

THI-SHOW TRANSCRIPT 2024-12-26

As we complete our first full calendar year of Blueprint shows, tonight reveals the progress of each group throughout the year. There was 23 Blueprint update show reports this year packed with details of all what the Blueprint teams worked upon. The shows are not necessarily for our members, but people outside the group more so. This showcases that our group is different, we are doers not just talkers. We are now getting some traction with the Blueprint, that has been reflected with the amount of times the solutions have been referenced this past year. The social media platforms towards the end of the year also started to gain much traction as well. As more and more people realize there is A: a problem B: the authorities are not going to fix it and C: there is no savior coming to save us, then they will seek out our group because we actually have the solution.

Book Team:

The Book Team's translators balance busy lives with reading through manuscripts to translate the books and booklets produced by other members of the Book and Blueprint Teams. Since our last report, the Spanish editor sent the final segment of the Spanish translation of the Blueprint to the team leader, who has passed it to our Spanish proofreader to go over with a fine-tooth comb, looking for typos, misspellings and punctuation errors before it goes to the formatter.

Currently, the Hebrew version of the Sacred Divine Masculine and Sacred Divine Feminine booklet is in progress.

The Bulgarian translator is finalizing From His Story to Our Story Volume 3, a painstaking process that includes carefully re-reading to ensure that the wording is correct, a task of perfection our member takes seriously. And our ambitious Romanian translator has nearly finished From His Story to Our Story Volume 4. The German version of From His Story to Our Story Volume 2 required a formatting restart to compensate for a glitch that may have resulted from a recent operating system update, an issue that, unfortunately, cannot be foreseen or prevented. But the digital, PDF, and print formats were at last successfully created and the print version sent back to the translator for an extra scrutiny of hyphenation. That double-check revealed a few punctuation oversights and a typo that needed correction. The corrected digital version was then re-saved in ebook form and checked to be sure the software translated the document properly to both ePub and Kindle. The PDF version was amalgamated with the pre-made front-cover image. With the print version now complete and the page count established, the formatter was able to download a paperback cover template in the appropriate size. To that, in image manipulation software, she added the front cover, the base image for the back cover, and the text for the back and the spine. Finalizing it had to wait, though, because it still needed a barcode. And the barcode needed an ISBN, which one of our members kindly supplied from the lot bought in the summer, and which was subsequently added to the print format, so the print version PDF was created. In turn, that allowed the formatter, who is also responsible for publishing, to use the ISBN data in order to obtain a barcode and insert it into the cover image before exporting the cover in PDF form. With channel and text files complete, the member finished the publishing procedure by uploading the files, filling in the necessary forms, pasting in the copied German description of the book, typing in the German keywords, choosing the sales channel, and running through a final review before clicking that button to publish. One more task on the publishing website was to copy the URL to the sales page and paste that in our records, along with other information specific to the publication. But the day was not over. The digital package, the PDF and ebooks, the front cover image, and the short and long descriptions in German had to be uploaded for the Web Team to access, and the sales-page URL sent to the Web Team, as well.

Last, but not least, a meme announcing the German translation of From His Story to Our Story Volume 2 was created for the Media Team. The New Blueprint for Humanity Canada Version went through the same process. It's been an eventful few weeks, and the Book Team's work often seems to exemplify the term "hurry up and wait," or rather "wait and hurry," with the waiting portion stretching for weeks or, in some cases, months before successful publication of a book. As, behind the scenes, translators busily pore over English versions and use their knowledge, their understanding of the material, and their creativity to come up with a version, in their own language, that expresses the intention of the English, rather than the exact words. It is a painstaking process, often prompting the translator to discuss the matter with a friend or family member, or with Book Team colleagues, to get feedback and possibly alternative ideas. Once the first draft is done, our translators go over their work, usually several times, to find typos, correct punctuation and spelling, and most of all to assure that the text flows and conveys the intended meaning. Finally, it is sent on for the next stage, namely formatting.

English books go through a similar process, starting with review and editing of the transcript or draft. At least two editors work collaboratively to correct wording, clarify meaning, and find answers to questions or additional information that may be inserted as footnotes. Photos or diagrams may also be added before final review by Thomas Williams. For some books, an index is created, a process that literally requires going through the text to pick out significant names and terms, arranging them in alphabetical order, and then copying them to an index table for later insertion into the print-book format. Once approved, the book now goes to the formatter. Thanks to the absurd tendency of businesses worldwide to produce widely varied versions of similar products, a practice that is addressed in The New Blueprint for Humanity, our members do not all have access to the same type of word processing software; as a consequence, the first job of the formatter is to create a document in her own software so that it can be manipulated with reliable results. Not one, but three separate formats are created, each with different specifications for the use to which they will be put. If the book is a translation, the formatted material may require another check to assure that any hyphenation of the print version is done correctly. As often as not, such reviews reveal small errors of language or typos that need correction. At this point, an ISBN is acquired for the print book and the number is typed into that document. If there is an index, it is added to the print book. Then, when all versions are correct and the final size of the print book is known, the cover can be designed in the appropriate dimensions that include extra space for the spine and for bleed and trim of the paperback. The cover artist fits the images, logo, titles, and back-cover text onto a template, ensuring that all parts are in the correct locations and set within the safety margins. The front cover image is also added to each of the digital formats, and those are checked. With luck, they need no modifications, but if they do, they are adjusted until they come out properly. At last, we are ready to publish. Step one, the digital package goes to the Web Team so they can position it on one or more websites, depending on the type of book. Step two, the print version is uploaded to the website of the publishing and distribution company, a process that can take anywhere from an hour to the better part of a day as details are typed in, files reviewed and possibly amended and uploaded again, and all the i's dotted and t's crossed. After that, the Web Team is apprised of the URL of the book's sales page so that they can link it to our website, and the book's information is included in our records. Ta da!

This process resulted in the 2024 publication of Canadian version of The New Blueprint for Humanity, the Romanian translations of From His Story to Our Story Volumes 1 to 3, the Bulgarian and German translations of Volume 2, and Volume 4 in English. And we expect to keep up that momentum in 2025 with From His Story to Our Story Volume 5 in English, the Romanian Volume 4, Bulgarian Volume 3, Dutch Volume 2, and the Spanish translation of the Blueprint.

Fantastic stuff and shows the volume of work required to go from show transcripts to being available for sale. Big thanks to you all for your efforts.

Research Team:

We thank everyone who has submitted the names of potential influencers to us. Moreover, we thank those involved in sending PDFs to influencers using e-mails and contact forms on websites. This has been a team effort. This past year we expanded our dataset to 1007 names. This year we sent 492 PDFs, totaling 538 since the beginning of the contacting process last year. In addition, we contacted every legislator, both Federal and Provincial, in Canada. These 1,200 individuals are in a separate dataset. Another 18 influencers received the book by mail this year, adding to a total of 56 since we started. The remaining approximately 400 were not contacted because we could not find e-mail addresses, contact forms from websites, nor addresses. Some we failed to contact because the e-mail addresses were not valid or the contact forms, because of failure to accept from their website or they required return mailing addresses. The hardest people to contact are the US Congress. Their contact forms are specifically designed for constituents. We accepted whoever was given to us and did not try to prioritize anyone over another. We attempted to respect everyone and provided them with an opportunity to engage with the New Blueprint regardless of their inclinations. As the year progressed the number of contactable influencers declined. Our research efforts turned to assisting the Blueprint Action teams. This has been a productive year and again we thank everyone for their involvement. Another fantastic effort, as like the Book team there is an awful lot of grunt work largely unseen by the members. Thanks goes to you all for your sterling efforts.

