted our ever-vigilant coordinator to create a Future Projects list to ensure no efforts fall by the wayside. Feedback regarding the Link Tree in thi-show.com led to a proposal of a new Link Tree for the Blueprint, that will provide ready access to the three essential Blueprint shows and the categories overview page. Meanwhile, Youtube will be removed from the THI Link Tree as that platform has yet again proved its intention to censor truth.

Next, new projects were discussed at length. The What Is Series will soon be available on THI. Text of those podcast pieces has been gathered and is being checked to format as individual segments, each with its own page linked to an overview page containing a gallery of images depicting the essence of each What Is concept. Another group of members is surveying available licensed images. The photos proposed will be assessed by the team, and the most apt and effective photos will be chosen for the new series. In the meantime, background music is being considered, and screened for legal restrictions. When a visual of the overview page for the series was posted for the team, several members expressed hearty approval. If all goes as anticipated, the What Is series should be ready by the next team meeting, for final approval before it goes live. Mention that a book could be created from the What Is series, though new images would have to be used because of copyright issues, led into discussion of another project, a Booklet to introduce a School Curriculum design to replace the indoctrination programs of the current education system. Content of an existing curriculum that spans the full spectrum of studies from kindergarten to doctorate levels has been checked and its status as being copyright free confirmed. That material is being prepared in document form and, when approved by members familiar with doctorate programs as well as by the founding members of the Curriculum group, the text will be passed to the Book team for formatting and publication. Once the main section of the agenda concluded, the team moved on to questions by members. An issue with the email spam filters has arisen and has prompted institution of a new operating procedure to ensure that any who contact the Blueprint team do not get taken out with the trash, so to speak. The Web team will also test the system's protocols and requirements, in order to determine ways to prevent both receipt of fake emails and failure to receive legitimate inquiries.

Then, the Merchandise team happily reported the sale of 39 garments and the establishment of both bookkeeping and standardized shipping procedures. Payment through Paypal has been successful, and full coverage of the costs of garments, printing the Blueprint logo, and shipping is expected by mid-September. One member of the team is researching order forms and working with our IT group to create a Merchandise sales page on the website. And another member is looking into expansion of the merchandise to include mugs, which are proving popular with those who have seen photos of the prototype. Last, but by no means least, it was suggested that the 5 by 5 team create a new campaign to take advantage of the ICJ ruling that both Israeli settlements and the very existence of Israel as a state are illegal. Details of the ruling will be researched and sent to the team for consideration, while the 5 by 5 group continues its letter-writing and meme campaign to bring pressure to bear on Johns Hopkins University for its participation in the newest pandemic fraud orchestrated by the remnants of the old system still trying to subjugate humanity.

Book Team:

From His Story to Our Story Volume 4 is published and available on lulu.com and through the thi-show.com/bookstore. The Bulgarian translation of From His Story to Our Story Volume 2 is in the proofreading stage. The German translation of From His Story to Our Story Volume 2 is proceeding, and the Dutch translation has begun. Formatting has begun for the Swedish translation of The New Blueprint for Humanity. And the team is transferring to a new home on the forum, though we will remain on MeWe as well.

Research Team:

The primary focus of the Research Team is to assist the Activist Team. We are expanding efforts to discover contact information for special projects that the Activist Team are pursuing. Our focus on selections for inclusion in the BP Episodes, changes to people and organizations producing podcasts or websites, producing stories to inform the public about what is really happening. This provides a platform for the Activist Team to prioritize who to approach.

PDFs were sent to twenty regional coordination centers for the Waldorf school systems in the UK and the US.

The PDF links were sent to the following twenty names:

Brian S. Hooker: Is the chief scientific officer at Children's Health Defense, an organization founded by Robert F Kennedy Jr. and committed to the best health for children in the US and worldwide. Last year, Dr. Hooker published Vax-Unvax with RFK Jr., which is based on over one hundred studies in the peer-reviewed literature that consider vaccinated versus unvaccinated populations. He was featured on a recent podcast where he answered one of our THI members' question: What are some solutions for stopping the madness of the plan-demics?.

Steve Friend: Is an expert at The Center for Renewing America. Their mission is to renew a consensus of America as a nation under God with unique interest worthy of defending that flow from its people, institutions and history, where individuals' enjoyment of freedom is predicated on just laws and healthy communities. He was declared AWOL by the FBI after refusing to participate in the Jan. 6 investigations the bureau was conducting on citizens, claiming they were in violation of their civil liberties, and they had a duty to uphold the Constitution.

David Roger Webb: Is the author of The Great Taking. It is about the taking of collateral (all of it), the end game of the current globally synchronous debt accumulation super cycle. This scheme is being executed by long-planned, intelligent design, the audacity and scope of which is difficult for the mind to encompass. Included are all financial assets and bank deposits, all stocks and bonds; and hence, all underlying property of all public corporations, including all inventories, plant and equipment; land, mineral deposits, inventions and intellectual property. Privately owned personal and real property financed with any amount of debt will likewise be taken, as will the assets of privately owned businesses which have been financed with debt. If even partially successful, this will be the greatest conquest and subjugation in world history.

G. Edward Griffin: Is an author and founder of Red Pill Expo, with the purpose to help truth seekers understand how the world really works contrary to commonly held illusions.

American Media Group: Is dedicated to the truth, true journalism and the truth movement. The truth will set us free, and it will enlighten, inspire, awaken and unite us.

Penuel the Black Pen: Is a content creator known for engaging discussions on topics like African identity, history, culture and social issues. You can find his conversations and interviews on platforms like YouTube and TikTok. His goal is to challenge, liberate and even colonize human minds through his content.

