The Blueprint Episode 30 Teams Report week ending 8th September 2024.

The Agenda:

The action team discussed a variety of ongoing projects in different stages this week, and the tenor of the meeting was increasing interdependence, self-reliance and confidence within and amongst teams. The What Is? Series production is down to image selection to represent the life topics within the series, and several members have provided ample inventory to choose from. Selections will be made and implemented soon. We have also viewed a draft landing page design for each individual “What Is? Series Ponderable” that includes the audio file of the original reading out of the pieces, and the media team will be able to draw from those mp4 files to create a series of short clips for the social media platforms once they have access. These will increase the current inventory of videos. We welcome new people willing to join us and explore their creativity by making media clips. These short clips are instrumental to building our wider audience and pool of people ready to come forward and help, in a form that most directly touches people’s hearts in these uncertain times. We are at the point where a shaking of the head and commenting how crazy it is, appears inadequate to the self and those around us, and people are truly searching for the words to describe the magnitude of events unfolding before our eyes. The research, media, and 5x5 teams are engaged in developing plans to counter a number of Milgram-experiment, Deep State initiatives and are preparing tools to cordially but firmly address tiers of institutional figures attempting to roll out initiatives rife with human rights violations this autumn. We will seed the airways with our collective denial of consent and cogently demonstrate knowledge of their continuum of failed plans, as we urge them to change from an anti-humanity stance to a prohumanity stance by simply backing down. In most cases, the Guardians are the only enforcement arm available, as we teach ourselves and each other what it means and looks like to take full responsibility for the planet in our charge. One of those responsibilities is to act in unity first, and to share what serves the all later. In that, we are taking the lead of our Blueprint author. Other things underway are an extended merchandise offering that highlights the importance of the Slavic Aryan Vedas and Santies in our work and uses some of the imagery from those works. This is in response to the question posed: Have the Santies become your bible? We are also bringing the curriculum home to the book team to organize the combined power of many materials already laid down, and add to these new materials in the making to form a home-schooling curriculum, as more and more parents release their precious children from the public training of animals system. Consciousness is rising and growing, and we are moving forward with the ease and flow of a people in restorative guardianship of our planet.

Book Team:

We are happy to report that the Swedish translation of The New Blueprint for Humanity is ready to be added to the website. Volume 5 of From His Story to Our Story has received its initial preparation and has been sent to the editing team for their review, corrections, and polishing, as well as comments on proposed foreword and afterword segments and cover text. The Romanian translator is hard at work on Volume 4 of From His Story to Our Story, while Volumes 2 and 3 are being translated by other members of the team.

Research Team:

Due to holidays of members our usual bi-weekly meeting was cancelled at the end of August. Everything else carried on as usual, we were busy handpicking suitable influencers and researching their profiles for the report, and updating the database to generate a tailored report for the 5x5 team to select the next batch of influencers for their weekly engagements.

We sent the Blueprint PDF links to the following twenty names:

Reason Foundation: Is a think tank based in Los Angeles, California with a 2nd office in Washington, D.C to advance a free society by developing, applying, and promoting libertarian principles, including individual liberty, free markets, and the rule of law. They use journalism and public policy research to influence the frameworks and actions of policymakers, journalists, and opinion leaders by way of their Reason Magazine and Reason TV.

Caroline Vonhoff: With others in Holland created “I, the Citizen” as a completely independent initiative of citizens that provides "the neglected citizen" with the necessary muscle power from their field of expertise and encourages them to take their own initiative.

Brian Eno: Cofounded Earth Percent with the mission to use music to help the planet by providing ways for artists, music organizations, and fans to donate a small percentage of their income to environmental and climate justice organizations.

The Peoples Voice: Is an American news publication committed to covering the headlines mainstream outlets shy away from. They have a team of writers from around the world, who deliver original reporting, political commentary, and entertainment to American and Western audiences.

Mary Jane Wilmoth: Is a trustee at the National Whistleblower Center Legal Defense & Education Fund. She is a member of the Board of Directors of the National Whistleblower Center, where she serves as the corporate secretary and treasurer. She is also the Editor of the Whistleblower Network News blog. In her efforts to uphold such safeguards in the American workplace, she has helped to strengthen whistleblower rights in licensing and enforcement proceedings with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. She has also defended whistleblowers at the Environmental Protection Agency in actions before the Department of Labor.

Abi Roberts: Is a British stand-up comedian, writer and commentator. She has appeared as a guest comedian on BBC Radio 4’s Midweek, Saturday Live and BBC Radio Scotland’s The Janice Forsyth Show, and ITV’s Good Morning Britain, debating mandatory vaccine passports opposite Edwina Currie. As a writer, Abi has written for several publications including Spiked and The Times. She is a regular commentator on GB News, Tonight Live with Dan Wootton and Mark Dolan, appears regularly on Andrew Doyle's Free Speech Nation and on Nana Akua's weekend Debate show on GB News every Friday from 4-6pm.

Professor Dr. Paul Frijters: Is of Nova Academia, Belgium. We need to stop being victims admiring our enemies and become actors in our own future. We need to develop our own plans. The problem we face is far, far deeper than a few thousand rotten eggs. Tinkering around the edges of the existing system, to somehow 'fix' it by disinfecting it of the villains, will be nothing like enough to get us back on track. Rather, large chunks of the system itself must be dismantled altogether and replaced with something that is genuinely revolutionary. Opposing the agenda of the globalist elite is but a tiny sliver of what needs to happen to get to a better place. A real solution must start with realistic ideas about what to set up in place of current structures, and how to get to such a change, even if only in our own country and painfully slowly.

Professor Jolle Demmers: Is a professor in Conflict Studies at the History of International Relations section of the Department of History and Art History. She said in an interview "Thanks to billions in weapons deliveries, intensive training, intelligence and real-time targeting, we have been part of this war for a long time, and we therefore share responsibility for both the escalation to even more atrocities and a way out of this hell."