Activist Team:

A huge thank you to everyone who joined the Activism Group throughout the year. Without each one of you we would not have had the same reach and success as we did. Each of you has been instrumental in getting the Blueprint and solutions out to a vast amount of individuals, either through conversation, direct email, letters, social media outlets, attending live shows, joining other grassroots organization groups to garner collaboration, or the concerted effort in attaining interviews. The list of creative activism goes on. Your heartfelt dedication and efforts to help create change in this world has not gone unnoticed. Some inner perspective from the team is important to add here. One made mention of the discovery of an elevated space within herself by truly living as a service to others and becoming intimately acquainted with the true meaning of, “think and act different,” “more caring and sharing,” as well as the motto, “cooperative and not competitive.” These are no longer words on paper, or abstract ideas to ponder. These are principles upon which to live by. Another stated her enjoyment of the personal interactions she is having while sharing the Blueprint wide and far. She encourages everyone here to join us in spreading the important message. It is time to be courageous and volunteer to help. Last but not least, one activist is making some great strides using his own personal touch. He adds that he is glad to be able to do what he does best, which is the ability to talk to people on a down to earth level and using a simple line of communication. He feels within many of his interactions that people are wanting change but have a lot going on. He takes his time with his approach and communication. In keeping it simple and not over complicating things, he allows his heart to lead and sets his sails. We will march forward and continue to be the ripple in a vast pond, and the great seeds of true change. It is with much appreciation and gratitude to Kayoko for her tremendous support in keeping us all organized and on task and to both the Media Team and Research Group. Without the willingness of everyone to pull efforts together and help one another succeed, we would not have reached the achievements of today. 2024 is a year to reflect on, give thanks, and make improvements where needed. With the new year around the corner and a restructuring of the team underway, it is very important we support Thomas in change, remain flexible and move forward in Unity. It is a time for growth and expansion in many areas, and a time for Higher Universal Humans to step into their greater potential. Thomas, our team would like to thank you personally for guiding the way and believing in us.

As for many here, it took that first leap of faith into unfamiliar waters. There have been times when each of us may have felt like the duck who appears to be gliding along peacefully and effortless on top of the water, while its feet are paddling furiously below. All along in the background soft whispering echoes of, "I SEE YOU!!!"

Thank you for your tireless efforts, your steadfast resolve, and most of all your unwavering willingness to teach and bring us along for this most amazing ride of a lifetime. A soul journey filled with self-discovery, truth, patience, some hard knocks along with a few kicks in the pants, but most of all, a reach of a loving hand pulling us up and onto the shore. A place we have so longed for after having been lost at sea. We are eternally grateful and in turn are here to help pay it forward and bring in the long-awaited New Blueprint for Humanity. Unity is the pathway to redemption. Thanks to you all for your effort and the time afforded to this project.

Canadian Blueprint Team:

The original version of The New Blueprint for Humanity, based on the American system, had always been meant as a starting point for worldwide change. For that reason, and because the history and politics is significantly different above the 49th parallel, it followed naturally that Canada should make its own version. So, several members took up the challenge of adapting the Blueprint for the Great White North.

Those members had already become aware of the fraud perpetrated by the governments across the country, all of them corporations pretending to be councils elected by the people and for the purpose of administering a country as vast as Canada. Further digging provided proof of the fake constitution and fake laws, and the illusion of Canadians as subjects of the British royals. So, the task was not to amend a legitimate but broken system, but to create a whole new one to replace the fraud. Research provided the legal basis for the rightful elimination of the false governments, that have lied to the public and wrongfully imposed their will and their tax thefts, as well as embroiling Canadians in foreign wars that cost the lives of our best and brightest young men on the pretext of patriotism. Members met frequently, though some could not attend meetings because of personal or technical restrictions, and we also used online documents to share information, insights, and ideas as we examined the original Blueprint, adjusting and readjusting the text to fit Canadian circumstances. Our discoveries now open the opportunity to create independent states from the zones known as provinces, as had been intended nearly a century before. Those new states then have the option to create a confederation of equal states to enable formation of such systems as common defence and seamless transport, while retaining autonomy in local matters and equality in trade. The team laid this out in the Canadian Overhaul Solution and continued on to adapt several of the American solutions to include ideas in the same vein but with additions to enhance the original content. However, large sections of the original Blueprint needed no change, as the solutions offered can be used anywhere. After many discussions, additions, subtractions, amendments, and corrections, the Canadian Blueprint was sent for final approval. And on 13 November 2024, The New Blueprint for Humanity Version Canada was published in paperback form, with the PDF form sent to the Web Team for publication on the Blueprint website. The seed is planted. Let it grow, let it grow, let it grow. Again, a fantastic effort by the Canadian members and again it should be noted the amount of grunt work involved to get it to publication.

European Blueprint Team:

At the beginning of this year, we set up a team to adapt the Blueprint to the situation in Europe. The team consists of 18 members, 6 of whom have worked on editing the solutions in biweekly meetings, 9 members have played a role somewhere in the process, with one of them always in the background, giving support and appreciation for the work being done. Recently we welcomed 3 new members. The countries that are represented in the team are: 6 living in Holland, 3 in England, 3 in Germany, 1 in Cyprus, 1 in Bulgaria, 1 in France, 1 in Finland, 1 in the US and 1 in Canada. All input and ideas are welcomed, valued and respected, so it is in essence a co-creation by all the members who wish to contribute to it. What is being asked of us is critical thinking and coming up with solutions, all of that is being creative and the more creative we are, the higher the vibration rises. We are the Guardians and, in this way, can take our responsibility for that. Initially, to take on that task was a big step, it required taking a big leap of faith, while trusting that the right people and information needed, would present themselves to do the job. It did, and we all learned a lot along the way.

The European Blueprint document is set up in a way, with the changes highlighted in different colors, so that the needed adaptations for the individual countries and the adaptation of the already existing translations are easily done. Online documents were created, for all to make their contributions. One of which is a list of organizations operating in Europe, like NATO, SHAPE: The Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe, the military headquarters of the NATO, SEC: The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and others, with a description about what they are involved in. The organizations are included in the blueprint where appropriate. Another online document is a list of influencers, individuals and groups who operate in line with TNBFH in Europe, as possible candidates for receiving the European BP.

We started with the Introduction and added a list of the countries Europe consists of. We found out more about Europe with its 50 countries, the European Union with its 27 member states and how it is organized. It was actually very interesting and at the same time mind boggling. Upon research we found that a very complicated system has been created with an enormous number of organizations and sub-organizations, not many people have a clue about. We also found out that not even members of the Dutch government know, how the European Union is being organized! Europe tends to be dominated by a small number of countries, the lesser-known countries are treated as puppet states. They are deemed not important, but they are just as important. Going forward we need to make an appeal to the other, lesser-known countries, for their input in this new way of operating the system. Russia, being partly a European country, is included in the solutions. We discussed the European Government and the European Overhaul Solutions and learned that since 1933 all countries have been registered as corporations in the State of Delaware, with their citizens used as securities, to be traded on the markets. The EU model, a vision of a common market and union of prosperity, that promised so much hope for Europeans, has failed and in its present form it cannot be revived. The current EU Constitutional model needs to be abolished. Sovereign governments can then be restored in each EU country.

