NEWS:

Here is the latest attempts to scare the public into backing down and away from the truth. But this has alarming Orwellian censorship and surveillance techniques that should alarm everyone.

Intimidation of free speech: Among those needing the protection of Russia from their own tyrannical government, is British independent journalist Richard Medhurst, an outspoken critic of the genocidal war on Gaza who revealed: On Thursday, as I landed in London's Heathrow airport, I was immediately escorted off the plane by six police officers who were waiting for me at the entrance of the aircraft. They arrested me, not detained, they arrested me under Section 12 of the Terrorism Act of 2000 and accused me of allegedly expressing an opinion or belief that is supportive of a proscribed organization, but wouldn't explain what this meant. This is part of the hate speech narrative the clowns in panic are trying to push into the public's faces. With the message of, if you speak out against the media's official narrative they will arrest you as a terrorist.

How utterly pathetic that is and also child levels of embarrassment. You see, they are terrified of the truth, all of which means they live for the lie. Like I have always said, the truth never fears investigation. But any critique or investigation of them is feared, because they have to keep the lies operating to remain in control. The greatest fear these clowns have is not a baying public, but facing the truth.

Patents for detecting unusual behavior in E-mail: I think most people are aware of the snooping in their private life by these perverted voyeurs, but this next stage takes it to a whole new level. Under investigation by British journalist Richard Medhurst at the time of his arrest, was the powerful and secretive artificial intelligence cyber security company Darktrace headquartered in Cambridge-England, that reveals about itself: The Darktrace AI Research Centre is foundational to our continued innovation. Who is our? Teams of mathematicians and other experts examine how AI can be applied to real-world problems. Like finding terrorists, rapists, money laundering, pedophile rings, organ traffickers or child traffickers? Oh no, just snooping on people having their own opinion. With over 200 patents and patents pending, the AI Research Centre comprises more than 200 R&D employees, including experts with 100 master's degrees and 20 doctorates in disciplines from astrophysics to linguistics to data science, and announced in 2022: New Darktrace early warning system detects unusual behavior in email. Darktrace sounds like the Darkweb and Internet of Bodies. It will come as no surprise this Darktrace group comes out GCHQ, they also have a sister group in the Hague of all places. Silencing own early warning system: Specifically concerning to British journalist Richard Medhurst, was the Darktrace "early warning system" detecting suspicious activity emanating from its Colombia National Army client, after the Colombian government cut ties with Israel in May. Is a Colombia military supported by the United States that is flooding mercenary forces into Ukraine, thus raising fears that an early warning has been detected of an impending false flag event? Buying out: In 2013, Darktrace was founded by mathematicians and cyber defense experts at Invoke Capital, that was founded by and wholly owned by British tech tycoon Mike Lynch, who is known as Britain's Bill Gates, and British tech tycoon Mike Lynch founded the powerful software company Autonomy Corporation in 1996, which he sold to American multinational computer company Hewlett-Packard for $11.7 billion in 2011. Litigating out:

Shortly after the sale of Autonomy Corporation to Hewlett-Packard in 2011, the Deep State in America went to war against British tech tycoon Mike Lynch and his partner Stephen Chamberlain, through the legal courts. And although given only a 0.5% chance of acquittal, an American jury found them not guilty of all charges on 6 June. The final solution: With British independent journalist Richard Medhurst sure to interview both Mike Lynch and Stephen Chamberlain in his investigation of Darktrace, two days after Medhurst was arrested, Stephen Chamberlain was killed when he was hit by a car on Saturday. Then just two days later Mike Lynch disappeared when his luxury superyacht sunk off Sicily, a sinking said caused by a waterspout that struck precisely where the luxury superyacht was on a clear day, but more resembles the mysterious magnetic vortex that has swallowed ships in the Gulf of Aden. So what is the early warning system? Writing truth in E-mails in seems. This is how things play out in their world using threats, intimidation and then when all else fails, they just delete people.

A message of support for Sarah Wilkinson a UK Journalist who was arrested by an unknown police group, who stole money, passport, computers, phones and other electronic devices, refused her meds, food and a lawyer. They also tipped her mother's ashes all over the floor and trashed her house. Her crime? Posting news online. She was arrested under the terrorism act. She is pro-Palestine, yet again the anti-humanity group using draconian tactics trying to silence us all. This is fascism in its most brutal manner.

Recently we focused on the EU and NATO dangling carrot techniques for roping in countries and then looting them. This week we will focus on the IMF and there dangling carrot program. With IMF structural reforms, which means they stiff you over. They crashed 5 Countries and their respective economies between the years 1991 – 2014, because of negative GDP's or lack of growth. Guess why? Because 3 of those Countries and their respective economies were crashed because of the IMF plan. Their plan was to set these 3 countries up against Russia, namely Georgia, Moldova and guess who? Ukraine. All of whom are operated by the CIA and NATO. The Georgian military expenditures raised 800%. Ukraine made into a stronger military Army power, than the U. S. INC. Army itself. But Ukraine has lost by death 10 times the size of the living U. S. INC. Army. The same IMF plan is now in use in Europe in the De-industrialization of the EU, that for sure will be blamed on the nasty Russians again. That then is the justification as to why Russia must be destroyed, since they have destroyed Europe. So the plan is the militarizing and nazifying of Europe, as with NA-ZI Ukraine. This is how these plans or agendas unfold, it is solution, then create a problem, wait for the reaction and then unfold the desired solution before the problem began.

But there are those who said no to the carrot and so they got the stick instead. Remember the financial chatter about a new US currency that would be backed? But nobody knew what the backing of the funding would be, here is how. Take Venezuela for example. In the Kapitalist Caracas, Venezuela, they had 18 - 130 killings each weekend before Hugo Chavez lookalike Maduro came to power. The US INC. sanctions lowered the Gross Domestic Product for Venezuela 80%, and the sanctions crashed the income for the Venezuelan Government by 99 %. Now the NGO's and media blame the Government. It is not enough to buy all the Venezuelan oil for Shell, BP and others. It is about that, the banks then will be left out of proceedings, ending their regime. If the Banks can get their regime change in Venezuela, they will own the people and all the inground resources. That will be enough to secure the new Venezuelan/US Petro-dollar. That is absolutely essential, as the cabal banking cartel is now trying to survive. So the US is now trying to loot another country to satisfy the bankers greed. Yet the US has more oil in the ground than the rest of the world combined. So why won't they allow access to it? Maybe it is because of who or what is below America? Perhaps there is another STATE that lies DEEP below?

The next few pieces have a hint of irony about them. Anthony Fauci, the face of the US government's response to the Covid pandemic, is recovering at home after being hospitalized with West Nile virus. West Nile or de Nile virus?

This is hilarious in my opinion, after the sanctions comes the sting in the tail. As Russian authorities have seized more than $100m from Google to fund propaganda supporting Vladimir Putin's war in Ukraine, court documents show. US filings have revealed that bailiffs took the funds from the tech giant's Russian bank accounts in 2022, tipping its unit in the country into bankruptcy. According to the documents, bankruptcy managers handed the funds to Russian TV channels including the state-owned RT and Tsargrad, a propaganda service that pledged to use the funds to support the Kremlin's war in Ukraine. Google's Russian entity declared bankruptcy in 2022, saying the Kremlin had seized funds, but it was unclear how much had been taken. Filings show that bailiffs appropriated the company's bank account after a Moscow court ruled that it should pay damages to Tsargrad TV, an Orthodox propaganda channel owned by the oligarch Konstantin Malofeev. Notice the three uses of the word propaganda, that is seeding the memory for the bot level people. Propaganda according to the Ministry of Lies, nearer the truth channels for the rest of us. Google filed lawsuits against RT, Tsargrad TV and a third broadcaster, NFPT, in US and English courts last week. Russian courts have said Google should pay the three TV channels huge sums in compensation for removing them from YouTube and deleting their Google accounts. Which is fair enough, about time someone was made accountable for child level blocking and banning. Google is seeking a ruling to block the broadcasters from pursuing its assets in foreign jurisdictions such as South Africa, Turkey and Serbia. I think every country should seize assets of not only Go-ogle, but Facebook, Youtube and others who deny free speech.

