*Out of the $700B+ the trust handed over to keep America going part of which was funds for the wall, $400b april 17th they used a backdoor syphon due to their old system - funds were funnelled via nato - what they left was bare minimum for govt to operate on - this type of interference has now been stopped and measures taken for the future it wont be allowed to do so again. Part of this problem is we gave Trump team a solution for non interference and they never listened, perhaps they are listening now.

*illegal monitoring of all people is being deleted out of the system, it will take a bit of time to accomplish it all, due to more pressing things on a higher level to fix things here.

*Banks are all trying to reset systems, Trying to install back doors back, Reports also show treasury and NSA resetting. But them trying to reset actually helps, because the new firewalls immediately do a scan and detect for interference. Resetting won't help them bank or computer wise, but what is required is a full resetting of their mindset. Fly straight and we all prosper, continue illusion of control stupidity - you fail.

*Nice to see followers of the Q narrative have now got on board about Valerie Jarrett being Obama's handler, of course this show mentioned it a long time back, I think we were still in CV then

* An open letter signed by hundreds of industry experts stated that: "We are also deeply concerned about the possible integration of Google's data on people's everyday lives with military surveillance data, and its combined application to targeted killing. Google has moved into military work without subjecting itself to public debate or deliberation, either domestically or internationally. While Google regularly decides the future of technology without democratic public engagement, its entry into military technologies casts the problems of private control of information infrastructure into high relief. Should Google decide to use global internet users' personal data for military purposes, it would violate the public trust that is fundamental to its business by putting its users' lives and human rights in jeopardy. The responsibilities of global companies like Google must be commensurate with the transnational makeup of their users. The DoD contracts under consideration by Google, and similar contracts already in place at Microsoft and Amazon, signal a dangerous alliance between the private tech industry, currently in possession of vast quantities of sensitive personal data collected from people across the globe, and one country's military. They also signal a failure to engage with global civil society and diplomatic institutions that have already highlighted the ethical stakes of these technologies."

*Tommy Robinson was arrested in Leeds, in the UK, outside the court. A few hours later he was sentenced to 13 months in prison. Tommy was arrested for causing a disturbance. But in fact, he had just been talking into his cell phone, doing a Facebook video livestream, for one hour. He was doing journalism — standing outside a court house where a Muslim rape gang was on trial. Tommy had asked a few tough questions of two Muslim men who were on trial, and who were in court today to hear the verdict on their trial for raping white girls and forcing them into prostitution. The entire interaction was very brief; it was aggressive, sure. But the men went away quickly — they were just walking into court. There is no rule against hollering at an accused rapist. And Tommy was very careful throughout his broadcast to call them only accused or alleged criminals. And he was careful about where he stood, because he was held in contempt of court a year ago for doing what every other journalist does: reporting from courthouse steps. So he was very careful this time. It didn't matter. The court docket says he's charged for contempt of court — not the breach of the peace that the cops said when they arrested him. On the court docket I'll show you, you can also see Muslim names — that's the alleged rape gang members. Apparently the names were subject to a publication ban — but it is a fact that other media had published these names in public. That's what they used to arrest Tommy for: For saying those names. Tommy's long-standing lawyers were not notified of his arrest. Instead, Tommy was rushed into court that moment; given a court-appointed lawyer who was neither an expert in contempt of court law, nor familiar with Tommy or his legal history. And the hearing was held in a matter of minutes.

*so, ya all had a massive info overload with last 2 shows From Russia with love, yes was staggering in many ways. History revision in particular - how technology not new - enlightened beings and humans working together to help other races - teachers of light and dark -pleased about no one sighting the piece as being potentially racist, we must go beyond the labelled boxes and call poor behavior out regardless of which particular box - the term Aryan put into it's proper light -was both jesus and Mary Aryan? - India's history rewritten as all copied - communism a political theory derived from Karl Marx, advocating class war and leading to a society in which all property is publicly owned and each person works and is paid according to their abilities and needs, Karl Marx was not Russian, 70-90M of a nation wiped out in 1 generation, essentially all the cream of the people it took to run a country, this type of political operations has been replayed over and over and has become a cancer on this planet, and one we must stop - UR perhaps where term Europe came from?