We spoke about a reformed European Union, with the possibility for each country, including Russia, to decide whether or not to be a part of. The Ucadia Euro Union Constitution is presented as a possible model. A reformed Union could lead to a defense pact to ensure peace and harmonious relations within the Union. In the European Military and Defense Industry solution we discussed NATO, which has been continually overstepping the red lines set out by Russia, a country with very advanced military technology capabilities to defend themselves. This has created dire implications for Europe and the world, pointing to deepening escalation. It has deviated far from its intended purpose, to create a defensive alliance to secure peace and prevent future wars in Europe. The US dominance of the alliance is also problematic for NATO is effectively a vassal military of the USA. The Solution for this is that NATO needs to be abolished and replaced with a defense alliance under European leadership, to include Russia, that protects the European countries. We've edited some more of the solutions, not all, as most solutions can be applied everywhere. We are now working on the last one to be edited: the Soldier Return Solution. We hope to have this completed before the end of this year; it is 'the final countdown'.

Working with or for the Blueprint can be a great learning experience, it is really a mirror. It is all about where we are in our development, inside, living from the heart is what it is all about. It has shown us exactly where this world has fallen short, in creating a world that is good for all life on this planet and for the planet itself. In the last Common Sense zoom with Thomas we were reminded of the story told by Cassandra, one of the former 'parents' of humanity. She stated in a letter to a former THI member, that people of this planet are like greedy little piglets, gobbling up the entertainment presented to them and failing to take responsibility for themselves, hence the need for the 'parents', who were present on the planet at that time. Because of this lack of taking our own responsibility, we are now facing a reality, created by the 1%, where everything is being created in their interest, of wealth and power and nothing for the benefit of we the people.

THI is the only organization that has exposed the fact that we, the 99%, are responsible for the mess we are in. How else can it be possible for the 1% to shape this world in their image? We've allowed this to happen for thousands of years, and now we're facing the consequences. It has caused both light and dark to be out of balance. This is what we are dealing with. The dark is actually teaching us a lesson, are we willing to learn from it and change ourselves, our actions and directions to be the creator we are meant to be? In order for us to create change, we need to correct that behavior, and the Blueprint is the means to that. It is a model, a design, a basis for us to create the world in our image together. We need to create this and not wait for some savior who will do that for us and save us, because there is none. It is required for us to take action, to speak up, to take initiatives to change what is happening, to develop ourselves and use our abilities for the greater good, to own our responsibilities and act accordingly. We need to be in service to all instead of service to self only.

The experience of working on and for the Blueprint has always been challenging and rewarding, having to tackle and deal with many obstacles on the way, but always feeling uplifted by overcoming those and being in connection with the frequency of the BP itself and the connection with others, with the intention to operate from the heart and in Unity. The realization that we have a say in everything that is going on and can express that simply by using our common sense is freeing and empowering, it is the sense of all being equally important, in action. We wish for this initiative to grow with a possibility to cooperate with more fellow Humans of all European countries, who have a wish in their hearts to create a better world for us all. For anyone wishing to contribute, please reach out to us. We will be happy to welcome you. Great effort and things seem to be flowing nicely now with the European BP version, keep it flowing.

Merchandise Team:

The Blueprint Merchandise group's first venture into Blueprint logo garments production and sales began June 23rd, 2024. That was the date we submitted the formal proposal to Thomas to get approval to use the copyright logo and permission to sell items to members. We were overjoyed to receive authorization on July 11th, 2024, and immediately ordered the first three plain hoodies to be printed for advertising samples. As of the third month, on October 11th, we successfully sold 35 items: 18 hoodies, 13 regular t-shirts, 1 V-neck t-shirt, 2 tank tops and 1 mug. There are still 4 unsold printed hoodies in stock.

Year end report is $1,239.50 less cost of goods sold was $766.41= $433.09 as a 36% profit. We had $364.28 in the PayPal account, $150.00 in petty cash for ordering, printing, shipping garments and $150 in unsold hoodies. Our total assets were $714.28. Our liabilities were start-up loans of $407.39. Assets less liabilities equal equity of $306.89 with $150 being the value of 4 unsold hoodies and $106.89 available with the loans paid off. Paying them off was approved in the Oct. 17th Action Group meeting. It was also approved to keep the $56.89 in the PayPal account and $50 in petty cash for operating capital. Sue Calannio purchased a heat press in November for $204.00 at which point Thomas and Sue agreed to roll back the profits into the project. She is working out the particulars on printing and looking forward to getting fresh merchandise to ship out to members. We will keep you informed and greatly appreciate the members who bought the items contributing to the success of the new fundraising campaign.

This has been a great adventure in learning for the team. Great effort again, THI has never been a selling group, whether that was advertising the group, advertising for revenue or sales merchandise. Plus I never had the time or support in the past to launch more ventures. I am glad this is underway and it becomes a free, walking advertisement and subtle way of getting the message out. Thanks to all involved.

Garden Team:

The garden season has brought many challenges in 2024 as Midgard is awakening with new light transitions affecting the plants, everything is being upgraded. Since all of our members live in different parts of the World, urban or rural areas with different size gardens or planting in pots and climate to work with, we began with the focus in healing the soil along with ourselves. As we are all being upgraded simultaneously, we are continuing to explore and experiment with a variety of different farming methods. The more we emulate what Nature does, the more successful we will become. We have discussed the importance of family and community gardening, as an activity to bring about unity and a way of connecting with each other and our planet.

One member has made powerful additions to the community building concept, which revolves around biodiversity of microbial life with the soil being an important aspect of keeping plants healthy. Having a variety of plants coming from a garden space can potentially meet a variety of health and/or nutritional needs for members of the community. The alternative to this idea, would be to have multiple gardens collaborating with one another in various areas. Each would specialize in specific groups of plants to maximize output, minimize and stream-line labor, and make it easier to dial in on ideal soil composition for each group of plants. Lastly, having a community kitchen as an additional outlet for the yields of the garden(s). This will promote togetherness and participation among folks that might have physical limitations or may not have a particular interest in gardening. Not everyone likes to garden or the idea of participating in gardening efforts, but most people like to eat. Collaborating in the kitchen and bringing forth tasty creations from the efforts of the participants, will bring potential cohesiveness within the community.

Another member decided to try his hand at growing micro-tomatoes in pots due to his harsh climate. He started 3 varieties indoors in late May. They were potted up, once they were about 2 inches tall. The plants grew well but were slow to grow. He said they took about 3 weeks longer than expected to mature. They also grew taller than was predicted due to a lack of sun light. They did produce a huge quantity of tomatoes. So much so, that they fell over.

To overcome the over abundance of tomatoes, the lack of sun and random squirrel attacks, the pots were placed on a patio table. After a 50% successful ripening on the vine the rest were brought indoors to ripen a bit more, but were of low quality. After a bout of blight, one plant was brought indoors trimmed and nurtured. This plant is flourishing under grow lights and beginning to flower. All in all, the member feels it was a good experiment and will try again next year applying lessons learned this time around. One member has been working with Pure Korean Natural Farming. With the methods learned in his own garden he has proven that it works beyond his expectations. He has learned that less can be more. It has become a spiritual journey back to abundance. He has experimented with diluted sea water, that is diluted to the same salinity as human blood, which is nontoxic to life and brings nearly all of the minerals that have been depleted back to the land. Another test was lactic acid bacteria made from fermented milk. He found that it worked as well in his own body as it did in the Garden, with assisting his gut biome to help heal digestive issues and allergies. We have expanded as a group beyond gardening with focusing on personal and collective growth. We became aware of The Ringing Cedars of Russia: Anastasia spoke of the gardeners of the World as her beloved dashnik's. The word dashnik is a Russian word for gardener that is not easily translated: as it is so much more than one who plants seeds. We have embraced our role as dashnik's/Guardians. We have also embraced the Santies and are reading one Santie a week with an open discussion for the second half of the call. Since this expansion we have embraced the influx of many new members to share ideas and flow with. In true THI fashion we have all embraced each other and become family. A great effort by the gardening team and special thanks must go to those who worked on creating the Organicliving website, that was created and delivered during this year.