Action 4 Canada: Is a grassroots movement reaching out to millions of Canadians and uniting our voices in opposition to the destructive policies tearing at the fabric of this nation.

Professor Jongyoon Han: Is the principal investigator of Micro/Nanofluidic BioMEMS Group in the Research Laboratory of Electronics at MIT. The lab is developing novel methods for small-scale seawater desalination. Using the ion concentration polarization, the Han group has developed an energy efficient but scalable seawater desalination and water purification system. The lab is interested in biomolecule separation using nanofluidic molecular sieve. Currently, most biomolecule purification and separation use random nanoporous materials as molecular sieving matrix. Unlike polymeric gels or nanoporous molecular filters, nanofluidic molecular sieves and filters could be engineered to have precise physical and chemical characteristics, therefore can have higher separation efficiency and selectivity.

Steven Jackson: Became an FBI whistleblower in 2022 after making protected disclosures to Congress about the FBI's questionable and manipulative investigations of January 6th protestors. He joined Steve Friend and Garret O'Boyle as they endeavor to keep the spotlight on government corruption. They sat side by side before Congress, now they sit side by side (virtually) again to keep bringing the truth into the public square.

Sarah Plumley: Is a thinker, teacher, and truther in the UK. She promotes education not indoctrination! Her website shows how to teach your children at home, confidently, consistently and with a fully qualified professional to guide you. She is a podcaster supporting math and critical thinking skills.

Ben Gilroy: Is the leader of Liberty Republic, an Irish political activist, anti-eviction campaigner and conspiracy theorist. He provides a political service that puts common sense thinking at its core, offering innovative policies and real solutions. Helping all people on this great island by working together on what we already agree on, which includes a better quality of life for all, while maintaining a balance and respect for each other's values, inalienable rights and freedoms. We are here to raise community awareness and build consensus among people of the left, center, and right on individual freedoms, civil liberties, anti-racism, anti-homophobia, and limited government, free from far-left and far-right divisiveness. We advocate for policies prioritizing Irish people, sovereignty, personal autonomy, and free-market principles by upholding our constitutionally recognized natural rights, including freedom of speech and movement.

Shyam Batra: Recently ran for but lost bid to be Mayor of London. Today, he leads a private bespoke financial business, empowering others with less knowledge to find their worth and value through affordable property ownership and frugal business choices and living the philosophy that anything is achievable with determination, dedication and the drive to excel.

Mads Palsvig: Is a former executive from Morgan Stanley, Credit Suisse and Barclays turned whistleblower. He has now become a controversial and outspoken politician in Denmark. He is the founder of a very alternative political party - The Prosperity Party and has been revealing conspiracy secrets about hidden agendas orchestrated by elite "banksters" and members of secret societies, who "run the world" behind the scenes.

Dr. Jens Jerndal of Global Research Is a Swedish-born internationally recognized authority on the now occurring Paradigm Shift. He has authored four published books. He is a political scientist, economist, former diplomat, former investment counsellor and CEO, and a former professor of holistic medicine. Now he is an author, speaker, coach, consultant futurist and holistic philosopher. He is known as one of the world's most prominent Paradigm Shift experts. He has researched the background and nature of the long-term systemic changes our world is now undergoing at an ever-faster pace. Although his special focus as a professional futurist is holistic overview and long-term development, he possesses professional expertise from the fields of holistic medicine.

Rich Harwood: Is an author, speaker and innovator who created The Harwood Institute. Over the past 30 years, he has innovated and developed a new philosophy and practice of how communities can solve shared problems, create a culture of shared responsibility and deepen people's civic faith. The Harwood practice of Turning Outward has spread to all 50 U.S. states and is being used in 40 countries.

Justin Leslie: Developed the Just Integrity Network with Pfizer and Alternative-media whistleblower of Project Veritas, O'Keefe Media Group and James O'Keefe. Just Integrity is where journalism meets the pursuit of truth head-on. His platform is more than just a news site; it's a journey into the heart of truth and uncovering the "veil" of gaslighting and deception. Just Integrity Network is built on Integrity. Truth is love and love is truth. That's why he provides a unique perspective that not only informs but also enlightens and engages.

Sizwe Mpfu-Walsh: Is a South African University lecturer, podcaster, author, musician and activist. He is passionate about South African politics, rap music and Liverpool! He hosts a TV show on SABC and started the SMWX podcast.

Marijn Poels: Is an independent European documentary maker and international speaker in Sweden. His biggest aim is to bring people together in an accessible way and draw attention to social and economic world issues, with a clear message pointed at international cooperation and human rights. Where, as much as possible, people who want to participate in culture and society are getting involved. Getting out there looking for the unpopular truth to educate, provoke and inspire the world.

Media Team:

The past couple of weeks have been primarily about housekeeping. We have removed old memes no longer deemed to convey the appropriate message, and approved memes and videos that had been overlooked in the flurry of activity that included making special memes for the 5 by 5 group and keeping up with extra podcasts. But never fear. New memes have been added to our repertoire, and our favorite transcript scrutinizer, and Thomas himself, are providing inspiration for many more. And given the substantial collection of memes we currently possess, we recognize the necessity of organizing them more effectively by categorizing them by topics, which will facilitate easier access and enable us to swiftly locate the desired content.

We are also focusing on enhancing our video messaging, as these formats have proven to be highly effective across various social media platforms. Along with the web team's What is series project, we are planning to produce short video clips to spread the messages far and wide on social media platforms. The media team is growing, and we also are bonding into a real cohesive force. There's a wonderful harmony within the team, everyone contributing ideas. One member joyfully stated that making memes have been a creative and artistic outlet, it's given her a sense of purpose and she has discovered skills she never knew she had. We are still looking for video makers. If this inspires anyone to join us, please give us a shout through MeWe chat or the Be Forum.