Listen to this headline in light of FHSTOS, the fake Jewish President Volodymyr Zelenskyy has proposed that India host the next Peace Summit. Haha too funny.

Seems more people are working out the global problem and the pity party are not happy it seems. Centrist Azione leader Carlo Calenda on Sunday said his inclusion on a list of Zionists by the new Italian Communist Party (PCI) verges on political violence. (M) Amid cross-party sympathy, the former industry minister said the proscription lists of Zionists are clearly an invitation to violence. But the problem has become a more general one. Has nothing to do with violence, it is people pointing out who is not supporting their own country whilst being paid to do so, and instead following the whims of the Israeli junta. Funny how they can go around calling everyone terrorists, goyim and anti-Semitic, yet a label comes out for them like genocidist, apartheid or Zionist and up in arms they go, like a modern day Shiva. If you don't like being labeled a Zionist, then stop operating for them, it's that simple.

Yet more irony and is this more ouroboros programming? Not so long ago, masks were a symbol of a dire moment as the coronavirus pandemic surged. Wear one or you are a terrorist or murderer, remember those taunts? Well four years later it seems that is now a problem. No authorities have not yet backtracked and said masks are a failure, but now they are a different problem for facial recognition during protests! (M) Hilarious and this week, a county on Long Island took the unusual step of banning them. It had to be New York didn't it? How people live there is beyond my comprehension, it's a cesspit. The opposition to public mask wearing has emerged from an unlikely coalition formed across the political spectrum. This week in Nassau County, Republican legislators passed a law that would ban masks in public. Earlier in the summer, civil rights advocacy groups including the N.A.A.C.P. and the Anti-Defamation League, among others, have also called for a ban on masks at protests, comparing them to Ku Klux Klan hoods. The New York governor, Kathy Hochul, has also joined the broadening alliance of mask critics, once occupied almost solely by Covid deniers. Ironic justice, seems like every plan they put forth now, backfires on them. Remember when I said there would be a series of Events to change the narrative, seems they are using random knife attacks for that change and also to add fear, new regulations and new agendas. A 26-year-old man has given himself up and confessed to a mass knife attack at a street festival in Germany, police said on Sunday. What criminal hands himself in? that is a red flag for a starter.

The involvement of this person is currently under intensive investigation, prosecutors and Düsseldorf police said in a joint statement. Prosecutors have opened an investigation into participating in a terrorist organization, cue here comes the agenda part. In the incident three people were killed and another eight injured in the city of Solingen during a festival to celebrate its 650-year history, in what Chancellor Olaf Scholz described as a horrific act. The Islamic State group on Saturday claimed responsibility for the bloodshed, but did not immediately provide any evidence of a relationship with the attacker. Again I would ask who owns up to a crime in real life? Yet amazingly these terrorists are fairly special it seems, as they save the authorities all that time of working out who did it? What considerate people they are. Except it's all bollocks and based in scripted fantasy land. In case you are new or haven't worked these events out yet, the EL-ites are trying to create a holy war between Christians and Muslims all designed by the anti-humanity group. As that is the group that gains of seeing two groups, who were added initially to the anti-humanity cult for numbers and control, but they now see them as a threat and so they plot schemes whereby they eliminate each other. Sadly too many stupid people fall for it as they fail to see the pattern. They label it a coincidence, no it is a groundhog day program of rinse and repeat.

Of course we cannot have the white race garnering too many sympathies with their losses, so a reminder event took place in France last week for good measure. French police say they have arrested a man suspected of setting fires and causing an explosion outside a synagogue in a southern resort. Interior Minister Gérald Darmanin said the alleged perpetrator was detained on Saturday. French media reported that the suspect was shot and injured by police after he opened fire on the officers who came to arrest him in the city of Nîmes.

Earlier on Saturday, a police officer was injured in the blast outside the Beth Yaacov synagogue in the nearby seaside resort of La Grande-Motte. The police officer's injuries are not said to be life-threatening, following the blast between 08:00 and 08:30 local time (07:00-07:30 BST) on Saturday. Five people, including the rabbi, were inside the synagogue at the time, authorities said. The explosion was caused by two cars which were set alight outside. Police sources told French media that one of the vehicles contained a hidden gas canister. The suspect, who was reportedly carrying a Palestinian flag, also set fire to several entrance doors of the synagogue. The words alleged and reported should raise the red flag on that narrative. Jewish community leader Yonathan Arfi said the incident was an attempt to kill Jews and seemed to have been timed to target Saturday morning worshippers. I wonder if Mr. Arfi is as concerned about the thousands of children in schools being blown to bits? President Emmanuel Macron said the incident was a terrorist act. He would know, as Macron operates a terrorist organization working against the people.

TECHNOLOGY:

The Justice Department is weighing a potential breakup of Google, among other options, after a federal judge this month ruled that the company's practices related to search and some ads ran afoul of anti-monopoly laws and suppressed competition. Google declined to comment. Now wouldn't that be a great start to things, breaking up Go-ogle. The Justice Department, when reached, said no decisions had been made on a course of action. The Justice Department is evaluating the court's decision and will assess the appropriate next steps consistent with the court's direction and the applicable legal framework for antitrust remedies. Bloomberg, citing people familiar with the matter, said that if the agency tried to split up the company, the search giant's Android operating system and Chrome browser would be the likeliest segments to be separated. The DOJ is also considering ordering a sell-off of AdWords, Google's ad-sales platform. The news outlet also said that the Justice Department would likely try to prohibit the exclusionary contracts Google that spent billions of dollars on, to become the default search engine for many mobile users. Other options included forcing Google to share more data with competitors and measures to prevent it from gaining an unfair advantage in AI products. Google has said it plans to appeal the court's ruling. But it didn't end there as another court ruling into Go-ogle is being looked at.

A judge on Monday ruled that Google's ubiquitous search engine has been illegally exploiting its dominance to squash competition and stifle innovation, in a seismic decision that could shake up the internet and hobble one of the world's best-known companies. The highly anticipated decision issued by U.S. District Judge Amit Mehta comes nearly a year after the start of a trial pitting the U.S. Justice Department against Google in the country's biggest antitrust showdown in a quarter century. After reviewing reams of evidence that included testimony from top executives at Google, Microsoft and Apple during last year's 10-week trial, Mehta issued his potentially market-shifting decision three months after the two sides presented their closing arguments in early May. After having carefully considered and weighed the witness testimony and evidence, the court reaches the following conclusion: Google is a monopolist, and it has acted as one to maintain its monopoly, Mehta wrote in his 277-page ruling. It represents a major setback for Google and its parent, Alphabet Inc., which is the CIA, which had steadfastly argued that its popularity stemmed from consumers' overwhelming desire to use a search engine so good at what it does, that it has become synonymous with looking things up online. It was not because it was so good, it was because they inserted into mind memery. Where suddenly everyone was repeating the same words of not check the search engine, but to go-ogle it. That is mind control. The search engine currently on any platform is pathetic as it has eliminated whole searches of relevant information. Google's search engine currently processes an estimated 8.5 billion queries per day worldwide, nearly doubling its daily volume from 12 years ago, according to a recent study released by the investment firm BOND. This victory against Google is an historic win for the American people, said Attorney General Merrick Garland. It is important to note that Merrick Garland has received our book. He said that no company, no matter how large or influential is above the law. The Justice Department will continue to vigorously enforce our antitrust laws. The case depicted Google as a technological bully that methodically has thwarted competition to protect a search engine, that has become the centerpiece of a digital advertising machine that generated nearly $240 billion in revenue last year. That is harvesting, $240B collected using the people's energy, unknown to the public. Justice Department lawyers argued that Google's monopoly enabled it to charge advertisers artificially high prices, while also enjoying the luxury of not having to invest more time and money into improving the quality of its search engine, a lax approach that hurt consumers. Next the annoying Bing and ChatGPT AI based clownery to be targeted.