Indexing and Categories Team:

Many of the regular THI members may not have heard of our group before. We have been silently carrying out our work behind the scenes. The team worked hard last year to clear the backlog of past shows to upload topics to the THI-show.com site. We had quite an ambitious target date, and with it successfully completed, we had an easy start for this year. Indexing tasks include reading weekly THI show transcripts, pinpoint key topics, up to 13 items each show, then describe each in short sentence. This allows anyone who visits the THI show website to view these in the section called Topics. We have been steadily keeping on top of weekly shows, and it is exciting to revisit and read the transcripts. It requires focus to sum up show contents, some sections spread over a few pages divulging complex information, and editorial skills would be handy to do the job, but none of us have experience in this field. Once we started, we noticed we are getting good at it and thoroughly enjoyed the challenge!

To have Topics uploaded on the website, we work hand in hand with the Web team. There are several manual steps required to do this. We are largely relying on them to manage the technical side. We work as a team, passing the baton between us until we reach the final step. We are very grateful for their cooperation and professionalism, and to complete their tasks in a timely manner. It certainly makes our life easier! Anyone can see transcripts that are three months old without paying a subscription fee, and this applies to Topics as well. We are doing our best to display up to date Topics, and I am sure you'll agree that this is a great resource to recap and visit past show contents. Topics, along with transcripts and audio player are found under THI Encyclopedia on the THI-Show.com home page. Whilst we were handling the workload smoothly and at a good pace, we started a new project that Thomas has been quietly brewing for a while. The grand scheme venture is to hold one place for all historical show materials separated by categories.

We gathered all the Topics from 2018 onwards, highlighted keywords manually and placed them aside. From there, like throwing jigsaw puzzles onto the floor, we grouped words by similar criteria. This groundwork took a few months by reviewing the draft status several times and finally we boiled them down to 52 categories. We then had a meeting with Thomas to explain our proposal and received his green light. Have you ever wanted to read a document containing everything he wrote on soul development, inner work, or perhaps abilities? Then that is exactly what we are working on, to create a platform to showcase and search through his extraordinary library of work. For anyone new to THI, the vast number of transcripts may look like entering a maze. Our aim is to offer simple 'one click' titles to grab particular information you are after. This will save you time, as searching materials by a key word on the website may be overwhelming. To name a few we are listing spiritual health, love & heart, numerology, deep state, education, alien races, advanced technology and so on. By looking at the transcripts from August 2018 to December 2024, there are a mammoth 312 shows and approximately 5,300 pages of documents waiting to be examined. It is an extremely challenging process, and it takes time to read through carefully to select the correct category to represent a paragraph. Currently, we are focusing on the summer of 2019 shows. That special "P word" that Thomas often says, patience springs to my mind.

It is our mantra to stay calm while we work, accepting the fact that a certain job takes time and can not be rushed. While we wish all is done and dusted in a short period of time, it certainly reminds us that it is of uttermost importance we enjoy what we do! We often come across striking contents from 2018, 2019 shows, thinking Thomas was talking about this, that many years ago? It is refreshing to revisit past shows, and we can absorb information using fresh eyes to take us to the next level which throws us into deep contemplation. After all, what a privileged task we are doing!

There are so many positive aspects of being in this team. We are learning, that is the key. And our reward! A great effort by those involved again highlighting the grunt work done largely behind the scenes. Every section of it is important, not just the final production like the shows or the websites. It is important that everyone understands it is a process, the process must start off on the right path, which if done correctly then leads to a flow and the work becomes easier.

Web Team:

Let us start with a quick reminder and some highlights about progress made in 2023; the new web team came together and working alongside a few other members, we created the website for the New Blueprint for Humanity and the organic living website. In 2024 the web work continued in a it's a marathon, not a sprint approach; a number of important milestones and successes were achieved as we will shortly find out. There was even a period of time out, because life is not always smooth sailing and that's ok. However, with solid technical foundations in place, building on the work from the previous web team, with the necessary technical expertise and just about enough manpower for the work required, the show carried on, literally and figuratively speaking, because we know that the show must go on. The team's achievements are once again in great part thanks to our experienced web designer, who continues to deliver and to impress with the quality and creativity of the websites created and work carried out; and so we thank Aris very much for his continued dedication and work.

Other people and teams have also contributed to these successes because it is all a group and collective effort, so we also thank all the others who helped throughout the year for their contributions. There were some bumps in the road along the way, of a personal, group or technical nature, however they are all part of the journey of discovery, self discovery and also group discovery. These bumps were tests of who we are and of our commitment; they highlight the reasons we are here and the work we all do. Because let's remember the work we do is primarily not of a technical nature, though there are those aspects too. Our main work is internal, and we know that there are no shortcuts; our interactions within the group and with the outside world is the path of learning and growth. The way we show we can be and are the change, the better way of being and the healing, which is required, especially of ourselves as individuals, of the divine masculine and divine feminine and of humanity overall as the wider scope. Some days we achieved our aims effortlessly and flowing in and with joy; other days were more challenging and on some other days we fell short of our standards and expectations, as well as those others have for us. However, we must keep going, onwards and upwards as they say.

Let us dive into the achievements of the year. However, it is often very easy to talk about improvements, to think and come up with plans about systems or processes which can take a group forward, yet achieving all that and implementing such grand designs is a completely different thing, especially in the context of a group of volunteers working in their spare time. Yet despite all of this, we did it. We launched the BE forum on 29th February and once again, we all need to thank Aris for making this happen, almost single handedly. The BE forum is based on a professional paid platform for which a perpetual license was donated to the TPC, and once this was in, meaning implemented on the THI IT infrastructure, the work to customize and configure it began. A number of our members helped with initial testing of the platform, and they also provided very useful feedback and questions based on their user experience, and as a result necessary tweaks were made. There were some issues too, like the lack of an app for people to use on their smart devices to access the BE forum in a similar way to accessing MeWe and other social media platforms. The speed of the forum was also an issue due to the so far small amounts of money we have put into the associated web hosting and also, from a technical perspective, because the BE forum is not your ordinary, static website which displays some text and images and that's it. The BE forum is a lot more; it is a full-on forum platform with user management, groups, chat features (both 1 to 1 so personal chat and also group chat), news feed, Zoom integration, forum posts, document storage and document management, events calendar, and all the other features that our members have already tried to a degree or other. All this rich social media experience requires lots of interactions between the web server and the BE forum's database, hence the reported slowness, though some measures were taken in the last couple of months to improve this a little. We have come to realize from a technical perspective, that one's own laptop or smart device hardware specification can play a part in how quick (or not) the BE forum currently is.

This is the current state of play now; further improvements can be made and will be made as needed. However, if we can take anything away from this group achievement, then it has to be that the BE forum exceeded our expectations, my own included, in terms of what a group of volunteers can deliver. What other great achievements can we deliver as a group working together and thus exceeding our own expectations? It is all down to us, what we do and how we do it. The BE forum internet address could not be more telling; it is be.thenewblueprintforhumanity.org. Todd has also helped send many emails for the Blueprint Research team and also monitored a few of the mailboxes we have, so we thank Todd for his help and contribution.