Guy Kawaski: He possesses extensive knowledge of innovation, entrepreneurship, social media, podcasting and marketing. First and foremost, he is an evangelist. He is the creator of the Remarkable People podcast where he interviews people such as Jane Goodall, Woz, Stephen Wolfram, Bob Cialdini, Arianna Huffington and Kristi Yamaguchi.

Jeremy Griffith: Founded The World Transformation Movement, a global not-for-profit charity that promotes Australian biologist his breakthrough resolution of the underlying problem in all human affairs of the human condition, thereby ending human conflict and suffering at its source. Thus it provides the now urgently needed road map for the complete transformation of our lives and world.

Craig Conway: Is an actor, writer, producer and director, who founded the World Transformation Movement Centre to support the people of Northeast England in their interest in and journey with the transformative, scientific explanation of the human condition presented in the book FREEDOM: The End Of The Human Condition by biologist Jeremy Griffith. He has been on a 30-year search within the arts, and through studying psychology and spirituality, to define why we humans, especially creative people, struggle with divine dissatisfaction. Why can humans be so creative, sensitive and empathetic, yet be troubled by such inner conflict as to spiral into psychological despair and addiction, and for some to even go so far as to end their lives.

Scott LoBaido: Is a freedom fighter and artist known for patriotic, US Flag, and political themed paintings and sculptures. He painted a portrait of George Soros and his son Alex called the Noxious feeding and popped it up in front of their headquarter office asking them to come down and view it.

Anneke Lucas: Is an author, speaker, and advocate for child sex trafficking victims. Her work is based on her personal experience of a 30+ year healing journey after surviving being sold by her family as a child sex slave to a pedophile network in Belgium. She has synthesized her healing through psychotherapy, writing, yoga, and meditation, dedicating a decade of service to incarcerated populations and survivors of sex trafficking. Anneke was one of the survivors from our series The true horrors of the World.

Joe Banister: Is the first and still only IRS Criminal Investigation Division Special Agent ever to investigate allegations of deceitful and illegal conduct in the agency's administration. And enforcement of the federal income tax system and report the results of his investigation first to IRS management and executives and then to the American people.

Sheriff Mark Lamb: Has served as Sheriff of Pinal County since 2017, serves on the frontlines at the Southern Border, fighting the criminal cartels to prevent the flow of deadly fentanyl and human trafficking.

Victor Marx: Is a high-risk humanitarian, former U.S. Marine, author, filmmaker, and lays claim to the World's fastest gun disarm.

Mark Attwood: Hosts the podcast The Mark Attwood Show: Adventures in a Cosmic Suit and has spent his entire life in this incarnation trying to work out the meaning of life and battling demons.

Stephanie Seneff: Is a Senior Research Scientist at the MIT Computer Science and Artificial Intelligence Laboratory. She has focused her research interests back on biology. She is concentrating mainly on the relationship between nutrition and health. Since 2011, she has published over 30 papers, together with colleagues, in various peer-reviewed medical and health-related journals on topics such as modern-day diseases (e.g., Alzheimer, autism, cardiovascular diseases), analysis and search of databases of drug side effects using NLP techniques, and the impact of nutritional deficiencies and environmental toxins on human health.

Patrick Wood: Is the editor-in-chief at Technology News & Trends. He is a leading and critical expert on Sustainable Development, Green Economy, Agenda 21, 2030 Agenda and historic Technocracy. He remains a leading expert on the elitist Trilateral Commission, their policies and achievements in creating their self-proclaimed New International Economic Order, which is the essence of Sustainable Development on a global scale.

Joel Salatin: Is a farmer, writer and speaker. He co-owns, with his family, Polyface Farm in Swoope, Virginia. Featured in the New York Times bestseller Omnivore's Dilemma and award-winning documentary Food Inc., the farm services more than 5,000 families, 50 restaurants, 10 retail outlets, and a farmers' market. He passionately defends small farms, local food systems, and the right to opt out of the conventional food paradigm. Four generations of his family currently live and work on the farm.

Meryl Nass: Created Door to Freedom to help us get back our rights and freedoms by collecting the information you need about the changes in our world, to make the best decisions for yourself and your family. The world is changing fast, and it is difficult to keep up and understand everything that is happening. Basic human rights, which are legal rights everyone has by virtue of being a human being, have been trampled during the pandemic. The first step to regaining our rights and freedom is understanding what happened and what may happen.

Media Team:

The Media Team is working together to transition a new administrator and members who joined recently. As part of that process, roles and workflow are being clarified, along with standardization of certain meme categories and styles. A file that lays out these standards for new and experienced members to refer to is available on the Media page in MeWe as well as on the Forum. Youtube has been abandoned as it has been deleting our videos. The team will consider alternative video platforms in due course. We are now looking for new video makers to help us spread the messages of the Blueprint and THI. Meanwhile, new memes have been created for the 5x5 team, THI, and the books, with more to come, as well as exciting whole new projects on the horizon. We are maintaining the dedicated Book Day on Fridays, as well as established posting practices. And we are pleased to have the new From His Story to Our Story Volume 1 Chapter 1 promotion added to our repertoire.

The Activist team reports:

We have embarked on a plan to derail the Johns Hopkins event in October at Thomas' behest in the last BP show and this will involve both a letter campaign, which we are working with the Research Team on, and a meme campaign, which the overall Media Team is supporting. Since our last meeting, we also created a social media power point deck that will help those new to our team to come up to speed on our goals, so don't be shy. We will show you anything you need to know to join us and help make the difference for both the Blueprint and the Johns Hopkins campaign we are actioning. We have renamed the Activism Team the 5x5 Team with the following definition and this change was inspired by a message we received on Twitter on the 20th of August.