*Samantha Bee is outraged that U.S. immigration authorities are separating undocumented children and their parents at the border. "Tearing children away from their parents is so evil, it's the inciting incident in almost every movie we've ever cared about," Bee said in the latest episode of "Full Frontal." (heaven forbid she goes full frontal as her face is enough to put you off) To make matters worse, the administration has lost track of hundreds of children who were separated from their parents and placed in foster care. Enter Ivanka Trump, who posted a photo of herself and her son on Twitter last Sunday. That "oblivious tweet" sparked this plea from Bee: "You know, Ivanka, that's a beautiful photo of you and your child, but let me just say, one mother to another, do something about your dad's immigration practices, you feckless c**t!" when she has researched the hidden issues then she can comment - Valerie Jarrett - Roseanne Barr, Trump - comments the other week and various other inflammatory comments, all of it bs'ery to provide a to gullible public with the flow of drama, think these are all off the cuff remarks? stage managed theater, and a further sign they are losing the main narrative.

***INSIDERS OF LOOTED GOLD WORTH $200billion FROM THE RESERVE BANK OF SA*

*Stephen Goodson* has written a hair raising account of criminal activities at the South African equivalent of the Federal Reserve. As a former Director, he is in a position to know.

A whistle-blower has revealed the truth about the South African Reserve Bank.

"Inside the South African Reserve Bank - It's Origins and Secrets Exposed" is a fascinating and must-read book.

Most people have no idea what the purpose of the Reserve Bank is. It's high time they learned the truth. Author, Stephen Goodson, paints the South African Reserve Bank as an insidious institution full of back-handing, back-stabbing, corrupt, power hungry psychopaths... (pretty much like any other bank!)

Goodson is a former Director of the Reserve Bank and, according to his book:

It is absolutely clear that the Board of the Reserve Bank has absolutely no idea how the money creation process works. In other words, they do not actually understand that, when a commercial bank creates a loan or an overdraft, the customer spends the money into existence. In other words, a bank loan creates brand new money.

The scandal of Gill Marcus, who is Jewish, left, the former Governor of the SARB, is both alarming and disturbing. After selling sandwiches in London, she studied economics and went to work for our Reserve Bank. She was so awful, that she was instructed to clear her desk in 2004 and leave the building. She was fired. However after secretly following [her predecessor] Tito Mboweni around, she created a black-list of all his ill-deeds. Later, she reappeared as Governor of SARB under mysterious circumstances.

Gill Marcus immediately removed the requirement that all Reserve Bank meetings must be transcribed and recorded. She shredded documents and changed the voting rights of shareholders. Then she introduced changes that would phase out the "old guard" and amended the rules to allow only herself to appoint new candidates.

Finally, she secretly allowed a Swedish company to print South Africa's banknotes, while the local printing facility stood idle. This was a disaster. R800,000m worth of bank notes were put into circulation that did not even come close to meeting the required printing standards.

Shortly afterwards, R360million worth of banknotes had to be destroyed because they were "accidentally" printed with the same serial numbers. Since then, for secrecy reasons, the same company is still responsible for producing many of South Africa's banknotes.

Kruger Rands have been found to be 5% short of the stated gold content. SilverDoctors.com stated that this was likely to be a skimming operation by the South African Reserve Bank. If you purchased Kruger Rands after 2010, we suggest that you have them tested.

300 tonnes of gold valued at over R300 billion was stolen from the SARB, with the help of insiders as part of a bigger looting exercise valued at a massive R2.25 trillion.

A third of our foreign currency reserves are looked after by a single bank: JP Morgan, a bank who's reputation and skulduggery goes sickeningly deep.

90% of our gold reserves are kept at the Bank of England. When Germany asked the Federal Reserve bank of the US for their gold back, they only returned a very small portion of what was agreed - and it turned out that the gold returned was fake.

The story seems almost too incredible to be true, could it be the same with our gold reserves? This is just another day at the office for the banksters. The question is... where is South Africa's gold now? Not in the hands of the people that mine it, that's for sure.

[Author] Stephen Goodson left SARB under claims that he was a "holocaust denier" with bad press associated with him. He dedicates an entire chapter to this topic in his book, which does not interest NewERA at all. We are far more interested in the research and insight behind the banking system. It is greatly sad that such a topic is brought up, as we feel it is completely unnecessary and inconsequential to the real message behind the book.

According to Goodson, the solution to this problem, at least in part, is the creation of a People's Bank. This bank does not allow money to be created out of nothing by a bank then loaned to the government at interest. Instead, the government issues its own currency based on our ability and requirements to develop.

This kind of bank is not new. It has been created several times in the past with incredible success. However, each time such a bank was created, either the bank was mysteriously closed down, or its country was bombed. When a conventional Central Banking system is put in place, economic hell soon follows.

Until the people of South Africa understand the history and lies behind the banking system, and have the humility to admit that we have been misinformed by a skewed economic education system, then we will never see economic freedom.