Not even a week after the BE forum was launched, we had another important group launch. The youTHInk website was soft launched after a lot of prior work done by the Youth team under Roger's coordination and with the technical input and the website created by Aris. It is another striking website with a fresh look and feel, with cool features, just as the youth of today have come to expect. We'd like to put the spotlight on the Solutions section of the youTHInk website because it can be considered a sister website to the Blueprint website, also has design elements and functionality seen on the THI Encyclopaedia. The youTHInk website is in the process of being migrated to the THI infrastructure to take its rightful place amongst the Blueprint collection of websites; it will be accessible at youthinkdifferent.thenewblueprintforhumanity.org in the near future. Watch this space for further developments.

The next live launch was in early October for the Rita universal and natural law website. Roger and Aris have worked closely together to digitize a lot of Ucadia material like the Intro to Law Series, Santies and Vedas material, as well as assorted articles on religion and history. All this material is presented at law.thenewblueprintforhumanity.org on a website that is engaging and easy to use, and of course the material itself is thought provoking to say the least. As a quick Blueprint website update, we would like to announce the removal of the auto translation tool, which was better than nothing, but not as good as translations by native speakers, and the introduction of currently 5 languages for each of the Blueprint solutions. At the top of each solution one can choose between English, Dutch, French, German and Polish, plus 4 other languages are in the works as our volunteers' time allows. These translations match the Blueprint PDF translations available on our website. We thank all those who made this possible.

In closing, I think it's fair to conclude the above are impressive results for the web team and the group overall; many have contributed to make the above possible, not one single person or team could have delivered all the above on their own. Even writing this comprehensive update took a fair chunk of time, so one can only imagine the number of hours all of our members put in combined to make the above happen. We have very good examples of what we all can achieve working together and whilst we acknowledge that not everything was perfect and there were bumps in the road as we said. Nevertheless, a lot did go right, a lot was achieved and for that we can be proud, in a humble kind of way. number of new initiatives are in progress or being discussed currently; so, watch this space, but perhaps even better than that, join us! With everyone working together even better than we did this year and with more people joining in and contributing their skills and talents, in 2025 we can do even better! As Thomas says, it's all about what we create and what we manifest! Another fantastic effort from Ovi, Aris, Dave, Katrina and Todd.

Law Report 2024:

Early in 2024 the decision was made to focus on 2 initiatives for the year, develop a Rita /Universal Law website and reach out to Common Law/Sovereignty groups to see if we could find common ground and work together to promote the Blueprint and Law solution. The first task was to define the purpose of the Rita/Universal Law website. This was important because studying the Santies, the ancient Slavic-Aryan Vedas such as the Book of Light and the deep library of Ucadia material that defines the True Rule Law containing 22 Canons of Law, ancient sacred texts and documents that rewrite history from 13,000 years to the present, has proven to be a formidable task. Many THI members have struggled with the amount of information required to study and the language used can be challenging, especially for those whose first language is not English. The question we wanted to address is how do we remove the barriers? How can we make the information more accessible? So that many can get the basics and those who choose to go deeper can access the full library of material available.

Based on this thinking, the purpose of the website is to:

1. Provide access to the fundamental concepts that underpin the Law today
2. Connect the dots between the True Rule of Law as defined by Ucadia and Rita Law as defined in the Santies and Slavic-Aryan Vedas
3. Share some excerpts of sacred texts and history that challenge the current religious paradigm

Ultimately, it is our hope that studying the material shared on the website will lead to questions and an increased appetite to learn more. Once the will develops to go deeper, it is easier to overcome the barriers as the drive to truly understand who we are, where our power comes from and why this is important to start compelling us to go deeper. It took us close to 6 months to develop the website and content to a point, we felt we had a solid foundation to launch. The intent is to keep updating and adding more sections over time to develop a more complete picture. We have also set up a Proton mail account accessed via the "I have a question" or "How do I contact your organization" links enabling the Law team to connect directly with anyone who wishes to engage with us.

The information presented has been set up in 6 categories, 6 petals on the Blueprint flower of life. The sections are:

1. The Intro to Law Series which explains the fundamental truths of law and how the current mind influence system works. There are also links to documents that define the truth about Common Law and the Magna Carta as well as what is Admiralty Law, the Settlement (Birth) Certificate and Cestui Que Vie Trust, and how we were all classified as Enemies of the State in the 20th Century. There are also 2 presentations available for downloading, Will and Testament (to cure the intestate presumption of the state) and the Sacraments of Baptism & Penance (the central law that governs every Western Law court case). Work continues on future presentations to expand on how the courts operate, the Origin of the Species and the Alien Mind Virus, so stay tuned.

2. Rita Law reveals the ancient wisdom of the Slavic/Aryan Rus and the philosophy of Ynglism, starting with the Santies of Perun, written over 40,000 years ago and revealing eternal truths that are still valid today. Followed by the Book of Light containing knowledge about ancient times and the ancient wisdom of the Great Race and descendants of the heavenly clan, Words of Wisdom of the Magus Velimudra, one of the most ancient sources of the secret Vedic knowledge and RACE, an account of the clans of the Ases, the Svyata (Great) Race. We have also included links and access to the website derzhavarus.ru that contains much more knowledge about the history, philosophy and spiritual concepts of the ancient Slavic-Aryan Vedas. Russian History by Nikolai Levashov, that details the origins of man on Midgard-Earth and the true history of the Rus and RITA laws of telegony, as well as some other documents that describe the birth of our existence and the world of humans.

3. The True History of America section contains detailed information as to how and why America was created, who created it and challenges the propaganda and lies to reveal the truth about the founding of America. Starting in 1666 with the United Company of Merchants, proceeding to the United States of the Netherlands and the Banking Wars of the 1800's, to defining the District of Columbia vs. Minor Outlying Islands vs. the corporation of the United States of America. Part 4 reveals the true founding of Washington D.C and part 5 reveals how America and the New World Order are intertwined. If this section is truly understood, people will start to realize that the United States of America has had at least 4 fake constitutions, has always remained subservient to the Crown. How every court is an Admiralty Law jurisdiction and why politics is of no consequence, just a distraction to keep the true rulers and their agenda hidden from view.

4. The Truth About Religion shares some excerpts from Lebor Clann Glas (Book of the Green Race), which is the story of the Cuilleán (Holly) who originated from what we know today as Ireland (the Sacred Isle). Documents detail how it was the Emperor Vespasian and the Romans who created Judaism (meaning the divine right to rule by the chosen people) known today as Judaism. It also contains speeches given by Holly Prince Yahusiah to the Roman Senate and from the Great Temple in Jerusalem and how on becoming King Yahusiah he founded the Britannic Empire with his seat and parliament in Holly Rood (Edinburgh). Yahusiah became known as Jesus Christ around 300 to 400 A.D. when Christianity was distorted to form the fake religion it has become today. Holly British Emperor Constantine's speech from Antioch in 314 CE is also shared and should cause many to question the fake history we have been taught. It is up to each of us to decide if these documents are true or not. We do not propose to defend them for truth stands with no need for defence.

5. What you Didn't Know About Consent contains the consent booklet published by THI, to help people learn how our day-to-day choices impact our lives. The universe is founded on the operation of Free Will; hence our consent is required for dark forces to operate their agenda. Also learn how we are constantly being tricked into implied consent and the affect it has on our lives. Learn how to remove consent and how to take back personal empowerment.