European Blueprint team

We are progressing nicely with editing and writing for the European Blueprint Solutions. The European Governments solution is getting more shape and together with the Banking and Financial Systems solution are next on schedule to be discussed in more detail. One of the members has set up a Google Drive for the documents we are working on, this is very helpful for our work in collaboration. An idea for a solution about decolonization was shared in the meeting. We did some future thinking and are investigating how we can create a list of European influencers.

In Overview:

The letting go: In a world where so much does not work anymore, where greed is the master and battles are a way of life, why does humanity struggle so much to let it all go? Have we become so fearful as a populous that we would rather keep the things that no longer serve us? Do we prefer that familiar discomfort to any other discomfort it might bring to take on something new? something better that has the power to lay down the path that would bring all the things we cry out for and wish we had, true freedom? Our habits determine the outcome of our daily lives, but do we overview our habits often enough to know if they are serving us well? It seems taking on even a simple new habit such as eating better, thinking better thoughts seems like an overreach to many of us so we excuse our behaviors by placing the blame on someone or something, never truly innerstanding that our habits are merely thought structures that created our belief systems. How many of us have stayed in destructive and toxic relationships far too long, thinking it will improve eventually, though on the other hand some of us are too quick to forgive bad deeds for fear of making the culprit angry or worse, what if they leave us. We lack the courage it takes to detach from them, fearful of what they might do, we never hold them accountable, so in the end it will all repeat, all because of our fear of letting go. If the external is a reflection of the internal, then it stands to reason that expecting a great change when you have not changed any of your old habits is like expecting a flower to bloom when you never even planted the seed. While we may be very aware of the person in your life's unhealthy habits, you may never have taken the time to reflect on your own bad habits. We have in effect become their enabler, our great need to be liked, loved or noticed creates an environment that attracts the same type of people to us, the victim enters demonstrating the same behaviors and so we get the same results. All done out of our need to be accepted and loved, accepting bad behavior and rewarding the victim with your time, attention and your concern. In effect they have in some cases become a free landlord, but instead of money they take your time and the payoff for them is they harvest your energy. As your fear of what they may do becomes their control system, leaving you no time to focus on healing the self. In other words, as the enabler, we attract needy, unloved and attention seeking people into our arena. This is a perfect breeding ground for a savior program, for the victim needs the hero that sweeps into their life to suddenly make it all better, has all the answers, and will do all the work. We then raise them up so high it brings a strong sense of powerlessness to those around them. The victims value themselves so little they hand over all responsibility to anyone never seeing the hidden agendas cloaked from us. The victim allows thoughts of the past to control and dictate the future, they use seduction methods like attention seeking in all formats and even threats of suicide to keep the hook well and truly attached to the enabler. Our co-dependency is our greatest downfall, it chains and binds us to people, places and things keeping us tied in the past, the chains so tight it prevents us from even taking a look at another future, another way forward, inhibiting the thing we truly desire, love, we have created our own prisons. But what is the real driver of the above control system, well many may say it is the 1 percent that have taken over the world, but 1 percent need a hook to grab onto, you in essence reached out and placed yourself firmly onto their hook. Then just like a fish out of water, you allowed them to take you out of your natural environment into theirs, your natural environment is and was your own internal Authentic intelligence. But our fear of feeling the pain and doing it anyway is always the excuse for negating the power that lies within you.

So, what if the cause of this stems from planetary abandonment, and as a result we have too many people holding onto planetary and ancestral pain, replaying it in the now. For just like our history it will keep repeating, in fact we are the main characters in their his-story book, they just dip a pen into ink and merrily copy and paste the next chapter for us with glee. We have become the lab rats that the elites watch with delight falling down the playground slide time and time again, the snakes and ladders game I guess has more meaning now. Does the origins of our co-dependency derive from the fall over time when as stated in a previous show 12 planets became 7, the great fall of the planets is a topic many do not discuss, except here at THI, maybe the greatest deceptions of our time hidden from the masses? The veil of secrecy wrapped Midgard so tightly you could say it forgot who and what she was and still is. Our planet and people hurtled instead on a downward descent with the joy of a child as they speed down the playground slide, nobody noticed it, they were too exhilarated in the excitement of the big slide to notice. The slope so great it made us dizzy and perhaps disorientated enough to forget who and what we truly are, the crown of creation. But have we stopped to examine why we fell, or what the fallout actually brought us? We speak about the rise and how important that is for this planet, yet so few actually innerstand or undertake such a journey of discovery of how we got to here, and so just like the fall we hurtle blindly into the misnomer of fooling ourselves into believing we have done enough work to really chart that rise. Does it not stand to reason that the destruction and abandonment of the planets would have a direct effect on us, instead of 12 in our cosmic makeup we now have 7, so how does that disrupt the cosmic system that was put in place before? When something is removed or displaced from a structure or alignment in our own lives, chaos generally ensues, it ignites a plethora of direct and indirect responses within us, and without even knowing it we go into reactionary mode, fight or flight syndrome, the activation of the adrenaline rush. Take the scenario that a child loses sight of their parent and gets lost on a beach, fear grips the child as they meander around looking for them, they become distressed while the parent panics and images of grave things having happened to that child appear in a second, both become desperate. Imagine then a planetary mother abandoning the planet and her children, would that not cause a great fall out within the whole energetic structure she had maintained? her frequency loss causing an immediate descent affecting all the inhabitants, plants and species that reside there. The reaction is enormous, but just like the scenario of the lost child, people will step in to help save the child, but no one will guess that maybe that savior had other intentions and instead of being the savior they become the oppressor. The abandonment shadow lies deep within us all, leaving a wanting and craving for love and attention, but in a low vibration where love resonates at a higher frequency we misplace and take what appears to be love but is just a mere imitation of the true high frequency. Therefore, we will continue to search it out everywhere, looking to return to the origin, the heartbeat of the true mother.