The average PC user will probably think ChatGPT whenever generative AI is mentioned, as it's arguably the world's most well-known and widely used LLM system. An investigative report into the financial status of its creator, OpenAI, suggests that despite its popularity, the immense costs of training the AI models and running the servers that host them are so high, that the company is on track to make an operational loss of $5 billion. That's according to The Information (via Window's Central), which based its projection on numbers garnered from unreleased internal financial statements and various industry figures. Founded in 2015, OpenAI has grown in size and scope due to multiple investments, with Microsoft pouring billions of dollars into the AI firm over the years. The most recent injection of cash, $10 billion in early 2023, was rumored to include a 75% slice of OpenAI's profits and a 49% stake in the company, as well as integrating ChatGPT into Bing and other Microsoft systems. For those that use Microsoft go into settings and turn Bing off, including their search engine. Use Duckduck go as an alternative not go-ogle. That simple method turns away traffic to their sites and shuts down their funding. In return, as well as the investment, OpenAI is thought to get access to Azure cloud servers and a substantially reduced rate. However, The Information's report suggests that OpenAI just isn't making anywhere near enough money and could be on track to post an operational loss of $5 billion by the end of the financial year.

It's claimed that OpenAI has spent roughly $7 billion on LLM (large language models) training and inference, and as much as $1.5 billion on staffing. Other analysts have estimated that it costs in the order of $700,000 per day to run ChatGPT, due to the expense of Nvidia's AI servers, though determining the exact cost isn't realistically feasible. That's $4.2M a week, needs a lot of advertising to cover that, but if people stop using it, the advertisers go away and the company goes bust, the end of one of the AI problem groups. Even if one combines all of this, OpenAI should still be making a profit, so why is it losing so much money? The problem appears to be a multi-faceted one. OpenAI is heavily invested in being the first company to make AGI (artificial general intelligence) a reality and that will certainly be eating into some of the profits. Fake intelligence? Sounds like an agency replacement to me. As for the reality aspect, that is the most dangerous form of this technology, which reality will they create? Like virtual? Virtual mid-15c. the meaning being something in essence or effect, though not actually or in fact. Probably via sense of capable of producing a certain effect early 15c.. Computer sense of not physically existing but made to appear by software is attested from 1959. Not physically existing but made to appear like, sounds like the definition of people's level of common sense to me. But the key red flag to that was the date, 1959. A full 60 years before virtual reality headsets, a full 40 years before computers went mainstream, they had a computer terminology of virtual reality that far back. What does that tell you? It's also not the only company developing generative AI systems and faces competition from Anthropic, Amazon, Google, Nvidia, Meta, xAI, and numerous others - while ChatGPT is the most well-known, it's getting an increasingly smaller slice of the total pot of revenues that's up for grabs.

While The Information claims that OpenAI could possibly go bankrupt, this isn't the first time that such a thing has been said. Dire warnings of the AI company's future were suggested last year, though other analysts pointed out that the relative cost of AI training, inference, and chip manufacturing will decrease in time, as more companies get involved in the market. The relative cost of AI training, inference and chip manufacturing will decrease in time? Why does that never apply to the consumer?

SOCIETY NEWS:

Is this signifying new levels of incompetence or is there a more sinister happenstance around these events? A new report shows that the U.S. has lost close to 300,000 migrant children. Lost them! The report comes from the Department of Homeland Security Office of Inspector General and it admits that these children are at risk for trafficking, exploitation or forced labor. In fact, when you look closely, the numbers are far worse than that. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) officials are unsure of the whereabouts of at least 32,000 migrant children in the U.S., a report from the Department of Homeland Security's internal watchdog found. As of May 2024, ICE had not served court dates to more than 291,000 undocumented children UCs, who therefore do not yet have an immigration court date, the report states. There are also 32,000 children who didn't attend their court dates issued by ICE. According to the report, from fiscal years 2019 to 2023, 448,000 children were transferred from ICE to the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). If all people are human, why would you need to add the word human to services? Who is it differentiating from? In the report, Inspector General Joseph Cuffari said ICE has no assurance the children are safe from trafficking, exploitation or forced labor. He added, although we identified more than 32,000 UCs who did not appear for their immigration court dates, that number may have been much larger had ICE issued court dates to the more than 291,000 UCs who were not placed into removal proceedings. ABC News noted that the report said ICE lacks sufficient staffing. The New York Post spoke to a former HHS employee, who said HHS was not properly vetting migrant children's sponsors and inadvertently making them vulnerable to human traffickers. Newsweek and Newsmax framed their headlines around the 32,000 figure. Just staggering but also predictable. Whilst it is typical of government and affiliated NGO's in America to have levels of incompetence bordering on criminal neglect, this has a whole new level to it. No department in America is linked or work together, just a series of standalone groups, none of which knows what the other is doing. Yet again serious flaws of judgement and operations go unaccountable within these organizations, that is not replicated in other companies and how they go about business. Is the adrenochrome, organ harvesting and sex trafficking that short in America now, that they have to bring in children to fulfill the quotas? Yet again it highlights the world and their lack of protection for the children. Quite why parents are sending their children into a foreign country alone, is beyond my comprehension. A nation that fails to protect children and the elderly is destined to fail. And America is failing on every single level and why the Blueprint was written. We are heading into an almighty crash in the Western countries, because we failed to deal with the scourge across the planet of those who go by the name of anti-humanity, because they are everything but humanity.

A new campaign in the UK done by some sort of Trust fund, which received £3M of government funding, has been posting billboards everywhere in London. With the slogan Hey straight white men – share the power! Yet more sexist, reverse misogynistic and racist divisiveness going on solely in white countries. Imagine if Kamala gets in and there is a poster campaign saying hey pseudo gender, Kali Ma worshipper, Communist Maoist, share the power?

Meanwhile the word demons are out in force again, turning everyone into sinners with hate speech. New York University (NYU) has come under fire for changing its student conduct guidelines to include code words, like Zionist, as an example of speech that could violate non-discrimination policies. Imagine if the people fired back and declared the use of goyim, right or left wing, whether near or far, having to declare you are a human, conspiracy theorist or nut, being described as a cult, person, private, resident, citizen or denizens, Nazi, White supremacist, a Karen all as hate speech.

The Columbia University student group that instigated nationwide anti-Israel demonstrations, built encampments at colleges across the country and that was criticized for acting as a proxy for Hamas, was kicked off Instagram for repeatedly violating the platform's dangerous organizations and individuals policies. The Students for Justice in Palestine chapter at Columbia announced on X Monday evening that both its main Instagram account, containing roughly 124,000 followers, and its backup account were permanently deleted from the platform. The student group added that when it tried to create a new account, Instagram deleted it two days later. People are so desperate about their officials telling them what they want to hear, all whilst working against them, they will latch onto anyone it seems. All whilst ignoring people within their own midst who tell them what they need to hear.

With the rise of bannings and someone in the UK who had the audacity to question the funding of immigrants on Facebook and was sentenced to 20 months jail time. One has to consider should the alt media consider boycotting all of social media altogether? That will cost them billions in revenue and ultimately will push back their insane and draconian practices of undermining free speech. The fact that most of those platforms are owned by the anti-humanity group says much about who is attacking the people.

EXPOSE:

Today's expose is of the medical variety and is important to document. But what is important is that people pay attention very closely to this piece, as it might just save your life. Right through my time as a radio show host I have warned our members about prescription drugs. Indeed many members have weened themselves off those drugs and with no side effects. But here is a sobering dose of reality about prescription drugs, that should make all of you who still take them, think again. This is horrendous in its depth and scope, yet all conveniently covered up. Prescription drugs are the leading cause of death and psychiatric drugs are the third leading cause of death. I will repeat again for the hard of hearing: Prescription drugs are the leading cause of death and psychiatric drugs are the third leading cause of death. Overtreatment with drugs kills many people, and the death rate is increasing. It is therefore strange that we have allowed this long-lasting drug pandemic to continue, and even more so because most of the drug deaths are easily preventable. In 2013, it was estimated that our prescription drugs are the third leading cause of death after heart disease and cancer, and in 2015, that psychiatric drugs alone are also the third leading cause of death. However, in the US, it is commonly stated that our drugs are only the fourth leading cause of death. Ironically the third leading cause of death is medical malpractice. Is one and two due medical malfeasance as well? This estimate was derived from a 1998 meta-analysis of 39 US studies where monitors recorded all adverse drug reactions that occurred while the patients were in hospital, or which were the reason for hospital admission. This methodology clearly underestimates drug deaths. Most people who are killed by their drugs die outside hospitals, and the time people spent in hospitals was only 11 days on average in the meta-analysis.