As you review this rich collection of information that will challenge how you think and act, please share your feedback, ask questions and engage in the conversation. Help us learn how we can make this information more relevant and more accessible. Suggestions have already been made to create video courses, and to find ways to make this more engaging for children and youth. We are open to all these ideas; however, we will need help to evolve as it will take people willing to go deeper, study more and roll up their sleeves to help. Four people developed the current website, we will need many more hands to take it to the next level. Please contact us via the Proton mail links provided in each section if you have questions, wish to learn more or want to volunteer time and effort to evolve the content.

With regards to our outreach efforts, we did engage some common law groups; however, have been unable to break down barriers to challenge the veracity of common law. Many groups are stuck in the thinking that common law works, that the Magna Carta is valid, and many are also chasing the promise of riches, if they can claim their birth certificate and gain access to the cestui que vie trust funds. Sadly, these ideas are all traps laid to distract and confuse with false hope, so people do not ask the right questions and find the truth. We will continue with these efforts; however, prefer to not waste energy once it becomes apparent minds are closed.

We have had 2 successful engagements to date, however. One is through a contact in Australia, a young Mother who quit the corporate world after seeing the truth during the Covid plandemic. She and her family moved and are now active participants in a Home-Schooling community that is awake. We have shared the Blueprint and Rita/Universal Law website and engaged in some positive dialogue, which is ongoing, we hope to explore the potential to collaborate in 2025. They are keen to develop this work as a school curriculum for their children so they can start teaching the truth.

We also engaged the individual who developed the Myth is Canada website. He has received the Canadian version of the Blueprint, links to THI-Show.com and the Rita/Universal Law website and we intend to engage more in the near future to explore potential collaboration. It is our hope that folks will find the Law, and the Slavic/Aryan Vedas more accessible through our website. It is also our hope that those who have reservations about Ucadia, will start to open their minds to the possibility that Ucadia contains a positive way forward. We live in a complex world. We would all prefer that each of us have the character and values to make the need for laws irrelevant. Based on observation, it appears that humanity is not there yet, so some form of rules, standards, norms are needed to help civilizations flourish. A civilisation is the highest possible association of multiple societies and populations sharing advanced and cohesive systems of social, political, cultural and economic organizations. Over the past 10,000 years there have been a few dozen civilisations. It is an inevitable fact that Civilisations are complex, they consist of many interconnected systems and take many years and people to build and implement them. Civilisations that are founded on the Golden Rule and True Rule of Law have flourished. Civilisations that move toward authoritarianism and become despotic with an elite class ruling over inferior slave classes, and that allow merchant bankers to erode trust, all fail.

The Blueprint is planting the seeds of a better civilisation that will require many people and many years to build and implement. The foundation of any civilisation is the True Rule of Law. In order for the True Rule of Law to develop deep roots, we must be able to define what law is and what law is not. Guardians of this planet are needed to become competent to fully restore the Golden Rule, which states that: All are equal under the law, no one is above it, and all law is measured that all may learn and know it. All law is standard that it may always be applied the same and law is a rule that prohibits or permits certain acts. If any law contradicts these simple maxims and the Golden Rule, then there is no law. Without the formality of law, people possess by their very being that innate sense of what is right or wrong. Basic human dignity, moral integrity and moral courage to choose what is right from wrong are not a result of rule of law but precedes and ensures its operation. We need Guardians who possess the human dignity, moral integrity and moral courage to step forward and help guide humanity and develop a civilisation based on the True Rule of Law. We close with these words spoken to the young Emperor Constantine by Holly Queen Morgaine of Eire in 288 CE as they are as relevant today as they were almost 2,000 years ago. Conquer the land of a man and his sons shall rise up in revenge. Slay the sons and daughters and the earth shall yield a far more potent and bitter fruit. Conquer the spirits of men and they may yield for fear and sustenance for a time. Yet terror hardens the mind and heart until a force is spawned that fears nothing. Thus, conquest by blood is futile, and fear the fuel of a nemesis that always destroys its host. This is the way of all civilisations since the beginning of time. Yet give a man his freedom and dignity and the self-discipline to know right from wrong, and such a man shall defend to the death what he has been given, no matter how small. To truly gain what has been lost, restore the trust of men in heaven, that each be guardian to his own conscience and custodian of his own soul. Another fantastic effort by Roger and all of the law team, keep it rolling.

Women's Group Year-end Review 2024:

As a group we have learned to let the battle go and embrace our triggers and emotions, while allowing ourselves to flow, putting our egos to rest, while moving more to the heart center as our guide. We have learned to explore the root cause of our emotional triggers, leaving the cords, contracts and programs exposed that we are to actively remove and dissolve. Realizing that our inner work is never finished. We have recognized the past tendencies in our thoughts and behaviours linked to the psychotic mother in us all. We are working on our power and courage to overwrite and disconnect from this type of behaviour. As we disconnected from the old moon in early 2024, we worked on removing energetic contracts and looking at self-healing rather than focusing on the malady. Learning that no matter what happens we will work through it and come out the other side better for wear, as long as we focus on the overview.

We have embraced the graphic equalizer that Thomas introduced us to. This knowledge has helped us realize that we may help ourselves without taking on other people's issues. Relearning how to trust our discernment again, while being able to exhibit self-care without guilt and the compulsion to solve others' problems. While embracing our beautiful avatars and adding valuing, while loving them for the incredible gift that they are. We are removing boundaries and labels from ourselves to allow the flow with more of the sigma. Allowing alpha/beta to fall away until the need arises, instead of limiting ourselves to one label. We all exhibit different strengths in varying situations. We recognize the attack that has been made on women while being with-child, and the medical industry usurping the loving connection from mother and child. Harmful ultrasounds, vaccines, cutting the cord before necessary, circumcision etc. Home birth should be the norm rather than the exception. When problems arise then go seek medical attention. We encouraged the men to self-express, while incubating them with love and adding value to them facilitating us to grow together, whilst healing and balancing the divine masculine and divine feminine as one united force.

We were made to bring life into this world. We acknowledged our duty to mourn the rape of Jupiter, our feminine sun. One member created a revocation and healing for Jupiter. We allowed ourselves to feel the horror and pain that the male aspect incurred, being helpless to protect her while this atrocity was being committed. We opened our hearts and offered our deepest sympathies with our intentions set forth to bring healing. Reaching out to Mother Midgard and our wen trees, nurturing them with love and tenderness. As we are birthing ourselves together envisioning our beautiful planet and ourselves whole, pure and at peace. It is our will to manifest this, and so it is.

Media Team report 2024:

We ended last year with four main social media accounts running consistently every day on varying platforms, Twitter has two accounts @newblueprintforhumanity account and @thisshow_com. The main reason for this was, to keep the THI message separated because it has as we know very strong and often controversial truth bombs that not all are ready to hear. The blueprint needed its own voice with the message of hope and unity giving the people a chance to look at a different way forward for humanity. The solutions and the ethos needed to be seeded in the hearts and mind of the general public, the first step to changing the consciousness of humanity. Not an easy task in the seedy world of clowns and fact checkers plus bots that shadow ban our accounts, but nevertheless we had a goal and a mission to further our efforts from the previous year. So, with the structure set by Thomas, we headed further into clown world with a wave of new information and a whole heap of solutions to better humanity. We also decided to make the #tnbpfh a shorter version of The New Blueprint for Humanity logo a household name. This catchy # was a way to attract people to the accounts with a little intrigue, to uncover what the hashtag represented as people tend to see something different and want to know what it is all about. We continue to use this on our memes and videos, and it is a quick way to use as a comment on other people's posts to garner attention.