Saviors come in many formats and their true agendas leave us wanting, but instead of creating and manifesting what we truly desire, we settle for a poor second, for we have forgotten what the true heartbeat of the mother sounds like and feels like. Some of us will strive to be the carer, the lover, the nurturer, others will become lost in the victimhood of it all, the frequency will produce its own progeny as no one had the courage it takes to change it. We were prepared to accept what is given and ignore the true self where the heart lies dormant waiting for the owner to switch it back on. So has the parent become the enabler and the child the victim of the false parent, you decide? And while many may choose to thread onto the journey of the golden path, we cannot in all honesty place a foot there until we have swept away the fallen leaves of the past. Why do we still choose to remember the hurts and the pain when hidden underneath lies the freedom the joy and the happiness of the true you. Wash clean the shadows and embrace the learning of them for underneath all of that lies the remembrance of the true heartbeat, the original seeder of the true frequency we are meant to be. Embrace the child within you so we can begin to walk this earth as healed adults, guardians and better parents. To detach is to truly be free and let go of the pain and suffering when we stop following false and fallen gods and leaders looking for your savior. Return to the true carer and nurturer you are, the mother and the true protector and provider as the father you are for therein lies the savior within you. Love and embrace the abandoned child within you so we can begin to walk this earth as healed adults, guardians and better parents. In overview is the reason we struggle to let go, because we view it all as abandonment in one form or another? The real path to freedom is connection and the first port of call or portal lies in connecting to your heart, only from this space can you eradicate the lower frequency, it is the portal to all above the fallen ideology that has inhabited your being. When enough connect this sets up a domino effect where unity of higher heart consciousness can truly begin, where higher mind creates the new beginning, this is why unity is so important, when you connect then with others from the heart everything changes. Unity is the pathway to redemption. There can be no other way, when the union of the mind and heart takes place the soul and the vessel unite with source the true trinary, then and only then the savior will emerge. The heart is the doorway to the blueprint of you, go there often and begin to follow your heart.

NEWS:

As America freaks out over who won the debate this week, the answer is neither Trump nor Harris, only the US Inc. clowns. Predictably hardly any policies were discussed, predictably even more is personal barbs at each other and each other's parties and so the status quo continues. Volumes of so-called awake people following and participating in fake elections, yet they think they are awake? Delusional in the extreme. Although quite why people want that job in its current format is beyond me, it has to be pure ego. Because the job itself is a poisoned chalice, destroyed economy, woke policies, every level of government collapsing, dwindling budgets, dwindling staff and an increasingly divided and unaccountable media to drag around day by day. That is without the 24/7 surveillance. Either candidate has to realize at this point, despite all the posturing, this country in the next 4 years is going in the toilet permanently, unless and until common sense prevails. Everyone is whispering it and everyone doesn't think it will affect them, yet more delusion, yet more Disneyesque scripts, no more heroic America saves the day scripts, as America as you knew will be a wasteland of greed, delusion and missed opportunities. The only solution is the Blueprint, but how many have the courage to implement it?

Following last week's reports of the struggles of Go-ogle, here is another hit to the electric grid drainers. As plans for a vast Google data center on the outskirts of Dublin have been blocked, amid fears it would put pressure on the electricity grid and heighten the risk of blackouts. The tech giant's proposals for an expanded data center, measuring nearly 800,000 sq feet, were refused by local officials over concerns they risked further straining the existing insufficient capacity in the electricity network. The country's grid operator, EirGrid, has previously warned of rolling blackouts, if the expansion of foreign tech giants was allowed to continue unchecked. Ireland is home to more than 80 data centers, which account for more than a fifth of the country's electricity consumption, and many US tech giants maintain a sizable presence in the EU member state. Google's European headquarters are located in Dublin. There has been a de facto moratorium on new data facilities in the Dublin area since 2022 to ease pressure on its electricity network. However, Google had put forward plans for a new facility at Grange Castle, which would have been roughly the size of 10 football pitches. The project was expected to create 800 construction jobs and 50 permanent roles once it was in operation. The world or their world is obsessed with data it seems. Why? The obvious is their pervert voyeur routine of spying, but the hidden hand for the data is for the new AI control system and their plans for a replicator style robot world. In a world where their clowns tell us to conserve energy, whilst they create systems that consume vast quantities of it. 20% of Ireland's electricity is used to spy on people. No doubt at far cheaper rates than the general public.

When crypto came out alt media were telling me that it is a good thing and is going up against the big banks. I dismissed that foolish notion and warned of the dangers of it, it is the precursor to a credit or tokens system and the UBI program. No compliance with all their demands and you lose your tokens, it is the ultimate goal of control freaks. Perhaps this piece might make those who like crypto and the dangerous blockchain technology think. Crypto exchange Binance has seized all funds belonging to Palestinians, acting on a request from the Israeli Defense Forces (IDF). This revelation comes straight from Ray Youssef, who stated that the exchange refuses to return the funds. All appeals have been denied. Palestinians affected by this decision have found their accounts frozen with no way to access their crypto assets. The seizure is reportedly tied to Israeli law, specifically, the Anti-Terrorism Law of 2016. The law gives Israel's Minister of Defense broad powers to confiscate property deemed to be linked to terrorism. A seizure order, labeled T56/23, was signed on November 1, 2023, under this law. Then maybe that is what the rest of the world should do with Jewish EL-ite accounts, including their politicians, ambassadors and lobbyists group for supporting actual terrorism, not fake terrorism. The claim is that cryptocurrency wallets, including those owned by Palestinians, have received funds from a group designated as a terrorist organization by Israel. This group, the Dubai Exchange Company operating in Gaza, was flagged by Israel in 2022. Ray explained that: According to the anti-terrorism law, cryptographic currencies that have been transferred by a declared terrorist organization constitute property of a declared terrorist organization and cryptocurrency wallets to which it has been transferred. The law provides cover for Binance's move to freeze and hold Palestinian funds, citing reliable intelligence as the reason for targeting specific cryptocurrency wallets. Ray said: I have received this from several sources. All Palestinians are affected and judging by the way things are going all Lebanese and Syrians will get the same treatment. Not your keys, not your coins. We are all Palestinians now. Centralized exchanges like Binance are starting to look more like government snitches than safe places to store your crypto. Starting to look like? It was that from the beginning just as I warned. And it gets worse. Ray claims that Binance has been leaking info on MENA (Middle East and North Africa) users to the IDF without any legal process, no warrant, no subpoena, just handing it over. If that's true, it's a massive betrayal of trust, not just to Palestinian users, but to anyone using the platform. CZ was innocent. He went to jail because he refused to tow this line. Now, Binance is fully compromised, and so is any other centralized exchange. CZ was the founder of Binance a Chinese-Canadian who was arrested by the US for alleged money laundering and jailed for 4 months and a puppet installed at Binance it seems. CZ refused US demands just like Pavel Durov who wouldn't bow to US intelligence demands to add in back doors to the Telegram program and was subsequently arrested. Today it is the Palestinian's, the tomorrow is all of us. It seems all Israel has to do, is declare everyone not Jewish a terrorist and they claim all the funds. Just like the Templar group and the Silk Roads.