Remember the Covid scam of not counting patients who were injured or died within the first two weeks? Same applies with this study. Moreover, the meta-analysis only included patients who died from drugs that were properly prescribed, not those who died as a result of errors in drug administration, noncompliance, overdose, or drug abuse, and not deaths where the adverse drug reaction was only possible. Johns Hopkins math applies again it seems. Many people die because of errors, e.g. simultaneous use of contraindicated drugs, and many possible drug deaths are real. Moreover, most of the included studies are very old, the median publication year being 1973, and drug deaths have increased dramatically over the last 50 years.

As an example, 37,309 drug deaths were reported to the FDA in 2006 and 123,927 ten years later, which is 3.3 times as many. In hospital records and coroners' reports, deaths linked to prescription drugs are often considered to be from natural or unknown causes. This misconception is particularly common for deaths caused by psychiatric drugs. Even when young patients with schizophrenia suddenly drop dead, it is called a natural death. Recently in case you forgot, it would be labeled a Covid death, even if it was a car accident. But it is not natural to die young and it is well known that neuroleptics can cause lethal heart arrhythmias. Many people die from the drugs they take without raising any suspicion that it could be an adverse drug effect. Depression drugs kill many people, mainly among the elderly, because they can cause orthostatic hypotension, sedation, confusion and dizziness. All of which are symptoms of the side effects of drugs. The drugs double the risk of falls and hip fractures in a dose-dependent manner, and within one year after a hip fracture, about one-fifth of the patients will have died. As elderly people often fall anyway, it is not possible to know if such deaths are drug deaths. Another example of unrecognized drug deaths is provided by non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs). They have killed hundreds of thousands of people, mainly through heart attacks and bleeding stomach ulcers, but these deaths are unlikely to be coded as adverse drug reactions, as such deaths also occur in patients who do not take the drugs. The 1998 US meta-analysis estimated that 106,000 patients die every year in hospital because of adverse drug effects (a 0.32% death rate). A carefully done Norwegian study examined 732 deaths that occurred in a two-year period ending in 1995 at a department of internal medicine, and it found that there were 9.5 drug deaths per 1,000 patients (a 1% death rate). This is a much more reliable estimate, as drug deaths have increased markedly. If we apply this estimate to the US, we get 315,000 annual drug deaths in hospitals. A review of four newer studies, from 2008 to 2011, estimated that there were over 400,000 drug deaths in US hospitals.

400k deaths and no one speaks out? Hospitals are like the CIA it seems, do whatever they like and get away with it. Drug usage is now so common, that newborns in 2019 could be expected to take prescription drugs for roughly half their lives in the US. Moreover, polypharmacy has been increasing. Polypharmacy is an umbrella term to describe the simultaneous use of multiple medicines by a patient for their conditions. The term polypharmacy is often defined as regularly taking five or more medicines, but there is no standard definition and the term has also been used in the context of when a person is prescribed 2 or more medications at the same time. But how many tests were done to see how the two drugs combined? The answer is likely zero, as they use live tests on people like Covid, all whilst enjoying the privilege of immunity. How many people are killed by psychiatric drugs? If we want to estimate the death toll of psychiatric drugs, the most reliable evidence we have are the placebo-controlled randomized trials. But we need to consider their limitations. First, they usually run for only a few weeks even though most patients take the drugs for many years. Second, polypharmacy is common in psychiatry, and this increases the risk of dying. As an example, the Danish Board of Health has warned that adding a benzodiazepine to a neuroleptic increases mortality by 50-65%. Yet they continue to peddle that poison. Third, half of all deaths are missing in published trial reports. For dementia, published data show that for every 100 people treated with a newer neuroleptic for ten weeks, one patient is killed. This is an extremely high death rate for a drug, but FDA data on the same trials show it is twice as high, namely two patients killed per 100 after ten weeks. And if we extend the observation period, the death toll becomes even higher. A Finnish study of 70,718 community-dwellers newly diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease, reported that neuroleptics kill 4-5 people per 100 annually compared to patients who were not treated. Fourth, the design of psychiatric drug trials is biased. In almost all cases, patients were already in treatment before they entered the trial, and some of those randomized to placebo will therefore experience withdrawal effects that will increase their risk of dying, e.g. because of akathisia. It is not possible to use the placebo-controlled trials in schizophrenia to estimate the effect of neuroleptics on mortality because of the drug withdrawal design. The suicide rate in these unethical trials was 2-5 times higher than the norm. One in every 145 patients who entered the trials of risperidone, olanzapine, quetiapine and sertindole died, but none of these deaths were mentioned in the scientific literature, and the FDA didn't require them to be mentioned. The FDA has a lot to answer for, but they are a private for profit group, that are not connected to the government and yet the government pays for them. As of 2021, the FDA had responsibility for overseeing $2.7 trillion in food, medical, and tobacco products. Some 54% of its budget derives from the federal government, and 46% is covered by industry user fees for FDA services. For example, pharmaceutical firms pay fees to expedite drug reviews.

According to Forbes, pharmaceutical firms provide 75% of the FDA's drug review budget. So they get 75% from medical funding, is that not a direct conflict of interest? Amazing how these companies operate, yet they are rarely challenged for such illicit practices. Fifth, events after the trial is stopped are ignored. In Pfizer's trials of sertraline in adults, the risk ratio for suicides and suicide attempts was 0.52 when the follow-up was only 24 hours, but 1.47 when the follow-up was 30 days, i.e. an increase in suicidal events. When researchers reanalyzed the FDA trial data on depression drugs and included harms occurring during follow up, they found that the drugs double the number of suicides in adults compared to placebo. In 2013, it was estimated that, in people aged 65 and above, neuroleptics, benzodiazepines, or similar, and depression drugs kill 209,000 people annually in the United States. The author used rather conservative estimates, however, and usage data from Denmark, which are far lower than those in the US. I have therefore updated the analysis based on US usage data, again focusing on older age groups. For neuroleptics, I used the estimate of 2% mortality from the FDA data. For benzodiazepines and similar drugs, a matched cohort study showed that the drugs doubled the death rate, although the average age of the patients was only 55. The excess death rate was about 1% per year. In another large, matched cohort study, the appendix to the study report shows that hypnotics quadrupled the death rate (hazard ratio 4.5). These authors estimated that sleeping pills kill between 320,000 and 507,000 Americans every year.

There is a reason they are called sleeping pills, they send you to sleep permanently. Like a modern-day sleeping pod. Perhaps that is why the term being awake, bothers the clowns so much. A reasonable estimate of the annual death rate would therefore be 2%.

For SSRIs, a UK cohort study of 60,746 depressed patients older than 65 showed that they led to falls and that the drugs kill 3.6% of patients treated for one year. The study was done very well, e.g. the patients were their own control in one of the analyses, which is a good way to remove the effect of confounders. But the death rate is surprisingly high. Another cohort study, of 136,293 American postmenopausal women (age 50-79) participating in the Women's Health Initiative study, found that depression drugs were associated with a 32% increase in all-cause mortality after adjustment for confounding factors, which corresponded to 0.5% of women killed by SSRIs when treated for one year. The death rate was very likely underestimated. The authors warned that the Women's Health results should be interpreted with great caution, as the way exposure to antidepressant drugs was ascertained carried a high risk of misclassification, which would make it more difficult to find an increase in mortality. Further, the patients were much younger than in the UK study, and the death rate increased markedly with age and was 1.4% for those aged 70-79. Finally, the exposed and unexposed women were different for many important risk factors for early death, whereas the people in the UK cohort were their own control. For these reasons, I decided to use the average of the two estimates, a 2% annual death rate. These are my results for the US for these three drug groups for people at least 65 years of age (58.2 million; usage is in outpatients only)

	Usage 65+	Mortality rate	Annual deaths
Neuroleptics	1.5%	2%	17460
Benzodiazepines	13.0%	2%	151320
Depression drugs	19.0%	2%	221160
Total			389940

A limitation in these estimates is that you can only die once, and many people receive polypharmacy. It is not clear how we should adjust for this. In the UK cohort study of depressed patients, 9% also took neuroleptics, and 24% took hypnotics/anxiolytics. On the other hand, the data on death rates come from studies where many patients were also on several psychiatric drugs in the comparison group, so this is not likely to be a major limitation considering also that polypharmacy increases mortality beyond what the individual drugs cause.