5x5 Team and Strategy Defined:

- All Posters post to 5 influencers plus mission-specific individuals or organizations for 5 days straight to create an impression.
- 5x5 in military speak means signal strength or readability. It can be used informally to mean good signal strength or loud and clear.
- The 5x5 strategy is used over all social media platforms that we man and manage. We currently use YouTube, Telegram, TikTok, FB, MeWe, etc.

Here is the message that we received, a good message for all of us to hear, and the BP account responded accordingly:

This new blueprint is dense in a good way so far. This needed to be made. It's quite the outline. Deep respect. I realize that I'm a nobody, a random newcomer who has little value, who am I to judge? These are things I've thought about for a long time and have my own ideas on paper. I realize the energy it requires to put together what you have done. I believe if only a few of these ideas that you have are implemented, the world will change for the better. While we don't agree on every nuance and that's humanity. 90% is damn good. I agree with your desired outcomes. As I progress and I get to know your organization, I would love to be of service where I can be. If I may make a little suggestion (realizing I have a little value at the moment) I want to see this information spread to the proper (places) to actually make a difference. If I may, the word activists etc., has such a negative weight in peoples' mind, may I suggest that every good organization creates its own lingo for marketing and sticky-ness. I hope for humanity's sake that your organization takes flight!! So far, I believe you have it right. Few people have enough information spiritually and are motivated politically. I've been at it alone for a while myself. I wish you well and hope to be of service one day. Peace be with you.

European Blueprint team:

The Euro Blueprint team discussed two sections of the Blueprint. The Introduction, with the list of countries in Europe added, was finalized. The Banking and Financial Systems Solution, with an addition for the situation in Europe, was read and partly edited together, and we found we need some more explanation by the editor, who will be contacted for this. An idea for the School, Training and Apprenticeships Solution was brought up, to maybe include parts of the Curriculum that is being written by a member. We'll have a look at this, when it is available. Some of the planned agenda topics were moved to next meeting due to some members being on holidays or travelling.

Merchandise team:

With our second meeting under our belt, we were delighted to have seven members in attendance. We agreed that each meeting will start with setting our intentions so everything would go smoothly. Three of our orders were mailed out and are excited to see the members who purchased them, with their merchandise happily in their hands or wearing them. We looked at possible new products of clear glass mugs with a blue handle and long-sleeved t-shirts. We are in process of price research and comparisons for 3 x 3 stickers of the flower of life with the URL and bumper stickers. A member from Holland is preparing her proposal based on the template, it is utmost important to keep the proper flow of protocol and respecting the trademarked /copyrighted logo as noted by Tommy. The logo in any form is required to have permission to reprint. We have decided to limit our meetings to once a month until sales pick up and we have made more progress on getting the website order process set up, which may take several months. We do have 9 XL hoodies available. There are 4 mellow blue, 3 navy, 1 charcoal and 1 white available for immediate shipping. The cost for each is $40 + $10.60 Shipping = $50.60. Private message Sue on MeWe @SueCalannio to reserve yours today.

In Overview: The unravelling

What we see now in the unveiling of the truth frequency, is that everything is unravelling in front of our eyes. The world as we know it is crumbling in the physical, their war blasting away not only the land and the buildings but also the people. The destruction is everywhere, the pot is boiling over and just like a bubbling volcano when the temperature heats up the gases look for an exit point. One wonders why a volcano might exist if ultimately it will destroy itself and everything around it, and what influences the volcano to become active or dormant? Scientists say that deep within the earth it becomes so hot that some rocks slowly melt and become a thick flowing substance called magma. As it is lighter than the solid rock around it the magma rises and collects in the magma chambers until eventually some of the magma pushes through the vents and fissures to the earth's surface. It can be a thing of beauty to admire in its own majestic form, or it can become something to fear, it is its own essence of dark and light. The temperature is rising now within the people, they are rising to the surface, slowly awakening from the slumber of the deep state coma, has their anger and frustration reached its boiling point too? As we have learned on this planet everything has the potential to be either light or dark in nature, the animal kingdom and the beings that inhabit it, we all have the potential to be either working from the dark within or the light. What we ultimately project outwards is the inner screen of our darkness or light being seen. How we choose to unravel at this time is key, the destiny of our future planet and how we inhabit it is down to the frequency we omit during this key point in the evolution of the Higher Universal Man. If we emit from the shadows, we then produce the same spawn from the same historical program, when we emit from the light we become the game changers, the light bearers and the guardians.

But in overview everything has to unravel to be seen. The flower has to unravel to unfurl its petals in order that we see it's true beauty, otherwise it will always remain a bud. The butterfly must unravel from the cocoon to emerge, it must destroy its home and place of safety in order to unfurl its wings to fly, otherwise it remains trapped and we will never experience its own beauty, the essence of itself. William Butler Yeats an Irish author in his poem Easter 1916 wrote these words three times within the poem, “A terrible beauty is born” referring to the significant changes taking place in Ireland within the people, as the battle for independence between the people of Ireland and the British government became seen in its own terrible glory of war. What a price to pay for freedom, the scars of the battles run deep within the psyche of the Irish people. It seems his story repeats and wars will wage as long as we allow it too, and as long as the people accept the unacceptable. And so as within and so without, as above and so below, the world is unravelling but this time what will emerge, a thing of beauty or devastating destruction, and who will be left behind to fix it? But within everything there lies another potential the triality, the neutral point and the balance of light and dark. This is the space where one can overview without personal interjection, and personal agendas. As we look around us, can we honestly say that many of us have reached that potential to remain neutral, when all around us is losing its head? Can we stay within the heart long enough to become the over viewer and retain neutrality? and ultimately is losing your head the key to neutrality as then you have to enter the heart? That is the role of the master, the true master of yourself, where you can make decisions based on the benefit of humanity and service to others, even if it means you must sacrifice yourself or possibly your family for the good of the all. Who among us would even take on such a responsible role, the answer is very few. We have become a dualistic planet, run by the dueling minds of others that have run this planet through the gauntlet of time.