Here is more anti-humanity interference and initiating fake laws to threaten people and organizations who dare to question or ignore them and their demands. The top law enforcement officials in 24 states warned Brown University of financial penalties, if the school's trustees vote in favor of a proposal calling for divestment from companies with close ties to Israel. What has law enforcement got to do with, how people exercising their free speech and where they spend their money? Is there any authority group in America ever going to do what is best for the people, or will they always pander to the anti-humanity group? I would love to know the actual figures of time, energy and money the authorities use to appease the terrorist, apartheid and genocide group, it must be staggering. National Security Minister Itamar Ben Gvir calls for the deportation of Eritrean asylum seekers after two men were killed and five others injured in a massive street brawl between pro-regime and anti-regime Eritrean migrants, in south Tel Aviv. According to the minister's office, following a conversation with senior police officials, the National Security Ministry and Israel Police have agreed to demand that the state prosecutor, attorney general and justice and interior ministries act to deport the Eritreans, following the request submitted a year ago and the discussion held with the prime minister. Eritreans like all other African's who stupidly align themselves with Jewish or Israel are labeled as schwartzers, who Israelis think are beneath them. But some Eritrean's are useful to send into Europe and cause major events it seems.

What a ridiculous but indicative waste of money this is. This should alarm every American, as money is being spent in their name, not to protect American people, but foreigners only, namely the anti-humanity group. In the Chicago command center of the Secure Community Network, threats to the nation's Jewish community are mapped coast-to-coast. Seriously that is like NORAD for Jews, what makes them so special? Where is the mapping of the threats in the streets for American's dealing with crime, gangs and illicit practices? Where is the mapping for the over 1/2M children who go missing every year, like the 300K undocumented children connected to Homeland Security? The command center is overseen by Brad Orsini, a retired FBI agent who helped investigate the 9/11 attacks. Brad Orsini? A potential bloodline family member in the FBI? You can't make this stuff up. Most simply, the Secure Community Network is the Jewish community's own FBI and Department of Homeland Security. SCN tracked over 5,000 threats last year, sending more than 1,600 tips to law enforcement. Director Michael Masters leads a team of analysts that don't need warrants to follow leads. We can also have tools that are active in our command center to look at the deep and dark web, Masters said. Founded in 2004, SCN took off after the 2018 mass shooting attack at Pittsburgh's Tree of Life synagogue, the deadliest antisemitic attack in U.S. history. They just have to mention the tragedy event don't they? I am not demeaning that event and the fact that people lost their lives, it is just used to install draconian measures, guilt and shame on the rest of us. If only their IDF valued our lives as much as these groups value their own. SCN now hosts active shooter trainings at synagogues and Jewish centers nationwide, and Orsini says threats have skyrocketed since the start of the Israel-Hamas war. In an April report, the Anti-Defamation League recorded 8,873 antisemitic incidents in 2023, which includes harassment, vandalism and assault. That is the highest tally since it began tracking the number in 1979. 8873 events that would not unfold if those at the top of the Israeli plans would stop their genocide. 8873 antisemitic events, 41000 anti-humanity events with 10's of thousands of people disrupted due to anti-humanity events. Big difference. I warned they would place their own people in danger and they have, just like they have always done. For Myers, the threats are a somber reminder. There is no such thing as sanctuary anymore. There is no house of worship that's safe. No house of Palestinians is safe either from these psychopaths.

Trump has taken to promising that he will lower gasoline and energy prices by more than half in his first year back in office, something we made him aware of 6 years ago. But in comes the false economy experts stating that would result in the destruction of the U.S. oil industry followed by a deep recession, experts said. Where is the evidence to support that claim? There is none. The maximum a barrel of oil costs is less than $10, why is it being sold at $70 to over a $100? To satisfy the greed of the shekel makers, it is they who will lose out initially. But with people having more money in their pockets, the economy will flow and so will more oil. So the oil people would earn more by producing more, unlike currently they produce less but charge more. Energy costs, all of it, air conditioning, heating, all of it, including gasoline, will drop by more than 50% within the first 12 months, Trump said. The problem, industry experts explained, is that energy is bought and sold in a global market, and the only way that gasoline could go from $3.40 a gallon now down to $1.70 a gallon is for crude oil prices to fall from $75 a barrel to between $20 and $30 a barrel. And at those lower prices, U.S. oil producers would not be able to break even. That would bankrupt the U.S. industry and the entire U.S. industry would shut down before that happened, said one oil executive. Utter rubbish, they just have to clean up their industry and stop giving rogue elements backhander cuts out of it. A straight trade deal just like our Blueprint solution advocates. People before profit needs to be a new meme that all should adopt to. As a reminder, America has more untapped oil than the rest of the world combined. The irony of this piece is, the experts are fighting to keep fossil fuels, not shifting away from it. The Blueprint advocates to continue it, but reducing the prices, but trade more with countries who don't have oil. With the condition that it is phased out over 30-50 years.