Members began to use this and other trending hashtags regularly on social media and to respond to the posts of others. Our meme makers began to note what was trending in the social world, and furnished memes on those topics. An ambitious member began to supply quotes from various show transcripts to increase the variety in our content. We also shifted the focus from mainly memes to include video shorts in order to get Thomas's voice out there and begin the task of making him more of a presence on the sites, as well as delivering a punch with audio snippets from the shows. We all have our own stories of finding Thomas and THI, the general theme of those stories is "once I heard his voice, I recognized the truth frequency." So, it was time to up our anti and add another dimension to the platforms this way.

We also have now begun to post the new What is series, and of course we have a promotional Friday for the books as a way to send traffic to the websites and increase awareness and of course sales. The team are also so excited to have now the most recent addition to Thomas's repertoire is the interviews that have taken place over the last few months, the first one of these was with Richard Vobes who had Thomas on his you tube podcast to promote the blueprint. This was very exciting as finally Thomas was now not only heard on the airwaves but was becoming the face to the voice, we have all become accustomed to. While the THI members have had many face to face interactions with Thomas, the wider public now had an opportunity to get to know him on a more personal level and see who he is and what he stands for.

Next Thomas was invited to appear on The Raw Deal interview with Jim Fetzer as the host and several guests including Joachim Hapogian, who's book Thomas covered on his special shows and Victor Hugo also known as the Maverick Artist. Victor then went on to have two more interviews with Thomas, the first one covered topics such as P.Diddy, Trump and Clinton and the Global Trust. The second of Victor's interviews also featured Joachim Hapogian and the topics covered where the Tavistock institute, child sex trafficking, Mossad amongst other controversial news pieces.

So let us take a look at how the social media accounts are faring so far this year. The twitter account has amalgamated 811 followers to date on the blueprint for humanity account and has discovered the following throughout that time posting the memes and videos daily, using the links to the websites in the descriptions of the posts and the hashtag for the blueprint or the #thishow. Short messages may accompany the memes, often in the form of a question, a ponder, or a dot-connector to something else trending on X or something specified in the shows. We also ask members to repost our accounts, and we follow them back, as we now have many members taking the time to repost the accounts or post the memes on their own personal accounts. This spreads the message further and really helps us to get seen and bypasses our shadow banning too. Posting one or more individual solutions in comments and we extend an invitation to come to the Blueprint table, or at least it answers what is concerning that person or group currently offering an alternative to their programs. Joining in live conversations either from notifications or live shows allows us to give a THI/Blueprint dot-connecting or overview insight that moves the conversation along in a peaceful, confident way. An example of the first was to push out the #selectioncharade hashtag with commentary on the deep state unipartite on the lead up to Nov 5th. Another was to weigh in on Dan Bilzerian's conversation with Piers Morgan to congratulate him and then answer a follow-up question from one of his Bluetick followers with a relevant THI-badged meme regarding National Zionists. Using our memes in a clever way, helps the followers and viewers get a more rounded view of our message and invites them to come join us and become part of the solutions.

We followed the same format on Instagram, as this keeps in line with the flow and structure that was set in place at the beginning of the media team. With Thomas's words setting the truth frequency it is up to us to then maintain that structure and flow within all of the accounts, as this ensures we get the message out without contradictions and creates the same message on all the platforms that then sets a seed daily. To date we have amassed 701 followers on this account and to date have posted 937 posts, the main focus has been on the blueprint account @blueprintforhumanity111 and the THI account handle is @thishow111 this account has 150 followers to date. With Telegram being used in the main to cover both accounts as it was easier for members to download memes from there to spread the word, and we could upload longer videos there from both accounts. This account now has 436 followers, find it @THI_SHOW_COM.

Tik tok was later established to attract a younger audience and has in the main done very well. As it was a general account combining both platforms, to save manpower. The team decided to make a theme a day from all the memes with the objective of using the memes to tell a story, that we then incorporated the solutions from the blueprint on all platforms, this married the two accounts together and was easier to do this on the tik tok account. TikTok gave us some trouble, claiming the music on some of our videos violated their copyright rules; conveniently, they offered substitute tunes, so once again we found a solution to their trickery and we kept moving forward. While they continue to find ways to reduce our outreach, we overcome this by commenting on other posts inviting people to follow our channel, and to check out our solutions and our podcasts. It works very well as people like to find out more about us. We have amassed over 1500 followers with many returning, commenting and sharing our posts consistently. It is also nice to receive p.m.'s asking for the links to the blueprint and thi shows. The tik tok handle is @thi-show_com. Taking the time to connect with the followers has paid dividends and some of our posts have received over 80 shares and is reaching many countries in the breakdown section. The main ones are UK, Ireland and the US, but also, we consistently reach other countries like Croatia and south Africa and we are delighted to say we have had Russia showing up on the chart flow. Interestingly enough in the reach section there is a box called 'other'; it causes amusement as we speculate on what the 'other' country is. Despite the removal of many posts after appeal tik tok have generally restored the posts, we do not back down and we don't give up.

You tube had a big following already so we reopened it and began uploading full shows there for both THI and the Blueprint, but due to many of our earlier shows from 2018 and 2019 being targeted and removed consistently, mainly for spreading medical misinformation allegedly, we decided that it was time to say Ta Ra to Jew tube and concentrate on the accounts we already had.

Then came the addition earlier this year of the Activism team, the media team's role was to help co-ordinate any memes they needed when they were running any campaigns that brought awareness to the public in a better way. Working with the Activist team gave us impetus to create more hard-hitting memes for use in their campaigns. The recent transcripts were used to make these memes, also incorporating anything we had in our files that covered the topic. One very important meme came to being from a show where Thomas called all Zionist and Think Tank agendas acts anti humanity. These memes got quite a bit of traction on the platforms, and we used them to highlight all acts of war, and crimes against humanity. The catch phrase "this is anti-humanity" is one of our favourites.

Because of the recent interviews we now have short video clips from those also going into circulation. All of the above is part of the duties of the media team, a very busy hub of activity, mind merging and creative flow. We still are a very small operation, with only five members now doing all the above duties, running the accounts, creating memes and videos. We do have a helping hand of extracting material from the transcripts to make the memes and videos and that makes a huge difference to us as it saves time for the team. Our primary gleaner of content takes time from work in other groups. In her own words she takes the juicy parts of the transcripts from the recent shows and passes them on for our consideration. Many of our Blueprint teams swop tasks from one team to another if they can, as we are always looking for extra hands to make light work. Later on in the year we lost our team leader as she went on to work with the assignment team, this then brought a change as the team went down to four members with the same amount of work needing to be done. The new team leader had to take on those tasks plus the ones already in hand and begin to make her stamp on things. In her words she describes it as taking on a role of responsibility, but within our framework we strive to make it comparative not competitive, leaving the corporate world behind, but still maintaining a structure. Less like herding cats and more about creating a safe space and a place you can call home.

The biggest change to working within the blueprint teams is the structure, this keeps things simple and balanced with everyone following the same script a flow is created. This flow is the energetic force that sets the blueprint seeds far and wide, the difference in this energetic wave is there is no chaos. It takes the stream of truth frequency and spreads it far and wide, our message is different, which then not only alerts the reader and listener to pay attention, but it also leaves a different thought pattern in its wake. The Think Different meme is not just for THI members. Waking people up to not only what is wrong with the world and what needs correction, is always going to be a challenge. The team's goal is to provide a working method that enables this wave to continue on, outside of THI. The few that sit around their computers and diligently do this work are rare, they do so tirelessly, never looking for credit, in fact their names in the main remain anonymous.