So, let us look at the word Gauntlet, it is derived from a French word meaning: a glove worn with medieval armor to protect the hand, I would ask whose hand? The phrase often used is, to run the gauntlet, which means a severe trial or ordeal. It is also an alteration of the word gantelope, a word that originates from the Swedish word Gata, meaning lane or way. Is this indicative of the mindset that was set down for us? a mindset of being caught up in one severe trial to another switching lanes from one war to another? Whether they be internal or external and all the while we forgot that we had another way of doing things to stay neutral, and the only lane to stay in is your own, the lane or path to self-mastery. Or maybe we just need to get out of our own way long enough to start the true journey of becoming the master. But first we have to unravel ourselves from the programs, the overlays and the waring mindset or the dueling mind. Each shadow that blocks our way is now fighting to be seen and healed, for we are all being called to serve. When we can work within on the shadows, that have been bubbling up through the cracks waiting to emerge and to be seen for what they are, so we can integrate them and become one with our dark and our light, becoming balanced and heart centered. Our own personal volcanos that have the power to destroy us or become a thing of beauty. If we are truly honest with ourselves, we will find ourselves lacking, for just like the volcano unless it is about to erupt, we ignore the beast in the quiet times. And when it does erupt, we blame the outside influences that poked it, instead of recognizing our faults or vaults, we vent and project on those nearest and dearest to us.

So let us throw down the gauntlet for the last time and deflect this time of great emergency, from the threat of more war and begin to emerge and see all from the neutral point. Where balanced individuals come together to end the wars once and for all, for the real war was within you, because we are our own worst enemies. Let us change the micro to the macro and just as the meme says, if love conquers all, why don't we use it in wars? Let this become a time where we take the pressure off the few that have been left with the responsibility for the all and become the all. Let the unravelling be a time to show up as the real beauty you contain within, and just like the butterfly let us begin to spread our wings and fly. Let our blueprint be the thing of beauty in the world, let us emerge from our own battle fields now to show others what is possible, close the doors on the dualistic mind and take a step inward to the heart, the true transformer. An anagram of heart is Hater, Rathe, it also is an anagram of Earth. Let your heart show up now everywhere like the beacon with your frequency raised enough to be seen and felt everywhere you go. We must eradicate a war-torn world scarred with the blood of many, where the scars left are the deep impressions of what lay there before. Instead leave an impression of peace, harmony and love in every room you visit, and may it be contained in every word you speak or write. Let us remove the Gauntlet of the hidden hand and instead become the hand that creates a chain across the planet of unity, strength, and love. Unravel your inner wings so we may all become the free man, and the true heart of this planet Midgard is restored once and for all. Let us not leave another terrible beauty born on this planet, instead let us wrap the flower of life, the blueprint around Midgard, so the true beauty of her rises so high she unfurls her wings and flies. A very heart centered message from all in the Blueprint teams, I guess people are learning to follow their heart.

NEWS:

Here the latest report coming out of Russia. A foreboding new Security Council (SC) report circulating in the Kremlin last week, first notes President Putin stating in his opening ceremony address at the Army 2024 International Military-Technical Forum this morning: This is a major forum which attracts high representatives. Held for the tenth time, it invariably enjoys a lot of attention on behalf of specialists, experts and media outlets from across the world. This year, dozens of countries sent their high-level delegations to Russia, led by heads of their defense agencies. Over 120 foreign companies registered to take part in the event. Of course, the forum's agenda includes grand-scale presentations of the most advanced and largely unique and unrivalled achievements of Russia's defense manufacturers and its leading, internationally acclaimed corporations. This includes over 240 export versions of weapons, as well as all kinds of military and specialized hardware. Let me emphasize that many of Russia's advanced, unique and innovative solutions have already proven their worth on the battlefield. Moreover, we improve their basic performance all the time. Designers, engineers, scientists and teams working at defense manufacturing plants have been proactive in their efforts to take into account the combat experience we acquired during the special military operation. It is also essential that small businesses, the civil society and patriotic organizations, as well as a massive volunteer movement and the people of Russia in general, have all gone to great lengths and have been proactive in supporting the defense industry in the interests of the Russian Army and Navy. So, they are developing the Unity.