We have all heard of how much the US is in debt, yet the war machine keeps spending like there is no budget it seems. A US Navy carrier strike group and a few other warships that spent months battling the Iran-backed Houthi rebels in and around the Red Sea fired $1.16 billion worth of munitions during active combat operations, a Navy spokesperson said. This previously unreported figure covers the total cost of the 770 munitions that the Dwight D. Eisenhower Carrier Strike Group launched from October 7 to mid-July and underscores the significant financial toll of America's ongoing counter-Houthi mission. US Navy ships have maintained a presence in and near the Red Sea to deter threats and protect shipping since the launch of near-daily attacks by the Iranian-backed Houthis in November 2023, the spokesperson said. But what has Yemen or the Houthis got to do with America? Nothing, but we the people still have to pay for this shit.

More evidence of financial skullduggery involving the migrants, seems that false flag operation is designed to launder money to me. Predictably New York is involved again, shekel central. New York City Comptroller Brad Lander audited the $432 million contract between DocGo and the Department of Housing Preservation and Development (HPD). In a scathing announcement on Tuesday, his office announced many problems with the department's oversight of the company, which houses asylum seekers. Aiming to help asylees who needed housing, HPD looped DocGo into the process in May 2023, despite its position as a medical service company. Yet 4 of the top 6 people in the DocGo company are Jewish, hence them being awarded the contract despite not fitting the criteria. And as of June 2024, they'd paid DocGo nearly $182 million of the $432 million value of the contract. Ultimately, Lander's audit argued that the agreement was poorly managed. Its allegations include unlicensed contractors, overpayments and subpar housing. Perhaps most galling of its findings, the audit accused DocGo of charging for and being paid nearly $1.7 million to rent empty hotel rooms. In one example, DocGo rented nearly five thousand vacant rooms at the Armoni Hotel in Orangetown for 61 nights. This after the town got a restraining order from the Rockland County Supreme Court blocking the hotel's use for asylee housing. Though the hotel charged $100 per night per room, DocGo got $170 per room from the city. Pocketing the difference meant DocGo made $343,140 in profit off of a $490,200 bill—totaling $833,340 for empty rooms. According to the comptroller, DocGo also got reimbursed $21,820 for other services at hotels that had no asylum seekers. A license to print money for the same anti-humanity group. Message to New Yorkers, you are paying for this extortion through increased taxes.

There is a flow to these events that few people understand.

1. One or more groups has a financial problem.
2. Create a solution so the one or more groups are in place when the event unfolds.
3. The event unfolds.
4. The one or more groups win untendered contracts.
5. Windfalls arrive when the solution to the problem unfolds and the recipients then reaps the rewards of the program or event. The Covid scam revealed the above in full view, also the 2007 financial crash led to a bank bail in.

Lieutenant General Igor Kirillov, the head of the Troops of Radiological, Chemical and Biological Defense of the Russian Armed Forces, revealing : The United States is continuing its efforts to develop bioagents capable of selectively targeting different ethnic groups. According to available information, the United States has begun to actively involve Moldova and Romania in its biomaterial logistics schemes, for the transfer of the biomaterials of Ukrainians out of the country. Russia's special military operation has forced the US and its allies to adjust their tactics and try to cover their tracks. Such tactics can conceal the final recipient and divert suspicions away from US government agencies and the US biological warfare program. Yet many in America think Russia is the problem? Delusional thinking, the problem is closer to home, but can you face it?

MEDICAL SECTION:

In the highly contradictory world of you must take your meds, mainly in terms of vaccines, yet when you do take your meds Stasi style jobsworth's decide you can't take your meds after all. It's always a good idea for passengers to keep medicine in their carry-on bag, but even that doesn't guarantee they'll get to their final destination with all their prescriptions. According to a January survey of 1,245 Americans from BuzzRx, one in 10 Americans have had their medicine confiscated while traveling, either by the Transportation Security Administration or by border officers abroad. Before traveling, it's imperative to research the destination, especially if traveling internationally, about what their medication requirements are, Ricardo Rodriguez, a member of BuzzRx's data team. Rodriguez explained that some U.S. medications are not approved in other countries, which could make traveling with them complicated. Discussing the issue with your provider will probably be the best thing to do. Medicine is almost equally likely to be confiscated on domestic trips, with 41% of respondents saying it has happened to them, as on international trips, with 44% of respondents saying they'd experienced it. For domestic trips, the TSA recommends keeping your prescriptions in their original, marked containers. TSA regulations allow travelers to bring more than 3.4 ounces, the usual limit for liquids, if their medicine comes in liquid form. Data from BuzzRx shows that one in nine travelers have had to cancel their trip after having medicine confiscated at the airport, and one in six have been able to replace their meds but had to pay full price for the prescription. More than 50% of the respondents to BuzzRx's survey said having their medicine increased their stress and anxiety around a trip, and 18% said it forced them to cancel some trip activities. Anxiety medication was the most common type to be confiscated, followed by sleep aids and over-the-counter remedies. Rodriguez said travelers should reach out to their doctor to see about getting confiscated medicine replaced, or consider seeking help from a consulate or embassy if the issue happens abroad. Like I said we live in a lunatic asylum.