Statistics from the CDC list these four top causes of death: Heart disease: 695,547 – remember the use of cannabis increases heart disease as well. Cancer: 605,213 Covid-19: 416,893 Accidents: 224,935

Covid-19 deaths are rapidly declining, and many such deaths are not caused by the virus but merely occurred in people who tested positive for it, because the WHO advised that all deaths in people who tested positive should be called Covid deaths. Yes, until the deaths increased exponentially following the jabs, then it all gets reversed. But I am still to see a study on a topic we covered in the first Expose series, how many of the elderly were bumped off in nursing and care homes? Young people have a much smaller death risk than the elderly, as they rarely fall and break their hip, which is why I have focused on the elderly. I have tried to be conservative. My estimate misses many drug deaths in those younger than 65 years; it only included three classes of psychiatric drugs; and it did not include hospital deaths. I therefore do not doubt that psychiatric drugs are the third leading cause of death after heart disease and cancer. Other Drug Groups and Hospital Deaths: Analgesics are also major killers. In the US, about 70,000 people were killed in 2021 by an overdose of a synthetic opioid. The usage of NSAIDs is also high. In the US, 26% of adults use them regularly, 16% of which get them without a prescription mostly ibuprofen and diclofenac. As there seems to be no major differences between the drugs in their capacity to cause thromboses, we may use data for rofecoxib. Merck and Pfizer underreported thrombotic events in their trials of rofecoxib and celecoxib, respectively, to such an extent that it constituted fraud, but in one trial, of colorectal adenomas, Merck assessed thrombotic events. There were 1.5 more cases of myocardial infarction, sudden cardiac death or stroke on rofecoxib than on placebo per 100 patients treated. About 10% of the thromboses are fatal, but heart attacks are rare in young people.

One has to ask whether a study should be done to describe the effects and outcomes of pharma drugs mixed with cannabis use. I suspect the rates would be even higher than these staggering figures. Perhaps cannabis use mixed with psychosis drugs, speeds up the death rate? Which is why they legalized it? Restricting the analysis to those aged at least 65, we get 87,300 annual deaths. It has been estimated that 3,700 deaths occur each year in the UK due to peptic ulcer complications in NSAID users, corresponding to about 20,000 deaths each year in the US. Thus, the total estimate of NSAID deaths is about 107,000. If we add the estimates above, 315,000 hospital deaths, 390,000 psychiatric drug deaths, 70,000 synthetic opioid deaths, and 107,000 NSAID deaths, we get 882,000 drug deaths in the United States annually. Near 900k deaths a year and again no one says anything, where is the pandemic warning there? Yet the media will focus on gun deaths of between 28-48k per year, which is dwarfed by the 880K pharma drug deaths. And of that 48k gun death figure 28k was suicide. 20k gun deaths per year is not good in anyone's book, but it takes a combined 44 years of homicide by guns to equal one year of pharma drug deaths. I'm sure we can make a good few memes on that. That is a ridiculous discrepancy in those startling figures, yet where is the complicit media on that? Many commonly used drugs other than those mentioned above can cause dizziness and falls, e.g. anticholinergic drugs against urinary incontinence and dementia drugs, which are used by 1% and 0.5% of the Danish population, respectively, even though they do not have any clinically relevant effects.

It is difficult to know what the exact death toll of our drugs is, but there can be no doubt that they are the leading cause of death. And the death toll would be much higher if we included people below 65 years of age. Moreover, from the official number of deaths from heart disease, we would need to subtract those caused by NSAIDs, and from accidents, deaths by falls caused by psychiatric drugs and many other drugs. If such a hugely lethal pandemic had been caused by a microorganism, we would have done everything we could to get it under control. The tragedy is that we could easily get our drug pandemic under control, but when our politicians act, they usually make matters worse. They have been so heavily lobbied by the drug industry that drug regulation has become much more permissive than it was in the past. Yet again greedy politicians taking backhanders whilst looking a blind eye to the death and suffering it causes. Most of the drug deaths are preventable, above all because most of the patients who died didn't need the drug that killed them. In placebo-controlled trials, the effect of neuroleptics and depression drugs has been considerably below the least clinically relevant effect, also for very severe depression. And, despite their name, non-steroidal, anti-inflammatory drugs, NSAIDs do not have anti-inflammatory effects, and systematic reviews have shown that, their analgesic effect is similar to that of paracetamol (acetaminophen). Yet, most patients with pain are recommended to take both paracetamol and an NSAID over the counter. This will not increase the effect, only the risk of dying. So anti-inflammatory drugs are not anti-inflammatory, all of which means the medical junta are blatantly lying to the public about these drugs and the medically funded FDA are passing products that are not for the stated purpose. Most tragically, leading psychiatrists all over the world do not realize how ineffective and dangerous their drugs are. Psychiatry is a quack organization, they don't know what is in the drugs, nor do they recognized host possession as a, if not the, major cause of mental illness. And that is before they prescribe drugs.

A US psychiatrist, Roy Perlis, professor at Harvard, argued in April 2024 that depression pills should be sold over the counter because they are safe and effective. They are highly unsafe and ineffective. Perlis also claimed that depression drugs do not increase the risk of suicide in people older than 25, which is also wrong. They double suicides in adults. Perlis wrote, Some still question the biological basis of this disorder, despite the identification of more than 100 genes that increase depression risk and neuroimaging studies showing differences in the brains of people with depression. Both of these claims are plain wrong. Genetic association studies have come up empty-handed and so have brain imaging studies, which are generally highly flawed. People are depressed because they live depressing lives, not because of some brain disorder. So there you have it, a fairly sobering and comprehensive showing medical companies and their regulators are complicit in death and suffering of the public. Drugs that do not have cross tests to see if they are compatible with polypharmacy usage. Anti-inflammatory pills that do not do anti-inflammatory tasks. The facts are all there, the statistics are all there and yet vast numbers of people want to use these drugs, allegedly to cure, yet only increase the likelihood of death.

What is it with people and their blind trust of medical people? Why do people continue to trust in science, despite the dire evidence from the Covid experiment? Yes it was an experiment the drug people told everyone that, yet millions queued up to increase their chance of death. Perhaps the experiment was to show people just how stupid they really are. Less than 100 years ago all drugs had one word on every bottle, it said poison, yet people took it. Why? That lack of the p word again, patience and convenience, which is also a lack of patience. The body can and will counteract most diseases without the use of drugs, if you are patient. But most people aren't, so to accelerate the ending of the illness they take drugs, most of which don't work, but also increases your chances of death. People's lack of patience then enables them at best to become a patient or worse dead. Complete lunacy. The mind flow program has to be stopped, I get sick, I go to doctor's and I take pills. Yet most illnesses does not require a doctor or pills, it is a program to make you sick. Try this for a change, I get sick, I drink water and I get rest, greatest cure ever in most cases, but do you have the patience? No expensive doctor visits, no expensive drugs and a greater chance of not dying unfolds. If you are taking pills, reduce them from say 4 a day to 3 a day for a month, if no difference try 2 instead of 3 per day for a month, if no difference or side effects 1 per day for a month, then try ½ per day. If no side effects after that, just stop using them and trust more in your own medicine cabinet, called your immune system. If everyone did that, we will end the death and suffering industry called Big Pharma, after they all go out of business.

MYSTERY SECTION:

Recently we did a piece that kind of popped people's brain cells again, something I tend to do from time to time to keep you all on your toes. That was the deep state piece that made everyone ponder, unless of course you are hypnotized. I am going to replay that piece again so it sinks in, but with a twist, as I have added much more to it.