Priorities in terms of these joint efforts include modern gear, communications, protection and electronic warfare means, unmanned systems and artificial intelligence. During this forum, about a hundred scientific and business events will be held on these and many other topical matters dealing with military development, military strategy and combat tactics. Next addressing the military delegations from 83 countries attending the Army 2024 International Military-Technical Forum, was Defense Minister Andrey Belousov, who issued the official war declaration so the entire world could hear it firsthand : As you know, the event is taking place amid the special military operation. In fact, it is an armed conflict between Russia and the collective West. The armed confrontation is driven by the desire of the United States and its allies to maintain their dominance and prevent the construction of a new multipolar and equitable world order. In this regard, the confrontation affects the interests of every country. The factual reality of an armed conflict between Russia and the collective West existing, was evidenced again yesterday when the Belarusian Defense Ministry revealed about the Ukrainian drones they shot down: The UAVs were filled with various NATO electronics and equipment, including a US-made active antenna and a Belgian navigation system. The downed drones appear to have been assembled by Ukraine together with NATO engineers, a revelation followed by CEO Aleksey Likhachyov of the Russian nuclear power agency Rosatom accusing Ukraine of nuclear terrorism and beyond shockingly reporting: A Ukrainian drone strike on Russia's Zaporozhye nuclear power plant started a fire at the facility and caused serious damage to one of its cooling towers. The attack represented a completely new level of targeted aggression aimed at the infrastructure of nuclear facilities, after which President Putin declared: Any peace talks with Ukraine are impossible and observed: Apparently, the enemy, relying on the help of its Western masters, is striving to improve its negotiating positions in the future. But how can we talk about negotiations with those who conduct indiscriminate strikes on civilians, civilian infrastructure, or try to threaten nuclear energy facilities?

As it pertains the Ukraine Nazi Regime terrorist invasion of the Kursk Region to kill innocent civilians, Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Maria Zakharova most factually assessed: The regime in Kiev continues its acts of terrorism with the sole purpose of intimidating civilians in Russia. It understands perfectly well that these barbaric acts are pointless from the military viewpoint, but continues to work off the loans issued by its masters. A factual assessment joined with the expert economic observation: An increasingly debt-riddled and ingrate Ukraine is starting to turn on its Western sponsors, blaming them for lagging weapons deliveries to bolster the ongoing proxy war. Kiev is particularly faulting the United States for its huge budget deficit, which has brought Ukraine to the brink of default. All of which follows the Wall Street Journal revealing: The Kiev regime's huge combat losses go hand in hand with its losing battle to recruit new cannon fodder. Conscription is becoming increasingly tough, despite assurances to the contrary spouted by official spokesmen for Ukraine's military. While ordering his Nazi forces on a suicide mission to terrorize innocent civilians and insanely strike the largest nuclear power plant in Europe, unelected usurper Ukrainian President Vladimir Zelensky is also preparing to ban the Russian Orthodox Church, and he proclaimed on Saturday evening: I have just held a meeting, a preparatory one, regarding a decision that will strengthen our Ukrainian spiritual independence. We must deprive Moscow of the last opportunities to restrict the freedom of Ukrainians and the decisions for this must be 100% effective, we will ensure that. As the Ukraine Nazi Regime prepares its spiritual independence from God in order to institute socialist state worship, Russian Orthodox Church archpriest Konstantin Tatarintsev revealed: Giving a blessing to a nuclear weapon is possible even though such arms have tremendous destructive power. Their purpose is to ensure that no other nations that possess such weapons could use them against Russia, it is a guarantee of peace. Blessing it, not for it to be used for the purpose specified, but for it to have a containment effect and guarantee peace is entirely acceptable. A lot of posturing in that piece that is the remit of a country at war. You know what is funny from the pro pagan da media? I have never heard them say once that Russia has the right to defend itself. Unlike the rhetoric for the anti-humanity crew, defensive they are not, they are offensive in both meanings of the word.

The US employment bureau rocked markets and the economy came into stark focus again after they announced last Friday that there was 810K less jobs than expected. 810k jobs just vanished. What happens when 810K people just vanish?

The sea of change globally is quietly taking place as more people's gain courage to fight back against the old world. It is happening on many levels but this one is very interesting from an African point of view. As Mali, Burkina Faso and Nigeria have formed an alliance and told the French army to leave and they cut off French, German and American contractors from looting their uranium. Uranium is responsible for 1/3 of France's electricity supply so that will be a big change for them. I would expect further alliances to unfold globally to shut down the Jewish West's looting of their resources. One hopes that doesn't lead to African warlords taking over and the funds gained is used to build up infrastructure and support of the people. As for the shortages of the Western countries, our Blueprint trade deals plan will be beneficial to them. Plus the energy companies needs to be privatized into a people's cooperatives, where every penny is made accountable and actual investment is made in the industry for the benefit of the people.