EXPOSE:

This is a short piece highlighting problems with Jewish communities back in the 1700's. Yes it got labeled at a later date as anti-Semitic, which did not come into effect until the late 1880's, but one has to ask why? Why did so many countries and people dislike and mistrust the Jews so much? It cannot be an irrational hatred, there is and was a compounding reason for the rejection of all things Jewish related. The most obvious reason is their failure to integrate in a fair, respectful and peaceful manner. It was always about usurping, destroying and taking over whole people's and regions, as to why they were universally not accepted. According to Orthodox rabbi Joseph Telushkin, the most significant Enlightenment hostility against Judaism was found in Voltaire; 30 of the 118 articles in his Dictionnaire philosophique dealt with Jews or Judaism, describing them in consistently negative ways. Interesting they used the term Enlightenment hostility. The Enlightenment, also known as the Age of Reason, was a philosophical movement in Europe during the 17th and 18th centuries. It was also attempted in the middle ages and was crushed by a plague. During the Middle Ages, especially Thomas Aquinas, had employed reason as a tool of understanding. People began to question received authority, whether in science or religion. Rulers had long claimed their powers to be given by God. But Enlightenment thinkers questioned the idea, that God had given the monarchs their power. Enlightenment ideas were popular and spread quickly. The Roman Catholic Church and European monarchs tried to censor, or ban, many of the books and other works of Enlightenment thinkers. Something they accused the Germans of 200 years later, no it was not the Germans, it was these same rulers of anti-humanity. The monarchs were right to be alarmed. The Enlightenment led many people to think about their government and to consider ways in which it should be reformed. Just like what is unfolding now. The relationship between the people and the state began to be envisioned as a social contract, rather than one in which an authoritarian leader ruled his subjects without question. This view eventually led to the American and French revolutions, when monarchs lost their power. Only to be handed over to the Houses and nobility. For example, in Voltaire's A Philosophical Dictionary, he wrote of Jews: In short, we find in them only an ignorant and barbarous people, who have long united the most sordid avarice with the most detestable superstition and the most invincible hatred for every people by whom they are tolerated and enriched. Three hundred years later that same avarice, harvesting, non-caring and hatred still persists, the Jewish people need to discuss amongst themselves as to why? A harsh look in the mirror, because what Voltaire said is the reality, not an illusion. Telushkin states that Voltaire did not limit his attack to aspects of Judaism, that Christianity used as a foundation, repeatedly making it clear that he despised Jews. Judaism, that Christianity used as a foundation? That tells you right there that Christianity is a Jewish creation. In fact in overview, Christianity is Stockholm Syndrome, of following and worshipping your abusers. On the other hand, Peter Gay, a contemporary authority on the Enlightenment, also points to Voltaire's remarks for instance, that the Jews were more tolerant than the Christians in the Traité sur la tolérance and surmises that Voltaire struck at the Jews to strike at Christianity. Yes because Voltaire and others worked out that Christianity was a fake Jewish religious program. Whatever antisemitism Voltaire may have felt, Gay suggests, derived from negative personal experience. Arthur Hertzberg, a Conservative Rabbi, claims that Gay's second suggestion is also untenable, as Voltaire himself denied its validity when he remarked, that he had forgotten about much larger bankruptcies through Christians. However, Bertram Schwarzbach's far more detailed studies of Voltaire's dealings with Jewish people throughout his life concluded that he was anti-biblical, not antisemitic. His remarks on the Jews and their superstitions were essentially no different from his remarks on Christians. Because in overview, both follow the same insidious script, which has been proven to not be beneficial to either group. Voltaire said of the Jews that they have surpassed all nations in impertinent fables, in bad conduct and in barbarism. You deserve to be punished, for this is your destiny. He further said, they are, all of them, born with raging fanaticism in their hearts, just as the Bretons and the Germans are born with blond hair. I would not be in the least bit surprised if these people would not someday become deadly to the human race. What a warning that was and clearly went unheeded, just like the Santies.

Some authors link Voltaire's anti-Judaism to his polygenism. According to Joxe Azurmendi this anti-Judaism has a relative importance in Voltaire's philosophy of history. However, Voltaire's anti-Judaism influenced later authors like Ernest Renan. Voltaire did have a Jewish friend, Daniel de Fonseca, whom he esteemed highly, and proclaimed him as the only philosopher, perhaps, among the Jews of his time. Despite him highlighting the Jews as a problem, he, like myself was a supporter of Jewish people as well. Voltaire had also condemned the persecution of Jews on several occasions including in his work Henriade, and never advocated violence or attacks against them. According to the historian Will Durant, Voltaire had praised the simplicity, sobriety, regularity and industry of Jews, however subsequently, Voltaire became strongly anti-Semitic after some regrettable personal financial transactions and quarrels with Jewish financiers. In his Essai sur les moeurs Voltaire had denounced the ancient Hebrews using strong language; a Catholic priest had protested against this censure. The anti-Semitic passages in Voltaire's Dictionnaire philosophique were criticized by Isaac De Pinto in 1762. Subsequently, Voltaire agreed with the criticism of the anti-Semitic passages and stated that De Pinto's letter convinced him that there are highly intelligent and cultivated people among the Jews, and that he had been wrong to attribute to a whole nation the vices of some individuals. That is a key line in there, did you spot it? "He had been wrong to attribute to a whole nation the vices of some individuals” back then nations meant races, not countries. It could not have been a country as Israel did not exist. Did the people know that the Jews were a different race of beings back then? Could it explain why he said they would be a threat to the human race? The positive aspect that is now unfolding is the Enlightenment is now returning and that terrifies the ministries of lies. What this should prove to everyone is, you can never gain Enlightenment following a religion. It is not possible to soul develop either, something everyone should consider. Unless of course you wish to remain an astral based harvested battery, who tolerates abuse, fear and violence defending a mystical and indeed mythical god who offers nothing except death, wars, plagues, starvation and a whole plethora of anger management issues.