The goals at the beginning of the year were largely met, and new additions to the work have become second nature. Observing the increase in views, emoji reactions, comments and shares, despite shadow banning and attempts to block us on the pretext of hateful conduct, when we dare to point out the hateful conduct and hate speech of the anti-humanity group. But the biggest tipoff that we are making inroads is found in the mainstream, where the word "blueprint" has appeared in books and articles; where politicians and others are promoting in the political arena the values of transparency and working for the people, and in society of working together and rejecting the fake values of the woke culture; and where major influencers are expressing a desire to work more closely with us.

2025 will see another change to the structure that will further enhance the great work achieved by the few, and we look forward to embracing the changes and seeing the fruit of those seeds begin to emerge. All have led the way forward together and the teams' creative memes and videos have left a lasting mark in the chaotic and messy world of social media. One day we hope to be the way showers for a better media experience that changes this planet Midgard. The narrative of the new way will be one of guardianship with truth, honor, and integrity We know that one small flower can save the world.

Website stats:

There has been a steady and increasing amount of traffic over the second half of the year to the Blueprint site. That is encouraging for all who are involved in the Blueprint teams, as the seeds are beginning to grow. Views of the websites have increased in the second half of the year as well, with over 1000 views on a particular day in late June. The planting of the seeds is beginning to grow and that should give you all a boost that it is working. Patience is required to grow anything, particularly given we are heavily censored and shadow banned.

The TPC update:

The TPC has made steady progress this year and hoping we can expand upon the two investments we made two years ago, of the tractor and the coffee bean roaster. We will be starting off the New Year with appointing a new Secretary after Marnie Patterson requested to step down due to her own workload. The board wish to thank Marnie for her services over the past two years and wish her well. It has not been decided who to replace her with yet, as it ideally requires someone in the village given the bank location, plus someone who knows how to file papers, do an excel spreadsheet and liaise with our URS agents. It is likely that I will have to go back to doing the filing until a suitable candidate is found.

Other interesting ventures with the TPC do have potential in 2025. We started the year off with $46,959 and ended the year with $55,500. Donations this year totalled $9256 Loan returns $8700 Investment returns $1435 Investment expenses $6425 Office expenses $723 Donations expenses $364 Filing fees expenses $615 Website expenses $1679 Show and zoom expenses $927 I wish to thank everyone who donated this year to the TPC it is much appreciated.

As per previous years the board of Directors, myself, Marnie and Roger received no compensation for the work done for the TPC.

Tiny interviews update:

After much trying by the activist team to get me an interview, it was left to one of our members to take the bull by the horns and message someone he was following. Step forward Blueprint promotional man, Steve Wilkinson. He not only messaged Richard Vobes but also bought and sent him the Blueprint book for good measure. This then led to a conversation between Steve and Richard and led me to my first interview in 5 years with Richard. It was a delightful 45 minute conversation and got me back in the flow of being interviewed again. Thanks to Steve who has continued to push the envelope this year in promoting the Blueprint, THI and myself.

Assignment team update:

In late July after pondering over a number of months of whether to streamline the Blueprint groups and have a personal team focusing on certain aspects that I needed. Unlike the corporate structure which rewards those who sleep with each other, trample on each other and certain cliques get rewarded, I decided to go on total input into the Blueprint. On that note, I appointed Roger Isaacs and Susan McCann to take the Blueprint forward a bit more and to engage the public more. Both have settled in really well and stuck to the task. This was rewarded almost immediately as the first contact the Assignment team made was with Joachim Hapogian, whose book we covered with The true horrors of the world series. He and I had a good call and that led me to being invited onto a panel show of Jim Fetzer, along with Joachim, Victor Hugo and Russell Winter. Whilst I didn't get to speak much, I clearly made an impact and was asked would I come on again, which I agreed to. Also I was then contacted by Victor Hugo courtesy of the Assignment team and he asked would I go on his show. That was an interesting conversation that appeared to blow him away, as he kept asking, who are you? Who me???????? I have kept in contact with both Victor and Joachim and was then invited on Victor's show again with Joachim. We discussed the true horrors of the world and also the Have you lost your mind show in relation to Tavistock and the CIA, with their MK Ultra programs.

On December 8th I was invited again on Victor's show and we had a lively discussion. Following that recording, Victor announced he is going on a new platform called Revolution Radio and asked would I come on again in the New Year. Victor told me that apart from the religious people, many of his followers keep asking him to bring me on again. This augurs well for the future. During this time we have also contacted Scott Ritter and Judge Napolitano for engagements. Roger as mentioned was tasked to try and engage the Common Law groups but they are too rigid in their belief structure. In October I made another appointment to the Assignment team, this time in the world of science which we have covered quite a bit this year. Also with Kevin's two presentations adding into the mix, I guess we were all blinded by science this year. I appointed Michael Blaha to do the tasks of the science team and he is thrilled to be able to contribute. We will hear more from Michael next year.

Several people are now contacting the Assignment team and calls to people are now stacking up a bit. This augurs well for next year, as things have and will change again. The decision to create the smaller Assignment has paid off heavily already in the few months of operating. Next year I am thinking of adding Rebecca to the Assignment team for the Gardening section. This would entail engaging all the gardening groups, living off the land groups online and trying to exchange ideas, show them our website, promote sharing each others website material, promote each other's group and also getting a zoom with the contacted groups. This then gives us greater exposure for not only the gardening section, but the Blueprint as well. The zoom calls would be with the gardening members and the other groups, don't ask me to attend the zooms as I know zero about gardening, plus I am not old enough yet for gardening! I haven't been put out to pasture just yet.

The Blueprint towards the end of this year underwent a revamp after several issues cropped up within the groups. Thankfully they have all been rectified and a new streamlined system has now been put in place. We are hoping for a better flow next year now a new structure has been put in place. We have made giant strides this past year and all of you should be proud of your achievements.

A disappointment was made that we did not receive a single contact reply from the myriad of books, pdf's, contact forms and general engagements, until it was unearthed that we did have contacts made to us, but they were all overlooked and or ignored. It is just a shame that some of the contacts we were able to find in the emails, 54 to date, only 6 were responded to and none of them were forwarded onto me as requested, for me to engage those who made the effort to contact us. It is extremely disappointing that, that unfolded and I am sorry that all the work you did to make those contacts was not being attended to in the right manner. But you put trust in people to do the right things and hope they follow the very simple formula and plan laid out, but that did not unfold with the emails and I'm sorry for that. As disappointing as that episode is, following a change in how the emails are addressed, work is underway to go through the number of contacts and to then reach back out to them. The Assignment team are tasked to get everything back on track and then report back to me.

I requested in a recent meeting that members need to report more of your engagements, as personally I feel not enough of the work done is being relayed in the Blueprint shows. I asked all to do a short write up and give it to Kayoko, I will add it to a show. I just feel there is not enough feedback of the work you are doing. Remember the show is more for people outside of THI. The work all done is now banked and we are getting some rewards now in the form of being noticed. There will be more shows outside of THI in the coming year and that allows me to showcase more of the Blueprint, in the hope of getting more people on board. The Blueprint is out there now and is getting noticed and so that phase of operations is now complete. A fantastic effort by all of those who took part in it, let us not forget all of that. As we march forward into 2025, with a new hope.