This is the first part again that will take us into the music break. Well I have been pondering again, and this is a very deep and multi-faceted pondering, that just might change your life or at the least your thinking patterns. Because you know sometimes words have two meanings. Indeed they do, but what about where is the definition coming from? Has been a theme of THI during the 8.25 years of the shows. The term word magic was used to describe endless differing meanings and definitions. But this term is reasonably new in terms of mass consciousness, although for a while it remained hidden as other words were more prominent. We have done whole shows on it, mainly Dutch and American, but we have covered other aspects of this group in Sweden and Germany. The term is Deep State. We are going to go deep and take you out of a state. A deep state is a type of government made up of potentially secret and unauthorized networks of power, operating independently of a state's political leadership in pursuit of their own agenda and goals. In popular usage, the term carries overwhelmingly negative connotations and is often associated with conspiracy theories. All of which it is more often right or true. Deep state is a calque of the Turkish word derin devlet meaning deep state. The modern concept of a deep state is associated with Turkey, a presumed secret network of military officers and their civilian allies trying to preserve the secular order based on the ideas of Mustafa Kemal Atatürk from 1923. Mr. Ataturk had several name changes during his reign and his ancestry questioned as it appeared to change regularly, reminiscent of the Jewish elements. It comes as no surprise that some considered Ataturk as a Donmeh, which is a Jew hiding behind the Islamic religion. There are also opinions that the deep state in Turkey and Counter-Guerrilla was established in the Cold War era as a part of Gladio Organization, to sway Turkey more into NATO against the threat of the expansion of Soviet communism. The Gladio Organization is the CIA and the P2 Lodge. Venezuela is another one in league with Bolivia and the Colombian FARC Guerrillas, known as the Cartel of the Sun. Other elements we covered in other shows were The Safari Club and Le Circle, connected to the Rockefeller cult in America since 1968. The term also derives in other regions like Chechnya, Chile, Egypt, Germany, Iran, Israel, Italy, Japan, Middle East, Pakistan, Turkey plus the two main ones promoting it, the UK under The Crown and America. Yet the most common link that binds all of the above is, the CIA. We also touched upon it within the FHSTOS series as well.

But the Deep State became the new buzz word of this century to replace other words like the cabal and the Illuminati. There are some who think the Deep State only become prominent during the Trump Presidency, that somehow he outed the Deep State into the public, but there was many researchers speaking of it for many decades prior. So, the Deep State became the new meaning to describe the hidden element or governance globally. But what if we all got it wrong and our understanding of it? Let's look at the various words for state. state (n.1) c. 1200, stat, circumstances, position in society, temporary attributes of a person or thing, conditions, from Old French estat meaning position, condition; status, stature, station. And directly from Latin status a station, position, place; way of standing, posture; order, arrangement, condition, figuratively standing, rank; public order, community organization. This is a noun of action from the past-participle stem of stare meaning to stand (from PIE root **sta-* to stand, make or be firm). Some Middle English senses are via Old French estat (French état; see estate). The Latin word was adopted into other modern Germanic languages (German, Dutch staat) but chiefly in the political senses only. The meanings physical condition as regards form or structure, particular condition or phase, and condition with reference to a norm are attested from c. 1300. The meaning of mental or emotional condition is attested from 1530s (the phrase state of mind is attested by 1749); the specific colloquial sense of an agitated or perturbed condition is from 1837. The meaning splendor of ceremony, etc., appropriate to high office; dignity and pomp befitting a person of high degree is from early 14c. Hence to lie in state, be ceremoniously exposed to view before interment (1705) and keep state conduct oneself with pompous dignity (1590s). State (n.2) political organization of a country; supreme civil power, the government; the whole people considered as a body politic, 1530s, from special use of state (n.1); This sense grew out of the meaning condition of a country with regard to government, prosperity, etc. (late 13c.), from Latin phrases such as status rei publicæ condition or existence of the republic. The sense of a semi-independent political entity under a federal authority, one of the bodies politic which together make up a federal republic is from 1774. The British North American colonies occasionally were called states as far back as 1630s. State was spelt with a lower-case s, 146 years before the corporation with a capital S formed by the United States and the Crown oriented founding fathers. State rights in U.S. political sense is attested from 1798 (the form states' rights is recorded by 1824): The doctrine that states retain all rights and privileges not delegated to the federal government in the Constitution, in its extreme form including the power and right of sovereignty. Often contrasted with ecclesiastical power in phrase church and state (1580s). State socialism attested from 1850 as a scheme of government favoring enlargement of state functions as the most direct way to achieve socialist goals. State (v.) 1590s, to set in a position, fix (a date, etc.), from state (n.1) circumstances, position. The sense of declare, recite, set down in detail in words is attested by 1640s from the notion of placing the words on the record. Stately (adj.) late 14c., statli, noble, splendid, befitting high rank, with -ly (1) + state (n.1). Related to the sense in lie in state, be ceremoniously exposed to view before interment and stateroom, originally room reserved for ceremonial occasions.

But the real term covered in one or two of those descriptions perhaps has been overlooked? The meaning mental or emotional condition is attested from 1530s (the phrase state of mind is attested by 1749); the specific colloquial sense of an agitated or perturbed condition is from 1837. 1590s, to set in a position, fix (a date, etc.), from state (n.1) circumstances, position. The sense of declare, recite, set down in detail in words is attested by 1640s from the notion of placing the words on the record. Add in stately for noble or nobility, then add in lie in state is the tradition in which the body of a deceased official, such as a head of state, is placed in a state building, either outside or inside a coffin, to allow the public to pay their respects. But didn't the nobility force us all to lie in state with the capitalization of our names? Do you lie in state or is the state in a lie? Does the lying in state go deep? deep (adj.) Old English deop having considerable extension downward, especially as measured from the top or surface. By c. 1200, of persons, sagacious, of penetrating mind. Sagacious means having or showing keen mental discernment and good judgement; wise or shrewd: deep (n.) Old English deop deep water, especially the sea deep (adv.) far down, deeply deep six (n.) place where something is discarded, by 1921 (in phrase give something the deep six), originally in motorboating slang, perhaps from earlier underworld noun sense of the grave (1929), which is perhaps a reference to the usual grave depth of six feet. So the summary of those deep descriptions are, going down, under the sea (which is drowning) and death or depth of six feet. The latter of which should remind you of the Covid deep state plot.