MYSTERY SECTION:

Today is September 12th and one day after the sacrifice day which is symbolized by the 9/11 event in New York 2001. But there are many other sacrifices that took place on that day, but why was that date symbolized? The sacrifice is the effect, but which or what is the cause? The cause is a payback to humanity dating back near 2000 years. You see revenge is often the case in their world, as they only perceive the harm against them, but rarely the damage they cause to recompense the original events. In 70AD Herod’s child sacrifice temple was destroyed on September 11th. In 587AD Solomon’s child and adult sacrificing temple was destroyed on September 11th also. So, two temples were destroyed on September 11th and then two towers was destroyed on September 11th, who were deemed as Joachim and Boaz. September 11th is a Jewish sacrifice day to make people pay for something that was done 1500 and 2000 years ago. Negating the fact that those two temples were only for complete satanic purposes. At which point does the world see through their façade and fight back against their modus operandi to bring harm against the people of this planet.

A small addition to the Deep State pieces we have done over the last two shows. Life it seems is yet again but a mere illusion. Many years ago humanity were offered a free ride in a sleeping pod to forget all their traumas, ills and maladies, that lasted for 10K years. Isn’t that another version of the hospice, another comatose state where you can idle by for eternity? The hospice is filled with comatose patients unaware they are dead or living. Lying there in suspended animation awaiting to be attended to by a nurse. A nurse is woman who nourishes or suckles an infant by the breast or who tends for the children. Does that become symbolic? Is that saying that everyone is incapable of getting off the mothers breast and needs to be nourished and fed by others? The mothers breast is all too convenient is it not? Don’t have to pay for it, grow it or produce it, just there for your convenience. Time to get off the tit of life and grow is it not and change the narrative they have for us, as useless eaters. Is that why so many act like children? As they wish to be nursed in the hospice, where everything to sustain their life is provided for them. Why is it we wish to stay as children? Because we are lazy and don’t wish to do anything for ourselves, unless that involves shekels, material items or status. It is funny we will strive for external wants and desires, yet do little to nothing to have internal wealth, internal status and internal wants and desires. Reminder from earlier, one must escape the greatest prison ever developed, your own mind. But isn’t the prison the same as the mother’s womb and hospice? Where you sit there and wait to be fed and nourished? In other words you don’t have to do anything to get your shelter, water, food and sleep. The greatest trick is to convince yourself you are not imprisoned, because you are not behind bars. Yet many do imprison themselves and indeed abuse themselves by standing in front of bars and again being served, whilst allowing the possibility of being hosted by another being. Why do people drink to excess? To escape life. Why do so many wish to escape life, difficulties and inconveniences? The greater question is, why would you wish to escape life and experiences? How can you possibly develop yourselves escaping life and experiences? The answer is you can't.

People may say but my life is difficult, that may well be the case. But have you looked at the reasons why? Did you look in the mirror or did you point fingers away? Then there is your answer as to why. Life, experiences, emotions, trials and tribulations are decided by you. Why would you make your life so damn difficult? Is this why people carry alters? To escape being themselves? Why were you born if you wish to carry an alter? which is a false version of the real you. Why is the real you not good enough? The crown of creation considers themselves not good enough – oh my! In other words an alter is a smith, just a copy of a copy. Why would we do that to ourselves? Is it beneficial in any way? If no and it should be a no, then why do it? Why is everything about convenience, yet too few use that convenience to save “time” and invest within themselves. People will endlessly invest in their external image, but rarely invest of their internal image. Another word related to convenience is deposit. Deposit (n.) 1620s, state of being placed in safe-keeping, from Latin depositum. From 1660s as that which is laid or thrown down. In a Geological sense is from 1781. In a financial sense money lodged in a bank for safety or convenience is from 1737. Middle English had deposit thing entrusted for safe keeping (late 14c.). So we are now handing our money over for convenience and dissolving our responsibility again. Since when has the system of control kept us or our personal items safe? The answer is-never. Never, yet we fall for the same illusion over and over again, of it is for your safety, security and peace of mind. No they are taking a piece of your mind. In fact in reality, they taken over your whole mind, heart and vessel and operating you like an automaton. Consequence (n.) late 14c., logical inference, conclusion. But who decides the conclusion? Us, by our own actions and ultimately decide or accept our fate. The main problem with that is. Where is our thinking input prior to our actions and our fate? Where is our ability to alter the pattern of life and chart a new course? whereby we decide the conclusions based upon future thinking, rather than accepting what life throws at us. Consequences of actions applies, but do we understand the flow of those words? In the act of process, the result of the act or process ultimately becomes the sequence of the con and the penalties of our action then unfolds. A couple of ponderings for American's. Are Americans united of lying in states? Are those states “deep” enough? What is your state? If you answered New Mexico, Colorado, Utah, Texas or any other state, you have missed the whole meaning of this piece. Yet again you have been hypnotized with external labels whilst being held within a deep state. Is the New York state of mind song a mind memery? Is that song indicative of that state? What is a New York state of mind? Is it saying New Yorkers operating within the mind hive? Is a New York state of mind a good thing to have given the total corruption and debauchery that goes on there? New York of course is dominated by the anti-humanity group, their role on this planet is to harvest us and the best way to do that is, put you in a deep state. I guess it is time to really think different.

This coming Sunday we will have an extra show for you, it is the 3rd and final part of Joachim Hapogian's book detailing the ritualistic abuse children around the world suffering at the hands of the global elites. Show will start at 12.30pm MT to allow European members to tune in live instead of the archive section.

Finally an update from the Blueprint team. The team managed to secure an interview with a lead person which has led to other big contacts being made. I have had one enlightening call with the new contact and more will follow. On top of that I will be going on a show soon and details will be made available when safe to do so. More is expected from that up and coming interview, with a potential of going on other shows following it. Other engagements with higher profile people are being made and we have several irons in the fire on that level. New contacts are being garnered and made and things from this side of the team have gone very well in the first month, as you will soon see. The previous high profile contact is still ongoing and I am hearing there may well be more developments with that soon.