Yet more exposure on the Israeli lobbyists and their interference with our country. As leaked documents suggest that the Israeli government sought legal guidance on how to navigate a US federal law that mandates the disclosure of foreign-funded lobbying efforts. The concern stemmed from the possibility that increased enforcement of this law could implicate American organizations working in accordance with the Israeli government. That is a flagrant attempt to abuse the American system, yet where is the push back? Some dodgy emails referenced last week, that was made into major news so they could blame Iran, yet obfuscation within the country is just ignored. The documents, including emails and legal memos from a hack of Israel's Justice Ministry, reveal that Israeli officials were worried their advocacy activities in the US might trigger compliance with the Foreign Agents Registration Act (FARA). To avoid this, they considered establishing a new American nonprofit that could carry on Israel's US operations without attracting scrutiny under the law. A legal strategy memo from July 2018 highlighted that adhering to FARA could tarnish the reputation of American groups financially supported and directed by Israel. Additionally, these groups would be required to meet burdensome transparency standards. Transparency only applies to the people in case you hadn't noticed. Another memo noted that donors would likely be reluctant to fund organizations registered under FARA due to the law's requirements. Which is the remit of terrorist activity and also money laundering. Specifically, the law mandates that registrants label any propaganda distributed to two or more parties in the US, with a disclaimer indicating that it was disseminated by a foreign agent, and submit a copy to the US Department of Justice within 48 hours. To sidestep the need for FARA registration and avoid the associated stigma and scrutiny, legal advisers suggested that funds be funneled through an American third-party nonprofit. Ron Dermer enters the Knesset plenum on December 29, 2022. Liat Glazer, who was a legal adviser to Israel's Strategic Affairs Ministry at the time, emphasized that although the new nonprofit would not be directly managed from Israel, they would maintain oversight and management through grant-making processes and informal coordination mechanisms, such as oral meetings and updates. The Strategic Affairs Ministry established a PR commando unit in 2017 to enhance Israel's image abroad, which was the primary focus of discussions around evading FARA. The group, originally known as Kela Shlomo (Solomon's Sling), but in the classic anti-humanity way they changed its name to Concert in 2018 and then to Voices of Israel in 2021. Its initial mission was to counter the Boycott, Divestment, and Sanctions (BDS) movement. Which reveals they are terrified of sanctions, hits the shekels you see. Throughout its existence, this group has supported American nonprofits advocating for anti-BDS legislation and coordinated efforts to counter pro-Palestinian activities on US college campuses. So, they engage in disrupting campuses, what a worthy cause that is – not. The leaked documents and emails were made public by Distributed Denial of Secrets (DDoSecrets), a US-based nonprofit known for disseminating several high-profile hacks. The source of the documents was a group calling itself Anonymous for Justice, a hacktivist collective that claimed in April to have infiltrated Israel's Justice Ministry and obtained hundreds of gigabytes of data. We look forward to seeing those details, I am certain it will be enlightening for the truth.

8/20 And yet more school attacks by the anti-humanity group. At least 12 Palestinians have been killed in an Israeli air strike on a school housing displaced people in Gaza City, the Hamas-run Civil Defense authority says. A spokesman said rescuers were struggling to recover a number of missing people believed to be trapped under the rubble at Mustafa Hafez school in the western Rimal neighborhood. The Israeli military said it had targeted a Hamas command and control center inside the school, and that it had taken steps to mitigate risk of harming civilians. Civil Defense spokesman Mahmoud Basal said in the afternoon that rescue crews had so far recovered the bodies of 12 people. He said the strike had targeted the entire wing of the school, where he estimated that 700 displaced people had been living.

The very same day here comes another strike on schools. 8/20 Earlier this month, the UN Human Rights Office condemned what it called the increasing frequency of Israeli strikes on schools sheltering displaced people and accused the IDF of conducting them with apparent disregard for the high rate of civilian fatalities. Apparent disregard? No complete disregard, they have no regard for any living thing outside of themselves. The warning after at least 70 Palestinians were killed in an air strike on al-Taba'een school in Gaza City, according to the director of a local hospital. The IDF said the school had served as an active Hamas and Islamic Jihad military facility, and that it had confirmed the identities of 31 terrorists who were killed. No one can confirm those 31 terrorists were dead, that is just a pro pagan da statement with no validity whatsoever.

All is not well in camp anti-humanity it seems, that will escalate now certain things are unfolding in the background. Scapegoats and throwing under the bus will prevail. Israeli Crime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu lambasted his Defense Minister Yoav Gallant on Monday and accused him of adopting an anti-Israel narrative, revealing a deep rupture at the top of the Israeli government as the Middle East risks spiraling into a full-scale regional conflict. Israeli media reported this week that Gallant, speaking to lawmakers in a private security briefing, had dismissed Netanyahu's war aim of achieving absolute victory over Hamas as gibberish, branding those who say this is achievable as heroes with war drums. Netanyahu's office shot back, saying Gallant's comments jeopardize talks to release the hostages held in Gaza. When Gallant adopts the anti-Israel narrative, he harms the chances of reaching a hostage deal, the prime minister's office said in a statement. It said Gallant was obligated to pursue the twin goals of Israel's war in Gaza: Eliminating Hamas and the release of the hostages seized by Hamas in the October 7 attacks. The barbed exchange is the latest in a series of spats between the two men during more than 10 months of war, and comes as Israel has been bracing for a possible attack by Iran and its proxy Hezbollah in Lebanon. That has prompted the United States to bolster Israel's defenses, sending a guided missile submarine to the region over the weekend. Sacrificing Americans for the anti-humanity group again.

The Hezbollah on Sunday said it had begun an attack on Israel with a large number of drones and rockets in response for the killing of its top commander in a Beirut suburb last month. The Lebanese group said it targeted an identified special military target as well as Israel's Iron Dome platforms and other sites but that the full response would take some time. Iron Dome doesn't work too well currently, despite their protestations. Where all this leads to has a wide range of margin, but the clashes de-escalated very quickly after this event, due to unforeseen circumstances by the Israelis. They are more vulnerable now than ever and will continue to be until they step down and back to the 1967 line. I would not want to be a settler right now, as things will end bad for them. Beware you are being used for pawns and their sacrifice games again, this song is a reminder to them.