It may appear with this next section I am going off topic, but it will all tie back in. This is an excerpt from a science fiction book that just magically appeared on the chat as I was writing this piece. The book is called Valis and the title is an acronym for Vast Active Living Intelligence System, Phillip J Dick's gnostic vision of God. VALIS has been described as one node of an artificial satellite network originating from the star Sirius in the Canis Major constellation. Was that the Black Knight object seen orbiting above our skies in the past? It should be noted that Sirius is the realm of some of the EL-ite bloodline families. According to Dick, the Earth satellite used pink laser beams to transfer information and project holograms on Earth and to facilitate communication between an extraterrestrial species and humanity. Dick claimed that VALIS used disinhibiting stimuli to communicate, using symbols to trigger recollection of intrinsic knowledge through the loss of amnesia, achieving gnosis. The above of which describes engaging within the collective consciousness or the library as I call it. But what if that communication was reversed and it was inhibiting? Disinhibition is a psychological term used to describe the reduction or loss of self-control and restraint in an individual's behavior, thoughts, or emotions. It involves the weakening of inhibitory processes that typically moderate, govern, or suppress socially inappropriate, impulsive or risky actions. Loss of self-control? Alters peoples behaviors, thinking and actions? Sound familiar? Drawing directly from Platonism and Gnosticism, Dick wrote in his Exegesis: We appear to be memory coils (DNA carriers capable of experience) in a computer-like thinking system which, although we have correctly recorded and stored thousands of years of experiential information, and each of us possesses somewhat different deposits from all the other life forms, there is a malfunction, a failure of memory retrieval. That is the memory wipe and recycle technology they have employed here for many eons. A rinse and repeat loop cycle that has had devastating consequences for all who came here, except the controllers. High level discussions took place about this in 2014, the question was how many lifetime recalls do we give them back? I originally said all, but upon reflection and speaking to many who have past life recall, my opinion now is, just the current one. Why? Because the only recall most people have are of death and wars, most of which created many shadows around them in this lifetime. I am not sure that level of shadow and inner work is beneficial, considering how difficult many of you have doing just the shadow and inner work of this lifetime. Some will argue that is against my free will and that would be correct, but the reluctance of most of you to go deep into your own psyche and shadows has played out even in THI, despite the support structure enabling you to overcome it. Imagine how the masses will react? Everyone states they have done all their shadow and inner work, yet the same traits pop up regularly within each individual. Another example of lying to the self, yet you think you could handle multiple lifetime recalls? Turn it in. In psychologist Robert Anton Wilson's autobiographical Cosmic Trigger, released shortly before Dick commenced work on VALIS, Wilson describes similar musings concerning the Sirius Connection, contemplating the idea that alien entities are sending out waves of information that we can tune in on. Which is actually correct, like a Cosmic telepathy session, but how many of you tune into it? The answer is very few and therein lies the problem. Religious people ask many times for a message from God, yet never listen to it when it arrives. But those messages became distorted through technology and people were given another belief structure to abide by with cryptic message open to interpretation, none of which were valid. Like God, Jesus, Mohammad, Buddha, Krishna and many others are coming to save you, they didn't and never will. The disasters that has unfolded just in the last 2000 years should tell you that. 2000 years of alleged torture, maligning, death and suffering for god's alleged chosen ones, yet where is their god helping them, never mind saving them? You are meant to save you, no one else can do that for you. VALIS specifically mentions the Dogon people, saying that they had encountered three-eyed people who had descended from Ikhnaton. Ikhnaton is actually Akhenaton and the Egyptian off world rulers again. The Dogon we have covered before in previous shows. References are also made to numerous deities, including Yurugu who it associates with Yin and Nommo who it associates with Yang; Yurugu in Africa is known as a trickster god who operates in chaos, mischief and mayhem. Said to have shapeshifted into a fox or as they call it, a jackal. Yurugu also means, it is also a regressive degenerative state of consciousness where the soul is cut off from itself. Which is interesting in light of the technology discussed earlier. Nommos is derived from a Dogon word meaning to make one drink. Nommos are usually described as amphibious, hermaphroditic, fish-like creatures. Hence the Vatican wearing fish shaped hats. Nommo was switched into Nemo a fish character popular with children courtesy of Disney. Is that another case of hidden in plain sight? Nemo was based on a clownfish, is that indicative? Interestingly it is claimed Disney stole the idea from a previous author, who called it Pierrot, the poisson clown, meaning the fish clown. Is that describing the Dogon? In Valis it also suggests a blind, mad creator deity called Yaldabaoth or Samael. Yaldabaoth, is a malevolent God and demiurge said to be the creator of the material world in various Gnostic sects and movements, sometimes represented as a theriomorphic or chimeric, lion-headed serpent. Hence the lion symbolism everywhere connected with the ELites. Another of the false chimeric gods, lion and serpent. Scholars identified Seth with Typhon, a snake-monster, which roars like a lion. But Seth went by another more familiar Hebrew name, Yahweh. Seth was depicted as having a donkey head or jackass and there are inscribed drawings of a donkey headed being, being crucified on a cross. Is that where the Jesus narrative originated from? Yaldabaoth is identified as the false god who keeps the souls trapped in physical bodies, imprisoned in the material universe. Which sounds similar to Yurugu. Hence the soul trap technology and the rinse and repeat memory wipes. Yaldabaoth means the child of darkness, an element of chaos. Hence order out of chaos of the Freemasonic cult. Yaldabaoth is revered by the anti-humanity group. Samael is a demon or fallen angel that is identified by the term Satan. Samael and Lilith the child sacrificing moon goddess are also worshipped by the anti-humanity group. The novel frequently references the 1945 discovery at Nag Hammadi. The Nag Hammadi is best known for the Book of Thomas.

So back to the original and the deep state after I have taken you into and out of the deep state. So, did they declare we all lied, as in a falsehood, in state or did we lie, as in a coma, in a state with a mental or emotional condition? Let's throw in Tavistock, Think Tanks, Project's Paperclip and Mockingbird, Montauk and then the term MK Ultra. Does that change the thinking pattern? Well, if it doesn't then that is the whole point of this piece. Because you have been hypnotized into a Deep State. Yet again you went external with the deep state, when it was within you all along. And you know sometimes words have two meanings. But we didn't think deep enough did we? We are in a state of mental or emotional conditions, comatose in essence. What are those mental or emotional conditions we and they have created for us. They may have created it, but we consented to it. Those mental and emotional conditions are lies, false reality, illusion world, amnesia, lethargy and in overview zombie people. Those that lie in state and declare themselves dead, yet are still living, albeit partially. Those that prefer the lie and sadly that is most people, are designated to always lie in state. Those who escape those maladies have to operate in truth, heart, reality, memory and active living beings. As a reminder, the human being forms a link between Source and the world, uniting in themselves both the spiritual nature of divine beings and the corporeal nature of the material world. To do that one must escape the greatest prison ever developed, your own mind. Non deep state people need to switch on their inner sun and engage with the above and below sun in your own personal holy trinity, by becoming one on one with the one that starts by, following your heart.

MYSTERY SECTION PART 2:

And you know sometimes words have two meanings, but have you fathomed it out yet? A fathom is six feet deep whether you are drowning in water or debt, but have you fathomed at 6 feet deep, whether you can fathom what life brings you yet? Or are you deep sixing your life externally? The song rolling in the deep springs to mind, a song relaying anger, retribution, revenge and threats, none of which are useful for a productive life, as it dances firmly within the low vibrational field. Another song and indeed statement of intent, but which intent does it infer? The Yes song A state of independence, sung as a plea for freedom, but what if there is a missing hyphen between in and dependence? A state of being in dependence to whom? If you are in a state of dependence, ultimately over time that becomes co-dependent does it not? Which is the definition of Stockholm Syndrome, where you are co-dependent upon your abuser, indeed in many case of that affliction, the abused ends up loving the abuser. Classic victim/victimizer and victimhood status. Have you asked yourselves why you like being a victim? What is so great and pleasant about being abused you will wear it for the rest of your life? In this scenario like an elastic band you are instantly taken back in time to and of the event. That is a cord to the past, yet you bring it into the now and that directly impacts your better future. You cannot advance as a being with elastic bands or cords to the past, no matter how much you convince yourself otherwise. But is this childhood trauma all too seductive it seems, as it keeps you from becoming an adult and then taking responsibility for it? Is that the non-conscious object for holding onto it? Summarizing that, it is not possible to have a brighter future whilst dancing in childhood trauma and victimhood. Our foolishness of holding onto the past is preventing us having a better future. This applies in adult union relationships as well. Because your previous relationship ended in bitter acrimony, that is then passed onto the next partner via mistrust of one half of the world's population. But it was only one person that you had a poor relationship with? How and why does that impact the next partner? Is that fair? Ultimately most people carry the memory and events with the previous partner in their heads for many years. But if you have a deep dislike of that former person, why then would you allow that person to live rent free in your heads and ruin your future? That then becomes self-harming, if you asked people are they a self-harmer all would answer no. But that is not true is it? Why? Because you thought external again, and self-mutilation and not internal and the self-harm you are doing to the self via not addressing the shadows or the inner traumas. You cannot be anything else other than a self-harmer in overview. Are propensity to be looked after by either the mother, parents, governments, churches or the plethora of god saviors, renders only one conclusion, we all wish to stay children. Which again comes under self-harming, as you are supposed to bloom into an adult and flourish more independently, not in dependence. But there are other places in society where we are looked after. A hospital is another place where people get looked after with a bed, shelter and food. We heard of stories in the past of people committing crimes to deliberately go to prison to again be looked after. We mentioned hospit-als in a recent piece, Of how the hospital came out of some dodgy monastic order. But ponder on this next section, as the implications are enormous to your understanding of what hospitals potentially really are. Hospit means host or guest, Al means god. So are those going into hospital becoming hosts or guest of the gods? Is that why people go out of body within the hospital? Is that why the original cannot speak, because they are hosted by a fake god? Is this why we have similar names for other place to stay or rest, hotel and hostel? Hosted by El? Given the Gazan issue and the hostages situation, who is or who are the host of the ages? A hospital has an Intensive Care Unit section or better known as I C(see) U(you) – I see you, but the great question is: when are we going to see them? This world is a giant hospice with patients who have no patience and revel in convenience only, so as to not inconvenience themselves from their slumber. A deep state slumber of epic proportions. But what if the convenience was the inconvenience? Are you looking at life as an inconvenience or operating life as being in and of convenience? Convenience meaning that which gives ease or comfort; a convenient article or appliance is from 1670s. Not doing shadow and inner work is convenient for most of you, but it brings 24/7 baggage, heaviness, trauma, low vibration and dictates a poor or lesser future for you. So, how is that convenient? Or was the venient the con? As venient means they will come, they will approach, sounds very biblical to me. Except they weren't coming or approaching were they? They- were already here helping you to destroy your lives and wellbeing. Derivatives of the word venient in Latin, which is the Draco language, is perhaps significant in the overview of this piece. Venesti remanebis donec denuo completes sis means, from whence you came you shall remain, until you are complete again. From whence you came you shall remain, think sleeping pods or is it the mother's womb? Again the mother's womb becomes a station for which you park yourself and be fed and nourished is it not? Just like the sleeping pod. Is this why so many have the Mother Syndrome affliction? Is this why the church took away the mother, so we can grow up ourselves into adults? Until you are complete again it said, but what does that entail? It entails and requires us to grow up and become adults, to fend, feed, grow and nourish ourselves. To in essence, take full responsibility for ourselves and our own wellbeing. Another meaning of convenience from 1703, is a sense of quality of being personally not difficult. Another lazy affliction in overview as we take the road traveled and trampled because it is deemed easier or not as difficult. Another example of being sick and the operation of being ill on the usion of it all. Ill-usion, is that why we are in the hospice of life permanently? Ill means sick, us means we and ion means an act or process, the result of an act or process or a state or condition. And so we are back to state again, deep or otherwise. Reminder from earlier, those mental and emotional conditions are lies, false reality, illusion world, amnesia, lethargy and in overview zombie people. Those that lie in state and declare themselves dead, yet are still living, albeit partially. Those that prefer the lie and sadly that is most people, are designated to always lie in state. Another aspect of venient is perhaps indicative of the deep state of unconsciousness, the hospice, the mother's womb which is a bed and the sleeping pods where you lie comatose. Ventum seminabunt et turbine metent means, as you make your bed you must lie on it. Venient is also spoken of in the third person aspect, yet most people deny the third person aspect in favor of the copy of the copy do they not? So, convenience is a way to avoid difficulty, yet none of our action suggests that is the case does it? Convenience is the difficult path as nothing ever changes to make life easier, no matter how much you convince yourselves otherwise. Earlier we mentioned AI meaning god, with the A capitalized and the L not. But if you look at it from a distance the lower case l looks like an I. Which then has the word reading AI, does that then mean the god of the bible is Ai? Remember the AI god piece I did some years back? It's called Debunking the Creator god. The creator god implies predestination. Predestination opposes freewill, because freewill requires individual decision making, and predestination requires everything that was done, is being done, and will be done to be in the hands of his creation. Predestination is an enemy of free will. A creator God would have complete control over everything, and is basically the script writer of their creation. This can be seen in computer programming, where the programmer is a god over his program. He can change whatever he deems fit without the program's consent, and all outcomes of the program are known facts, as the program executes scripted commands created by the programmer. Hence the past, present and future in the world of a creator god has already been decided, and we(the alleged creation) have no control over its outcome. This makes the world seem mechanistic and dead, as we have no power and exist as mere automatons. Freewill on the other hand, is based on one's ability to make individual choices that we record as the past experience, manipulate as present decisions and anticipate as the future. Hence, Free Will can only exist in a domain where the future is unknown and the past is inaccessible, the past is a known memory, it cannot become Unknown or manipulated. This is similar to the concepts behind Blockchain Technology (As above, so below) The creator God is obviously an enemy of free will, the very thing none of us can oppose, as our very existence alone proves it. You cannot believe in free will and the Creator god. The Creator god is a narcissist, complete control freak, this is why Creator God religions requite full submission (sub-mission which means substitute mission) To believe? Or not to believe? The very fact that only you can make that decision for you, should make freewill an obviously irrefutable fact.

That was an interesting piece and thought concept to ponder on, the reference to the god being a computer programming brings up many connotations, and makes one ponder on AI. Is everything just an AI overlay? and no I don't believe we are a computer simulation, whereby our "god" or even source could well be an AI invention, which then explains the bot like behavior of many of his creations does it not? With the recent revelation that "source" told the Trustee to create an internet TV station, which has raised many concerns of the Trustee, but raises more concerns from my perspective, not who received the message, but where did that message really come from? The last two parents the twins, one of which is only appearing in here at times as a VI, virtual intelligence. With our life force energy converted from coins to paper and now seemingly marching towards fresh air tokens, with a techno world on steroids lurking around the corner from us, it is something we should all think deeply upon. Forget whether you are religious or not, everything on this planet currently is about shortening time spans, via genetics, technology, travel or even conferences. But, given the distances of travel and the main star gates down for speed of travel, it would be an easier way of controlling a planet and it's beings from afar, with the use of technology is it not? AI gods and goddesses oh my, what a way to cheat death and not return to source, is that was has really taken place in this Solar System? All 1's and 0's and binary code and not 1 on 1 with 1, which we had on some levels earlier this year, until someone decided to go 1-0-0, time will and some will say has told. The key is how to correct it, and that involves the all, not just the one.

ENDING PIECE:

Today is September 5th and we are two months away now from the childhood song of do you remember the 5th of November? A song that told us how a guy attempted to blow up people who make policies, politician's. Will his story repeat itself? These are interesting times on many levels now and it can be looked at with fear, with love or in a neutral state. That is all your own free will choices to make, but THI has suggested, poked, prodded and pondered you to think differently. OMG Thomas has trashing everything some will say, every organization, every group, exactly, why? because there is no evidence, anything in our lives currently, is operating for and by the people, again please show me the evidence to the contrary, and I can show you over 500 THI shows were I prove otherwise. But that means we have no one to turn to Thomas, a common saying that, but that statement is looking for a savior, someone to save you again, you have you to turn to and us, YOU ARE THE SAVIOR, please imprint that into your heads, YOU ARE THE SAVIOR, accept it, wear it and act on it YOU ARE THE SAVIOR. But,

Thomas you give us no hope some will say, I have, I have given you the knowledge to understand what is really going on, on this planet. What did THI give to you? solutions to fix it, solutions to get your life back, your power back, your self-appreciation back, your sovereignty back, raise your frequencies, that took some out of the astral, in other words you have had everything you need, except the belief in and of yourself. The hope is and was also created by THI, it is called The Peoples Club, it does not have a leader, you are the leaders, it does not operate for or by one person, it operates for and by all of the People.

There is your hope, I may have started it, but it is up to you all to build it into something we can all get behind and be proud of. It is the lifeline for our future and future generations to come, it will not be built crying what others do or say, only what you do and say matters. It will not be built by people with egos copying our model whilst trashing us, playing childlike divisive games, they as it stands are enemies of we the people, all because they wish to be important, and not do important things. They who want their name up in lights only, when we want all of us up in lights. Those who deal in the self at this point are enemies of we the people, the one has never worked and the only thing not tried by the people is, the all. Hope? you are the hope Honest, Open, Perseverance and Endeavor, that is your hope, it is the real hope we must all abide by. Hope as always is the avenue of the light. Far too many people have fear of the dark, the reason being for that is, because most people are frightened of their own light. That all has to change if we are to progress as a species. Rise yourselves out of your own fears, your own deep state and enlighten yourselves to be of the light to others and show the way.