Just like they set people up with poisoned processed cigarettes then pulled back on it and turned people into lepers. They then launched into another campaign to get people to vape, particularly the younger generation and then pulled back on that as well. Next stop was to legalize cannabis, despite known addiction and brain problems, but they went ahead anyway, but now they are warning about that as well. At which point will those in the FDA be held accountable for their repeated failures to protect public health? And perhaps should be charged for manslaughter? Should the CIA be charged for running the pot operations? A recent study supported by the National Institutes of Health (NIH) has found that regular smoking of cannabis could considerably increase the risk for heart attack and stroke. The experts analyzed data from nearly 435,000 American adults, marking it as one of the broadest studies to examine the link between cannabis use and cardiovascular health. Key findings of cannabis and heart attacks: The research, funded by the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute (NHLBI) demonstrates that daily cannabis consumption, primarily through smoking, correlates with a 25% heightened likelihood of a heart attack and a 42% greater chance of stroke compared to those who abstain from cannabis. Remember heart disease is the largest cause of death, is that because of cannabis use? Even occasional cannabis use was associated with an increased risk for these cardiovascular events, with weekly users seeing a 3% and 5% increased likelihood of heart attack and stroke, respectively. Interestingly those symptoms coincide with the Covid symptoms, was cannabis and Covid jabs linked? Approximately three-quarters of the participants indicated they consumed cannabis by smoking, while around one-quarter utilized other methods such as vaping or ingesting the substance. We know that toxins are released when cannabis is burned, similar to those found in tobacco smoke, said corresponding author Abra Jeffers, a data analyst at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. We've known for a long time that smoking tobacco is linked to heart disease, and this study is evidence that smoking cannabis appears to also be a risk factor for cardiovascular disease, which is the leading cause of death in the United States. The study points out that while the direct mechanisms through which cannabis contributes to heart disease remain unclear, factors including the release of toxins and the presence of endocannabinoid receptors in cardiovascular tissues, which interact with THC (the primary psychoactive component in cannabis), might play a significant role. As cannabis becomes more widely accepted and legal across numerous states for both medicinal and recreational purposes, its consumption has significantly increased over the last two decades. While some research has connected regular cannabis use with negative health outcomes like impaired brain development and lung damage, as well as cardiovascular diseases, comprehensive knowledge about its impact on heart health is lacking. The Association of Cannabis Use With Cardiovascular Outcomes Among US Adults study meticulously analyzed the effects of cannabis use, through smoking, eating, or vaporizing, on cardiovascular outcomes. It was found that any form of cannabis use is independently linked to a higher incidence of adverse cardiovascular events, including coronary heart disease, myocardial infarction (heart attack), and stroke. Notably, the frequency of cannabis use further escalated the odds of encountering these adverse outcomes, even after adjusting for other cardiovascular risk factors such as tobacco or e-cigarette use, alcohol consumption, body mass index, Type 2 diabetes, and physical activity levels. Interestingly, the study revealed that both occasional and daily cannabis users face an elevated risk of heart attacks compared to non-users. Daily users, in particular, exhibited a 25% higher chance of experiencing a heart attack. When it came to stroke risk, daily cannabis users had a 42% higher likelihood than non-users, though the risk was somewhat reduced for less frequent users. A significant portion of the study focused on younger adults at risk for premature cardiovascular disease (men under 55 and women under 65). In this group, cannabis use was strongly associated with a 36% increased combined risk of coronary heart disease, heart attack and stroke. This association held true regardless of the use of traditional tobacco products. A detailed analysis of adults within this subgroup who had never smoked tobacco cigarettes or used nicotine e-cigarettes still found a notable link between cannabis use and heightened cardiovascular risks. In summary, while cannabis may offer certain benefits, its impact on cardiovascular health cannot be overlooked. As more countries and states legalize its use, understanding the impact of smoking cannabis on human health becomes increasingly important. As a caveat to that piece, remember the clowns have taken over most of the growing farms and the regulators are not allowing growers to grow organic pot, in favor of the high THC variety. I personally will never advocate anyone using pot, it is a low vibrational plant that does physical harm and even greater spiritual damage. The more you use, the less chance you have of spiritual development this life time.

SOCIETY SECTION:

Remember the program highlighted here about the Universal Basic Income payments (UBI) and how I warned it wouldn't work and neither would the participants. This also highlights that extra money leads to no overall life improvement or even a drive to improve. A new study reveals what common sense could have predicted, giving Americans $1,000 per month disincentivizes them from working, causing them to work less and earn less, over time. According to the 3,000-participant, three-year study from the National Bureau of Economic Research, giving people $1,000 per month increased leisure time, as recipients spent less time on sleeping, child care, community engagement, caring for others and self-improvement. Which means they became even more lazy, just what the EL-ites wanted to shape their robot world. The study also found that recipients' income, not including the free money, reduced their incomes significantly, as for every one dollar received, total household income excluding the transfers fell by at least 21 cents, and total individual income fell by at least 12 cents. The takeaway from the best study done so far about UBI in the United States is that handing out money isn't the solution to all our problems, Daniel Di Martino, an economics researcher and graduate fellow at the Manhattan Institute, told The Center Square. In fact, sometimes it makes things worse. The study's authors noted mean-tested welfare encourages recipients to cut hours to preserve benefits, leading to advocacy for unconditional cash transfer programs without these distortions, that would also allow individuals either to look for and secure higher-quality work or spend extra time on productive non-work activities. Participants' individual incomes declined $1,500 per year relative to the control group, excluding transfers, participants' labor force participation was two percentage points lower, participants and their partners worked approximately 1.4 hours less per week. Participants spent their extra time on leisure, did not improve their quality of employment, and did not improve human capital investments such as training. What this also shows is people are not willing to progress themselves, not willing to change and used the extra money for just entertainment. It's damning whichever you look at it. The study notes how during the 2020 Democratic primaries, candidate Andrew Yang proposed a $1,000 per month Freedom Dividend, which he claimed encourages people to find work and increases entrepreneurship. The study found that while participants exhibited more entrepreneurial orientation and intentions, that this did not translate into significantly more entrepreneurial activity, as very few people have the inclination to become entrepreneurs in general. Which reveals they like their slave suits. According to Di Martino, the study did not address inflation concerns, and remained open to unconditional cash payments in lieu of certain welfare programs. It's important to remark that this study doesn't look at the macroeconomic impact of UBI which would raise inflation and affect interest rates if implemented nationwide, he said. Now the question that's more interesting is, if the almost null effects of UBI are better (or less bad) than those of our existing welfare programs and whether it might be a good idea to replace them. Replacing welfare programs, that never turns out well for the people. Yet the people never turn out well for themselves either, that much is clear from this article. Our propensity to do nothing is and was our downfall, and even when gifts arrive, they still do nothing to change their environment. A very sad indictment indeed.

The Twitter, X and the Free Speech analysis. Does it do what they say? Well let's have a look. Before Elon Musk Twitter removed 50 % of content that was demanded by Governments. With Musk in charge, X removed 80 % of content that was demanded by Governments. A 30% increase in violations of the 1st Amendment, yet people think Musk is on their side? You do know that Musk, which is also a name of a rat, is/was using Starlink for military and surveillance of the public purposes? Musk is also an advocate of AI and robotic technologies designed to replace, then eliminate people. Yet still people think he is on our side, where is the evidence of such? Another "white hat" illusion game like Trump. When will the people stop following the very people that are harming or abusing them?

A special update and announcement from the New Blueprint team set up in the past month has produced an exciting engagement and developments already. The team was tasked with certain types of work and this led to a high-level engagement that bore much fruit. Details of who or what will not be revealed at this time due to safety and sensitivities, but I can tell you it went extremely well and our plea and or request was well received and they will be on board going forward. This will lead to other contacts and connections that will likely lead to shows and or conferences in the near future. Further details will be announced in the shows when safe to do so.

An interesting exchange on a news channel with Nancy Pelosi. Where she stated they are very discreet, reptilian and cold blooded. What an interesting thing to say on a much wider scale. As the war for Earth heats up, which is potentially in overview describing “climate change” as the hotter the Earth gets, the more the lizards die off. Think about that in a deeper non personal way. We know they have been here, they left markers like the Draco law in the 600’s, why would people create a law from another constellation? Why when life gets tough and stringent laws are passed, why are they called draconian measures? Let’s look at the word Draconian shall we. Remember from the Cosmic Genetics series the Draco were known as the Rome Empire, aligned with the Greeks. draconian (adj.) 1759 of or pertaining to Draco, the ancient Greek statesman; Who was the “Greek” STATE man, was he lying in state also? 1777, in reference to laws, rigorous, extremely severe or harsh, earlier Draconic, which is implied from 1640s. Draco is the Latinized form of Greek Drakon, name of the archon of Athens who laid down a code of laws for Athens c. 621 B.C.E. that mandated death as punishment for minor crimes. In other words, ethnic cleansing of the local populace for takeover purposes, like Gaza? His name seems to mean literally sharp-sighted (see dragon). Draco is latinized form, not a surprise as Latin is the Draco language. dragon (n.) Mid-13c., dragoun, a fabulous animal common to the conceptions of many races and peoples. Common to many races and peoples? Which races is the great question. Hydra Draconis is their home base to my understanding and are worse than the Alpha Draconis. Interesting that the Anu, Enki, Enlil, Marduk family are from an Alpha perspective. Alpha by name and Alpha by nature it seems. From Old French dragon and directly from Latin draconem (nominative draco) meaning a huge serpent, dragon. So the dragon is a serpent, remember the gods sent fiery serpents against the people, who did not obey orders? All very Draconic I have to say. From Greek drakon (genitive drakontos) serpent, giant sea fish. Giant sea fish? Is that the Levi-athan? The Kraken? Other descriptions from drak-, strong aorist stem of derkesthai to see clearly, from PIE *derk- to see (source also of Sanskrit darsata- visible; Old Irish adcondarc I have seen; Gothic gatarhjan characterize; Old English torht, Old High German zoraht light, clear; Albanian dritë light. Perhaps the literal sense is the one with the deadly glance, the one with paralyzing sight. In other words to blind you, hence what can you see or not see? Perhaps if they don’t blind you by sight and faith, they hypnotize you into submission. The young are dragonets (c. 1300). Fem. form dragoness is attested from 1630s. Obsolete drake (n.2) yes another Drake became obsolete in May 2016! Dragon is an older borrowing of the same word, and a later form in another sense is dragoon. A dragoon is a military group, again very fitting after the Draco Rome death and bludgeon tour they undertook for the M-pire. Used in the Bible generally for creatures of great size and fierceness, it translates Hebrew tannin a great sea-monster, also tan, a desert mammal now believed to be the jackal also from mid-13c. Remember from the show two weeks ago the term Yurugu? Yurugu in Africa is known as a trickster god who operates in chaos, mischief and mayhem. Said to have shapeshifted into a fox or as they call it, a jackal. If tan is a jackal and remember the Exodus in FHSTOS from India to Egypt and the large volume of istan countries? Afghan is tan? Turkmen is tan? Kurd is tan? Uzbek is tan? Pak is tan? Ind is tan? Is that indicative? Remember the wolverine or perhaps jackal group in Turkey, alleged to have been connected to Harold Thiers? Just like the Yurugu the jackal operates as a mischievous trickster doing harm. The term dragonfly needs deeper pondering as well, given a particular pest carrying a multitude of diseases is a variant of the dragonfly, a mosquito. Remember the bible again and the gods sending plagues? Is the modern version of that mosquitoes?
